The first half hour of the morning session shall be devoted to religious exercises, conducted by the presiding officer or by some other person designated for such service. The General Conference, however, may alter the time of meeting and may adjourn and fix the time to which it shall adjourn. A recess of ten minutes shall be taken at 10:30 o'clock unless otherwise ordered.

THE PRESIDENT

RULE 3. The President shall take the chair precisely at the hour to which the General Conference stood adjourned, and cause the session to be opened by the reading of the Scriptures, singing, and prayer. On the appearance of a quorum he shall see that the business of the Conference proceeds regularly, according to the Rules of Order, and such other regulations as may be adopted by the General Conference.

RULE 4. The President shall decide all questions of order, subject to an appeal to the General Conference. In case of such appeal the question shall be taken without debate, except that the appellant shall state the grounds of his appeal, and the President shall state the grounds of his decision.

RULE 5. The President shall appoint all Committees, unless otherwise especially ordered by the Conference.

RULE 6. On assigning the floor to a member and before the member speaks, the President shall ascertain and distinctly announce the name of the delegate and of the Annual Conference which he represents.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

RULE 7. The regular order of business shall be:

I. DEVOTIONAL SERVICES.

II. APPROVAL OF THE JOURNAL.¹

III. REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON PRIVILEGES.²

The following CALLS shall be made in the order herein given, and shall be severally completed before the introduction of other business, except by a suspension of the rules. They shall be repeated, in the same order, until dispensed with by a formal vote.

IV. CALL OF THE CONFERENCES—Annual, Central and Central Mission—in alphabetical order for the presentation of written resolutions for immediate passage.

(1) When a resolution has been presented and read under the Call of Conferences, and before the person who introduces the resolution shall speak, the question of consideration shall be raised by the Chair asking: "Is there objection to consideration?" If objection be raised, the question of consideration shall then be put without debate, and if there is a two-thirds vote against consideration the resolution shall not be entertained; but if consideration be not denied, the person introducing the resolution may then speak to it.

(2) If after the person introducing the resolution has spoken, a motion of reference be immediately made it shall be decided without debate. This motion to refer may be amended and such amendments shall be decided without debate and in the reverse order of their presentation. If no motion to refer be made or if a motion to refer has been negatived, the proposition shall be regarded as in possession of the house and its discussion shall be subject to the ordinary rules governing debate.

(3) A motion to defer consideration and print in The Daily Advocate shall be decided without debate. If sustained by one hundred and fifty members it shall prevail; in which case the resolution shall be given precedence at the next session of the General Conference immediately after recess; provided, however, that a resolution which has been refused consideration shall not be printed in The Daily Advocate or the General Conference Journal.

V. CALENDAR.

Following every completed Call of the Conferences, the reports of the several Standing and Special Committees shall be called in the order in which they are filed with the Secretary of the General Conference, except as otherwise determined by the General Conference.

VI. CALL OF MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Following the completion of the Call under V there shall be the Call of Miscellaneous Business which shall be conducted under the special rules as provided for the Call of the Conferences in IV.

DUTIES AND PRIVILEGES OF MEMBERS

RULE 8. No member shall absent himself from the sessions of the General Conference without leave, unless he be unable to attend.

RULE 9. When a member is about to speak in debate, or to deliver any matter to the General Conference, he shall rise and respectfully address the President but shall not proceed until recognized by him. The member must address the Chair from his place, but he shall speak to the General Conference from the speaker's platform. In the consideration of reports of General Conference Commissions, Standing or Special Committees, the person claiming the floor shall announce from his place upon which side he proposes to speak. If that side of the question has been presented by the speaker immediately preceding, and if the floor be immediately claimed by one upon the other side, the latter claim shall be recognized. In any case if a speaker takes the platform without challenge he shall be entitled to all the rights of debate; provided, however, that no report shall be finally decided or debate upon a main question be closed without an opportunity for the presentation of that side of the question which has not been previously presented by not more than two speakers.

RULE 10. No member shall be interrupted when speaking, except by the President to call him to order when he departs from the question, or uses personalities or disrespectful language; but any member may call the attention of the President to the subject when he deems a speaker out of order, and any member may explain when he thinks himself misrepresented.

RULE 11. When a member desires to speak to a question of privilege he shall briefly state the question; but it shall not be in order for him to speak to the house until the President shall have heard the question of privilege and decided that it is a privileged question. Questions of privilege are strictly limited to matters relating to the rights and welfare of the individual as a member or of the whole body; and must be of such immediate urgency as to justify the interruption of the regular order.

It shall be the imperative duty of the President to require the member who desires to speak to a question of privilege to state his question of privilege. This having been done, the President shall decide whether it shall be allowed; and, if it be allowed, shall hold the member closely to the subject. See RULE 42.

RULE 12. No person shall speak more than once on the same question until every member who chooses to speak shall have spoken; nor shall any member speak more than twice on the same question, nor more than ten minutes at one time, without leave of the General Conference.

Provided, however, that a committee making a report through its chairman, or one of its members selected by the committee or by its chairman, shall be entitled to ten minutes to close the debate, either to oppose the motion to lay the report on the table, or, this permission not having been used, to close the debate on the motion to adopt. The committee shall not be deprived of its right to close the debate even after the previous question has been ordered, and, when a report consisting of two or more propositions has a seriatim consideration, the chairman or representative of the committee shall be entitled to the same rights and privileges on each proposition, thus decided separately, as he would have had if the report had been considered as a unit. A similar privilege is granted to the chairman in charge of a minority report. See RULE 51 and RULE 52.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS

RULE 13. Resolutions shall be written and presented in duplicate by the mover. A motion shall be reduced to writing if the President, Secretary, or a member request it. If the General Conference shall order a resolution to be referred to a committee, then the mover shall furnish to the Secretary a third copy thereof for the use of the committee.

RULE 14. Reading. All written motions, reports, and communications to the General Conference shall be passed to the Secretary, to be read by him to the General Conference.

RULE 15. When a motion is made and seconded, or a resolution introduced and seconded, or a report presented and read by the Secretary, or stated by the President, it shall be deemed in possession of the Conference.

RULE 16. The following motions shall be taken without debate:

- (1) To adjourn.
- (2) To suspend the rules.
- (3) To lay on the table.
- (4) To take from the table.
- (5) To raise the question of consideration.
- (6) To call for the previous question.
- (7) To reconsider a nondebatable motion.
- (8) To refer, only under Rules 7 (2) and 19.
- (9) To defer and print, only under Rule 7 (3).

RULE 17. No new motion or resolution shall be entertained until the one under consideration has been disposed of, which may be done by adoption or rejection; but one or more of the following motions may be made, and they shall have precedence in the order in which they are given, namely:

- (1) To fix the time to which the General Conference shall adjourn (may be amended, substituted, or laid on the table).
- (2) To adjourn.
- (3) To take a recess.
- (4) To lay on the table.
- (5) To order the previous question (cannot be laid on the table).
- (6) To postpone to a given time.
- (7) To refer.
- (8) To substitute.
- (9) To amend.
- (10) To postpone indefinitely.

NOTE.—The motions "to Lay on the Table" or "To Postpone Indefinitely" shall not apply to certain reports from the Committee on Judiciary. See Rule 40, § 3 (2).

RULE 18. Only one amendment to an amendment shall be in order, but it shall be in order to move a substitute for the main question, and one amendment to the substitute, and if the substitute is accepted, it shall replace the original proposition.

RULE 19. It shall be in order to move the previous question—that is, that the question be taken without further debate—on any measure pending, except in cases in which moral character is involved. If the call for the previous question be sustained by a vote of two-thirds of the members present and voting, the main question shall be put; nevertheless, under this rule, after the previous question has been ordered, it shall be in order to divide, or to move to refer or to recommit or to lay on the table. It shall not be in order for a member to move the previous question or to move to lay on the table or to offer any other motion that closes debate at the end of a speech in which he has discussed the pending question.

RULE 20. When a vote is about to be taken any member shall have the right to call for the division of a question, if it be divisible into distinct propositions.

RULE 21. The motion to adjourn shall be taken without debate, and shall always be in order, except

(1) When a member has the floor.

(2) When a question is actually put, or a vote is being taken, or until finally decided.

(3) When a question is pending on sustaining the demand for the previous question.

(4) When the previous question has been called and sustained, and action under it is pending.

(5) When a motion to adjourn has been negatived, and no business or debate has intervened.

(6) When a motion to fix the time to which the General Conference shall adjourn is pending.

RULE 22. Reconsideration. When any motion or resolution shall have been acted upon by the General Conference, it shall be in order for any member who voted with the prevailing side to move a reconsideration; provided, that a motion to reconsider a nondebatable motion shall be decided without debate.

RULE 23. Changes of Discipline. All resolutions proposing changes of the Discipline shall state the language of the paragraph, the line to be altered, and the language to be substituted; and no such proposed change shall be considered until it has been in the possession of the General Conference for one day and shall have been printed in The Daily Christian Advocate; but while it is under consideration amendments which are germane shall be in order.

RULE 24. When any member shall move the reference of any portion of the Journal of an Annual, Central, or Central Mission Conference to any committee he must at the same time furnish a copy of the portion he wishes to have referred, prepared as provided by Rule 32 in the case of memorials.

VOTING

RULE 25. Every member who is within the bar at the time a question is put shall vote, unless, for special reasons, excused by the General Conference. A member who is not within the bar at the time when a question shall be put by the President shall not be allowed to vote except by leave of the General Conference, when such member has been necessarily absent.

RULE 26. Voting shall be by the uplifted hand, but, on a division of the house, a count vote shall be taken, the members rising in their places and standing until they shall have been counted. Votes may also be taken by ballot and by AYES and NOES.

RULE 27. Ayes and Noes. It shall be in order for any member to call for the AYES and NOES on any question before the General Conference, and if the call be sustained by one hundred members, the vote thereon shall be so taken. If the call be not sustained, members voting in the minority may have their votes recorded. The AYES and NOES may be taken in the following manner: Each member shall write his name and vote on the official ballot, to be inspected and the totals reported by the several chairmen of the Conference delegations, and passed to the Secretary of the General Conference for record. The Secretary of the General Conference shall prepare uniform blanks for the taking of such ballot, and shall publish the detailed vote by Conferences in the Journal and The Daily Advocate.

RULE 28. Order of voting. In voting when there is a substitute, and amendments have been proposed to the original resolution and an amendment to the substitute has been moved, the General Conference shall pursue the following order, namely: The main question shall first be perfected by voting on the amendments proposed thereto, and then the General Conference shall vote upon the amendment to the substitute, then upon the question of substitution, and finally upon the question of adoption.

RULE 29. A call for a vote by orders shall be made and seconded by members of the same order, and shall require the vote of one-third of the members of that order present and voting.

RULE 30. When voting by orders the separation shall be merely in regard to the taking, announcing, deciding, and recording the vote of each order on the question on which the separate vote is demanded. Any incidental question bearing upon such vote shall be decided by the General Conference acting as one body. In taking a vote by orders it shall be by a count vote, first of the order calling for the separate vote and then of the other order.

MEMORIALS, RESOLUTIONS, AND PAPERS FOR UNANNOUNCED REFERENCE

RULE 31. Memorials. Three copies of memorials, resolutions, and miscellaneous papers for reference to a committee, and not for immediate passage, shall be placed in the hands of the Secretary without announcement.

All matters approved by the committee as matters of privilege shall be reported to the presiding officer and acted upon each day immediately after the approval of the Journal. The appointment of such a committee, however, shall not be construed as abridging in any measure the right of any member to bring forward at any time, from his place on the floor, such matters of urgency as involve the rights or welfare of the individual member or of the house. (See RULE 11.)

In a minority report from the Committee on Judiciary one signature shall be sufficient. Minority reports shall bear the same serial numbers, with proper alphabetical notations, as the majority reports for which they are offered as substitutes. If there be two or more such reports they shall be considered in their alphabetical order. All such reports shall be presented to the Conference upon paper bearing at the top the number of the report, the name of the committee, the total membership of the committee, the number present at the time the report was adopted, the number voting for the report, and the number voting against the report. the chairman shall designate a member to represent the action of the committee, and said representative shall have all the rights and privileges of the chairman in relation to such report.

RULE 52. The person designated to present the minority report shall have all the privileges in reference to the minority report that are given in Rule 12 to the chairman presenting a majority report; except that the chairman presenting the majority report shall have the right of closing the debate on the question of substituting the minority report for the majority report.

MISCELLANEOUS

RULE 53. The roll call at the close of the General Conference shall follow the order as provided in Rule 1, items (b) and (c).

RULE 58. These rules may be suspended at any time by a vote of two thirds of the members present and voting.

THE EPISCOPAL ADDRESS TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF 1924

Presented, May 4

To the Members of the Twenty-ninth Delegated General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS:

We address you in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, "of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named," and bring to you our cordial Christian salutations. "Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ." "We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers, remembering without ceasing your work of faith and labor of love and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God and our Father."

For the first time in more than seventy years the General Conference meets upon the soil of New England. And we are reminded by our presence here of the contribution which these commonwealths have made to the Republic and the Church, and through the Republic and the Church to the world.

It was here that Roger Williams and Jonathan Edwards and William Ellery Channing and Edwards A. Park and Phillips Brooks became leaders of men, and gave character and inspiration to great church communions. It was here that Whittier and Holmes and Emerson and Longfellow and Lowell wrote words that live with undiminished influence in the life of the world. It was from this soil that William Lloyd Garrison and Harriet Beecher Stowe and Wendell Phillips sent forth their fiery protest against the iniquities of human slavery, and made certain its doom.

But it is the contribution which New England has made to the Methodist Episcopal Church of which we are most forcibly reminded to-day. Joshua Soule, superb leader of men, was a product of Maine. Elijah Hedding, though born elsewhere, was elected to the episcopacy from Massachusetts. While John Dickins must receive credit for starting The Methodist Book Concern, yet it was Ezekiel Cooper, a New England presiding elder, who gave it the form and vitality which have made it the major Christian publishing house of the world. A mighty man from New England named Nathan Bangs started The Christian Advocate and the Methodist Review, and was also the real founder of the Missionary Society. It was William Case who founded Methodism in Canada, Jason Lee in the Pacific Northwest, and Isaac Owens in California; and each of them went out from New England. Wilbur Fisk, the first president of Wesleyan University, twice elected a bishop of the Church, and Stephen Olin, cultured and influential, were both honored sons of New England. John Dempster founded our first theological school, at Concord, New Hampshire; Melville B. Cox was the pioneer of Methodist missions in Africa, and William Butler was our first missionary superintendent in India and Mexico. Each of these dauntless leaders came from New England. Here the Warrens, Henry White and William Fairfield, grew up. The praise of the eloquent bishop is in all the churches, and Doctor Warren, still with us, is honored and loved by a multitude who have been inspired by his gracious ministry.

It was at Boston, more than half a century ago, that the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society came into being. And from the same city Gilbert Haven, big brother, brilliant editor, friend of the oppressed, royal servant of Jesus Christ, projected his unique personality into the life of the religious world. Being dead, Gilbert Haven speaks to us to-day, and this visit must have an intensified interest because he often walked these streets and was loved by this people.

But time would fail me to tell of Jesse Lee and his contemporaries who, with unflagging devotion, served the Church in this land of the Pilgrims. They traveled over these rugged mountains and through the trackless valleys in the face of poverty and persecution to lay the foundations of a church that was much misunderstood and sometimes fiercely opposed. They were heroes every one, men of sublime courage, who "through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens."

OUR PROMOTED LEADERS

We were all made very sad when the roll was called on Thursday morning that four of our comrades did not answer. A while ago they were summoned to their coronation. We speak the names of

WILSON SEELEY LEWIS

JOHN EDWARD ROBINSON

MERRIMAN COLBERT HARRIS

JAMES MILLS THOBURN

with peculiar reverence and love. It is significant that the entire episcopal service of each of these Bishops was given to the foreign field. They were great and inspiring missionary leaders, trusted implicitly by the Church at home, and loved with a passionate devotion by the people to whom they ministered. At an appropriate time a memorial service will be held, and affectionate tributes will be paid to their high character, and the distinguished service they rendered to the Church and to the world.

APPRECIATION

The General Superintendents wish to express their appreciation of the generous bearing maintained toward them both by the ministry and the laity, and they rejoice in the spirit of cordial cooperation in all movements by which we seek to establish the kingdom of righteousness in our wide field. The printed reports of our administration and of the progress of the work of God in the respective Areas are already in your hands. If we can furnish additional information to this body, or to any of its committees, upon any phases of our denominational work, we shall gladly place ourselves at your service.

OUR WORLD RESPONSIBILITY

Ours is a "world church." But do we realize how large a part of the Methodist Episcopal Church is carrying forward its activities outside the United States of America? Approximately one third of our Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions are in foreign lands, and these great Areas have the supervision of nearly one half of our effective General Superintendents. On all the continents, save one, we have churches, hospitals, orphanages, schools, a devoted membership, and every concrete evidence of abounding life. The reports for the quadrennium of the work in foreign fields will show gratifying increase in the value of property, payments for self-support and benevolences, and in church and Sunday-school membership. James M. Thoburn preached a year in India before he received into the Church his first native convert. What hath God wrought since that day! We have now a membership in India of nearly three hundred thousand, and during last year there were added to our Church in that field alone over fifty-one thousand converts. In China the increase during the quadrennium was seventy per cent, and the various forward movements in that distraught but aspiring country offer a most insistent challenge for greatly increased activity by the Church of Christ. Japan, Korea, Africa, South America, Mexico, the Philippines, and Europe have also proved very fruitful fields of achievement. The ratio of current increase in the whole foreign field is one of the most remarkable exhibits of all our missionary history, and should fill our hearts with gratitude and joy.

We recognize with profound appreciation the growth in various lands of different types of Methodism within the one church body. Unity in diversity is a watchword congenial with the temper of historic Methodism. We do not seek to establish in other countries a church which in organization and control shall be American. We do not seek to propagate in the Orient a form of religion which is Occidental in its government, its rituals, and its creedal vocabulary. To Christianize and not to Americanize or to Westernize is the object of our endeavor. Believing cordially, as we do, in that expression of Christianity which has come to us through John Wesley and his successors, we yet seek to plant in new soils those principles which constitute the essence of Methodism, and then to let them grow into whatever forms they may normally assume in the native social, intellectual, and spiritual climates. We have no denominational or national ambition to serve. We seek only to promote the spiritual lordship of Jesus Christ among our brothers of every race.

Frank recognition should be given by the whole Church to the fact that the older and stronger sections of our work in so-called foreign mission fields are not to be regarded as mere colonies of a mother-church, nor as missions to be controlled from the United States of America. They are integral parts of our one church organization, with different needs, but with equal rights of every part of the Church. The provisions of the Book of Discipline concerning administration should be reconsidered, so that responsibilities may be transferred to the Church on the field as rapidly as circumstances will justify.

Our whole work outside of the United States has now been divided into Central Conference areas, with more or less of similar background, common interests, and common problems. It is through these Central Conferences, in conjunction with the Annual and Lay Electoral Conferences, that local autonomy can best be fostered. A commission appointed by the General Conference of 1920 is to report on the advisability of possible extensions of the powers of the Central Conferences. Without knowledge of the details of that report, we express our belief that this General Conference will do wisely to make provision for an increasing amount of self-determination and self-government in our Church beyond the seas.

A CALL FOR LEADERSHIP

A call for moral and spiritual leadership comes with imperative emphasis from many lands. Eastern Asia, Southern Asia, Southeastern Asia, Africa, and South America call to us. So also do the other lands where, in the providence of God, we have established our work. But the summons from Continental Europe seems, just now, to be especially urgent.

It is impossible for those who have not visited Europe since the close of the war to have any adequate conception of the conditions which exist. Most speakers and writers dwell upon the horrors of the war itself. They tell us that sixty millions of men were mobilized, and that at the end of the period of butchery eight millions of these were dead. They remind us that thirty millions more were either partially or wholly disabled; that forty millions of civilian lives were sacrificed as an indirect toll of war; and that more than three hundred and fifty billions of the world's wealth were consumed or destroyed. All that is, indeed, frightful.

But it is the aftermath of the gigantic struggle—the poverty, wretchedness, distrust, hopelessness, bitterness, and revenge which have come in the wake of the war—which now makes the overwhelming appeal. In view of the situation shall we not, a great community of Christians, highly resolve to do these two things?

✓ First, that evermore we shall set ourselves as adamant against war. Accepting as we do the ethics and program of Jesus Christ, can we do less? Offensive war is a state of mind. It is the law of the jungle. It is brute force let loose. It is vaulting ambition. It is grasping greed. It is organized revenge. It is marshaled hate. It is diabolism incarnate.

The very thought of another war in Europe or elsewhere, with the employment of recent inventions for the swift destruction of human life, should shock us into instant action.

The Church of Jesus Christ must never again quietly acquiesce in national or international policies which promote warlike tempers and attitudes. It must do more than mildly protest. The whole strength of the United Church of Christ must be thrown with compelling force against warlike policies and preparations. Our position must be that international warfare, unless indisputably in self-defense or in defense of humanity, is a monstrosity of the pagan past which has absolutely no proper place in the program of the modern world. We respectfully remind the government of the United States that we expect the Federal authorities to discover a method other than war to settle international disputes.

✓ Second, we must resolve to give aid upon a scale of greatly enlarged munificence to the bewildered millions beyond the seas. This should be the fixed policy of the Christian Church. We must bear one another's burdens in a much larger way than we have yet attempted if we shall fulfill the law of Christ.

But this should be the policy of a Christian republic as well. Does the attitude of national isolation which certain of our political leaders assume really represent the judgment and conscience of the American people? One frank exponent of that policy said not long ago in a public address: "The moral ideals of the war were all right in their time and place. They served the hopes, energies, and endurance of the common masses throughout the struggle. They enabled us to win the victory.

But now that the victory is won, let us forget as soon as possible those iridescent dreams and turn to practical affairs."

By "practical affairs" we suppose he means a policy which, ignoring moral obligations, seeks to advance the material interests of the United States without regard to its effect upon the aspirations, morale, and well-being of the other peoples of the earth. Does not such a proposition ignore the fact of human brotherhood, nullify the Golden Rule, and utterly misrepresent the impulses and convictions of a great Christian people? Can we hold aloof with careless indifference or sordid selfishness and keep our conscience?

The United States of America holds a strategic position in a crisis hour. Our resources are vast. Our people have a passion for the dominance of democracy everywhere. Our sympathy for the oppressed is written in history. Without assuming entangling alliances of a political or military nature, or obligations out of harmony with the best ideals of the Fathers of the Republic, shall we not give that strong and inspirational leadership which is so essential to the social and spiritual regeneration of the world? Shall we not hold our incalculable resources, material and moral, in trust for the world brotherhood?

We share with President Coolidge the profound conviction expressed in his recent address that "America cannot maintain itself in a healthy economic and moral condition by turning all its thoughts on itself, or by making its material prosperity its supreme choice. Selfishness is only another name for suicide. A nation that is morally dead will soon be financially dead. The progress of the world rests on courage, honor, faith. If America wishes to maintain its prosperity it must maintain its ideals. . . . Little progress can be made by merely attempting to repress what is evil. Our great hope lies in developing what is good. One newspaper is better than many criminal laws. One schoolmaster is better than a legion of bailiffs. One clergyman is better than an army with banners. These are our guarantees of peace and prosperity."

We rejoice in the spirit which dominated the conference convened by the lamented President Harding for the limitation of the armaments of the nations, and we observe with keen satisfaction the beneficent results which have already been secured.

We believe profoundly that the United States of America should cooperate with the other nations of the world in bringing about world justice and world peace. We, therefore, give our hearty indorsement to the proposition that our country shall become a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice. And it is our firm conviction that all nations should agree to submit to impartial tribunals all disputes that threaten the peace of the world, and which cannot be adjusted by the usual processes of diplomacy.

THE CENTENARY JUBILEE

The anniversary which marked the centenary of Methodist Episcopal missions has been a signal success. In its educational and inspirational features it far surpassed the dreams of its promoters, and in its financial results it was many times greater than the most sanguine friends of the movement anticipated. Indeed, it is no extravagance to say that the Centenary celebration has been one of the outstanding achievements in the missionary history of the Church of Christ.

For the spiritual and financial results of this unique anniversary we give thanks to Almighty God, who was our undoubted Leader from the beginning, and thanks to all the devoted men and women who so zealously cooperated in carrying the great enterprise to success. Compared with the income which the Church received for its benevolent agencies previous to the Centenary period, the receipts for the past five years have been munificent. The fact that the total income has not measured up to the expectations inspired by the original subscription is, of course, to be regretted. We are disappointed that many greatly needed enterprises both at home and abroad have been delayed. Nevertheless, the amount collected has been so large, and the effect of the jubilee upon the morale of the Church so pronounced, that we must not permit any disappointment over our failure to collect the full amount of Centenary subscriptions to dim the luster of a really great achievement.

The millions of dollars which have been given constitute the smallest part of that achievement. The whole Church has been lifted to a higher level. From that elevation we shall steadily climb. Multitudes of our people have for the first time caught a vision of the world's need, and have been thrilled by the consciousness that they may be partners with Jesus Christ in the redemption of a race. In its faith and consecration and giving our Church will never return to the meager measure of pre-Centenary days. In an entirely new sense we are committed to our vast missionary enterprise, and our membership is rallying with renewed determination to hasten the day when "the kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ."

THE WORLD SERVICE

The World Service begins with a well-chosen name.

There is already much information concerning its objectives and plans because of the wide distribution of that perfectly invaluable volume entitled The World Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The movement has the advantage of the experience and enthusiasm inherited from the Centenary celebration. Indeed, it has been called an extension of that remarkable movement. But there is this difference: The Centenary was a celebration, with an official duration of five years, while the World Service movement is to be the regular and continuous program of the Church, an organic part of our denominational life, without limitations of time.

Is there anywhere in Methodism in such a day as this a voice that would slow down the movement of our Church to match the easy pace of yesterday? If so it is some other voice than His that calls us from afar in every land of earth to such sacrificial service as Methodism hath never yet poured forth. Is there any tendency in our beloved Church to relax into the lap of a prosperity that surpasses anything in history, and consume upon itself that Centenary margin that is the desperate and only hope of winning for Jesus Christ whole races of the world's ardent youth, who in the passion of a new-found freedom are seeking light and life and truth? If there is such tendency, it is born not of Him who mingles on every highway of earth with that beautiful throng that sweeps on to the leadership of the world of to-morrow.

Is there any one who would send back, empty-handed, to the ends of the earth, the Bishops and missionaries of those far-flung fields of service, to face the most tremendous chance and challenge the heralds of the cross have ever seen in any age or land, and compel them to lose the victory just when God has brought it within their grasp?

No, surely there can be no such spirit in the Church of Christ called Methodism, the church of Taylor, Butler, Thoburn, Bashford, and Lewis. It was for such a day as this that he whose heart was strangely warmed, drew about him a circle that took in the world. It is for such a task as this that our great communion has called her sons and daughters here from every coast and clime to plan for a World Service that will really meet world need and opportunity. Nothing that will happen here, save the coming of God upon our own hearts, will match in meaning and power to achieve the very purpose of our Church's life, the hours we spend to make the World Service movement a supreme success. God makes that central in the program of our Church by the inescapable logic of world conditions. Let us make it central in the prayers and deliberations of this body, that it may become and remain the first great purpose and passion of the Church.

CHRISTIAN STEWARDSHIP

It requires no argument to prove that stewardship of life and possessions is inevitably related to the redemption of the world. If our World Service program is to succeed, it must be predicated upon the enlistment of our people as "stewards of the manifold grace of God."

The motive and method of church finance must be radically reformed, and the whole problem lifted to a spiritual plane. We must not, however, interpret stewardship as a shrewd financial device to increase our church budgets, but rather as the basic principle of the life of God in us to increase our spiritual life. In the language of our Discipline, "Stewardship is the Christian interpretation of life itself." Stewardship includes the investment of personality, of prayer, and of possessions. We summon the people called Methodists to remind themselves that stewardship involves not only the administration of income after it is acquired, but it likewise involves the method by which it is acquired. We must acquire our income like sons of God, and administer it like stewards of God.

Is there any other task before our Church quite so imperative as that of arousing our people to the privilege and obligation of stewardship, and to its vital relation to all forms of spiritual advance? When we behold the doors of opportunity open before us, and hear the voices which plead with us to come to the rescue of the ignorant and the enslaved, how pitifully meager is our response!

We are not concerned with the old controversy as to whether the law of the tithe was carried forward from the Mosaic to the Christian dispensation. Our contention is that what the Hebrews were required to do under the law in the dim light of the world's morning, we who live in the dispensation of grace, amid the flaming light that radiates from the cross, should do voluntarily. It is a very serious question whether a church dominated by a spirit of selfish localism and deaf to God's clarion call for sacrificial service outside of itself, can have any significant revival of religion.

It is our earnest recommendation that during the coming quadrennium special emphasis shall be given to the subject of Christian Stewardship. Our pastors and superintendents are affectionately exhorted to give their utmost endeavor to promote conviction concerning this urgent duty. It is not enough that a few churches have adopted the method of systematic and proportionate giving. Nor is it enough that a few members in many churches have done so. The campaign of education must steadily go forward until a multitude of our people shall be enlisted.

THE WOMAN'S SOCIETIES

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and the Woman's Home Missionary Society have had a quadrennium of unparalleled success. The history of achievement both in foreign and home fields reads like a romance. In compactness of organization, economy of administration, financial strategy, and in consecration to high ideals of Christian service these organizations furnish a most notable example. During the four years now closing these two societies have raised more than $20,000,000. An extraordinary achievement, indeed! But even this vast sum fails to represent fully the devotion of our sisters to the great Kingdom objectives in all lands. In writing to the Philippian church Paul exhorted the leaders to "help those ✓ women." If he were writing to-day, he would say, "Get those women to help you."

FOREIGN-SPEAKING POPULATIONS

More than thirty-six millions of our population in the United States are either foreign born or the children of foreign-born parents. Within the past twenty-five years America has received four and one quarter million immigrants from the Latin nations, while from the Slavic countries have come an additional six and three quarters millions. The new immigration laws have greatly reduced the numbers now coming annually to our shores, but nearly every European nation had filled its quota long before the expiration of the immigration year. From the northern European nations the immigration is larger than it has been for a decade or more.

It is our judgment that no solution of the immigration problem of America can be at once scientific in its method and Christian in its spirit which does not provide (1) a selective process in the countries of origin; (2) a wise distribution of that immigration which is sanctioned and allowed; (3) the prevention of the exploitation of these newly arrived people by unscrupulous profiteers; (4) placing at the service of these prospective citizens every constructive agency that makes for an intelligent, patriotic, and Christian citizenship. Restriction is wise, and ultimately will profit all, but unfair discrimination should be abolished, and the rights of all lawful residents of the United States carefully guarded.

Some of the most perplexing problems of immigration involve America. These incoming millions affect every phase and form of American life. They will become either an ominous peril or an invaluable national asset. We unhesitatingly affirm that their assimilation into American ideals is impossible until they are Christianized, for American idealism at its best has its source in the idealism of Christ. These multitudes mutely demand of us the incarnation of a gospel that has in it sufficient vitality to satisfy the heart-hunger of every member of these diverse racial groups. Protestantism dares not retreat in the face of that inarticulate demand.

Methodism, always the pioneer in heralding the gospel to all nations, must not evade the duty nor reject the privilege created by the spiritual need of these thirty-six millions of people. We fear we have been somewhat recreant to our trust in greeting this bewildering challenge. While the older immigration groups, including the Germans and Scandinavians, have written epochal chapters in the history of American Methodism, our attempts to evangelize the newer immigration groups have been pitifully inadequate.

Believing that the nation cannot live half American and half un-American, and believing also that the kingdom of God cannot come on earth until all tongues and tribes, all regions and races come under the complete sway of Christ our Redeemer-King, we call upon this Conference to face with fearless faith the problem of making adequate provision for the manifold interpretation of the Gospel of Christ to these peoples whom God has providentially sent to us. The General Conference of 1920 appointed a Commission on Foreign-Language work to make a complete study of this situation, and to bring its recommendations to this body. No question before this Conference ought to have a more complete and a more courageous consideration than the report of that Commission.

It was at Pentecost centuries ago that diverse nations heard the gospel of the risen Redeemer, every man in his own tongue. Language became the channel for the communication of a new life. Methodism is not set to save the language of any nation, but to help save the life of all the nations by all the languages God can use. With the tongue of fire on her head, and the language of every nation on her lips, may she be a co-worker with God in ushering in a new Pentecost.

THE CITY AND THE COUNTRY

Is there anything more remarkable in our modern life than the growth of the American city?

We were a rural folk until half a century ago. We are now a nation of city dwellers. Fifty years ago we had forty-five cities each of which had a population in the neighborhood of 20,000 people. Now we have 285 such cities. One tenth of our population lives in the three cities of New York, Chicago and Philadelphia.

These startling figures should compel us to stop and think. What do they mean? And how shall we grapple with the tremendous problems which they force upon us? Are the activities of the Protestant Church keeping pace with this extraordinary city growth? And are we creating a moral and spiritual atmosphere into which these increasing multitudes may come and find security?

The village and countryside yield up hundreds of thousands of their best young men and women each year to swell the city's population. Are we holding this young life to its high ideals and its former rectitude of life? A heavy proportion of our foreign immigration does not go into rural regions where it is most needed, but is swallowed up in the whirlpool of downtown city life. Are the agencies of moral restraint and rescue at all adequate to meet this perfectly tremendous obligation?

The Methodist Episcopal Church must assume her full share of responsibility for city salvation. Through our Board of Home Missions and the various City Missionary Societies we are caring for this field as well as our limited resources will permit. But if we are to make any considerable impact upon the unchurched and unsaved millions we must vastly increase our appropriation of money and of men.

On the other hand the country has its serious situations. The movement to the city is rapidly changing the character of rural populations. The rural community has been largely American, Protestant, and evangelical. It is now becoming foreign and nonevangelical. This transformation is creating an ever-enlarging home-mission field, and presents problems more serious than those which the Church has ever faced. Methodism has always been influential in the country, and our adaptations to rural conditions and needs create an imperative demand for the immediate reenforcement of all our rural activities.

INDUSTRIAL PERPLEXITIES

We again call attention to the social creed of our Church adopted by a former General Conference. That clear and forceful statement has been studied with profound interest in many lands, and is said to have been influential, not only in shaping the permanent policy of many employers and employees, but has led to the adjustment of serious differences between these two classes. Upon that creed our Church stands to-day. We ought to be exceedingly grateful that during these eight years our Church has had such a standard of ideals and principles to which it could call the attention of the representatives of all classes.

CARE OF THE RETIRED MINISTER.

From the beginning our Church has recognized its obligation to the retired preacher. During the earlier years the provision made for his relief was meager and uncertain. Still it was a prophecy of better days.

The adoption in 1908 of our present Disciplinary plan followed a thirty years' discussion of the proposition to eliminate all idea of a gratuity based upon need. At that time it was laid down as a fundamental principle that the claim to a comfortable support inheres in the gospel ministry, and rightfully inures to the benefit of the preacher. Also that such a rightful claim is not invalidated by the retirement of the preacher, and at his death passes to the dependent members of his family.

Favorable results immediately followed this legislation. In 1890 less than a quarter of a million of dollars were distributed. In 1908 the amount had increased to only $608,000. In 1922 it was $2,580,000, and last year it approximated $3,000,000—a fivefold increase in fifteen years.

Meanwhile endowments increased from less than two millions of dollars in 1908 to seventeen millions in 1923. These endowments are mostly held by Annual Conferences, but include $1,600,000 in the Connectional Permanent Fund of the Board of Conference Claimants. The income of this fund is used for necessitous cases, especially in the financially weaker Conferences.

Our retired ministers are not yet receiving anything like an adequate pension, but we are happy over the fine advance which has been made. And it requires no prophetic eye to see that, under the businesslike administration of the Board of Conference Claimants, the ratio of increase will still go on until every veteran preacher, and every widow and minor orphan, will be cared for upon a basis of justice and comfort worthy of our great Church.

THE BENEVOLENT BOARDS

Our several Boards of Benevolence have been conducted with a measure of intelligence and devotion worthy of high praise, and the results of their activities during the quadrennium must be gratifying to the whole Church. Inasmuch as these results will come to you in carefully prepared reports, we deem it unnecessary even, to summarize the inspiring details at this time.

CONSOLIDATION OF BENEVOLENT BOARDS

The experiment of maintaining a unified promotional force and a common treasurer for Benevolent funds has been tried through the Centenary period. The continuance of some such plan, with modifications, has been recommended by the Council of Benevolent Boards, and possibly this form of consolidation has suggested still further unification.

This suggestion took practical form some months since, when the Council of Boards appointed a committee to consider the question of the possible consolidation of the Benevolent Boards. This committee had several meetings and reported its findings to the Council. The Council in turn gave full consideration to the report of its committee, and its recommendations are before you.

We are impressed that the present sentiment of the Church favors a reduction both in the number and in the overhead expense of our Benevolent Boards in all cases where this can be brought about without imperiling the interests involved. The question, however, is a most intricate one, and we suggest that before final action is reached there should be the fullest information and the most careful examination of all phases of the delicate problem.

Therefore, the Bishops suggest that unless the General Conference has definitely referred the matter to a committee prior to this hour, the whole question be placed in the hands of a special committee, with instructions to consider the facts gathered by the committee of the Council of Boards, and to report to this General Conference on or before May 17.

AGENCIES OF MERCY AND HELP

For many years our Church was absorbed in her zealous evangelistic propaganda, and in a great program of church expansion. We did not find time for the activities of mercy and help which we now so eagerly promote. There are many persons in this presence who will remember when our first hospital, that at Brooklyn, New York, began its beneficent work. Now we have eighty hospitals in the United States, with a property valuation of $21,000,000, besides many in our various foreign fields. There are thirty-eight Homes for the aged, forty-five Homes for children, and many other institutions for the care and comfort of those in need. It is but a few years since the first deaconess was set apart for her blessed ministry, and we now have 2,100 deaconesses in active service. Deaconess property has increased to a present valuation of $16,000,000, an increase during the last ten years of $900,000 each year. These forms of Christlike service are yet in their infancy, and the years just ahead must witness their wide extension.

OUR INSTITUTIONS OF LEARNING

We again strongly emphasize the relation of our institutions of learning to the building of Christian character and to the progress of the kingdom of God.

The pillars of civilization rest upon two cornerstones—religion and enlightenment. It is a fact of universal history that everything great in mental achievement, whether in art, literature, or civilization, is due to the stimulus of faith in the Divine. From this Dante obtained the theme by which he mastered Italy. It inspired the song of Tasso. It fired the courage of Savonarola. It was the strength upon which Luther relied when he lifted up his voice in the protest of the Reformation. It was the iron in the blood of Cromwell, and gave to the verse of Milton its fervid glow when he sang the songs of Paradise. Some one has suggested that during the period in which France was dominated by the materialistic philosophy of Voltaire “no great picture was painted and no great poem written.”

And does not our own experience remind us that when we fail to recognize the supernatural in education, and attempt to stimulate students with mere worldly ambitions, we quench the fires which stir youth to its noblest mental endeavor? Almost as soon as she had drawn her first breath Methodism recognized this axiom. Hence Kingswood and Cokesbury. Hence the great educational system which we have built up.

From the beginning we have regarded our educational work as a part of our spiritual obligation. We are in the college business because we believe that true education includes the culture of the soul and the building of Christian character, and we conceive it to be our duty to support with enthusiasm that form of higher education by which the intellectual and spiritual are closely joined. Therefore, in our Methodist colleges faith in God's Word and in the great truths of the Christian religion is a vital part of the curriculum. It is not enough to offer courses in Christian ethics, the philosophy of religion, and Christian sociology. We must do much more or we shall miss altogether the Christian conception of education.

While we shall insist upon the maintenance of the highest educational standards and the most thorough scholastic instruction, we shall continue to make our schools centers of spiritual instruction and enrichment, places where Christian young people will grow in the graces of the Spirit, and where those who have not yet become the subjects of saving grace will almost certainly be led into that experience.

It sounds like a platitude to say that there never was greater need for the Christian college than just now, but it is tremendously true. And we congratulate the Board of Education that, through its department of financial promotion, more than $30,000,000 have been added to property, equipment, and endowment during the quadrennium. This surely is an achievement which should cause the whole Church to be glad.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

We must all rejoice in the added attention which is now given to religious education. Because of the emphasis which Methodism has always placed upon evangelism it has not been easy for some of our people to see that there is really no antagonism between the two. The best thinking of the Church conceives the two to be mutually dependent, with practically the same objectives. Evangelism without the accompaniment of spiritual instruction fails to accomplish its best results, and religious education divorced from the passion of evangelism is necessarily partial and inefficient.

We must give increased recognition to the place of the child in the Church of Christ. "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

By virtue of the unconditional benefits of the atonement our children begin their life within the Kingdom. If they love and obey Jesus Christ, they will remain in the Kingdom. And there will come a time when many of them will consciously decide, in response to the Spirit's call, definitely to accept Jesus Christ as Lord and Master, and acknowledge his claims upon their lives. The constant effort of parent and teacher and pastor should be to teach the child his intimate relation to Jesus Christ, to emphasize his privileges under the covenant of grace, and to prevent his falling away. But they should be quite as zealous when the child has either failed to acknowledge Jesus Christ or has fallen into some form of positive sin, to win that soul back to his Lord.

Childhood is marvelously sensitive to religious truth and appeal. It furnishes the most fruitful field for spiritual conquest. How unexcelled is the opportunity of the Sunday school! We give thanks that more than seven hundred and fifty thousand Sunday-school pupils were received into preparatory membership in our Church during the quadrennium. But we face with alarm the startling fact that two millions of the pupils now enrolled in our Sunday schools are outside of the Church membership. No other two millions in our wide constituency are so susceptible to the winsome evangelistic appeal.

When Dr. Charles H. Fowler (afterward Bishop) left the pastorate to accept the presidency of Northwestern University, a gentleman said to him: "Well, I hear you are going to stop teaching men, and are going to teach boys." The doctor paused a moment, and asked: "If you wanted to write your name on a brick so it would stay, would you write it when the clay was plastic and impressible, or after it had become burned?"

The gentleman saw the point and replied, "Why, on the brick before it was burned, of course."

Doctor Fowler did not apply his illustration. That was unnecessary. Shall not the home and the Church enter into a solemn covenant to redouble their zeal in this field of strategic opportunity and certain achievement?

HELP FOR THEOLOGICAL SCHOOLS

The Church is to be congratulated upon the character of her theological schools. They are doing a work worthy of all praise.

A trained ministry is absolutely indispensable in our day, and we rejoice in the increasing number of equipped men who are entering our pulpits.

But these schools are supported in a very meager way. Not one of them is adequately endowed, and, with one exception, they show a deficit in their current expenses. The difficulty is that they have no Annual Conferences definitely behind them, and there is no general board of the Church which is responsible for their support. This has created a most serious situation.

Our Church guarantees a "comfortable support" to ministers while they are in active service, and is more generous than formerly in providing a pension after they retire. Has it no duty to perform in training men for its pulpits? Is not this clearly a denominational responsibility?

The average young man who seeks preparation for the ministry has little or no money, and our training schools should be so generously endowed that not only free tuition can be offered, but scholarships and other expenses provided for all who need. The General Conference could perform no single act that would secure larger returns to the Church than to work out a scheme for the immediate strengthening of institutions that are so essentially related to the future leadership of the Church.

CONFERENCE COURSES OF STUDY

Judging by the resolutions of our Annual Conferences, and of the Boards of Examiners, the Commission plan for conducting the various courses of study meets with increasing and enthusiastic approval. The undergraduates themselves are warm in their praise of the pastoral, intellectual, and spiritual value of the prescribed courses. Under the wise and efficient leadership of the Educational Director of the Commission forty-two Summer Schools of Theology have been established and conducted in seventy Conferences, and have proved of great value to the young ministers. Everywhere now the Courses of Study are being taken seriously. The Bishops have sought to appoint only well-equipped men to the Boards of Examiners, while the Examiners, in turn, have so broadened and deepened their work as to become teachers. In brief, the Bishops gladly report that what has been called "the greatest theological school on earth" improves constantly in curriculum, in spirit, in faculty, in method, and in essential service to the work of our Church.

EPWORTH LEAGUE INSTITUTES

Very quietly and without ostentatious display the Epworth League has devised a system of religious education which is to be of inestimable value to the Church. We refer to its summer institutes. It was fortunate that when the enthusiasm which characterized the early days of our great young people's organization began to wane, this educational and constructive movement was projected. Thousands of our young people have become eager students of the Bible, church history, missions, Christian sociology, evangelism, and approved methods of church work. This schooling will surely tell in the more intelligent and abundant life of the Church of to-morrow. Not the least of the results of this unique educational movement is the remarkable record of the Epworth League in the field of life service. And this fact furnishes the most indisputable testimony to the spiritual type of the work which is being carried forward. The administrative leadership of the Epworth League, and the continued high character of The Epworth Herald, its official organ, have our warmest commendation.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

The record of our Sunday-school activities during the quadrennium is remarkable. The gain in the enrollment of scholars has been approximately half a million, while the increase in actual attendance has been 350,000. To our Sunday schools must be given the credit of securing $7,000,000 for the Centenary Jubilee, while their contributions for local purposes during the past four years amount to $11,800,000, an increase of $3,579,000 over the previous quadrennium.

One of the most useful recent activities of our Board of Sunday Schools has been the promotion of supplemental forms of week-day religious education and Daily Vacation Bible Schools, and a most valuable system of instruction in summer institutes. The forward movements to secure a more thoroughly articulated and enriched curriculum for teaching are worthy of highest commendation. The Church which gives the largest encouragement to educational and spiritual activities among her children and young people shows wisdom of the superlative degree.

ENLISTMENT FOR LIFE SERVICE

The Methodist Episcopal Church employs in full time more than 28,000 men and women. These include over 4,000 supply pastors, and approximately 2,500 young women who are training to be nurses. It is no simple matter to recruit and prepare a sufficient number of well-qualified men and women to fill the vacancies that are made by death and other causes. Not only must the vacancies be filled, but the right men and women must be secured.

It is because the Church realized the importance of this problem that the General Conference of 1920 authorized "one unified system for recruiting, guidance, and selection of candidates for Christian service in the Church." The outcome of this legislation was the organization of the Commission on Life Service. The Benevolent Boards directly interested have united heartily in this cooperative endeavor. During the three years of the quadrennium in which the Commission has functioned, life service conferences have been held in nearly 200 colleges and universities, and 5,000 students have been interviewed. The opportunity to render life service under the auspices of the Church has been more definitely and clearly presented than ever before, and with most encouraging results.

We must first pray that the Lord of the harvest shall send forth laborers into his vineyard, then various effective methods of enlisting the young life of the Church must be employed. It is clear to us that the program authorized by the last General Conference ought to be continued, with such modifications as may seem expedient.

OUR PUBLISHING ENTERPRISE

Who among us does not take special satisfaction in the ever-enlarging prosperity of our great publication enterprise? It is probably the most unique feature of our organized denominational life. Other Protestant churches have their benevolent boards and their educational and philanthropic institutions which are not unlike our own. But to Methodism must be given the credit for inventing something strikingly original, and of pushing this unique enterprise to extraordinary success. The Methodist Book Concern is admittedly the greatest religious publication plant of the world.

John Wesley was the original Methodist Book Concern. He was a pioneer in making and distributing good books. These he furnished at a low cost, so that they might be within the reach of the multitudes to whom he ministered. The saddlebags of the early circuit-rider were corpulent with good books. These volumes were scattered in the isolated cabins of the settlers, promoting intelligence concerning the doctrines and policies of the Church, as well as breathing a spirit of evangelism which blessed the Church of those primitive times. And ever since the wide circulation of our books and periodicals has contributed mightily to the intelligence and efficiency of the denomination. Our weekly Advocates have attained a recognized place in the field of religious journalism. Our Sunday-school publications are the marvel of our day, and their primacy is freely acknowledged by all the churches.

During its existence The Methodist Book Concern has paid $6,504,900 to the retired ministers of our Church and to the widows and orphans of ministers. In the past four years payments to our veteran preachers, and to widows and orphans, have amounted to the munificent sum of $1,175,000.

In our Department of Publication we have an asset of unmeasured value. It is capable of development upon a scale so vast as to be almost beyond belief. For its skillful and economical management by the publishing agents and the Book Committee the Church should be duly appreciative.

CHRISTIAN UNITY

Some impressive developments in Christian unification must be recorded. The recent organic union of the two branches of the Evangelical Church is one of them. Three groups of our Lutheran brethren have come together in one communion, a consummation long desired, and one promising far-reaching results. Some progress has been made in the movement to unite three influential denominations in Canada. Several of the branches of the Presbyterian Church are considering a possible merger. All this is symptomatic of a general trend in which all the followers of our Lord must sincerely rejoice.

The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America is an efficient agency in promoting Christian fellowship and cooperation. The coordination of the outstanding enterprises of the Protestant Church in great commissions on Community Welfare, Interracial Relations, Social Service, Evangelism and International Relations has already secured very definite results. Local Federations have unified Protestant interests and activities in most practical ways, and these organizations are making a definite contribution to the universal Christian brotherhood for which we have long hoped and prayed.

The Methodist Episcopal Church believes in the largest possible cooperation among the Christian denominations in the common enterprises of the Kingdom. Now, as always, it is glad to give its support to every interdenominational movement that makes for the increase of the influence and power of the churches in their united tasks.

But it is the conviction of the Bishops that no interdenominational organization created for cooperative effort should assume the functions of the individual denominations, or in any way interfere with their freedom to do their own work in their own way. Nor should any interdenominational organization assume to speak for, or in any way commit any of its constituent bodies to any program, policy, or pronouncement without the approval and consent of those who are officially authorized to represent and speak for their respective bodies.

For an increasing spirit of unity and cooperation among the followers of our Lord called by many names and working in many lands, we most devoutly and constantly pray.

METHODIST UNIFICATION

At the General Conference in Des Moines, our Commission on Unification was continued with instructions to find a way, if possible, to obtain a union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and with other Methodist bodies. The Commission makes its formal report to this General Conference. We cannot refrain from an expression of unspeakable gratitude and rejoicing that the Joint Commission has been able to agree upon a plan for bringing together these long severed branches of our common Methodism. It is eighty years since the churches divided. Each branch of the Church has been signally blessed with the favor of God in the doing of its work through these long years. In the new conditions that now exist in the United States and the world we firmly believe that united Methodism will have a multiplied power for good. We, therefore, commend to your prompt and sympathetic consideration the plan submitted to you, with the earnest prayer for an early consummation of the union of the churches for the Master's sake.

THE LORD'S DAY

Is not the Lord's Day in serious peril? Commercial life is boldly demanding that it shall no longer be held to six days of activity. And in many places the Holy Day has become a gala day of boisterous amusements.

What is the cause?

Some say that Sunday desecration is an aftermath of the World War. Some place the blame upon the frivolous spirit of our time. Others declare that it is the influence of peoples coming to our shores from Europe and elsewhere with their distorted ideas of Sunday observance and their demands for "personal liberty."

All these influences are undoubtedly at work. But let us not forget that among those who are helping to undermine the Holy Day are members of Christian churches. In theory they are for Sunday. In practice they are against it.

By that we mean that many good people have grown lax in their personal observance of the day. Their attendance at Church is irregular. They read the Sunday papers and fill their minds with secularities. They do work on the Lord's Day that could be done on other days. They have joined the multitude whose demand for Sunday baseball, theaters, golf, automobiling and all forms of social gayety is insistent. They have come to think of their former careful observance of Sunday as antiquated and puritanical, and little by little their standards of reverence and consistency have been lowered.

How short-sighted! The patriot sees national waste and industrial disintegration in the growth of Sunday desecration. The laboring man sees a threat to himself and family in the steady encroachment of Sunday work upon his day of leisure and rest. But no element has such actual reasons for alarm as the Christian Church. A blow at Sunday is a blow at the Church, and a blow at the Church is a blow at the Christian civilization of which the Holy Day is a chief cornerstone.

THE DIVORCE EVIL . . .

Is there any one situation which should so shock and shame the American people as the steady growth of the divorce evil? Has it not already become the chief scandal in our modern life?

A reliable authority affirms that in every eleven days we have as many divorces as England has in a year. The record is that 133,000 American families were wrecked by divorce in one recent year. It is computed that in every four minutes of every hour of every day and night some American couple determines upon a separation. In the last twenty years 3,767,000 men and women secured divorce papers. This involved 5,600,000 minor children whose homes were destroyed by the divorce mills. Can a more frightful condition be imagined?

What are the causes?

The frivolous temper of our times, the dissemination of loose views upon almost every subject, impatience of restraint, ridicule of the old-fashioned virtues, the quickened pace which keeps the nerves forever on edge, the passion for luxury, immodesty in dress, pernicious incitements of modern fiction, the unwholesome familiarities of the modern dance and the false pictures of life displayed in the modern playhouse, the passing of much of the sacred home life of yesterday, and, above all, the loss of the sense of God and of moral responsibility.

What is the remedy?

As far as domestic life is concerned, a return to the former ideals of personal virtue, modesty, and social propriety. As far as the Church is concerned, a rigid insistence upon the practice of the law of our Lord concerning divorce. And as far as the state is concerned, the standardization of the divorce laws of the various commonwealths, and the immediate enactment of a federal law providing for uniformity in dealing with this vital matter. It is doubtful whether any other people in Western civilization has marriage laws as defective as our own, and the patriotic and moral forces of the Republic should arise in their might and compel a legislative remedy for the disgraceful situation.

The Methodist Episcopal Church assumes no uncertain attitude on this issue. Our law is both specific and imperative. No minister of our church can lawfully remarry a person who has been divorced excepting upon the one scriptural ground, and then only the innocent party in the case can be remarried. Ministers and members who willfully or carelessly disregard this plain law of the church should be summarily compelled to answer for their misconduct.

Your General Superintendents urge with utmost earnestness the strict compliance of our ministers and members with the plain teaching of our Lord on the question of divorce, to the end that the last vestige of odium which has attached to the Church because of an occasional compromise in this matter may forever disappear.

AMUSEMENTS

We observe with grave apprehension the growing spirit of worldliness which characterizes the life of to-day. Again we record our regret that Paragraph 280 of the Discipline puts us in so unfortunate a position. This paragraph has proved an embarrassment to many pastors, and to the largest success of the work of the Church, especially among our young people. There is no disagreement among us as to the desirability of correcting the evils specified. The only difference of opinion is as to the way to deal with the situation. The legislation embodied in this paragraph has not corrected the evils named as detrimental to the recreational life of our people. We record it as our deliberate judgment that a direct appeal to their freedom in Christ would be the most effective method of dealing with the matter, and that it will be highly advantageous if the General Conference will provide that the pastors may deal with the question upon the basis of the religious motive. This is clearly stated in the General Rules, Paragraph 69 in the Chapter of Advices, and is in the language of John Wesley and a part of the constitution of the Church from the beginning: "The taking of such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." We, therefore, recommend that such legislation be enacted as will secure this result.

These recent years have brought us a depression of moral standards which must be the deep concern of every lover of mankind. Every phase of individual and corporate life seems to have been included in this downward tendency. The integrity of manhood, the virtue of womanhood, the sanctity of the marriage relation, well-approved habits of clean living, of pure thinking, of high moral conduct in both sexes, have felt the withering touch of a wide-spread degeneracy. America, and other countries, should be reminded that many of the nations of the Old World came to their inglorious end as the result of luxurious self-indulgence and excessive love of pleasure. It is imperative that those who direct the growing life of the Church be on guard against the blight of wasteful worldly standards of living and loose ethical practices. Righteousness is still the word for the individual, the Church, the nation, the world. It is a good time for Christian men and women to avoid softness and needless self-indulgence, to practice the "simplicity that is in Christ." We are deeply concerned that our people may not lose the highest spiritual values and the deeper joys of life in a consuming love of worldly pleasure.

We summon the members of our Church to the cultivation of a sane mind and a serious purpose befitting a stricken world like ours in a day like this, and that "denying ungodliness and worldly lusts we should live soberly, righteously, and Godly in this present world."

PROHIBITION

At the last General Conference there was much rejoicing because the United States of America had, a short time before, outlawed the rum traffic. It was hailed as an extraordinary economic and moral achievement, and such it was. Since that time different States of the Union have enacted laws to aid in the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. Only two States have taken a backward step, and because of that action all good citizens of these commonwealths, irrespective of party affiliations, feel a deep sense of humiliation.

The prohibitory law has not been perfectly enforced, of course. Did any thoughtful person expect it would be?

For a century and a half the traffic in liquor was a perfectly lawful business, just as much so as banking and farming. Millions of money were invested, and there was no single item of trade that yielded profits so large. Moreover, drinking was a popular social custom, and a fixed personal habit of hundreds of thousands of our people. Did any one imagine that a traffic so deeply entrenched could be destroyed overnight? There are century-old laws upon our statute-books against burglary and arson and murder. But are not these crimes committed every day? We affirm that, under all the circumstances, the Federal prohibitory law has been a great success. Its success is to be seen in the enlarged savings deposits at the banks, increased expenditures for legitimate commodities, the decrease of crime, the increased efficiency of labor, in broken homes repaired, in separated families reunited, and in the fact that the Church of God is permitted to do its work without the handicap of a drunken and brutalized community.

All agitations seeking to modify or repeal the prohibitory law have failed, and will fail. Prohibition has become the permanent policy of the American people. The prohibitory Amendment is in the Federal Constitution to remain as long as the Constitution remains. There is as much prospect of returning to the practice of human slavery as of resuming the legal sale of rum. And every citizen who lays claim to patriotism will give his uttermost influence toward building up respect for this and all other laws of the land.

The basis of civilization is obedience to law. Encouragement to law-breaking is easily the most direct and violent form of attack upon the Constitution. We are not now dealing with the question of prohibition or anti-prohibition. That matter, thank God, is settled. The bloody angle of the battle is at the point of enforcement. We have no good word for Bolshevism in Russia or elsewhere, but there is no worse Bolshevism anywhere than the conduct of so-called respectable citizens who are guilty of undermining respect for the Federal Constitution by subtly encouraging or openly practicing resistance to its mandates. The prohibitory law is not so much on trial as the American people are on trial. Let the claim to patriotism of any citizen be scorned, be he governor, senator, congressman, editor, minister or private citizen, who, by word or deed, makes it more difficult for the Federal Government to enforce any law which it has enacted.

President Coolidge is exactly right when he declares that "the authority of the law is questioned in these days altogether too much. The binding obligation of obedience against personal desire is denied in many quarters. If these ideals prevail, all organized government, all liberty, all security is at an end." And Governor Pinchot admirably expresses a sentiment which we all strongly feel when he says: "There is no Communist who bores so successfully from within as those so-called respectables who at the behest of habit or appetite are willing to sully their Americanism by open defiance of the Constitution, their Constitution, which has the most sacred claims upon their fidelity and obedience."

It is now clear that obedience to the Eighteenth Amendment can be secured only by the close cooperation of the National and State governments, and by the harmonious action of the executive and judicial branches of these governments.

We demand that the machinery of enforcement shall be taken entirely out of partisan politics, and that no man shall be appointed to this responsibility as a reward for party service.

The criminal rum-runner must be given no quarter. The present defiance of law along our borders is a disgrace to the Republic, and a confession of official impotency of which no American can be proud. This reproach must be speedily wiped out.

We call upon our people everywhere to give to public officers all possible encouragement and aid in their efforts to enforce law. We must give substantial proof of the fact that a great church which was foremost in creating a public sentiment which compelled the overthrow of the legalized liquor abomination, has the courage to insist that, to the uttermost limit, the Constitution of the Republic shall be respected.

And we look forward to the day, not far distant, when the representatives in this General Conference from across the seas shall join with their American brethren in singing a doxology of praise because of the overthrow in their land and in all lands of that selfish, merciless, brutal diabolism—the legalized traffic in rum!

THE CHURCH AND POLITICS

But should the Church go into politics?

As an organized unit, no. But expressing itself through its individual members, yes.

In a democracy participation in politics is essential, and the people of a democracy are under definite obligations to assume political responsibilities. The public atmosphere of any community is determined by the people of the community. We have bad politics because so few people insist upon good politics. The sinner goeth to the primary, and the righteous hold an indignation meeting.

Christians should go into politics because so many of the economic, social, and moral betterments which we desire can be secured only through political channels. Good laws are the basis of good community conditions. Good laws are worthless without good men to administer them. Good laws and good executives are both secured through the use of the ballot. So that a citizen can consider himself neither patriotic nor Christian when he is indifferent to his political responsibilities.

Christian citizens could easily wield a dominating influence in the public life of the municipality, the commonwealth and the nation if they would vote according to Christian standards. There are not many communities whose officials would not instantly bow to the demands of Christian citizens if the Christian sentiment could be crystallized and expressed. We do not propose a Protestant vote, nor a Roman Catholic vote, nor a Methodist vote, as such, but a Christian vote—a fearless expression in the field of politics of the patriotism and conscience of the servants of Jesus Christ.

OBSERVANCE OF LAW

It will not be denied that there is something radically wrong with the attitude of the public toward the observance of law and the orderly administration of justice. This is due, in part at least, to the feeling that in some communities our courts of justice lack the moral force which should dominate them. In certain cases the law is used to shield the criminal rather than to afford protection to society. But deplorable as this is, it affords no possible justification for any group of citizens to take the administration of law into their own hands. Lynch law is an abomination and an outrage. Those who are guilty of any connection with it are traitors and outlaws. No American can assume to be patriotic who does not denounce it with hot indignation. Scarcely less reprehensible is any organization which secretly discriminates against an American citizen because of race, color, or religious faith, and arrogates to itself the authority of the courts to deal with those suspected of wrongdoing. Such secret policies are essentially un-American, and are a menace to society and to the state. Patriotic Americans will demand with increasing emphasis the equitable administration of all laws. And they will also maintain an attitude of unrelenting hostility to every form of lawlessness, whether it is perpetrated by a defiant individual criminal, or under the auspices of an organization whose activities are shrouded in mystery, and whose unknown representatives execute its orders under the protection of secrecy.

INTERRACIAL COOPERATION

One of the finest expressions of our Christianity of to-day is the effort of many groups and agencies in various sections of our country for the promotion of good will, mutual confidence, and brotherly cooperation between the races. These movements to bridge the chasm of interracial misunderstanding and hate, meet our hearty approval, and are worthy of our sympathy and cooperation. The work has not been carried forward without much prayer, and the leadership of Him whose great commandment is to love thy neighbor as thyself. Among the agencies which we should heartily support are the University Commission, composed of southern educators; the Interracial Commission on Cooperation, composed of both races, men and women; and the Commission of Interracial Relation of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ. We call our people to associate themselves actively with these agencies and other organizations for the promotion of peace and good will toward all men everywhere, so that there shall be less friction and more cooperation, less suspicion and more confidence, less hatred and more Christian love.

We urge upon our representatives in both branches of Congress the prompt enactment of legislation for the wiping out of lynching, which is "the black spot on America's soul."

THE WORLD'S URGENT NEED

Is our civilization to survive? Does it face perils which threaten its ultimate overthrow?

We boast of our wealth, our culture and our patriotism.

These things, we may say, insure for us permanent safety and increasing strength. So said Babylon when she beheld her massive towers. So said Persia when she held sway over half the earth. So said Greece when she contemplated the splendors of her temple cities. So said Rome when she was in the zenith of her imperial power. But these civilizations went down, and are buried in the dust heaps of history.

Why did they go down? Let history answer. And let history warn us that our civilization may be facing forces quite as destructive as those which rotted the foundations and sapped the vitality of empires which have passed away.

Do we not need to make a new appraisal of human values? We overvalue might and undervalue right. We overvalue knowledge and undervalue wisdom. We overvalue the phrasing of truth and undervalue truth itself. We overvalue worldly achievement and undervalue moral conquest. We overvalue the forms of religion and undervalue its dynamic life. We overvalue things of the present life and undervalue the uncountable riches of the life eternal.

The inevitable outcome of such false valuations shows itself in certain current trends which should alarm us. In the presence of these situations it is folly to close our eyes to the truth and cry "Peace, peace," when there is no peace. We need a revival of the prophetic office. We need prophets whose chief function is not to foretell future events, but those with eyes to see and courage to declare the threatening perils of the present. We need leaders who dare draw aside the veil from in front of the ugly realities of the world's fate, and show to us our national and international follies. We need prophets in the pulpit, prophets in our great newspapers, prophets in our schools and universities, and prophets in our halls of legislation.

How humiliating have been the failures of world diplomacy! Leader after leader has fallen. Plan after plan has failed. Both radical and reactionary experiments have been tried and tried in vain. The world stands bewildered and baffled in the presence of giant perplexities for which there seems to be no immediate solution.

An influential foreign journalist said recently: "Everybody who knows the facts at all and thinks at all is looking for some new book to be written, some great, masterful voice to speak, some real statesman to appear, some mighty prophet to arise who will call the world back to its primary need, which is religion."

Will anything but a new mind and a new mood save civilization? We must learn again the old-fashioned truth that "righteousness exalteth a nation," and that "sin is a reproach to any people." What America needs and the world needs is now to turn to God. We need a revival of religion, both experimental and ethical, with the motives, self-effacement, purity, and passion for righteousness which were in Jesus Christ. That would speedily cleanse public life at its fountain head, and light the fires of true patriotism, a patriotism which finds expression in love of country, love of humanity, love of righteousness and love of God.

OUR DOCTRINES

They tell us that dogma has had its day, and that the drift is toward a church of deeds rather than one of creeds. But the two are not antipodal. Rather, as in the controversy between faith and works faith is the basis of works, so are creeds the inspiration of deeds. A church without doctrine will be as invertebrate as a mollusk. It will have no grip on the conscience. It will never lead the world back to God. Truth sets men free.

It is the glory of Methodism that at a time of widespread theological laxity our fathers laid hold of the crucial truths of Christianity and uttered them with fervid unction in the ears of the world. To those who taught a limited redemption, they affirmed its universality. To those who held to the doctrine of an enslaved will, they declared its freedom. To those who were groping amid the mists of uncertainty, they proclaimed assurance. And to those who insisted that it was unreasonable to suppose that a sinner can know his sins forgiven, the fathers joyfully confessed that

"The Spirit answers to the blood
And tells me I am born of God."

To those who observe the movements of God in history it is neither surprising nor alarming that, as in the political world there are epochal upheavals which disrupt the old order, there should be similar revolutions of thought, or reappraisals of theological values, in the world of religion. The Church is subject to the action and reaction of all thought currents, scientific, philosophical, and religious, which strengthen or weaken the faith of men in the revelation of God.

The quadrennium now closing has not been everywhere a period of theological serenity. The war of the nations, the effect of which is still felt not only in the centers of world politics and international commerce but also in the humble homes of the toiling millions, has awakened keener interest in the problems which center in religion. It has forced to the front of popular thinking a sterner demand for the rationality and practical adaptation of Christianity. It has compelled every church in vital touch with the life of the world to give practical reasons for the essential doctrines it proclaims as the very truth of God.

Methodism is not wholly exempt from controversy. It never has been and it never will be. The test of a living church is its power of adjustment. But without ecclesiastical arrogance, and with humble thanksgiving, we may say that during the quadrennium there has been no serious disquietude among us concerning our doctrines. This is not because we are sunk in intellectual torpor, oblivious to the resounding notes of theological strife. We were never more alive to the trumpeting challenge of radical thought, nor more responsive to the results of reverent scholarship. It is not because of hostility to freedom of investigation. The spirit of inquiry is the thermometer of progress. Nor are we influenced by ignorant fear that the faith we profess may not bear the searching light of advancing knowledge. We give the largest hospitality to freedom of thought. But we are anxious that we shall be enlightened by the Spirit of God, and not misled by the vain devices of men. Certainly our theological tranquillity is not because, as some vainly imagine, we have relegated sound doctrine to a minor place and given to sociology chief consideration, thereby proclaiming our indifference to the movements of theologic thought. We do not recognize any failure of doctrinal Christianity to interest the masses. We were never more confident that Christian doctrine is a basic condition of all social betterment.

Dear brethren, none of these imaginary reasons afford a rational explanation for the freedom of our Church from distracting controversies. The reason lies deeper. It is rooted in a profound conviction in both our ministry and laity that, first of all, the Bible is the inspired Word of God. Tested in the innermost souls of men and in its influence in the practical affairs of life, it demonstrates its divine character, and is its own credential of its divine authority.

We believe in one God, the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth, an everlasting personal God, the creator and upholder of all things, immanent, transcendent, in all, through all, God our Father, blessed forever. And in Jesus Christ his only begotten Son. Not in a divine exemplar merely. Not in a God-filled man merely. Not in a religious genius than whom there is none born greater among the sons of men. But in the Lord of Glory, God manifest in the flesh, coeternal and one in Godhood with the Father, who for the redemption of the race was born as to his humanity by the power of the Most High of the Virgin Mary, and by his death upon the cross made a full, perfect and sufficient sacrifice for the sins of the whole world. He is the effulgence of the Father's glory. He is the express image of his Person. He is the only Mediator between God and man. He is the Redeemer of the world. He is the Giver of eternal life, the Dispenser of the power and grace of the Holy Spirit. He is the Rock and Refuge of his people, the Ruler of the Ages, the final and Almighty Judge of the earth, King of kings, Lord of lords, who shall reign forever and ever.

In thus expressing our belief in God the Father and in his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord, we no less worship and adore the Holy Spirit, the Third Person in the adorable Trinity, who proceedeth from the Father and the Son. He is not an impersonal influence radiating from the eternal ground of all being. He is not a subordinate agency called into activity by the creative will of the Omnipotent God. He is God. With the Father and the Son he is, in the depths of the divine nature, the eternal ground of all existence. He is the creative spirit who broods over the abyss, who originates all life, and out of chaos and darkness in the material universe brings light and order and beauty. And to the sin-clouded souls of men he imparts spiritual illumination and power. He is the builder of the kingdom of God in men and nations. He is the soul of the Church, the inspirer of prophets and apostles through all the ages, the Spirit of Truth who convicts the world of sin, of righteousness and of judgment to come, and the Comforter and Guide of all who accept his gracious leadership.

And as to personal salvation we as firmly believe as ever in the necessity of repentance for sin, in justification by faith, in regeneration by the Holy Spirit, in the sanctification of the believing heart, and in the witness of the Spirit to these miracles of grace wrought in the human soul.

These seem to us the essential, living doctrines of our Church.

OUR SUPREME RESPONSIBILITY

Restlessness abounds. There is soul hunger everywhere—a deep sense of spiritual poverty. That need is so deeply felt that it cannot be satisfied by any mere superficial response. It can be appeased only by a revival of real religion—not necessarily a conventional revival as to methods, for it is folly to say that the genuineness and efficiency of a spiritual movement depends upon the use of particular shibboleths or plans, no matter how effective they may have been in other days. We must be concerned with dynamics rather than with mechanics.

But it is clear that the revival we need is one which will tear the mask from the face of sin, revealing it in all its black and repulsive reality, and bring men face to face with Christ the only Saviour from sin, and the one unrivaled Master of all life. The message of the pulpit must, therefore, be a courageous, searching, convicting message, born in the deep experiences of the preacher's heart, and carried to the hearts of the people by the illuminating and energizing efficiency of the Holy Spirit. The doctrines which center in the cross of Calvary must have new and overwhelming emphasis. Our Sunday-school instruction must be more definitely evangelistic. Our periodical literature must be saturated with the message of evangelism. Our schools and colleges must become centers of spiritual enrichment and evangelistic conquest. The Church must prostrate herself in an agony of intercessory prayer. God hears such prayer. While the ethical standards of religion must be held aloft, and large recognition given to current movements for religious education, and to the social gospel so much needed in our day, yet our fundamental and imperative mission is to awaken and rescue the multitudes who are indifferent to religion and estranged from the Church.

As we stand upon the threshold of this General Conference, with the eyes of the Methodist world upon us, is it not well to inquire what is the measure of our denominational responsibility for the spiritual movement which is felt to be the emergent need of the world?

In facing this question we must remember that the evangelistic mood is the normal mood of Methodism, and that our whole history has been a history of spiritual revivals. That is the way we started. In the midst of formalism, unbelief, and shocking immoralities, the evangelistic fires of the eighteenth century were lighted. They burst forth upon England in tongues of flame, and soon the whole kingdom glowed with their intensity. The flaming torch was presently carried to these shores. You remember Mr. Wesley's farewell commission to Shadford: "I let you loose, George, on the great continent of America; publish your message in the open face of the sun, and do all the good you can."

Well, the Methodists did get loose on this continent. They went everywhere preaching the gospel and telling their experience. They journeyed up and down the Atlantic seaboard. They pushed up over these hills of New England. They climbed the rugged heights of the Alleghanies, and accompanied the march of civilization westward. Soon the great southland and the prairies of the Middle West were vocal with the fervid songs of the Methodists. The one overmastering passion of these pioneers was that of evangelism. They preached for souls. They prayed for souls. They went from house to house seeking souls. Winning souls, they were happy. Failing in that sublime mission, they were cast down. And this was the major occupation of this Wesleyan brotherhood for more than a hundred years.

What of to-morrow? Do the changed conditions in the world and the Church make the spiritual emphasis less needful? Shall we now become absorbed in the humanities of our time, and find our chief responsibility in our great educational and philanthropic enterprise? No! no! no! These causes are vastly important, of course, and must have our solicitous leadership. But we shall neglect our chief business if we neglect to evangelize, and we shall neglect it at our peril.

We have been putting much stress upon the temporalities of the Church. And there can be no just criticism of our effort to secure large sums to finance our world activities, especially since we have sought to show that the money given to Kingdom purposes is a religious obligation closely related to spiritual enrichment. Yet we have now come to a time when, for the sake of our total work in the world, we must turn our attention, with a consuming passion, to the evangelistic responsibilities which are upon us.

The time was when we had power without adequate machinery. Now we have the adequate machinery without adequate power. We must have both. We spend too much time trying to fix our machine, bothering with cogs and pulleys and cylinders and valves and steamchests. What we need to do is to produce. If we had a small machine we could get along with a small amount of power. But with our vast and complicated enginery we must have the maximum of spiritual energy.

It was said of Hugh Price Hughes that "he recovered for his Church its ancient passion for the souls of men, and set it as a living force in the stream of modern life." It is for the survival and dominance of that passion we plead to-day.

Our evangelism is not confined to a restricted revivalism. The manifold ministry of the Kingdom of God is finding superb expression in countless communities. Vast sums of money have been invested in enlarged equipment, while a widening vision of service to the total life of the community has inspired increasing numbers of our churches to become the servant of the community in order to become its human saviour. Community service which does not root in evangelism is impotent, evangelism which does not fruit in community service is imperfect. Methodism fixes the goal of her service to "become all things to all men" that she "may by all means save some."

In seeking to gather the spiritual harvest which now awaits the reaper, our pastors, district superintendents, and bishops must again assume the place of responsible leadership. We must not, we dare not surrender that leadership to any other agency, no matter how excellent it may be. And our laymen must come to see that they have a direct relation to this urgent business of the kingdom which they cannot evade. An evangelism which is truly inspired by the Holy Spirit and the spiritual needs of men will not need the blare of trumpets, nor sensational publicity, nor grotesque superficiality. It will have its place in the normal life of the church, and will employ and exalt our regular instrumentalities. It will so stir with a holy passion both pastors and people, that the incoming of truly converted members will be a feature of the regular program which, if it fails, shall fill us with dismay.

The official record of the quadrennium is before us. It is a revealing report. The total increase in full membership for the quadrennium for the entire church is over 500,000. During the first year of the quadrennium we reached the largest annual increase ever reported, but the later years show a steady decline. This decline must not be allowed to continue. It need not continue if evangelism is given its rightful emphasis. Whatever secondary causes are cited as explanations for our too halting evangelistic advance, the primary cause is our failure to give the supreme place to evangelism in the manifold activities of the church. We can do better. We must do vastly better. And this is the time and place to set in motion influences which will bring the whole church to face squarely her full evangelistic responsibility. Through the appropriate committee this General Conference should definitely provide for the most daring and determined evangelistic advance of our history. The bishops of the Church await such an action with keen anticipation, and unitedly pledge every power of life and leadership to its triumphant consummation.

We dare not spend the greater part of a month at Springfield and then separate and go to our homes without giving to the Church a spiritual program for the new quadrennium—a program with scope and inspiration enough to rally our people to the most insistent and resultful evangelistic propaganda of all the years. Our primacy in this field is undisputed. The Protestant Church expects us to lead. If we succeed as we may succeed, all the churches will feel the impact of our achievement, and share in the holy contagion.

There is an old hymn of Charles Wesley, much used by the English Methodists of an early day, which we would do well to adopt. It is a wonderful phrasing of personal consecration and evangelistic passion, and breathes a prayer which every one should make his own:

"I would the precious time redeem,
And longer live for this alone,
To spend, and to be spent, for them
Who have not yet my Saviour known;
Fully on these my mission prove,
And only breathe to breathe thy love.

"My talents, gifts and graces, Lord,
Into thy blessed Hands receive;
And let me live to preach thy Word,
And let me to thy glory live;
My every sacred moment spend
In publishing the sinners' Friend.

"Enlarge, inflame, and fill my heart
With boundless charity divine;
So shall I all my strength exert
And love them with a zeal like thine;
And lead them to thy open side,
The sheep for whom their Shepherd died."

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

We shall soon pass through the open portals of a new quadrennium. What shall be the measure of our total achievement in that quadrennium? What shall be our policies, our adjustments, our faith, and our dominating effort?

Let us remember, dear brethren, that the achievements of yesterday give no guarantee of success to-morrow. We live in a new world. We face new situations. We grapple with new problems. We fight old enemies in new forms. Glorifying ourselves over past victories, and burning incense upon the altar of statistics will get us nowhere.

The years just ahead are crowded with spiritual possibilities. Shall our far-flung battle-line have the vision, the courage, and the holy energy to enter these years of matchless opportunity with the swing of certain conquest?

There are some things which Methodism must never give up. She must never give up her essential democracy. She must keep her place in the vanguard of every moral reform.

She must still closely ally herself with every righteous program for industrial readjustment and social regeneration. She must, as in the past, be broad enough to say to all who may differ in nonessentials of faith and practice, "If thy heart be as my heart, give me thy hand." But she must continue to preach her evangelical truths with lips of flame. She must still sound out the experimental note, and covet the rich blessings of a victorious heart experience. She must have that compelling inspiration which comes alone from absolute confidence in the purpose and power of Jesus Christ to conquer sin and win the world to righteousness.

These and other historic characteristics of Methodism must be held with an unyielding grasp. They must be so perfectly adjusted to the changing conditions of our great day that, allied with the best new forces, our Church shall continue an ever-expanding power in the modern world. The golden age of Methodism is not in the past. With unfailing springtime upon her brow, and a glowing passion for Christlike service in her soul, her golden age is yet to be.

And let us always remember this: Our chief hope of continued achievement is not in our great membership, nor in our unique ecclesiasticism, nor in resounding shibboleths, nor in the momentum of a movement which, for a century and a half, has carried us straight ahead. Our confidence is inspired not by our army, great and disciplined though it may be, but by the presence and pledge of the conquering Christ. Adjusting ourselves to his plans for the redemption of a race and the rebuilding of nations, and responding to his imperial command now resounding through all our ranks, we must go forward.

In this tragic hour of the world Jesus Christ is humanity's only hope. He is the torch of truth, the rock of strength. He is the anchor of hope. He is the refuge of the pursued. He is the master of the storm-winds of passion. He is the light which illumines all darkness. His divine foot prints are on all the continents. He moves surely toward the summit of his Kingly reign, and summons his Church to follow with radiant faith and bounding step. Under his leadership every fortress of unbelief shall be stormed, every bristling breastwork of sin shall be scaled, and above the last conquered citadel his blood-red banner shall be unfurled.

With millions of his followers in many lands, of many races and tongues, and called by many names, we covet the privilege of uniting in ascriptions of adoration to Him who is worthy "to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing." And in the name of our millions of members and adherents scattered over the earth, we now pledge to him our heart's devotion, our unwavering fealty, our uttermost love, and our eager cooperation in every redemptive movement for the rescue of a world devastated by sin, but soon to be uplifted and transformed by the magnetism of his cross.

The morning cometh! The morning cometh!

It is daybreak everywhere. Even in the darkest corners of the earth the gray streaks of the morning light are now above the mountains and the plains. The mists of ignorance, superstition, and tyranny, and the miasma of personal and national iniquity shall flee before his purifying presence. Soon the continents shall be bathed in his effulgent glory, for "the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea."

"Once the morning light has broken, who shall say
What the unimagined splendors of the day,
What the evils that shall perish in its ray?
Aid the dawning, tongue and pen;
Aid it, hosts of righteous men;
Aid it, paper, aid it, type;
Aid it, for the hour is ripe,
And our earnest must not slacken into play;
Sons of Wesley, eager, valiant, lead the way!"

"NOW UNTO HIM THAT LOVED US, AND WASHED US FROM OUR SINS IN HIS OWN BLOOD, AND HATH MADE US KINGS AND PRIESTS UNTO GOD AND HIS FATHER, TO HIM BE GLORY AND DOMINION FOREVER AND EVER, AMEN."

Quayle.

To the General Conference of 1924 Convening at Springfield, Massachusetts:

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN:

I greet you in the name of Christ. I intrude on your time to prefer a request. It is a grief to my heart not to be with you. Poor health alone prevents.

I have esteemed it a great privilege to be one of the American people and to have ministered to them for my lifetime. I have found them ready and intelligent listeners. Their minds I have found alert and their hearts tender. I have loved our Methodist Episcopal Church, and its laity have been kind to mine and me. Its ministry with few exceptions have been beautiful, devoted men of God with whom it was a joy to serve and associate. Thank God for the Methodist Episcopal Church, membership and ministry. Having been saved by the grace of God, I have been "allowed of God to be put in trust with the gospel." How I have been elate at this high calling! Had I a hundred lives to live I should desire to spend them all in this sublime service. This gospel is the World's hope and song. It has been a sunny life, radiant as spring.

In addition God has given me the blessing of a wife and children who have been and are a gladness to my life. "I have all and abound."

I now ask you, brethren, to grant me the favor of the retired relation, regretting that impaired health makes the request imperative.

Praying the blessing of the God-Christ to dwell upon you and your deliberations for the church we love and the world for which Christ died,

I am gratefully your brother in the gospel,

(Signed) WILLIAM A. QUAYLE.

It was announced by the presiding officer that Bishop John W. Robinson was absent on account of the serious illness of his wife, and that Bishop Edgar Blake was confined to his room by temporary illness.

Letter

General
Feng.

To the Members of the General Conference:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

As a delegate to the General Conference, I am very anxious to be with you to enjoy your fellowship, to share your inspiration and to get your enlightenment. However, as a soldier, having responsibilities of the army and the Government, I shall not be able to carry out my wishes. I have asked Pastor Liu Fang, a delegate to the General Conference, from whose hands I have received my baptism, to speak a few words for me and express my longings.

Besides, I have written with my own hand a few words expressing great hopes for the Conference.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) FENG YU HSIANG.

with 10 scattering votes, and the Bishop announced that R. J. Wade, having received a majority of the votes cast, was elected Secretary of the General Conference with power to name his assistants.

Four and a half million members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, scattered over the entire world, are looking toward their representatives now assembled in General Conference to speak in no uncertain tones upon all public questions involving the moral and spiritual growth of the people.

Protest Against Weakening
Volstead Act.

The question of the Eighteenth Amendment of our Federal Constitution and its enforcement rises at this time to a place of supreme importance. The world to-day looks to America for an answer. What shall that answer be?

At this moment the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives in Congress has under consideration the Volstead Act and several bills, which have been introduced seeking to change the act, by permitting the sale of wine and beer containing 2.75% of alcohol by weight. Leading men in various walks of life have recently appeared before that Committee urging such change. Some, in high standing in educational and other vocations, particularly recently, with apparent blindness to the welfare of the people, seek to destroy the influence of the Eighteenth Amendment, and urge its repeal, while breakers of law generally are conspiring with each other not only to emasculate the Volstead Act but also to destroy the Amendment itself.

In view of these facts the General Conference now assembled, having fully considered the destructive tendency of the attempts to break down law and order, desires to call the attention of Congress and the people generally to the fact that the Eighteenth Amendment is not a mere remedial statute or a bit of police regulation, but it is a concrete statement in terms of advancing civilization, of an enduring principle of human government, namely, the principle of sobriety, without which there can never become a growing, progressive, and Christian nation.

And further, believing, in the language of the Supreme Court of the United States, that "Congress has power, when it undertakes to suppress what it is free to regard as a public evil, it may adopt such measures having reasonable relation to that end, as it may deem necessary in order to make its action effective," we urge Congress not to permit any change in the percentage of alcohol allowed, in a liquor, as prescribed by the Volstead Act, believing that such a change would not only be in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment itself, but would also render more difficult the enforcement of law.

In these crucial transition days of our national life in dealing with the liquor problem the Methodist Episcopal Church expects all its members both in and out of Congress to do their duty.

It is directed that copies of these resolutions be forwarded to the Speaker of the House of Representatives and to the chairman of the Judiciary Committee having the bills in charge.

C. T. Wilson proposed an amendment, which passed, that a and Secretary of State Hughes, that the Government of the United States should join with other nations of the world in the maintenance of and participation in the Permanent Court of International Justice. W. F. Conner read the report on Church papers presented by the Book Committee, which, on his motion, was referred to the Committee on Book Concern.

REPORT ON CHURCH PAPERS PRESENTED BY THE BOOK COMMITTEE TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Fathers and Brethren:

The General Conference of 1920 took the following action:

"Whereas, The Church Press has an influence and importance so great that the subject demands fuller study and consideration than is possible at this Conference,

"Resolved, That the Book Committee be requested to make, through an impartial and disinterested Committee of their own number or of others, a careful study of the entire subject, particularly as to the number of Church papers needed, their character, management, and editorial supervision, and report their findings and recommendations to the next General Conference."

In accordance with this Resolution, the Book Committee on April 22, 1922, appointed a Committee on Church Papers composed of nine members, four of whom were outside the membership of the Book Committee.

The report of this Committee was presented to the Book Committee at the annual meeting, March 1924, and appears in the report of the Book Committee to the General Conference. After due consideration the Book Committee ordered that "A Special Committee of Five shall be constituted, no one of whom shall have belonged to the Committee on Church Papers, and that this new Committee give the matter further consideration," and report to the Book Committee at the adjourned meeting to be held immediately preceding the General Conference."

The report of the Special Committee of Five, based in its main recommendations upon the report of the Committee on Church Papers, as amended and adopted by the Book Committee, is herewith given to the General Conference:

WE RECOMMEND:

First: That there shall be issued one National Journal for Methodism in a series of Editions to serve the geographical areas now served by the various Advocates, each Edition to be made up as follows: Twenty-two pages of each Edition to be made up as follows: Twenty-two pages of each Edition to be uniform throughout, with ten pages of each Edition to be devoted to the special interests of its geographical area, including news of the Episcopal areas comprised therein. The Executive Committee of the Book Committee may change the size of any of said Editions, or of any of the issues thereof, provided that no substantial change shall be made in the above ratio. This Journal shall be known as THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and the present names of the respective Advocates shall be continued as a prefix thereto in designating the several Editions.

SECOND DAY.
Morning.

For example:

	The Central Edition
	of
	The Christian Advocate.
	The Western Edition
	of
	The Christian Advocate.

Second: That until otherwise determined the following Editions shall be published: The New York Edition at New York; the Western Edition, the Advocate Journal Edition, and the Southwestern Edition at Cincinnati; the Northwestern Edition and the Central Edition at Chicago. Composition of the uniform pages of the Journal shall be done at such places as may be determined by the Book Committee, and shipped to the different publishing centers.

Third: That there shall be elected by the General Conference on nomination of the Book Committee, an Editor-in-Chief who, together with two assistants to be elected by the Book Committee, shall constitute an Editorial Board. This Editorial Board shall be responsible for the uniform matter in all Editions.

Fourth: That an Editor for each Edition shall be elected by the General Conference on nomination of the Book Committee. Each such Editor shall be responsible for the pages for his special territory.

Fifth: That there shall be an Editorial Council for Conference and Cooperation composed of the members of the Editorial Board and of the Editors of the various Editions, and the Editors of the other official papers of the Church. This Council shall meet once a year at the time and place of the Annual Meeting of the Book Committee, and shall be presided over by the Editor-in-Chief. Special meetings may be held at the call of the Editor-in-Chief, and such meetings shall be called by him at the request of four members of the Council.

Sixth: That no change be made in the cases of the California Christian Advocate, the Pacific Christian Advocate, the Epworth Herald, Der Christliche Apologete and Haus und Herd. These papers and the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate and the Washington Christian Advocate may secure the uniform material at cost.

Seventh: Since steps have been taken by the Book Committee looking toward the syndication of the matter in the Methodist Review of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Quarterly Review of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, it is our judgment that no action shall be taken at present affecting the policy of the Methodist Review.

Eighth: That the Editors of the California Christian Advocate, the Pacific Christian Advocate, the Epworth Herald, Der Christliche Apologete and Haus und Herd be elected by the General Conference on nomination of the Book Committee.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM F. CONNER, Chairman of the Book Committee.

EZRA S. TIPPLE, Secretary of the Book Committee.

NEW JERSEY

Harold P. Sloan presented the following, and moved its adoption:

Standards
Faith.

We are stewards of the grace of Jesus Christ our Lord in great and crucial times.

On the one hand men are recognizing Christ in ever increasing numbers.

On the other hand, those sublime affirmations concerning his person and work, which are the whole ground and strength of his power to bless and save our world, are being denied with an equally increasing frequency and boldness.

This Conference in which is centered the life of the Methodist Episcopal Church around the world cannot in good conscience meet at such an hour without making strong declaration of its unfaltering devotion to all those precious affirmations which are embodied in our common Christian creeds and more exactly interpreted for us as Methodists in our Articles of Religion.

When so many voices are raised to question or deny our mutual voice must be raised to affirm.

When so much is being said to disturb faith we must speak out strongly to establish it.

We therefore proclaim our unwavering devotion to the standards of faith established among us in the Constitution of our Church, and we call upon all who exercise the teaching office within our fellowship, whether in the pulpit or in the class room, to recognize the obligation that is upon them to be witnesses and defenders of the Christian Faith as defined and established in Methodism.

We are not unmindful of the importance of maintaining unimpaired that right, so sacred to Protestantism, the right of the individual to freedom of thought. But we would point out that there is another right that stands above this one, and is ever more sacred. It is the Christian Church to have their Church remain Christian.

We are not a mere humanitarian organization, we are a Christian Church in unity of faith with the Christian Centuries. Our standards are not in exacting detail, they but outline the great headland of common Christian belief. Beyond them there is wide room among us for humble, grateful acceptance.

We therefore proclaim to the whole Methodist and Christian world our full recognition of the binding authority of our Articles of Religion and other established standards of doctrine. These are the authoritative form of all Methodist faith and teaching whatsoever.

Resolved, That copies of this action be printed in every official paper of the denomination, and that the Secretary of the General Conference be instructed to send copies to the Secretary both of the faculty and of the Board of Trustees of all our educational institutions.

Ray Allen raised the question of consideration, which was granted. L. O. Hartman moved to refer the paper to the Committee on the State of the Church, but it was not referred.

W. W. King offered as a substitute that the paper be printed in The Daily Christian Advocate and that action thereon be deferred.

The substitute was accepted, and then adopted.

NEW YORK

The following resolution was presented by Chester A. Smith, which, on motion of John R. Edwards, was referred to the Committee on Temporal Economy.

Whereas, Suggestions have from time to time been made to combine the Epworth League with some other organization, particularly the Sunday School, and

Whereas, The young people of the Epworth League do not desire to have their organization combined with any other organization as evidenced by their recent referendum upon this subject, and

Whereas, To do so under these circumstances would be a violation of that democratic spirit which has always been one of the fine characteristics of the Methodist Episcopal Church, therefore

Resolved, That in any plan for consolidation or reorganization of boards which may be recommended by any committees of this General Conference, the self-autonomy and independence of the Epworth League be preserved.

NEW YORK EAST

F. A. Horne presented the following paper which was adopted :

Whereas, A resolution was unanimously adopted by the Lay Electoral Conference of the New York East Annual Conference, held at Brooklyn, N. Y., March 21, 1924, reading as follows :

Whereas, The action of the General Conference as given in the General Conference Journal should, for the purposes of historical understanding and accuracy, be a record of the steps taken by that body in the legislation of the Church,

Obedience

Whereas, In our own country violation of and disrespect for law are on the increase not only by the criminals among us but also by others whose zeal is burning, but whose methods are hidden, whose aims are probably for good but whose results are damaging to the perpetuity of harmony in our country, therefore, be it

CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA

E. M. Stevens presented the following, and moved its adoption:

Increase
of Chaplains.

The pronounced and widespread movement to discourage militarism and to promote peace should not cause us to forget that we have an army of 125,000 men whose moral and spiritual welfare should not be neglected. Some of our best young men are entering our army for whom no adequate spiritual ministry is being provided.

At this time the Federal Council of Churches is calling particular attention to this fact and is earnestly supporting the bill now before the military committees of the Senate and House of Representatives known as the Cooper-Hull bill (Senate No. 2532 and House No. 7038) which has for its object the augmenting and strengthening of the forces making for the moral and religious welfare of our soldiers by asking that the number of chaplains be increased, that all discrimination against the men serving in the Chaplain's Corps be removed so that they may advance as rapidly as officers in other service corps of the army and that proper provision be made for religious ministry to our soldiers so that the spiritual life of the men may not suffer.

We, the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, representing more than 4,500,000 members, indorse this bill and urge that the military committees of the Senate and House of Representatives speedily and favorably report it to their respective bodies and that we instruct our secretary to at once transmit a copy of this resolution to President Coolidge, the Secretary of War, the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House of Representatives and to Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs of the Senate, and to the Honorable John C. McKenzie, Acting Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs of the House of Representatives.

NORTH GERMANY

F. H. Otto Melle presented the following paper, which, on his motion, was adopted:

May I have your indulgence for a moment to remind the General Conference of a fact of historical interest.

This very day is an anniversary which should not be overlooked. Seventy-five years ago, on May 3, 1849, the Board of Foreign Missions resolved to begin work in Germany, the first country of Europe where the Methodist Episcopal Church sowed the seed of the gospel. To-day is the birthday, not only for Methodism in Germany but for Methodism in Europe, and therefore an anniversary for the whole Church.

The General Conference will be interested to hear the resolution which I found in the Mission Rooms the other day. It shows the change that has taken place, and the growth of our Church since that time:

The following Resolution recommended by the General Missionary Committee at its meeting May 2, 1849, was adopted by the Board of Managers of the Missionary Society at its meeting held May 3, 1849:

"Resolved, That Western Africa, Oregon, South America, China, and California be included in the list of our Foreign Missions the ensuing year."

It was afterward determined to establish a mission in Germany, and recommended to the Bishop having charge of Foreign Missions to appoint two missionaries to that field.

The following members of the Board were present at the adoption of this resolution:

Bishops: Morris and Janes.

Ministers: Charles Pitman, P. P. Sanford, Peter Cartwright, Nathan Bangs, W. H. Raper, Samuel Luckey, D. W. Clark, B. Creagh, Eli Barrett, J. G. Smith, W. Southworth, S. B. Rooney, G. Lane, J. Crawford, N. Bigelow, D. Stocking, P. Chamberlin, O. V. Amerman, D. Smith, B. Howe, C. H. Doering, F. A. Griswold, B. Griffen, A. D. Selleck.

Laymen: L. S. Burling, L. Kirby, S. Dando, A. W. Brown, Dr. S. A. Purdy, W. F. Burgess, E. L. Fancer, P. E. Coon, J. G. Hadden, S. P. Patterson, W. A. Cox, F. Godine, Dr. S. Throckmorton, J. McLean, J. B. Edwards.

In carrying out this resolution Dr. L. S. Jacoby, a man of Hebrew descent, who had been brought to Christ in Cincinnati, was sent over to Germany in November, 1849, and on the 23d of December in the same year he preached his first sermon.

I wonder if any one of our fathers, men of faith and of the Holy Ghost, who passed this resolution in New York, had an idea what would become of this little mustard seed within seventy-five years. If they look down from heaven upon the work in Europe on this anniversary day what do they see? I think it is more than they believed possible even in their fondest dreams. They see that the Methodist Episcopal Church works in most of the countries in Europe. From Germany the seed sprang over to Switzerland, to Austria, Hungary, Lithuania, Esthonia, Lettland, Poland, Russia, Jugo-Slavia. In Scandinavia we preach in Sweden, in Norway, Denmark, and Finland. One of the oldest mission undertakings is Bulgaria, and we are in Italy, France, and Spain and in North Africa.

There are in Europe in this day 3 Areas, 8 Annual Conferences, 5 Mission Conferences, 3 Missions, 750 preachers, about 100,000 members and probationers, 120,000 children in the Sunday schools, 6 theological schools, 934 deaconesses, 7 hospitals, many children's homes, Book Concerns, and other institutions, too numerous to mention. This has indeed been wrought by the Lord and is a wonder to our eyes.

Now, if it is in order, I should like to submit the following resolution:

"Whereas, Seventy-five years ago, on May 3, 1849, the Methodist Episcopal Church through the Board of Foreign Missions, led by God's providence and accompanied by the richest blessings, inaugurated work in Europe, and

"Whereas, The Methodist Episcopal Church in this critical time of the world's history is one of the most potent forces of Christian influence for moral and religious uplift of the nations in Europe, and

"Whereas, The Methodists of the Zurich Area are preparing to celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the beginning of the work, which at the same time was the beginning in Europe, be it

"Resolved, 1. That we send our greetings to the various Conferences and Churches of the Zurich Area with our best wishes and prayers that the Lord make this anniversary which is to be observed in the years 1924 and 1925 in spite of all the poverty and tribulation to a time of the richest spiritual blessings.

"May God in his grace grant a religious and spiritual revival that may garner a rich harvest for the Kingdom.

"2. That we invite other Areas in Europe to participate in the observance of this anniversary so that the benefit of it may be felt throughout our European work. And may our pastors and churches in Europe have a keen sense of the grave responsibility that rests upon us at the present moment and of the important and compelling challenge that confronts Methodism in winning the nations to Christ, the only one who is able to solve the European problems. By this work Methodism will not only make her contribution to the development of the several nations, but will also increasingly become a most decisive factor in the reconstruction of all Europe."

George R. Grose presented the following, which, on his motion, was unanimously adopted:

System.

When quiet is maintained the ordinary speaking voice can be heard in all parts of the hall. We are, however, a body working intensely and rapidly for hours at a time, day by day; hence the quiet which obtains in the usual public meeting is practically impossible in this legislative assembly, therefore in order to assist those delegates whose sittings by assignment are under the gallery, the General Conference ordered the appointment of a Committee to ascertain whether the condition of the treasury of the General Conference Expense Fund would warrant the installation of an amplifying system.

This Committee now reports that we find the condition of the treasury of the General Conference Expense Fund will warrant the expenditure; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we instruct the Commission on Entertainment of the General Conference to install such an amplifying system at once, it being clearly understood that the expense is not to exceed $2,200, that it is to be ready for use on Wednesday morning next, and that satisfaction is guaranteed by the Western Electric Company.

On motion of G. C. Douglass, the Commission on General Conference Entertainment was excused from the session to carry out the instructions embodied in the above resolution.

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Church urge Congress and the Judiciary Committee not only to defeat the fifty-nine beer bills, but to strengthen the law enforcement by enacting pending legislation to put prohibition agents under civil service; to concentrate all enforcement activities into a responsible enforcement bureau, and to enact a law to deport aliens who persist in violating the prohibition and narcotic laws, and to disfranchise those American citizens who persist in the violation of the Eighteenth Amendment.

W. H. Van Benschoten moved that it be referred to the Committee on Temperance, Prohibition, and Public Morals, but it was not referred.

E. L. Kidney moved that it be printed in The Daily Christian Advocate, but it did not prevail.

H. S. Harriss called for the previous question, and it was ordered.

C. T. Wilson moved that that part of the resolution dealing with the disfranchisement of American citizens be laid on the table.

It was not laid on the table.

The Order for the Day was taken up, namely, hearing three addresses by delegates to the recent National Convention of Methodist Students at Louisville, Ky.

The Bishop presented the following; who addressed the Conference: R. D. Ware, graduate of Trinity College and now in Vanderbilt University Seminary; Walter A. Mueller, graduate of University of Illinois, now a student in Garrett Biblical Institute; and Stanley High, a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan University, now a student at Boston University School of Theology. Bishop Anderson then responded on behalf of the Conference.

Ray Allen moved that we express to these young men our appreciation of their presence, their spirit, and their message, and assure them that we look with confidence to that day when our responsibilities in the Church will devolve upon them, and that we request the Bishops to appoint a Committee to prepare a response to these messages to be addressed to the young people of Methodism, the same to be published in The Daily Christian Advocate and our Church papers. The motion prevailed.

R. J. Wade presented and read the following:

We, a group of non-student visitors in attendance at the Methodist Student Conference in session at Louisville, Kentucky, April 18-20, 1924, at an informal luncheon at the Brown Hotel Sunday noon, feel constrained to give some expression to the feelings which now move us.

We have watched you with intense interest and have profound admiration for the spirit in which you have conducted yourselves throughout, always seeking to know the mind of the Master, always frank, fair, kind, considerate, earnest, and with a strong and plainly evident love for the Christ whom you serve, the country in which you live, and your Brothers throughout the world. We believe you are making a great contribution to the work of the Church and Kingdom, and we look with joy and confidence to the day when responsibilities now upon your elders will of necessity be committed to your hands.

We offer and pledge our personal support of the spirit thus expressed and our endeavor to see that an accurate and unbiased interpretation of the Methodist Student Conference shall be made in report and press.

We recognize the challenge of this student group to the Church of Christ to high and holy daring, and we stand personally with and behind you young people who have here and openly in your own way declared your determination to seek and to follow Christ's way of life, and in witness we have added our names to this statement.

Appreciation
of Monument Called Circuit Rider.

Whereas, The Methodist Circuit Rider blazed the trail for Christian civilization from the fields of labor of Jesse Lee on the north Atlantic coast through a physical wilderness, to the beginning of the trail through a spiritual wilderness through Asia; and,

Whereas, The western end of that trail has been marked by the erection, on the capitol grounds of the State of Oregon, in Salem, of an appropriate monument called the Circuit Rider; and,

Whereas, This noble work of art is the gift of a member of former General Conferences, a son of one of those western circuit riders and an honored citizen of the State of Oregon; be it therefore

Resolved, That the erection of this artistic and substantial monument of stone and bronze to the memory of the Methodist preachers called "Circuit Riders" is both fitting and appropriate; and be it further

Resolved, That this General Conference express its appreciation and thanks to the donor, the Honorable Robert A. Booth, of Eugene, Oregon, by giving this resolution to the press and sending a copy to Senator Booth.

SOUTHWEST KANSAS

M. Madeline Southard presented the following paper, and Frank Mason North moved its adoption:

Inasmuch as almost two thirds of the membership of the Church is composed of women, and the lives of these women are vitally affected by all actions of the Church; and,

Inasmuch as the whole program of the Church which determines this action is largely determined by its Boards; and,

Inasmuch as, while about one fifth of the women of the Church maintain a Woman's Foreign Missionary Society and a similar number maintain a Woman's Home Missionary Society, these and all other women of the Church also serve and give according to the program laid down by our regular Church Boards, so that a leading editor of the Church has estimated that the women are responsible for giving at least half of the Centenary funds, which the regular Boards of the Church administer; and

Inasmuch as these Boards of the Church have more than four hundred members, all of whom are men, except ten or eleven who serve on the Deaconess Board and Board of Homes and Hospitals (and one on Board of Home Missions); and that concerns men and women, in order to get a full and correct understanding of such matter; and,

Inasmuch as women have now given full proof of their ability to plan wisely and administer both life and funds economically and advantageously, so that certain secretaries of the Church Boards have said openly that some lessons must be learned of the women's societies if the great World Service Program of the Church be carried through; and,

Inasmuch as other great Churches, as the Baptist, Disciples, and even the Presbyterian are now putting women on their regular Boards; therefore, be it

Services
Reconsidered.

G. E. Heath, by common consent, addressed the Conference and asked for reconsideration of the vote taken yesterday with reference to Sunday morning services in the auditorium. The motion to reconsider carried, and he offered the following substitute for the action of yesterday, which was accepted and then adopted:

That, in appreciation of the loyal cooperation of the local pastors and laymen of our own and other denominations, in providing for the convenience and comfort of our General Conference delegates, we are glad to help them to sustain their Sunday services during the month of May by our attendance in their churches and by ordering the printing in the Saturday issues of The Daily Christian Advocate of the list of preaching appointments at Sunday services where our General Conference leaders are to occupy local pulpits of our own and other denominations.

Titus Lowe, for the Special Committee authorized to visit Bishop Blake in the hospital, made a report and then read the following letter from the Bishop:

Letter from Bishop Blake

THE HOSPITAL, Sunday.

DEAR DOCTORS LOWE AND KING:

I am sorry my nurse did not allow you to see me when you came up to the hospital yesterday. We have fallen on evil times when a "mere" woman can hold up the General Conference. Hospital government is pretty despotic. Nothing gets by a nurse when the doctor's orders are involved.

But don't be disturbed if you were refused "consideration." I, myself, have been laid on the table five times in three days. Please do come up again soon and I will move to suspend the rules to let you in.

My experience here has converted me to the idea of a limited term for Episcopal assignments. If the General Conference would pass a resolution that a Bishop should not remain longer than seven days in the same place it would help me immensely.

Give my love to the members of the General Conference and tell them how grateful I am to them for thinking of me.

My earnest hope and prayer to God is that they may keep the Church moving forward.

Affectionately yours,

EDGAR BLAKE.

Resolutions
Concerning Retiring Secretary
Mills.

Wallace E. Brown, for the Committee on Resolutions concerning the retiring Secretary, presented the following report, which was adopted by a standing vote:

Your Special Committee appointed to prepare words of appreciation on the work of the retiring Secretary, Dr. Edmund M. Mills, already elected an honorary Secretary of the General Conference, offers the following:

"Dr. Edmund M. Mills was a delegate to the General Conference for the first time in 1888. With but one exception, he has been a member of every General Conference since.

"Through six sessions of the General Conference preceding his election to be Secretary, he had performed the duties of an assistant Secretary.

"We hereby assure Doctor Mills of our sincere appreciation of his extremely efficient administration of this high office during the past seven years.

"We desire to assure him of our high regard, not only for his work as Secretary of the General Conference, but also for him as a brother beloved.

"We rejoice with him in the unusual record of fifty-three years of uninterrupted service in his own Conference, and in his larger achievement for our whole denomination.

"In his pioneer work, as the Executive Secretary of the Twentieth Century Thank Offering, he smote the rock of Methodist gold, from which has issued the ever-widening stream of systematic and generous giving on the part of the Church.

"We pray that our heavenly Father's favor may graciously rest upon him in these days and that at eventime it may be a light."

Text Books on Christian
Internationalism.

John H. Race offered the following resolution:

Recognizing that permanent world peace can be achieved only as the children of the world are trained to believe in it, and to strive cooperatively for it, and,

Whereas, It has been demonstrated in our own time that a nation's attitude of mind may be completely changed within a generation through education of its youth; and,

Whereas, The Christian Church is an established educational agency, with its schools in all lands, "teaching all nations" as its Founder commissioned it to do; and,

Whereas, Goodwill, brotherhood, and service are fundamental in the teachings which Christ commanded his followers to extend to all nations; and,

Whereas, The various branches of the Church, through federated educational and missionary agencies, already have the organization by which to influence the thinking and form the ideals of millions of children now under their instruction; therefore be it

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church appeal to those who shape the curricula of our educational institutions at home and abroad, of our Sunday Schools and young people's study courses, to select or provide such textbooks as will develop a Christian internationalism based on mutual respect, understanding, and cooperation, and that we call upon all who exercise the teaching function to avoid the glorification of war and to teach reliance on justice, law, and reason instead of on passion and force in the adjustment of affairs between men and nations;

Resolved, That we welcome cooperation with other denominations and interdenominational agencies, and with the International Missions Council, in an educational program to the end that the nations of the earth may learn war no more.

On motion of W. H. Van Benschoten, it was referred to the Committee on the State of the Church.

ATLANTA

L. H. King offered the following resolution:

Episcopal Residences for Negroes in North.

It is hardly probable that there could be a more engaging problem confronting the Methodist Episcopal Church in America to-day than that of keeping in constant, vital, evangelical contacts with the millions of Negroes of our nation's polyglot population.

The present period of national life is one of profound change in our Negro element both in the shift of their geographical residence and in their rapidly expanding consciousness of kind, and in their adjustment to the social institutions of their several communities.

Government statistics very conservatively report that in recent months more than a half million of this group have abandoned their places of abode in the far southland, going to the West, North, and East. More accurate information would likely reveal an exodus of no less than a million souls within the last five years.

With them, this is a time of unsettled mind and surging impulses; when their new destinies are in the making; when their possibilities for good or ill can, by prompt and wise education and direction or by tardy and ill-advised social control, be utilized as a national asset or a national handicap to the social order.

In their effort to recruit these masses, other denominations have covered the entire northern, eastern, and western sections of our country with a network of Negro Episcopal leadership. With our millions of Negro peoples exposed to such a distribution of Negro leadership and all which that implies for growing group consciousness, it is easily discernible what will be the effect in augmenting recruits to those several communions.

In the interest of this wandering worthwhile group; as an expression of that vicarious service the Methodist Episcopal Church has always afforded for all backward peoples the world around, and as her contribution toward the task of bringing about in our restive distracted social order a state of Christian poise and calmness to the nation, has not the hour struck and is not this the time when the Methodist Episcopal Church should assert in a pronounced and more comprehensive way—the Methodist way—her well-earned and sovereign right to moral leadership and Christianization of these mobile masses? Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Episcopacy of the present General Conference be hereby directed to study this situation created by the migration of Negroes, to determine whether there is not need for the establishment in the northern territory of one or more episcopal residences for General Superintendents from among the Negro race, and the election or assignment of the requisite number of such bishops for this purpose.

Resolved, Further, that the Committee report of their findings be made to the present session of the General Conference not later than Monday, May 12.

G. W. Henson raised the question of consideration, and, on vote, consideration was granted. On motion of Ray Allen, the resolution was referred to the Committee on the Episcopacy.

C. A. Pollock offered the following report for the Committee on Credentials, which was adopted:

Your Committee on Credentials beg leave to report and recommend that

T. W. Robinson, a Reserve of the Indiana Conference, was seated May 1, instead of C. C. Hull, absent.

Edwin Stromberg, Eastern Swedish Conference, not here at roll call, reported May 1.

D. D. Spellman, Reserve of Detroit Conference, has been in his seat throughout the Conference.

A. M. Peterson, a regular delegate, Northern Minnesota Conference, reported May 5.

J. P. Hand, Baltimore Conference, temporarily excused. J. C. Nicholson, Reserve, to sit during his absence without additional expense.

J. W. Boyd to be excused for May 10, 1924.

O. M. Schlabach, West Wisconsin Conference, was excused for May 5.

Wallace B. Fleming, Ministerial Delegate, Kansas Conference, reported May 5, and his reserve, W. C. Hanson, retires.

Chester A. Smith, New York Conference, excused for May 7.

E. G. Eikenberry, West Ohio Conference, because of exceptionally pressing duties excused for May 16, 17, 19, 20.

CHARLES A. POLLOCK, Chairman.
L. M. POTTER, Secretary.

Announcements were made, and recess was taken.

The Conference reconvened with Bishop Nuelsen in the chair. Hymn 415, beginning, "Faith of our fathers," was sung.

C. A. Pollock, for the Committee on Credentials, moved that J. F. Knotts be seated temporarily for L. H. Murlin in the New England delegation. It was so ordered.

Whereas, A bronze portrait of Brother Baldwin, if placed in his church, the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore City, in honor of his ninety-second year, would correctly read as follows: "Summerfield Baldwin—Lover of God and His Church—Wise Counselor—Humble and Useful Citizen—Inspirer of Good—Faithful Friend—Generous to Religious Causes at Home and Abroad." John Stephens presented the following paper, prepared by Herbert B. Johnson:

THE IMMIGRATION BILL AND JAPANESE EXCLUSION

To the President of the United States:

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, assembled in quadrennial session at Springfield, Massachusetts, and representing over four and three-quarter millions of members, respectfully appeals to you in the interest of international justice and good will, to prevent so far as possible the immediate consummation of the enactment of recent legislation in Congress looking to the exclusion of all peoples not eligible to citizenship in the United States.

We recognize that the question of immigration is and must be one of domestic policy; but we also recognize that it is far-reaching in its international implications. We do not plead for the wide-open door policy of immigration, but recognize that some kind of a restriction of immigration from all countries is a national necessity. We make grateful recognition of the soberness and wisdom manifested by yourself and Secretary Hughes in attempting to adjust, or modify, the recent legislation so as to produce the most satisfactory results possible; and in this we wish to assure you of the sympathy and support of our entire Church.

Great emphasis has been placed upon the rising tide of color and the necessity of the preservation of the Nordic peoples; but as Christian leaders in this great country, we beg you to consider the greater interests of international fellowship and good will at a time when the influence of a mistaken policy will be felt for generations to come. As Christians, we cannot countenance racial prejudice and discrimination, but insist that when this great Nation speaks through its legislation, it must be in a manner which will commend itself to the thinking and conscience of the nations of the world regardless of color or previous condition. It is not good policy to enact legislation in such a way as to awaken and stimulate enmity and to create a solid block of nations who from this hour must regard themselves as under suspicion and necessarily as on the defensive in dealings with the white race.

The Oriental peoples during the last half century or more have made such progress as to make impossible treating them as some might have thought proper in the earlier days. It is well to remind ourselves that the first treaty between Japan and the United States provides that "there shall be a perfect permanent and universal peace between the United States of America on the one part, and the Empire of Japan on the other, and between their people respectively without exception of persons or places." In order to secure this Treaty which the representatives of Japan were reluctant to sign, Commodore M. G. Perry, the Special Ambassador to Japan, wrote a letter calling the attention of the Japanese Government to the large liberty enjoyed by the Chinese people who had emigrated to the United States, and to the special advantages which the Japanese would enjoy under the proposed Treaty. This letter, which is printed in the official narrative of the Perry expedition, published by authority of Congress, contains assurances which place the United States under a special obligation in dealing with Japanese Government and people as regards matters touching immigration and fair treatment.

After a long period of probation, during which time Japan revised her laws, codes, and courts, she was admitted into the sisterhood of civilized nations on the basis of absolute equality and has shown herself in every way as worthy of such recognition. Under these circumstances it seems inconsistent to treat her less courteously than was done when the first Treaty was enacted.

We can never forget the thrill that came to the world at and after the Washington Disarmament Conference, when Admiral Baron Kato, the Father of the Japanese Navy, agreed to sacrifice the pride of his heart in the interest of world peace. And later, as Premier of Japan, just before his death, he carried out the pledge which he had made.

No greater calamity can be imagined than for leading citizens of Japan to change their attitude, who for a generation have been outstanding advocates of peace, and who have recently expressed publicly the hope that the United States may be as liberal with her justice as she was with her benevolence following the unprecedented disaster of the earthquake and fire in September last.

Not only are great business interests at stake, in view of the recent and proposed legislation, but missionary and other interests will surely suffer as a result of the growing sense of injustice. We are now facing either unprecedented opportunities or closed doors in all Oriental lands.

The pending legislation in its present form we regard as inopportune. A Pacific Coast Oriental survey is now being conducted jointly by the Institute of Social and Religious Research of New York and Regional Committees on the Pacific Coast representing varied interests such as Church organizations, universities, civic and patriotic bodies. This survey includes a study of economic, religious, educational and social conditions and tendencies among the Chinese, Japanese, and British Indian residents. Doctor Park, of Chicago University, is in charge, and if given time, can produce data which should be of untold value as a basis in dealing with these peoples in our varied international relations.

We confidently depend upon you to use your influence as President in so adjusting the recent immigration enactments as to prevent the calamity that is sure to follow the consummation of such legislation.

Protestantism.

Whereas, Though we believe in the promotion of spiritual unity and the largest cooperation in all worthy enterprises among all Christians everywhere, we also believe most profoundly in the special mission of Protestant Christianity; and,

Whereas, By propaganda literature, missions, dramas, newspaper control and other methods, there are efforts made to weaken the influence of Evangelical Christianity; and,

Whereas, Our Church has never adopted specific plans to counteract this propaganda, and we have no adequate literature or system of special lectures, or other agencies to counteract these aforesaid influences; and,

Whereas, There are millions of people in our country who have come from foreign shores and have no knowledge of our conceptions of religious liberty, and many of them hostile to all forms of religion, and we have no adequate program for their enlightenment; therefore, be it

Resolved, First, that our General Superintendents, District Superintendents, and Editors be most earnestly requested to provide means in their respective areas, districts, and in the columns of the Church periodicals, to counteract the attacks being made; and, be it further

Resolved, Second, that our General Superintendents appoint men deemed qualified, to prepare special series of addresses covering the vital principles of Protestantism, which may be given in special meetings in local churches for the advancement of the faith; and, be it further

Resolved, Third, that our Book Committee be hereby instructed to arrange for the publication of books and other literature that will appeal to the average reader as well as to the scholar, and that will set forth the sublime principles of Protestantism in general and Methodism in particular to the end that we may retain our Protestant heritage, purchased at so great a price, and that biblical truth may prevail throughout the land.

A FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Whereas, The House Bill No. 3923, known as the Sterling-Reed Education Bill, which contains the essential constructive feature of the formerly much-discussed Smith-Towner Bill of five years ago, is now in Committee; and,

Whereas, This bill creates a Department of Education, aiming at Americanization of immigrants, reduction of illiteracy, better instruction and extended school terms, especially in rural schools, etc., and,

Whereas, It is widely known that certain influences antagonistic to our American ideals of education have prevented the Committee from reporting out similar bills in due time for our representatives in Congress and these same influences are now practising this same undemocratic method in hampering House Bill 3923,

W. A. Shelton,
Fraternal
Delegate.

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN:

Authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, our College of Bishops has appointed as its Fraternal Delegate to your Church the Reverend William Arthur Shelton, Master of Arts, Doctor of Divinity, and Professor of Old Testament and Semitic Languages in Emory University. Among us Doctor Shelton has attained distinction as a student, a pastor, a teacher, an archæologist and an author. We send him to you confident that he will interest you by his report of the activities and prosperity of our Church.

With joy we record that, measured by increase of membership, financial support, additional and improved church and Sunday school buildings, widening fields of service, and constantly increasing lay activities, our Church was never more prosperous.

We give thanks to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ that the faith of our Fathers—that glorious and sacred deposit committed to us and for whose preservation in purity we are responsible to him—is believed and confidently proclaimed among us, and that multitudes continue to find in the Lord Jesus the salvation that he alone can give.

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN:

The bearer hereof, Brother Riichiro Yoshida, of Mikage, Japan, has been duly elected as a lay delegate to bear the fraternal greetings of the Japan Methodist Church to this session of your General Conference.

Brother Yoshida is one of the early converts of the Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Japan. He was among the first members when the Osaka Circuit was organized and his home, in Mikage, has been a center of Christian activity. As superintendent of the Sunday school, as official member of the congregation to which he has belonged, as lay delegate both to our Annual and General Conferences, and as a member of the Board of Home Missions and of the Commission on the Forward Movement, he has occupied a position of prominence in his Church. He was elected delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held in Baltimore in 1902, but was unable to attend. He has contributed freely of his means for the cause of the Church. He is engaged as a manufacturer of rubber goods.

We most heartily commend Brother Yoshida, who will bear to you expressions of the love and affection of the Japan Methodist Church, and will report to you the progress being made under the blessing of God. He will assure you of our great gratitude to the Methodist Episcopal Church, through whose missionary efforts, with that of other branches of Methodism, the Japan Methodist Church was founded; and not only so, but we rejoice that it is still substantially aided by you in its mighty task of giving the gospel to the unreached millions of this Empire and of spreading scriptural holiness throughout the land.

We commend Brother Yoshida as an esteemed and worthy member of the Japan Methodist Church.

Yours cordially, in the bonds of the Gospel of Christ,

KOGORO UZAKI,
Bishop, Japan Methodist Church.

We know in Japan of the splendid work which the American Churches are performing in the promotion of friendship among the nations. The spread of knowledge is essential to understanding and sympathy among men, and it is with wisdom that the Churches are gathering and disseminating knowledge in your own country as well as in your mission fields. The Churches may take generous credit to themselves for what they have accomplished in promoting the brotherhood of man; and what they are doing now in their effort to spread further the gospel of peace and good will gives reason for all Japanese to rejoice and devoutly to hope for your continued success.

The Committee on Rules, in accordance with the instruction of the General Conference concerning the printing of reports of General Conference Commissions and Special Committees, recommends that Rule 50 of the Rules of Order as the same appears in Paragraph 567, Page 522, of the Discipline, be amended by adding thereto the following sentence: "Reports of General Conference Commissions and Special Committees shall be printed in The Daily Christian Advocate before being presented to the Conference and shall not be read to the General Conference without order of the Conference."

F. W. Hixson offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Special Care
in Legislation.

In view of the adoption by this General Conference on yesterday of the report of the Commission on Unification; and,

Whereas, The college of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will soon call a special session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for the purpose of securing action on this same report,

Resolved, That it be the sense of this body that special care should be taken in all legislation enacted by this General Conference, and in the matter of the number of General Officers of the Church elected at this time, to the end that there may be the least delay and the least possible difficulty in the union of the two great American Methodisms.

HINGHWA

David Cheng offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Bishop
Bashford
Memorial.

Whereas, The life and service of Bishop James W. Bashford are an inspiring example to the whole Methodist Episcopal Church, and especially to the Christian body in China; and

Whereas, The friends of Bishop Bashford and of China have provided during the past quadrennium a fund of nearly $200,000 for erecting on the campus of Peking University a memorial to our beloved former bishop; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the General Conference extend to a Chinese representative of Peking University ten minutes immediately following the approval of the minutes on Friday, May 9, to bring to our attention the fruits of this memorial, that we may pause once again in grateful remembrance of the great contribution of the General Conference and our Methodist Episcopal Church to China through the work of Bishop Bashford.

INDIANA

John M. Walker offered the following resolution concerning the Episcopal Address. It was adopted:

Episcopal Address on Second Day.

Resolved, That it is our judgment that the interests of our Church would be better served if at the next General Conference the Episcopal Address should be delivered at the second regular session of the Conference as the Order of the Day.

J. M. WALKER,
C. E. BACON,
C. H. TAYLOR.

John M. Walker offered the following resolution touching science and religion:

Inasmuch as attempts are made both within and without the Church to make it appear that there is some intrinsic conflict between science and religion.

Resolved, That we affirm our judgment that there is no such conflict when religion and science are rightly understood and the facts of both are clearly seen and presented. And since we have affirmed our faith time and again in the great verities of religion, we likewise express our profound appreciation of the vast services of science to mankind, and that we bid Godspeed to all those devoted men and women who by their investigations and achievements are making more clear the thoughts of God and the way of Life as embodied in this universe in which we live.

JOHN M. WALKER,
W. B. FARMER.

On motion of George H. Spencer the resolution was referred to the Committee on the State of the Church.

KOREA

Hugh H. Cynn offered the following resolution:

Whereas, It is universally recognized that humanity is facing an unprecedented crisis occasioned by the most widespread and acute racial, national, and class consciousness, which has been caused as an aftermath of the world war, and it is also recognized, often by non-Christians even, that the only force that will successfully lead all races and nations through the danger zone to the plane where the brotherhood of man is fully realized is the all-embracing and all-uplifting power of the spirit of Jesus Christ; and,

Whereas, The Methodist Episcopal Church has, from Wesley down, had the complete surrender of the life of man to the power of the Spirit as the chief aim and the evangelization of the world as the main objective, and now has a membership of over four millions and a half, found in all parts of the world, thereby we are convinced that she is ideally the best fit and in strength the best equipped to assume a more truly world position to give humanity the needed leadership; be it

Resolved, With the view to making that leadership even more united and composite, that the twenty-ninth General Conference meeting in Springfield, Massachusetts, order such a change in the name of the Board of Foreign Missions so that there shall not be any distinction in the Church between foreign and home, and such alterations in the organization, rules, and usages of the Board as that the Annual Conferences in other nations shall bear the same relationship with the said Board as the Annual Conferences in the United States bear with the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension.

the wrath to come. No group within the Church questions for a moment the purpose and intent of the actions of the Church, Whereas, The Methodist Episcopal Church operates upon a highly technical basis which requires dispatch and efficiency.

Whereas, The Church confronts the respective groups with a challenge by the opportunity afforded for self-determination whereby they make their own lives the achievement of a perpetual triumph, and

Whereas, The action being taken by the two major Methodist bodies in America may not facilitate the operation of the work among certain groups to the limit of their power to function; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we request the General Conference of 1924 to direct the Committee on Temporal Economy to give the most favorable consideration of reasonable representation from the groups mostly in need on the respective Boards of the Church and in the Book Concerns of the Church for the purpose of familiarizing themselves with the economic and practical working of the machinery of the Church.

On motion of F. R. Bayley, it was referred to the Committee on Temporal Economy without instruction.

LUCKNOW

John J. Cornelius offered the following resolutions:

A WORLD RESOLUTION ON CHURCH AND COLORED QUESTIONS

Whereas, Certain attitudes and practices on the part of Christian nations and peoples are causing scandal to the Christian religion in the minds of many non-Christian peoples, and making infinitely difficult the whole missionary effort and program; such attitudes and practices as,

1. The fact and spectacle of a Christian nation conquering and dominating another for the selfish purpose of wealth and power.

2. The repression of subject-peoples when these seek to express themselves in terms that are normal and native to them,

3. The attitude of a "superior race," which results again and again in deeds of individual high handedness and contempt toward the subject-group.

Whereas, 2. An attitude of undue caution in the presence of these manifest and admitted evils has similarly robbed Christianity of much of its vitality of ministry and its winning power; and

Whereas, 3. The treatment of colored people in all parts of the world by Christian nations, for the most part white, constitutes a direct challenge to the teachings and ethics of Jesus, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church,

1. Refuse to recognize as valid in church or state any discrimination on the basis of race or color; for "He hath made of one blood all nations" . . . "We are also His offspring."

2. We refuse to recognize as valid or in harmony with Christ's teaching of brotherhood, the right of any government to conquer and exploit any other people or race, be it

Resolved, 2. That since we live in a world which is not yet Christianized, in which imperfection abounds on every hand, we who claim to be followers of Christ determine ceaselessly to work in Christ, to the end that the Christian ideal above-mentioned may obtain in every land, be it

Resolved, Finally, That the Methodist Episcopal Church place herself clearly and squarely on record as willing to face out and assume her share of the responsibility for the solution of the delicate and difficult problem of securing a truly Christian world-order, in the matter of color and racial relationship, on the above-mentioned basis of Christ's teaching of human brotherhood under the fatherhood of God.

On motion of J. N. Dryden, they were referred to the Committee on the State of the Church.

MICHIGAN

James R. Wooton offered the following resolution:

Whereas, It is of great present value to the students of our Church colleges to have access to the proceedings of the General Conference, and also of permanent historical value to the institutions to have the files of The Daily Advocate available for reference, and

Whereas, The benefit derived by these accrues also to the Church at large in a more intelligent and well-informed body of members, both ministerial and lay; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Publishing Agents be directed to send to the librarians of our accredited colleges and universities a copy of The Daily Advocate for the sessions of 1924, free of cost to such institutions.

William R. Johnson offered as an amendment that after the words "colleges and universities" be added "academies and secondary schools, and schools in foreign lands."

Ray Allen moved that the resolutions be referred to the Committee on Book Concern.

D. G. Downey raised the point of order that after a resolution has been introduced and speech has been made, a motion to refer is not debatable.

Bishop Bristol ruled that the point was not well taken.

D. G. Downey appealed from the decision of the chair.

The vote on the appeal was taken and the Conference did not sustain the chair.

The Bishop announced the point of order as well taken.

The motion of Ray Allen to refer prevailed.

Results of Union.

RESOLUTION REGARDING UNION

No section of the world-wide Methodist Episcopal Church could be more thankful for the adoption of the resolution providing for union between the two great branches of Methodism than those who in this General Conference represent the foreign mission fields. The history of union movements shows that on the mission fields there has been a growing desire that unification might early be made possible. It also shows that representatives on those fields have always taken advanced ground in the cause of union. Now that our Church has made this great pronouncement, which we trust under the blessing of God may reach early and full consummation, we, members of delegations from the fields of Methodist missionary effort across the seas, desire to record our profound gratitude to God, who has led us to this great day, and to say that in our judgment this action taken by our General Conference will strike a responsive chord throughout our world-wide field of missionary work, and further, that it will both greatly encourage our Christian communities in those distant lands and profoundly influence the thinking of the multitudes of those who are studying the Gospel and seeking Christ. It is our conviction that a union of the two great branches of our Church will be marked by a world-wide revival of spiritual religion and a new era of missionary triumphs to the glory of God.

Consideration Deferred.

Bishop Wilson presented the following communication from the Board of Bishops:

The General Superintendents call the attention of the General Conference in this unusual way to a matter which immediately and vitally concerns both the spiritual and the temporal business of the Church.

The serious decrease in the receipt of the Benevolent Boards for those months of their financial year which have already passed, creates a situation not merely ominous, but perilous. The total amount paid in on the Centenary account for the last six months is $3,030,659.27, as compared with $4,099,269.60 for the same time last year, a decrease of 26 per cent. About three-fifths of this sum has had to be used to cover the expenses of the Council of Boards of Benevolence, and to pay in full the allotments to the Boards which, under the Centenary plan, have guaranteed incomes, leaving to be divided between the Board of Foreign Missions and the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension a sum 48 per cent less than that available for this purpose the preceding year, and 59 per cent less than in 1922. When it is remembered that only by unusual and tremendous efforts was it possible even in the autumns of 1922 and 1923 to bring up the contributions of the Church before the close of the fiscal year so as to avoid a severe cut in appropriations, it becomes painfully evident that the prospect of a happy ending to the present year cannot be called bright even by the most courageous optimist.

We address ourselves more directly to the case of the Board of Foreign Missions because, although the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension is handling problems of the utmost consequence to the Church, a more considerable proportion of its work has to do with building projects in which delay, while often deeply to be regretted, is not necessarily fatal; but the Foreign Board has more than a thousand missionaries whose support must be provided altogether from its treasury, besides hundreds of schools, hospitals, colleges, orphanages, and other agencies of ministry, and thousands of native preachers, teachers, nurses, physicians, partly dependent upon its funds. Its work is being carried on in more than forty countries, all of them less favored in financial ability than this land; countries where our churches are usually small and often weak, our membership widely scattered and commonly poor; and therefore, the whole undertaking must as yet rely heavily upon the help of the Board not merely for expansion and for greatly needed buildings, but for actual maintenance. These facts seem to justify a special treatment of the condition of this Board.

We leave out of account at this time the alarming shortage in the amount asked for by the Board of Foreign Missions and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society (with the noble consent and cooperation of all the Boards) for the Japan Earthquake Fund; and confine our attention to two items:

First, there is the debt of the Board of Foreign Missions arising in large part from loss in exchange and advances to the fields, and amounting on October 31, 1923, according to the Corresponding Secretaries and the Treasurer, to $2,247,951.21. That some provision must be made for this debt is beyond all question.

Second, there is the matter of current receipts and expenses. The expenditures for the first half year have been approximately $2,700,000. What has been the income?

Adding to the Centenary receipts all receipts from other sources, such as bequests and annuities, the whole amount made available for the work of the Board of Foreign Missions for the period under review is $572,528.79 as compared with $1,228,694.38 a year ago. If this downward movement is not checked, the result will be at the end of next October a largely increased debt, and for the following year a disastrous cut in appropriations. This again will mean not simply a crushing burden upon the indigenous churches, which are so bravely struggling towards self-support, but a diminished force of workers, both native and missionary, closed institutions and stations, and a broken morale. In this day of unparalleled power and unparalleled opportunity, it cannot be true that the Methodist Episcopal Church, with its glorious record of advance, will now suffer retreat which might even become a rout. The interests at stake are too many, too large, and too precious. This is the work which God has committed to our hands. Somewhere must be the men, the women, the money with which he designs to carry it on. It is not ours to lose heart; but it is ours to seek diligently, in prayer and in consultation, for the way by which he will lead us out through this straitened path into a broad and open place.

We, therefore, earnestly recommend that, whether through the Standing Committee on Foreign Missions or through some Special Committee your early consideration be given to this most serious emergency. If your Bishops can in any way be of assistance by information or counsel, they will be more than glad to be associated with such a committee.

F. M. North moved that the Board of Bishops appoint a Committee of Fifteen, five of whom shall be Bishops, and that this paper be referred to said Committee together with any other documents of a similar character that have come before this body.

On motion of D. G. Downey, the substitute was laid on the table.

D. G. Downey moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Board
of Bishops.

Bishop Wilson asked the consent of the Conference to make the following change in the communication offered by the Board of Bishops yesterday. On motion of D. G. Downey, the permission was granted.

Mr. Chairman and Members of the General Conference:

In the paper presented yesterday as from the Bishops and in connection with the brief statement concerning the debt of the Foreign Board, by an error on the part of the Secretary of the Board of Bishops there were included the words, "arising in large part from loss in exchange and advances to the fields." As this particular statement was not authorized or approved by the Bishops, the consent of the General Conference is asked that the phrase be omitted from the paper, as it shall be placed in the hands of the Committee ordered and as printed in The Daily Christian Advocate.

Frank Mason North, by common consent, moved that the Committee authorized yesterday in relation to the communication from the Board of Bishops be constituted of five Bishops, one member from each area, and one member from each general division of the Church outside of the United States in such manner that the majority of the Committee shall be composed of pastors and laymen who have no connection with the Boards of the Church, and that the area representatives be named by the areas.

Rolla V. Watt offered as an amendment that the Board of Bishops be authorized to appoint the entire Committee.

The amendment carried, and the motion as amended prevailed.

E. A. Dent moved that the Committee on General Conference Entertainment be instructed to move forward on the platform the chairman's table, and the other tables be placed farther back on the platform.

Arrangements.

A. S. Watkins offered, as an amendment that the elaborate trappings in front of the speaker's stand be removed.

R. J. Wade moved, as a substitute, that the whole matter be referred to the Commission on Entertainment for readjustment. The substitute was accepted, and became the action of the Conference.

The Order of the Day was called for.

Bishop Oldham addressed the Conference, and introduced Kah Ann Wee, M.A. (Ohio Wesleyan University), who was baptized by Bishop Oldham and was a member of his family for four years, who presented most forcefully the matter of the Bishop Bashford Memorial at Peking University, a picture of the memorial having been placed in front of the presiding officer's table.

"I write you this letter that you may be fully aware of the conditions as existing at Hobart. There is absolutely no difference between the two churches; they have fully agreed on uniting their forces and intend to build a modern church building. We had a most enthusiastic meeting last night; practically the entire membership of the two churches was present and all of one mind. They want to unite to build this new church and do it now. They have no desire of doing anything contrary to the laws of either of the churches. They are perfectly willing and are requesting the officers of the churches to take the leadership in the unification at this point, but they do earnestly pray that you will give the matter your immediate attention."

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY THE LAY MEMBERSHIP OF THE TWO METHODIST CHURCHES IN JOINT ASSEMBLY AT HOBART, OKLAHOMA, APRIL 30, 1924.

1. Be it Resolved, By the joint conference of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Church, South, of Hobart, Oklahoma, that it is the earnest desire of these two congregations that these two churches should unite and become one congregation and one church at an early date.

2. And to this end we respectfully request the Bishops, the Superintendent, the Presiding Elder, and other controlling officers of the two Churches to arrange terms by which these two congregations may be united in worship at once; the name of the church, the jurisdiction and the property rights to be determined and adjusted by the controlling officers of the two Churches under the laws of the Churches just as soon as it can be done.

3. That we realize that the work of the separate congregations is not progressing as it should; that we are not financially able to construct a modern church building without the assistance of each other; that one substantial modern structure should be built to house all Methodists in Hobart, and that it is this condition that prompts us in passing these resolutions.

4. That it is the sense of this joint conference that the membership of each congregation continue to pay its present pastor and church obligations to the end of the present Conference year, unless otherwise so instructed by the Bishops, after which time the united congregations desire to support only one pastor and one connectional interest.

5. We further recommend that, as soon as the congregations are united in worship, if either of the Bishops of our great Churches can arrange to take care of and place at some other point one of our pastors now located at Hobart, and if the change meets with the approval of the pastor selected to leave Hobart, that it will be agreeable with the lay membership for them to do so.

6. That the Chairman of the Board of Stewards of each church and the joint committee be and they are hereby authorized to duly sign and transmit a copy of these resolutions to the proper officers of our Churches.

NEWARK

G. G. Vogel offered the following resolution:

Christian Nurture
of Children.

Whereas, The Christian nurture of children is of the highest importance to the Church and the World; and,

Whereas, There are millions of children without any special religious instruction and training; and,

Whereas, In many instances the children of our Communion receive all their religious training in the Church School, Bible School or Sunday School, and too little of that; and,

Whereas, Insufficient emphasis has been given to church attendance and the blessing of acquiring the practice of worship; and,

Whereas, As long as we have childless pews and childless churches we shall suffer proportionately in congregational attendance; and,

Whereas, Methodism and Evangelical Christianity can never reach the high ideals of our faith and practice until Churches are thronged with boys and girls who shall learn the art of worship and the joy of communing with God; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we urge the leaders, both Ministerial and Laity, of our Church, the Boards of our Church dealing with child life, and especially the Board of Sunday Schools, that an increased effort be made to lead and train the children in the habit and joy of church attendance and public worship.

On motion of Wallace H. Finch, it was referred to the Committee on Sunday Schools.

NEW ENGLAND

F. C. Dunn offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

That a Committee of three be appointed by the chair to consider and report what, if anything, shall be done to bring into the record of this Conference the reports of D. D. Forsyth and S. Earl Taylor on the Joint Centenary Commission and of Edgar Blake on the Centenary Conservation Committee delivered to the General Conference of 1920, but unintentionally omitted from the permanent record.

NEW MEXICO

S. Alonzo Bright offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Whereas, The proprietorship of lands occupied by the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico has been and is now threatened by pending Government legislative action; and,

Whereas, These lands have been occupied by said Indians for untold generations, and were allotted to said Indians by a Spanish grant which later was approved by the United States Government; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we petition Congress to enact such legislation as shall guarantee to these Indians the protection of the proprietorship of their hereditary lands.

S. ALONZO BRIGHT,
FRANK H. H. ROBERTS.

NEW YORK

Ralph W. Sockman offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

The undersigned members and attendants of the Methodist Episcopal General Conference, having conferred on the present conditions in Bible Lands and our duty of cooperation in the work being done there by Near East Relief, respectfully petition General Conference consideration and action on the following resolution:

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church repeats its recommendation of Near East Relief for its continued work in saving a generation of orphans and training them educationally, vocationally, and morally for self-support, character, and future leadership.

This is a valuable interdenominational cooperation in international reconstruction and in practical missionary enterprise without sectarian propaganda.

The saving of the remnants of ancient Christian races and the establishing of contact between Eastern and Western Christianity is helping to prepare for the evangelization of neighboring religious groups.

We approve the continued cooperation of our pastors, Sunday School superintendents, editors, and other officials with Near East Relief.

We request the appointment by the Bishops of an Advisory Committee, on the request of Memorials from Maine and other Annual Conferences, to advise with Near East Relief relative to its future work and with other Committees appointed by the other communions.

ment are seeking to nullify it by increasing the alcoholic content of liquor which may legally be sold; and,

Whereas, Some of these anti-prohibition forces will, with this motive, request the platform committees of the Republican and Democratic parties to insert such nullifying planks in their platforms at their coming national conventions; and,

Whereas, The Spirit of Christian participation in politics demands that where the enemies of the home, of childhood, and of people's welfare go, there should go also those who represent the Christian forces of the nation; therefore,

Resolved, That the Board of Bishops be requested to appoint two Committees, to consist of five members each, one of which committees shall visit the Platform Committee of the Republican Party at the coming national convention of that party to be held in Cleveland, and one of which shall visit the Platform Committee of the Democratic Party at the coming national convention of that party to be held in New York, and protest, upon behalf of the Christian citizenship of the nation, represented by the Methodist Episcopal Church, against the insertion in the platform of either party of any plank upon the prohibition question which does not pledge allegiance in spirit and practice to the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act.

On motion of Edward S. Weaver, the resolution was referred to the Committee on Temperance, Prohibition, and Public Morals.

NEW YORK EAST

W. J. Thompson offered the following, which, on his motion, was referred to the Committee on Education:

Courses of Study Examinations.

Whereas, The Methodist Episcopal Church, coveting an educated ministry, requires a candidate to pursue a prescribed course of study extending through four years and his examinations thereupon largely determine his admission into the ministry; and,

Whereas, Preparation of questions and grading the examination papers by a central board of skilled examiners would incite candidates to increased studiousness, harvest a richer intellectual fruition, and make for a uniform advanced standard which would be prized throughout the Church; be it

Resolved, That the General Conference Commission on Courses of Study be directed to render this service to Conference Boards of Examiners requesting it.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, assembled in quadrennial session at Springfield, Massachusetts, gratefully remembering and recording the eminent services rendered to our Church by Bishop John Edward Robinson of Southern Asia, who was called from his labors to his eternal reward during the past quadrennium, takes this occasion to send to Mrs. Robinson, at Bangalore, India, a message of deep sympathy and loving greetings. The Church rejoices in the long and distinguished career of Bishop Robinson, well knowing that in the memory of his life and work his own family find a great comfort and take a just pride, and prays that the blessing and benediction of our heavenly Father may rest in rich measure on Mrs. Robinson and her family.

Letter to Mrs. Warren G.
Harding.

Mrs. Warren G. Harding, Washington, D. C.

DEAR MRS. HARDING:

The General Conference, in session at Springfield, Massachusetts, on May 9, commissioned me to acknowledge your gracious message presented by President A. E. Smith and to make reply to the same.

The Conference records its ever-deepening gratitude for the valued services rendered by President Harding to our own country and to the world. It especially rejoices in that wise far-seeing statesmanship which prompted his calling of the Council on the Limitation of Armaments and his splendid advocacy of an International Court for World Peace. We have faith to believe that these events, inspired by his leadership, mean the beginning of a new era in human progress and that already they are contributing to the fulfillment of that earnest wish of President Harding, who, speaking of war upon a notable occasion, proclaimed to a listening world, "It must not happen again." "It must not happen again."

Your fellow Methodists beg to assure you that oftentimes you have been and are held in their tender, prayerful sympathy and love. They share with you the sense of a deep real sorrow in the death of your honored and greatly beloved husband, and earnestly pray that there may come to you now and abide with you ever a deepening fellowship with "the Father of Mercies and the God of all Comfort."

With affectionate personal regard and in behalf of the General Conference, I beg to remain,

Faithfully and sincerely yours,

WILLIAM F. ANDERSON.

On motion of C. O. Holmes, the amendment of R. V. Watt was laid on the table.

D. G. Downey moved that the consideration of the report be deferred until it has been printed in The Daily Christian Advocate. The motion prevailed.

Conference call resumed.

NEW YORK EAST

E. A. Dent presented the following resolution and, on his motion, it was referred to the Board of Bishops:

Whereas, The Episcopal Address summons us to match our "engineery" with a "maximum of spiritual energy," and warns us against going "to our homes without giving to the Church a spiritual program";

Whereas, The sessions of this Conference have been marked by deepening spirituality and prayerfulness, indicated by the very large attendance of the delegates in the period assigned to the devotions, which have been very helpful to the delegates and thousands who have listened in from coast to coast:

Whereas, A thrilling experience came to John Wesley on Wednesday night, May 24, 1738, in that little gathering in Aldersgate Street, London, when, he declares, his "heart was strangely warmed" while he was listening to one reading Luther's Preface to the Epistle to the Romans, "describing the change God works in the heart through faith in Christ." Wesley records that he "was saved from the law of sin and death," for "an assurance was given me that Christ had taken away my sins, even mine," transforming him from a servile subject of the law into a sincere, filial son of the gospel. This wonderful experience Wesley fixes as "the third beginning of Methodism."

Resolved, That the Bishops be requested to arrange for a Conference celebration of the 1924 anniversary of Wesley's spiritual birthday on Saturday, May 24, at the devotional hour.

NORTH CAROLINA

Robert G. Morris presented the following, and moved its adoption:

Dyer
Anti-Lynching
Bill.

Whereas, In the Episcopal Address of May 4, 1924, page 31, paragraph on "Observance of Law," the Bishops have openly denounced lynching; and,

Whereas, In the Discipline, page 33, Article 23, paragraph 23, we affirm our belief in Constitutional Government; and,

Whereas, The Constitution of the United States is opposed to lynching; and,

Whereas, The Methodist Episcopal Church has through the Federal Government opposed whisky; and,

Whereas, Lynching is destructive to our democratic form of Government; and,

Whereas, There is now a bill before Congress, known as the Dyer Anti-Lynching Bill; be it

Resolved, That we, the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church in General Conference assembled, request our Board of Bishops to appoint a Special Committee of Five, two of whom shall be Bishops, to study the Dyer Anti-Lynching Bill and send a definite communication to the President of the United States, the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, expressing the attitude of the Methodist Episcopal Church on this bill.

MAY 10
TENTH DAY.
Morning.

E. Stanley Jones presented the following resolution, which was adopted:

Whereas, The problems that grow out of race are the most acute and potentially the most dangerous of existing world problems; and,

Whereas, Jesus Christ our Master stands for the oneness of our humanity and the equal worth of every human soul, regardless of race, birth, or color; and,

Whereas, Christianity in its beginning presented to the world "the blinding vision of one race, one color, and one soul in Humanity," and had this vision and call been followed in its entirety and high challenge we would have to-day a world of brotherhood instead of a world divided into suspicious and warring racial groups; and,

Whereas, The most outstanding obstacles to the coming of the kingdom of God among the nations of the earth are these national and racial arrogancies; and,

Whereas, The time has come for Christianity to assert its mind in no uncertain way and to bring to bear the pressure of its spirit in no feeble manner in the solution of this problem; and,

Whereas, The democracy for which the United States of America stands and the Christianity which we profess, both alike demand a uniform and fair treatment for all peoples regardless of race; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That we repudiate as unchristian and untrue the idea that certain races are born to inherent and fixed superiority and rulership, while others are born to inherent and fixed inferiority and subordination. We stand for the life of open opportunity for all.

2. That while we note with gratitude their decreasing frequency, we nevertheless record our deep sense of humiliation before God and man that the lynchings of Negroes, under whatsoever provocation, could take place within our land of democracy and in communities in which there are Christian churches.

3. That "we deplore as unpatriotic and unchristian movements, policies, and programs in many sections that discriminate against and humiliate aliens, merely as aliens, or as aliens ineligible to naturalization, and that single out certain races and religious groups for discriminatory and unfriendly treatment." We urge a Federal law raising the standards for admission into the United States, applying them to all peoples alike, and granting the privilege of citizenship to all persons thus admitted and lawfully residing in the United States who duly qualify regardless of their race, color, or nationality.

International Peace.

Whereas, The Australasian fraternal delegate to this body, Mr. W. P. Resolved, That our Committee on the State of the Church be directed to bring in a special report touching this matter.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA

J. B. Hingeley presented the following resolution, which, on his motion, was adopted:

Appreciation
of
Mrs. Geo. O.
Robinson.

Whereas, Among the many methods by which loyal laymen have manifested their interest in the veteran preachers, a notable Methodist woman, Mrs. George O. Robinson of Pasadena, has given to the Board of Conference Claimants a fine property in the best part of that city, to be developed into a residence section to be occupied by homes of retired ministers; and,

Whereas, The method by which the holy purpose of this gracious daughter of the parsonage shall be accomplished is now receiving careful attention; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the thanks of the General Conference be and are hereby extended to Mrs. Robinson for her kindly gift with the hope that her purpose may be speedily accomplished.

J. C. Craig presented the following paper:

Protest Against Use
of Cigarettes.

Whereas, The use of cigarettes by almost all classes and ages has spread with alarming rapidity, affecting particularly the young life of our country; and,

Whereas, Medical authorities of the highest rank are agreed as to the harmful physical effects of this pernicious habit, a conviction which is indorsed by leading Athletic Directors throughout the land; and,

Whereas, Conscientious educators in our highest institutions of learning, as well as teachers in our public schools, unanimously corroborate the claim that the use of cigarettes does weaken the intellectual ability of students addicted to this habit; and,

Whereas, The general public is constantly subjected to annoyance and physical discomfort on account of the indifference and discourtesy of those who persist in poisoning the atmosphere of public places with the vile fumes of this obnoxious weed; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church register its hearty disapproval of the sale and use of cigarettes, and hereby petitions for legislation in every State of the United States that will help to abate this nuisance; and,

Resolved, That we protest against the employment on the faculties of any of our denominational educational institutions of professors addicted to the use of cigarettes.

is inadequate in the information which it furnishes concerning the religious life and Church activities of the individual members; and,

Whereas, The system now used in transferring members from one charge to another, likewise conveys no information concerning the religious activities of the member or members transferred, and because of such lack of information, in many cases the usefulness of capable members is lost to the Church in their transfer; therefore, in order to have a more comprehensive permanent record, and to better conserve the working strength of our members as they may be transferred from one charge to another; be it

Resolved, That we instruct The Book Concern to publish a uniform system of membership record that will give a survey of the varied activities that are set out in the general program of the Church to-day; and, be it further

Resolved, That a duplicate copy of the permanent record be attached to the letter of transfer, so that the pastor receiving the transfer may have the immediate advantage of the information such a record conveys.

Resolved, That this General Conference extend to them our congratulations and our appreciation of their wise leadership in the seven consecutive General Conferences, and that we wish them many happy returns.

The call of the Conferences was resumed.

PHILADELPHIA

On motion of G. W. Henson, the following paper was adopted:

Outlawing War.

Whereas, The platforms of the two great political parties of the United States are now being tentatively prepared by National leaders of each political party, and it is VITALLY IMPORTANT to the Christians of our nation both parties should contain a declaration favoring the OUTLAWING OF WAR by the United States through wise, safe, international agreement, which should be entered into before the United States government can wisely further reduce its military or naval means of defense; and,

Whereas, Every member of the National Committees of both such parties has been notified that a Memorial of the OUTLAWING OF WAR would be considered by this General Conference; and,

Whereas, The Foreign Relations Committee of the United States Senate is now considering the question of adherence to the Permanent Court of International Justice, or the creation of a New Court at The Hague, and, also, the means to be adopted by the United States of America, to outlaw war; and,

Whereas, A decision may be reached any day and all possible Christian influence should be brought to bear to promptly secure action which will be worthy of Christian America; and,

Whereas, A memorial which is INTENSELY CHRISTIAN, and INTENSELY PRACTICAL, and which will ALMOST SURELY SECURE THE DESIRED RESULTS, with relation to the action of the two National political parties, and the United States Senate, is now pending before this Conference, a copy of which has been in the hands of every member of this Conference for more than a week; and,

Whereas, It is believed to be of the UTMOST IMPORTANCE TO METHODISTS, AND ALL CHRISTIANS, that this SUPREME INFLUENCE OF OUR CHURCH be used, at this CRUCIAL MOMENT, to cause the OUTLAWING OF WAR by Christian America; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on the State of the Church be, and they are, hereby requested, to report to this General Conference on or before May 16 on the Memorial of THE METHODIST MEN COMMITTEE OF ONE HUNDRED, of Philadelphia, relating to the OUTLAWING OF WAR.

"It is hereby made the duty of each Bishop in the area to which he is assigned to address, in writing, each person nominated in any State, within such area, by any political party, for the office of United States Senator, and inquire of him whether, if elected, he will actively support the outlawry of war, by international agreement, to which all nations may be invited to accede. It is further made the duty of the Bishop, to communicate, in writing, the result of his inquiries, to each District Superintendent residing within the State, in which the candidates so nominated, are seeking election to the Senatorship. It shall thereupon become the duty of the District Superintendents, so informed, to communicate such information to every minister holding a charge within his supervision.

"It is hereby made the duty of the District Superintendent, in the Congressional District within which he resides, to address in writing each person nominated in the said District, by any political party, for the office of Representative in Congress, and inquire of him, whether if elected, he will actively support the outlawry of war, by international agreement, to which all nations may be invited to accede.

"It is further made the duty of each District Superintendent to communicate to each Pastor, subject to his supervision, the result of the inquiries made by himself, together with the result of the inquiry made by the Bishop, in the matters above stated.

"It is further made the duty of each minister, so informed by his District Superintendent, to make public announcement of the information so received, to his congregation, both at the morning and evening service in his church, at least two weeks prior to the day fixed for election of United States Senators and Representatives in Congress, and that it favors, without regard to party, only candidates who support that policy, and that it opposes the election of those who do not."

Whereas, All permanent government must be conditioned on stable moral foundations; and,

Laymen
in Annual Conferences.

In a number of Annual Conferences laymen elected in advance to represent the several charges of the Conference, are regularly seated with the privilege of debate, but without the right to vote. Where this arrangement exists it is by vote of the Annual Conference. Does such a plan violate any provision of the Discipline, constitutional or otherwise, and if so, in what respect? If not, is there any other legal reason why an Annual Conference may not adopt such a plan?

The question was referred to the Committee on Judiciary for decision.

Whereas, Many questions before Congress each year vitally affecting the social and moral welfare of millions of people and therefore of prime interest to the churches are not given wide publicity by the secular press.

Whereas, The Methodist Episcopal Church, because of its large constituency, its unmeasured sacrifice and service in developing, and in maintaining this government, and its concern in all national and international questions affecting the welfare of mankind; and,

Whereas, The National Government is the principal and most far-reaching agency through which the ideals and benefits of Christianity may be expressed in social, industrial, international and other fields; and,

Whereas, The recently established National Methodist Press has already proven so valuable in bringing information to our people relative to major subjects of legislation, has revealed certain un-American forces at work in the halls of Congress and has tended to awaken a more active interest on the part of our Christian people in civic affairs; therefore, be it

National Methodist

Barratt's
Chapel.

Whereas, Barratt's Chapel, in Kent County, State of Delaware, built about 1780, is still standing; and,

Whereas, This old house of worship is famous in the annals of American Methodism as the first meeting place of Coke and Asbury, after the former had landed on our shores commissioned by Mr. Wesley to organize an Episcopal Church in this country; and,

Whereas, It was from this spot that Freeborn Garrettson went forth "like an arrow" summoning the preachers to a Conference at Baltimore, where they assembled on December 24, 1784, and organized the Methodist Episcopal Church; and,

Whereas, While many houses and sites connected with the planting of Methodism in this new world have been displaced or lost, this one is preserved substantially as it was in the beginning, having the same interior appointments, and the identical pulpit bench on which Coke and Asbury sat together; and,

Whereas, The stately old structure, standing amid a grove of towering oaks, keeps silent and solemn vigil over a sacred past; and,

Whereas, Tourists from every section of the nation, and now from almost every part of the world, make long direct trips, or go far out of their way to stand with uncovered heads before its crude altar, moved by memories of our Fathers and the God who so gloriously answered them by fire; and,

Whereas, Such a precious legacy should not be permitted to decay; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church convened at Springfield, Massachusetts, in May, 1924,

1. That Barratt's Chapel is the common heritage of all Methodist Episcopalians.

2. That it ought to be endowed and preserved; and,

Washington, D. C., May 13, 1924.

Methodist General Conference, Care Bishop William F. McDowell, Springfield, Mass.

In answer to telephone inquiry will say that Nicholas Murray Butler does not represent the ideals of the National Education Association in attacks on prohibition, and is not an accepted spokesman of the association or profession on matters pertaining to the common schools. He recently charged the public schools with the responsibility of the lawlessness of the country, which has greatly angered teachers and school authorities.

I rise to a question of privilege as a delegate from the West China Conference, and in behalf of all the delegates from China and of the entire General Conference.

We were summoned this morning to the room of my fellow delegate, Mr. Roger Rahn, a layman from West China. Mr. Rahn had been ill for several weeks, though he insisted on attending the sessions of the General Conference and Committees each day. He was undergoing intense mental and spiritual struggles. He has been under the care of physicians while here at Springfield. They had not felt that his illness was incurable, but mental depression greatly exaggerated his physical condition. He was suffering from acute melancholia with persistent insomnia, and some time before eight o'clock this morning he took his own life. The funeral services will be held this afternoon at five o'clock at the undertaker's chapel opposite Saint Paul's Universalist Church; Bishops Birney and Keeney will conduct the services.

Mr. Rahn had not had a well day since leaving China; the trip across the Pacific was a nightmare of seasickness. Once in America, the Chinese longing for home and loved ones ate at his heart. He spoke oftentimes of the surging conditions in his own Szechuan province, and his desire to return to give his life for his country. He looked frantically each day for home letters which did not come. His father heart yearned for news of his two lovely children and of his wife, a beautiful woman, a product of our Christian schools. He would call for mail, and upon being told that there was none, would earnestly inquire as to when the next delivery might be expected, not able to realize the time required and the delays in postal service incident to his great distance from home. He was gripped by the fear that he would never see his homeland and loved ones again. This heart sickness proved too strong for him.

Mr. Rahn belonged to the hopeful group of young men of modern education in China. He came into our Christian schools as a little boy. Against serious opposition in his home, he early gave his heart to Christ. His father is a merchant in the city of An Yoh in West China. It was months before Roger obtained the consent of his father to join the church. Ere long Roger had led both father and mother to the Christ whom he had found. Mr. Rahn was a graduate both of our Chungking High School and the Christian Union University at Chengtu. At the time of his election to the General Conference he was a teacher in the high school.

He had purposed to prepare himself further for work in industrial chemistry. On his way to this General Conference, however, he decided either to teach in one of our Christian schools or to enter some other form of Christian service.

A seat is vacant to-day; a brother has left us. He was a bewildered stranger in a strange land; yet he was a brother in fellowship, urging his way out in the wonder world of modern education. He was a courageous soul, daring to break the restraint of ancient customs and superstitions and seeking to lead his family and his fellow race-men with him toward the light. He was swept away in a period of physical depression and unusual strain, but the spirit which urged him on the Jesus-way which he traveled up to the hour of his confusion was that which alone shall lead China in this momentous period of her struggle for racial and personal salvation.

I move you, Mr. Chairman, that this General Conference records expression of its sympathy with the family of Roger Rahn in this hour of their deep sorrow; and,

Washington, D. C.

My dear Reverend Withrow:

You may be sure that I am deeply interested to know that you are in attendance at the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. I shall be pleased to have you convey my sincere greetings to the faithful delegates, who are carrying on the work of a great Church organization, and, through it, reaching the homes and hearts of thousands of our citizens. People are realizing more and more, the need of the everyday Christian faith, which is such a vital element in preparing us for a larger service to our fellow-men; and, after all, I am quite convinced that now, more than ever before, all of us truly believe the notable words of Saint Paul in his letter to the Corinthians, when he warned us that our exhaustive knowledge and accomplishments would count for naught if we had not charity—a permanent charity—for all peoples.

I think I may safely say that the strongest pillars of our lives are comprised of the Church, the home, and the school; and that the actual work which we perform in our brief stay here is influenced by those three institutions. As I had occasion to tell an audience which I addressed last winter, we need more of the old-fashioned religion, which makes itself felt through those three factors and thus fits us for our daily contacts with our fellow beings.

Secretary of

MAY 17
SEVENTEENTH DAY.
Morning.

As Secretary of the United States Department of Labor, it has been my purpose to see that the Christian spirit of Justice should be brought to the toiling men and women of our country; for there is no reason why a government should not practice that which it sponsors and sustains; and we truly know that our Government was conceived in a spirit of Christian service.

I feel that we have demonstrated this desire by the accomplishments of the official commission which was sent to the Virgin Islands last February, to whose inhabitants we offered our aid and comfort, and the assurance that we were interested in their welfare and their future; and I feel that, each day, the working men and women, who are contributing so much to our progress as a nation, know that this spirit of service pervades every institution of our Government.

In the furtherance of this thought, I ask the sincere cooperation of your Conference, to which I hereby tender my heartiest congratulations and my wishes for success.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) JAMES J. DAVIS, Secretary of Labor.

Realizing that the action of this General Conference in conformity to the laws of our Church will place our beloved Bishop William Burt in a changed relationship, which will take him from the Buffalo Area as our chief Pastor and Leader, we, his friends in the Buffalo Area, desire him to know of our continued friendship, affection, and abiding love.

We desire to express our gratitude for his wise and godly administration and organizing skill which has guided and quickened all the philanthropic and educational institutions; for his brave and unflinching championship of Christian liberty and Christian duty; for his broad world vision and daring dreams of Kingdom Conquest which have unlocked deep fountains of missionary zeal and vision; for his self-forgetting and self-denying service in the interests of his fellows; for his tireless energy which has taken him into every nook and corner of our vast Area in personal visitation; for his sagacious counsel and consistent example; for his great heart of love for his Master and for humanity which has given us a spiritual uplift; for the benediction of a loving heart and generous hand; and for the many other ministrations for which he has made us debtors in his high office as a Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church and as a loyal and humble servant of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

In bidding him adieu, we pray that it may be God's good pleasure to grant him many years of happy usefulness, with the preservation of joyous experience in new adventures in the service of Christ's kingdom upon earth.

J. M. Melear, representing the Chattanooga Area, presented the following paper:

When this General Conference closes, Frank M. Bristol will have completed his career as an effective Bishop. He will terminate his administration of eight years as resident Bishop of the Chattanooga Area. He leaves his mark upon world-wide Methodism. One of the peerless preachers of our denomination, a pastor in prominent pulpits, six times a delegate to the General Conference, resident Bishop in South America for four years, and for twelve years in the United States, his long record is seldom equaled. He closes it with clean hands.

Appreciation of Bishop Bristol.

He now passes to the retired relation, but the memory of his thrilling messages and inspiring life will forever remain as a heritage of the Church.

We desire to express our love for him and likewise for Mrs. Bristol, whose illness prevents her from being with us at this eventful hour. A wise counselor, a faithful friend, a devoted worker, she has touched, like an angel of light, the lives of rich and poor. Therefore, be it

W. W. King, representing the Saint Louis Area, presented the following paper:

Appreciation
Bishop Quayle.

The name of Bishop William Alfred Quayle is known and honored and loved by Methodists throughout the world. In his own area, over which he has presided for the past two quadrenniums, his name is a household word. It is in this area or very near to it that he was born, grew to manhood, received his education, and entered the ministry. It was a joy to us when he came to be our Bishop, and his presence with us in this relationship has been an increasing inspiration. We loved him beyond our ability to properly express, and the path to his door so long as God will permit him to live will be constantly traveled by those of us who have served with him in the work of God and his Church. He is a great preacher, a wise and kindly administrator, a true lover of the Church, and a friend of all. The Methodist Church has had few greater men, or men more widely known throughout its borders.

He is a man of the broadest sympathies, especially to the lowly. The representatives of the Negro Conferences of the area asked permission to present their own separate appreciation:

"On behalf, not only of the Negro Membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but of the entire Negro Race, we beg to record the following expression of appreciation on the passing of Bishop William A. Quayle from the active ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church into the retired relation.

"Bishop Quayle has been to us a great and beloved friend. He was not our friend from any selfish motive. He did not need us, but we needed him, and he gave himself to us and to our cause without stint. When our cause needed a friend at the bar of public opinion, we could count upon him to speak out on the platform and through the press in our behalf.

"When the horrible East Saint Louis race riot occurred, Bishop Quayle spoke out on 'Validating American Citizenship.' It was an open and direct appeal through the press of the City of Saint Louis to the people of America for justice and fair play for the Negro. The appeal was effective."

He was our good angel, and we desire to assure him of the love and sympathy and progress of this lowly race to whom he meant so much.

Resolved, That the Saint Louis Area express to Bishop Quayle our great sorrow, our sense of personal loss and loneliness over the necessity for his retirement from his active work of the Episcopacy, and assure him that our thought and prayers will be with him every day.

(Signed) WILLIAM WIRT KING and the other members of the Saint Louis Area.

The paper was adopted by a rising vote.

SEVENTEENTH DAY.
Morning.

Whereas, Because of seriously impaired health, Bishop Homer C. Stuntz has been moved to ask for the retired relation; therefore, be it Resolved, 1. That we express our sincere grief at the lot that has befallen our beloved brother and our heartfelt sympathy with him and his dear wife and children.

Appreciation
of
Bishop Stuntz.

2. That on the eve of his retirement we desire to place on record our high appreciation of the sterling qualities of manhood which have ever characterized him. We rejoice this morning in the high sacrificial service he has been able to render for Christ and his Church. He, even more than the famous Francis Asbury, has been a prophet of the long trail. His ministry included pastoral service in lovely Iowa, missionary service in many-peopled India and in the fascinating Philippine Islands. Then successively he was Field Secretary and First Assistant Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions. In 1912, on the first ballot, he was elected to the episcopacy and has given twelve years of highly distinguished service in this place of great responsibility.

God had richly endowed Homer C. Stuntz. Only a powerfully built body could have stood the terrific strain his manifold labors made upon him. He possessed mental capacities of extraordinary range. He was a confirmed Kiplingite, having committed much of that master to memory. Likewise he was a profound and loving student of Robert Browning. He was exceedingly apt in quotation. He was absolutely unique, however, when he ranged in the realm of modern world affairs. His knowledge of modern governments and the undercurrents which dominate them both in the Orient and in Latin America, and his wonderful ability to make a lucid popular statement of the same, placed Bishop Stuntz in a class all by himself.

All his life long the Bishop has been a persistent student of the Word of God and few men of his generation have committed so much of it to heart. His preaching was constantly reinforced by inspired use of the Sword of the Spirit. Equally notable was his familiarity with and expert use of the great hymns of the Church. This greatly enriched his own personal spiritual life and added much to the effectiveness of his ministry. Coupled with this was his very marked prayer life. Even as a circuit preacher in Iowa, he was remarkable for the depth, richness, and upward reach of his prayers. This characteristic grew with the years and his increasing responsibilities. God was very near and Bishop Stuntz naturally turned to him in consultation.

In the truest sense of the word he has been a soul-winning evangelist. He believed not only that the blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin, but that every soul in the world needs the cleansing stream which flows from Calvary. He has been a Christian imperialist of the highest order, a mighty protagonist of militant missions. The Christ of Homer Clyde Stuntz is a forward-looking Christ. With eager expectation he looked forward to the steady extension of Christ's Kingdom until that day when every knee shall bow and every tongue shall confess the Saviourhood of Jesus.

In all the forty years of his ministry he was a great lover of his Lord, a great lover of his brothers in the ministry and of all Christians, and a great lover of all individuals and races who do not have saving knowledge of our Crucified but Risen Lord.

We deeply regret the necessity which compels Bishop Stuntz to ask for the retired relation. With loving reluctance we yield to his request. In doing so we desire that this General Conference adopt this minute and order that it be printed in the General Conference Journal.

The paper was adopted by a rising vote.

G. W. Henson presented the following paper, which was adopted by a rising vote:

On motion of R. J. Wade, the following rules, governing the elections in the General Conference, were adopted:

Rules Governing Elections.

The elections shall be by ballot. Six sets of tellers shall be appointed by the Bishops, each consisting of one from each General Conference District, and one at large. Each set may carry forward its work in the absence of the other, but tellers who may be out of the Conference engaged in counting the votes, and the Judiciary Committee, if in session, may deposit their ballots in the presence of four tellers and a Conference Secretary, in case a ballot is taken by the body during their absence. In taking a ballot the following order shall be observed:

First. All persons not entitled to seats shall retire from within the bar of the Conference.

Second. While the vote is being taken, all delegates shall stand in their places.

Third. The tellers shall collect the ballots, beginning at the front row and the twelfth row. Each delegate shall resume his seat as soon as he shall have voted.

Fourth. In case there are more or less names on a ballot than the number to be elected, the ballot shall be reported defective.

MAY 19
NINETEENTH
DAY.
Morning.

Fifth. It shall require a majority of all votes cast to elect. In case more than the number to be elected shall receive the number of votes required to elect, those highest on the list in their order shall be declared elected. But in the election of Bishops a majority constituting two thirds of all the votes cast and counted shall be required to constitute an election.

Sixth. The tellers shall pour all the ballots into one pile, but may canvass the votes from as many piles as will suit their convenience.

Seventh. On completion of the counting of any ballot, the ballots shall be placed in an envelope sealed, marked as to date, form and number of ballot, and held in care of the Secretary until voting under that form is completed.

Eighth. Ballots shall bear Christian names, or the initials as well as the surnames of the persons voted for. In any case of doubt on the part of the Secretary and tellers, the ballot or ballots shall be submitted to the Conference.

Ninth. No teller or Secretary shall give information in regard to the result of a ballot, until the same shall be announced by the presiding officer.

Officers to be elected shall be divided into six groups, namely:

(1) General Superintendents; (2) Publishing Agents; (3) Corresponding Secretaries; (4) Editors; and the Secretary of the General Conference shall provide ballots.

No nominations shall be made for the office of Bishop. When nominations are in order for any office, the Chair shall so announce and request that nominations shall be sent to the Secretary's table in writing; and after all nominations have been received the Secretary shall read the list in alphabetical order, and then in reverse alphabetical order. When the Secretary reads the last nomination the list of nominations shall be closed. This does not preclude the right of any member to vote for any person not publicly nominated.

Elections shall be conducted under the direction of the Secretary and the ballots reported to him.

Ray Allen moved that the action of the Conference on Saturday, making the number of General Superintendents to be elected five, be reconsidered.

tendents.

D. G. Downey moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table. It was not laid on the table.

H. L. Jacobs raised the point of order that the question by the Chair, asking the speaker whether he was for or against the motion, was limited to debates on reports of Standing Committees and Special Committees. The Chair ruled that the present debate was on the report of a Standing Committee, and that therefore the point of order was not well taken.

H. S. Harriss called for the previous question, and it was ordered.

By a count vote of 452 to 367 the motion to reconsider prevailed.

Ray Allen moved that the word "three" be substituted for the word "five" in the report made by D. G. Downey on Saturday.

F. M. Stephenson's call for a vote by Orders was not sustained.

On motion of T. K. Gale, the previous question was ordered.

J. I. Bartholomew raised the point of order that since the motion to elect five Bishops was not a part of the Report of the Committee on Episcopacy, D. G. Downey, as Chairman of the Committee, was not entitled to speak as such. The Chair ruled that Doctor Downey's motion was a part of the report, since it was introduced for the purpose of perfecting the report.

The appeal of Ray Allen from the decision of the Chair was not sustained.

W. H. Van Benschoten raised the point of order that the Chair, having ruled that Doctor Downey has the right to speak and the ruling of the Chair having been sustained by an appeal to the Conference, nothing is in order but to hear Doctor Downey.

D. G. Downey addressed the Conference in support of the report of the Committee.

The amendment of Ray Allen prevailed by a count vote of 436 to 376.

On motion of W. W. Wiant the following paper was adopted:

On the first day of the General Conference it became our duty to ask that Mrs. M. Josie Nelson, member of the Lay Delegation from North Indiana Conference, be excused from attending the sessions on account of illness.

With saddened hearts this morning we announce her death, which took place at her late home in Union City, Indiana, May 14.

Mrs. Nelson was the efficient editor of the Pythian Guest of Indiana and has recently returned from a world tour, on which she had visited our missions and in a most effective and charming manner had informed her large constituency of readers of the absolute needs of the Gospel of Christ for world enlightenment and redemption.

Therefore, having been a member of this great body and a loyal supporter of our beloved Church in all its activities, be it

Resolved, That we express to her family our sincere sorrow at her going and assure them of our sympathy and prayers as they pass together through "the valley of the shadow of death." Be it further

Resolved, That we ask the Secretary to communicate these sentiments to the bereaved family.

The following cablegram was read to the Conference by Alfredo Tagliatalata:

Rome, May 17, 1924.

For your twenty-five years of intense and blessed work that you accomplished with an apostolic spirit that never tired, we Methodists of Italy, still building on the foundation laid by you, express to you our fervent and undying gratitude.

Messages of Sympathy
Because of the Death of Representatives on Unification Commission.

Whereas, Since the final meeting of the Joint Commission on Unification, without warning Almighty God in his infinite wisdom has called from earth to his reward that eminent educator, persuasive public speaker, persistent advocate of Unification, noble Christian, and great leader in Southern Methodism, Dr. Paul H. Linn, and again within a few days, with but little more warning God saw fit to draft another member of our Southern brothers of this Commission, a man equally favorable to Unification, benefactor, philanthropist, and leading layman, William H. Stockham; and,

Whereas, As members of the Joint Commission on Unification their counsel, wisdom, Christian manners, and devotion to union were influential factors in shaping and perfecting the articles submitted and so overwhelmingly adopted by this Conference; and,

Whereas, It was evident to those associating with them that they longingly looked forward to the time when they personally could behold this union consummated; and,

Whereas, Their wisdom, tact, and vision of world Christianity would have made them of great influence for union in their own Church at present and of even more influence in giving smoothness and perfection to its working hereafter; be it therefore

Resolved, That we deplore the untimely taking away of these beloved brothers at a time in life when their services seemed so much needed at present and would have been of inestimable value to a united Church of the future, and therefore must be taken as a distinct loss to us now; be it further

Resolved, That we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved families of our deceased brothers, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent by the Secretary of this Conference to their families and also to each member of the Commission on Unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Recess.

The Conference went into recess.

The Conference reconvened at 10:55, Bishop Blake in the chair.

Hymn 19, beginning, "Come, thou Fount of every blessing," was sung.

Bishop Wilson, for the Committee of Thirteen on Peace, presented R. W. Sockman, who read the report of the Committee as follows:

Report of Special Committee
on Peace.

Millions of our fellow men have died heroically in "a war to end war." What they undertook we must finish by methods of peace. War is not inevitable. It is the supreme enemy of mankind. Its futility is beyond question. Its continuance is the suicide of civilization. We are determined to outlaw the whole war system.

The patriotism of the Methodist Episcopal Church has never been challenged. Neither our motives nor our loyalty must be impugned when we insist on the fulfillment of pledges made to the dead and assert our Christian ideals for the living. Governments which ignore the Christian conscience of man in time of peace cannot justly claim the lives of men in time of war. Secret diplomacy and political partisanship must not draw men into the dilemma of deciding between support of country and loyalty to Christ.

The world is now open to a crusade for peace. War-weary nations everywhere are eagerly waiting. America must lead the way. Our nation and our Church can do now what we may never be able to do again.

We set ourselves to create the will to peace. We recommend that a prayer for peace be prepared and used at every communion service. Through its educational program, our Church must mold the present youth of all races into a peace-loving generation. We shall launch an aggressive campaign to teach the nature, causes and consequences of war. The glorification of war must end.

We set ourselves to create the conditions for peace. Selfish nationalism, economic imperialism, and militarism must cease. The establishment of the principle that conscription of wealth and labor must be the counterpart of any future conscription of human life will be a powerful deterrent against war. As great odium must be put upon the war profiteer as was ever put upon the slacker. The protection of special privileges secured by investors in foreign lands has too often imperiled the peace of nations. This source of danger must be prevented. The rights of the smallest nation must be held as sacred as those of the strongest. We hold the cause of peace dearer than party allegiance, and we shall tolerate no dilatory or evasive attitude on the part of those who represent us.

We set ourselves to create organization for peace. Grateful to our government for its leadership in the movement toward reduction of armaments and the promotion of tribunals for international arbitration, we insist upon a more decided and aggressive policy in these directions. We urge our President to summon another Conference of the Nations for the more drastic reduction of armaments. We demand the immediate entrance of the United States into the Permanent Court of International Justice. The participation of the United States in a League of Nations will receive our active support. We shall elect men to public office pledged to secure these ends. The ballot and other direct processes of democracy must now be employed in securing a warless world.

World Christianity is enlisting in the campaign for peace. We seek alliance with all the forces which make for the principles here advocated. We, therefore, propose that our Church now assume its responsibility by appointing at this General Conference a commission of twenty-five members, composed of five bishops, ten ministers, and ten laymen, authorized and instructed to call a conference of the religious forces of the world to consider the best plans and methods for making the impact of united Christendom against the evils we deplore. The principles of brotherhood are so plainly challenged. The progress of the kingdom of Jesus Christ is clearly at stake. The issues are so momentous, the opportunity for leadership is so great that we here and now call upon all people to avoid divisive and fruitless discussions and unite their energies in this great crusade for a war-free world. To this sublime end we dedicate ourselves, and for its accomplishment we invoke the blessing of Almighty God.

Whereas, We have heard with interest that our Methodist brethren in Ireland are planning a large program of church building and wider effort to meet the needs of the hour, and that included in this program is the erection of a memorial church to Philip Embury and Barbara Heck, who planted the seeds of Methodism in this land; and,

Whereas, The closest relationships have ever since existed between Irish and American Methodism, and Irish Methodism has continued to contribute of its best sons and daughters both to the ministry and membership of our Church.

HYMN

The church's one foundation
Is Jesus Christ her Lord;
She is his new creation
By water and the word:
From heaven he came and sought her
To be his holy bride;
With his own blood he bought her,
And for her life he died.

Elect from every nation,
Yet one o'er all the earth,
Her charter of salvation,
One Lord, one faith, one birth;
One holy name she blesses,
Partakes one holy food,
And to one hope she presses,
With every grace endued.

'Mid toil and tribulation,
And tumult of her war,
She waits the consummation
Of peace for evermore;
Till, with the vision glorious,
Her longing eyes are blest,
And the great church victorious
Shall be the church at rest.

VENI, CREATOR SPIRITUS

Come, Holy Ghost, our souls inspire,
And lighten with celestial fire.
Thou the anointing Spirit art,
Who dost thy sevenfold gifts impart.
Thy blessed unction from above
Is comfort, life, and fire of love.

Enable with perpetual light
The dullness of our blinded sight;
Anoint and cheer our soiled face
With the abundance of thy grace;
Keep far our foes, give peace at home;
Where thou art Guide, no ill can come.

Teach us to know the Father, Son
And thee, of both, to be but ONE;
That through the ages all along
This may be our endless song;
Praise to thy eternal merit,
Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

Lord, hear our Prayer,
And let our cry come unto thee.

O Zion, haste, thy mission high fulfilling,
To tell to all the world that God is Light;
That he who made all nations is not willing
One soul should perish, lost in shades of night.
Publish glad tidings;
Tidings of peace;
Tidings of Jesus,
Redemption and release.

Behold how many thousands still are lying Bound in the darksome prison-house of sin,
With none to tell them of the Saviour's dying,
Or of the life he died for them to win.

'Tis thine to save from peril of perdition
The souls for whom the Lord his life laid down;
Beware lest, slothful to fulfill thy mission,
Thou lose one jewel that should deck his crown.

Proclaim to every people, tongue, and nation
That God, in whom they live and move, is love:
Tell how he stooped to save his lost creation,
And died on earth that man might live above.

Give of thy sons to bear the message glorious;
Give of thy wealth to speed them on their way;
Pour out thy soul for them in prayer victorious;
And all thou spendest Jesus will repay.

He comes again; O Zion, ere thou meet him,
Make known to every heart his saving grace;
Let none whom he hath ransomed fail to greet him,
Through thy neglect, unfit to see his face.

For a month Springfield has been the center of a great world Church. They have been a daily reminder to our entire community of life's deeper meaning and its highest aspirations; they have been a reminder of the possibilities, under divine guidance, of concord and of service to humanity.

We whose names are here signed, representing the municipality of Springfield and civic organizations, without regard to creed or denomination, take this opportunity to place upon record our profound sense of the spiritual values with which the coming of the General Conference has enriched the life of this city.

Telegram from
S. Earl Taylor.

R. J. Wade, Secretary, General Conference, Springfield, Mass.:

Deeply moved by invitation General Conference. Reply held hoping could come but now seems doubtful. Been watching reports of far-seeing and constructive work already accomplished, and thank God our great Church has fixed its eyes upon world's need and upon a program of world service rather than upon divisive theological disputation. The laymen of the Church appreciate this attitude more than you may realize and are proud of this General Conference. I long to be in the thick of the battle, but at present my place is out under the desert stars where I often seem to hear the heavenly music which not only proclaims the Saviour of the world but also the early triumph of his Kingdom. May the Centenary be but the beginning of great days of glorious victory which will usher in that Kingdom in all its fullness. Loving greetings.

Bishop Burt, on a question of privilege, addressed the Conference, stating that this would be his last time to preside over its deliberations, and expressed his deep appreciation of all the courtesies shown him during his ministry as pastor, missionary, and Bishop.

Foreign Languages Commission Report.

Whereas, The Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, by order of the General Conference of 1920, appointed a Foreign Language Commission to report its findings to the General Conference of 1924; and,

Whereas, Said Commission has made an exhaustive research, carefully compiled, in order to present a concise statement of the foreign language problem which the Church must meet at this period; and,

Whereas, This report has been scrutinizingly examined by delegates of foreign language Conferences in our homeland and others, and has been accepted in a genuinely Christian spirit; and,

Whereas, This report as adopted means the beginning of a policy directing the missionary program of the Methodist Episcopal Church among peoples from foreign shores. It may mean in some cases unavoidable sacrifice to the foreign born in our Church. It also means a closer relation of 50,000 young people, children, and babes now in foreign language Conferences, and opens the way to approach nationalities of the Newer Immigration for which little has been done in the past; be it therefore

Resolved, That this General Conference express its sincere gratitude to the Foreign Language Commission and to the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension for bringing forth this new policy by which our Home Missionary efforts are to be guided in the future to the glory of our Lord and Master.

By common consent Bishop W. F. Anderson, Fraternal Delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, presented the following report:

By the gracious courtesy and appointment of my colleagues, I met the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church at Tiffin, Ohio, Wednesday, May 21, 1924. It was a happy coincidence that the date marked the sixteenth anniversary to the very day and hour of the visit of Dr. Thomas H. Lewis, their Fraternal Delegate to our General Conference in Baltimore in 1908. The scenes and the sentiments of that historic day in Baltimore were easily recalled by many who were in attendance at the Conference in Tiffin. On that occasion Doctor Lewis had said: "You invite us to come home—which home? We want to unite with a united home."

Report of Bishop
Anderson as Fraternal
Delegate to Methodist Protestant Church.

The brethren of the Methodist Protestant General Conference were deeply interested in the report of the progress of the two Episcopal Methodisms toward unification. Pending this movement, and having no definite proposal for the Conference at Tiffin, I was compelled to feel that the purpose of my visit was almost exclusively fraternal. I made this position clear to our Methodist Protestant brethren, but assured them that while I had no definite official proposal for Union, they could be certain that the heart of our own Church is warm toward the union of all the divided branches of the Methodist family. They received this assurance with very evident enthusiasm and are eager to become a part of the great Methodist movement toward unification. To this end, they have appointed since my visit a committee of five, President Lewis being the chairman of the Committee, for further and definite negotiations with our own Church. If this General Conference would refer this subject with power to your Commission on Unification, the matter would thus be left in favorable light for further development.

On motion of D. G. Downey, the matter referred to in the report was referred to the Commission on Unification with power to act.

Effectiveness of Actions
of General Conference.

EFFECTIVENESS OF ACTIONS OF THIS GENERAL CONFERENCE

Whereas, This General Conference has voted not to adjourn finally at this time, but that when it adjourns, it be to meet on the call of the Bishops; therefore,

Resolved, That all official relations and all legislative actions as determined by this General Conference during this session at Springfield, Massachusetts, shall take effect and be in force on and after its adjournment to meet at the call of the Bishops, precisely as if the adjournment were sine die.

D. G. Downey moved, by common consent, for reconsideration, that the following resolution concerning Barratt's Chapel in the Wilmington Conference, be adopted, and it was adopted:

Presentation
of Barratt's
Chapel.

Whereas, Barratt's Chapel in Kent County, State of Delaware, built about 1780, is still standing; and,

Whereas, This old house of worship is famous in the annals of American Methodism as the first meeting place of Coke and Asbury, after the former had landed on our shores commissioned by Mr. Wesley to organize an Episcopal Church in this country; and,

Whereas, It was from this spot that Freeborn Garrettson went forth "like an arrow" summoning the preachers to a Conference at Baltimore, where they assembled on December 24, 1784, and organized the Methodist Episcopal Church; and,

Whereas, While many houses and sites connected with the planting of Methodism in this new world have been displaced or lost, this one is preserved substantially as it was in the beginning, having the same interior appointments, and the identical pulpit bench on which Coke and Asbury sat together; and,

Whereas, The stately old structure, standing amid a grove of towering oaks, keeps silent and solemn vigil over a sacred past; and,

Whereas, Tourists from every section of the nation, and now from almost every quarter of the world, make long direct trips, or go far out of their way to stand with uncovered heads before its crude altar and be moved by memories of our Fathers and the God who so gloriously answered them by fire; and,

Whereas, Such a precious legacy should not be permitted to decay; therefore, be it.

Resolved, That it is the sense of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church convened at Springfield, Massachusetts, in May, 1924:

1. That Barratt's Chapel is the common heritage of all Methodist Episcopalians.

2. That it ought to be endowed and preserved; and,

3. That Methodists everywhere ought to willingly contribute to such an enterprise, properly inaugurated, and conducted by the Wilmington Conference within whose borders the Chapel stands, until a reasonable endowment has been created.

All proposed changes of such Constitution shall first be submitted for approval to that Bishop (and said Board of Hospitals and Homes and Deaconess Work). Like authority is given to similar Deaconesses' organizations in other states of Europe.

E. S. Weaver offered the following as a substitute for Report No. 5 of the Committee on Temperance, Prohibition, and Public Morals, page 593, The Daily Christian Advocate:

The Methodist Episcopal Church hereby records itself as irrevocably opposed to all those evils which tend to break down the spiritual life of our people, such as various forms of gambling in social life, the evils of the race track, the pool room, the modern dance, improper suggestive motion pictures, immodesty in dress, and many other similarly demoralizing practices.

We protest against brutalized prize-fighting.

We earnestly call to the attention of the American State Department the embarrassments to which our missionaries and Christian people in foreign lands are subjected by the misleading character of many exported motion picture films. We emphatically condemn the vicious traffic by which the national prohibition law is evaded through the use of so-called patent medicines of alcoholic content.

The alarming growth of the use of cigarettes by both men and women is a menace in our social life. We denounce this evil, and we urge our people to do all within their power against it.

A delegate moved that this substitute be laid on the table. It was not laid on the table.

Imperative Motions.

I wish to call attention to the fact that under our action the relationship of the Commission on Life Service has been determined as with the World Service Commission and the Commission on the Courses of Study remains as heretofore with funds to be provided through the Board of Education; and I understand that their adjustment or relationship belongs with the World Service Commission in harmony with your previous action. I would also call attention to the fact that the Board of Pensions and Relief has been made a constituent Board and its administrative and other expenses are to be provided by the World Service Commission from the benevolence budget and not from the local expense budget or from the ministerial support. The adjustment of amounts lies in the power of the World Service Commission according to your action.

J. M. M. Gray offered the following complimentary resolutions that were adopted by a standing vote:

Resolutions
of Appreciation.

Your Committee on Complimentary Resolutions takes pleasure in reporting, on behalf of the General Conference, its appreciation of the manifold services which have been devoted to provide and maintain its effectiveness and comfort during the four weeks of its session. The Commission on Entertainment has been instant in its response to every reasonable claim; and to its chairman, Dr. George C. Douglass, Mr. O. P. Miller, Treasurer, and the Secretary, Mr. M. S. Daniels, and to their colleagues, we acknowledge our gratitude.

The Springfield Local Committee, headed by Howard W. Selby, has been unwearied in its efforts in preparing for our accommodation and comfort, and in caring for our needs. For them we have only words of highest commendation.

We have been greatly helped by the hospitality of the citizens and the civic organizations. They have spared no effort to make our stay pleasant and to advance our Conference affairs by their eager cooperation in securing our convenience. To the Mayor of the City, the Hon. Edward F. Leonard, to the Chamber of Commerce and business clubs, to the Churches, their pastors, and their trustees, the traffic policemen and the Postmaster, and the Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies for special facilities to forward our business, we offer our sincere thanks. To the Director of the Bureau of Transportation, who has so courteously aided us in our travel; to the ushers, pages, stenographers, clerks, and others who, in similar practical capacities have performed those innumerable and unrewarded services which have so greatly aided our labors, we present our very real gratitude.

We acknowledge with unusual appreciation the splendid contribution of our chorister, Earl E. Harper, and to him and the singers, who, with him have either led our devotional song or furnished entertainment, we confess our happy debt. We shall remember also with particular pleasure the Municipal Chime Ringer, who daily welcomed our Assembly with lofty strains, making the very sky to echo with our hymns of praise.

The services of the Book Concern are too easily overlooked, but we find ourselves greatly indebted to its painstaking consideration. The Daily Christian Advocate, the Rangefinder, the Handbook, and the innumerable personal courtesies, not alone to officials and members of the Conference, but to the visitors as well have witnessed to the genuine helpfulness of those in charge; of whom we take pride in mentioning Mr. Arthur F. Stevens.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company has wrought a notable service, not alone to the General Conference, but to Methodism at large, in the successful broadcasting of the proceedings, night after night. To Mr. A. S. Eisenman, and to all who assisted in this work we would like to give recognition as wide as the energies they enlisted on our behalf.

To Mr. R. T. Friebus we owe and acknowledge a singular obligation. Unseen by the members of the Conference, his presence unsuspected by most of us, he from his concealment made effective the amplifiers by which alone the brethren of the outposts became participants in our proceedings.

Dr. Halford E. Luccock and his staff has handled our publicity with enterprise and discretion. The newspapers of Springfield have given the Conference constant and ample attention, and have striven with unusual eagerness to present both accurate accounts of our proceedings and just interpretation of their significance. To their editors, the reporters and special writers, and to the representatives of the Associated Press and the various religious and secular papers who have published our doings to the ends of the earth, we express our appreciation.

We have had great satisfaction in the effective labors of the Secretary, Rev. R. J. Wade, D.D., and his staff, whose alert interest and unflinching industry have contributed largely to the dispatch of the business of our session, and to them we gladly record our gratitude.

Dr. Stephen J. Herben has brought to the editorship of The Daily Christian Advocate a tested and successful experience. The accuracy with which the sessions have been reported, and the splendid form in which the report has appeared from day to day, deserve more than the brief acknowledgment herein possible. He and his able associates will read beneath this slight recognition an appreciation much greater than the phrases through which it is expressed.

We thank our General Superintendents for the fidelity with which, alike in happy and unhappy circumstances, they have given themselves to serve the Conference and safeguard the interests of every cause committed to their charge. For the inspiration of the Episcopal Address which focused our thought upon our specific duties here; for their counsel during the days of our session; for their cooperation in such fashions as have been proper to their high office; we return to them the gratitude of the Church which, while asserting its right of scrutiny and direction, nevertheless takes pride in their achievements and is unhesitant in its loyalty to the leadership they exercise and the devotion they reveal.

To-morrow we who have been together here in fellowship and labor shall be separated throughout the world with our fellowship a memory and our labor directed in quite other and perhaps less pleasant enterprises. But because of our association in this General Conference and the recollections which spring therefrom we shall take more constant and impregnable joy in the knowledge that, in every place and at every occupation, we are companions of all them that serve God.

J. M. M. Gray offered the following special resolution, and it was adopted:

RESOLUTION OF APPRECIATION RELATIVE TO THE SERVICE RENDERED BY THE AMERICAN MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION

The General Conference desires to acknowledge publicly the valuable services the American Motion Picture Corporation contributed without charge to the program at the Mission Center, and the Educational Center; and their cooperation with the General Conference in Anniversary Programs and for the local Committee on Entertainments.

The large number of motion picture reels shown has demonstrated that there is a large supply of motion pictures available for the use of the churches and the fine spirit and purpose of the American Motion Picture Corporation makes it possible for us to look upon it as an agency upon which local churches may safely and wisely call for help in carrying forward their motion picture programs.

GEORGE C. DOUGLASS, Chairman,

W. B. Farmer offered the following resolution, and it was adopted:

In view of the fact that the Board of Hospitals and Homes has not yet been appointed; be it

Resolved, That the Executive Committee of said Board be continued and empowered to transact necessary business until the new Board shall have opportunity to meet and organize.

C. W. Lee moved that the Journal for this session be approved, subject to editing by the Secretary and his assistants, and it was adopted.

R. J. Wade offered the following, which was adopted:

That, after announcements, the calling of the roll, and suitable devotional exercises, this General Conference stand adjourned, subject to the call of the Bishops.

Bishop Berry resumed the chair.

R. J. Wade called the roll of the Conference, and the following were recorded as present:

Rev. Gideon F. Draper, representative of the Japanese Methodist Council.

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes delivered the closing address of the General Conference as follows:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE:

It has fallen to my lot under your order and by the subsequent vote of my beloved colleagues to present to you in the closing hour of our gathering a message of such summation as can be quickly gathered and of such congratulation as must be immediately felt. For four weeks we have been together here in the name of Christ, seeking that our minds might be clarified, our hearts stirred, and our wills sanctified toward the holy purpose of God for the Methodist Episcopal Church. Now we are near the end of our legislative labors. As our opening prayer was for guidance toward wise decisions, so our closing prayers must be for strength to carry out our programs in the fear of God. Hence I beg that your hearing of such poor words as I may bring out of impressions all too hasty for accuracy, and out of work all too hurried for elegance, may be made an actual time of devotion wherein many petitions may be put up for God's great grace upon us all, and upon the many millions of men, and women, and children, whose representatives for a little while the Lord has made us.

The City of Springfield, as our civic host, deserves far more mention than this brief address may permit. Was ever a General Conference treated more courteously? Did ever any people more cordially vie, each with the other, to make guests happy and comfortable? Have we found ever a building better ordered for our purpose than this Auditorium? Have local and general committees ever wrought more faithfully in preparation and in consummation of hospitality? And will any delegate from a distance ever again speak of New England reserve? On the contrary, may we not all make an allowable double pun upon the name of this metropolis by saying that henceforth it will remind us of "Spring" wherein the glory of the new growth comes back to the earth, and the "field" wherein birds sing and flowers bloom to the glory of God! All hail to Springfield, Massachusetts—a name hereafter memorable in Methodist hearts and celebrated in Methodist history!

But we brought hither some gifts that, being our previous possessions, have here been richly enhanced. Perhaps not as much as in former days has the phrase "our great Church" run like a refrain through our speeches and prayers. This may be not so much because we have become unduly modest, as because we have unconsciously discovered that even as the first law of good society is that a man should take himself for granted, so the first law of respectable ecclesiastical society is that a Church should not use assertive or defensive phrases concerning itself, but rather be exalted as an instrument of Christ. But you will allow this spokesman to make a claim for his Church. Doubtless our beloved sister denominations have proportionately as many good people as we have; as many wise leaders; as many devoted members; as many generous givers. Yet is there not a peculiar quality in our social life? If you will permit me to be colloquial, I will ask, Did you ever before see so many "good fellows" together under one roof? What would you take in exchange for the old fellowships here renewed, or for the new fellowships here made? Many of you will bear out of this month friendships, started or increased, that are to be carried by you on earth and into heaven. I am unwilling to plead guilty to any superficiality when I send up the exclamation, Thank God for the associations of the General Conference! Thank God for the remembrances that we have of other days, other faces, other voices! And thank God for a quickened and enlarged sense of what is meant by the Communion of Saints!

The approach of this General Conference was dolefully greeted in certain quarters by fears, not to say shivers! By some scared eyes the hosts of the iconoclasts were seen moving on Springfield! As if indeed the pastors of Methodism could not distinguish between an altar of worship and a mile-stone of travel! We have had on hand a fine group of the right kind of Uzziabs, who, with the permission of God, have steadied the ark of the Lord on the rough road of debate and have carried it—modified—so that it may more truly bear the shekinah back to the sacred walls of the House of God. How good it has been—to change the figure of speech—to see the old ship of Zion right herself, avoiding the troughs of the sea, and weathering the storms that lashed the waves, and so moving on to the harbor of divine choosing! Blessed be God, the Pilot has been with us!

It has pleased the Father in heaven to give us here many high moments. Of some of these we shall tell our children and our children's children, and perhaps some of us may speak of them when the little children of a fourth generation cling to our trembling hands. Your list might be different from mine. Yet we can all agree that the hours that brought us the following experiences were great times in the calendars of our souls.

Who will ever forget the Unification morning—its memories, its thrills, its hopes, its visions of seven millions of the sons and daughters of Wesley seeking a common altar and then marching together under the crimson standard of our Lord? Some of us have talked with men who were present at the General Conference of 1844 and passed through the pathetic and glorious tragedy of that distant year; and some of us have found a new meaning in the concluding verse of the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, "God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect." And our colored brethren! How grandly they met the issue! What confidence they expressed in us, and in our splendid partners of the South! Even as it is historically true that in the old days of civil strife no black man, left in the home of his white master when the latter went off to war, ever betrayed the family, so now it will be written that our colored people are safe in the hands of their Caucasian brethren! Our vote on unification is a vote of our trust in our Southern brothers, and in their God and ours. We will all add to the daily ritual of our lives this prayer, "O God of our fathers, unite their sons and daughters until the nations of all the world shall hear the tread of the advancing hosts." What would you take, dear brothers and sisters, for your participation in that reasoned, and yet ecstatic hour when with an enthusiasm more overwhelming than was the majority, we expressed ourselves for the unity of our Methodist Israel?

Nor can any delegate ever forget the day when the three young men from the Louisville Convention stood on this platform and gave us an experience that no other General Conference ever had! Their fine idealism made us confident for the future of our work; and their purposes so mingled with our own as to give us a new realization of the fact that we have no greater duty or more priceless privilege than to mediate between our own and the next generation. For Christ still has a way of setting youth in our midst. On the day when he sent us each of that splendid trio, he gave us the mood that led to that dear record of the Holy Book, "Jesus looking upon him loved him"; only in our cases the love is not to be disappointed because these young rulers of the future turn sadly away from the tests of our uncompromising Master. God send his benediction upon these youths and upon the hundreds of thousands for whom they stood.

We must all be glad in the fact that some of our loftiest hours in this Conference have been of a purely devotional character. The day of our special service brought us moments like those on the holy mount wherein once more the Lord was transfigured before us. Nor can we omit from the sacred list that hour when we received Commander Evangeline Booth, and our courtesy to her was changed into her spiritual service to us—until we felt that the one thing grandly worth while was to offer Christ as a cure and solace and pardon and peace for the world.

But there have been other and more regular times when we drew near to God and he answered by drawing near to us. Some of us have felt that the leadership of song in this General Conference has been worthy of unstinted praise. Richard Watson Gilder speaks in his Wesley poem of his Methodist-preacher-father's congregations of folks and of the "well-loved tunes, made sacred by how many saints of God." Surely the Lord has taught us that our Church need not invade the domain of the jazz and ragtime in order to get thrilling tunes or moving verses. Again and again our hymns have swept us up into God's nearer presence, and we have had the fore-hearing of the song of Moses and the Lamb. It would be a dreadful blunder to sell our birthright of song for a mess of musical pottage! Methodism needs a revival of congregational singing where in the great multitudes with an abandon to the passion of praise may illustrate our Wesleyan heritage of a glorious hymnology. It is not ranting, but rather a sober and just tribute to the Father of mercies, to say that again and again in these sessions God has blessed us richly and has lifted us up into heavenly places in Christ Jesus.

 NINTH

We must thank God, too, for his leadership in the difficult and delicate places of discussion. The war issue might have made another war for us—a war of words among us, and among our people. But conciliation, that made for no evil compromise, prevailed; and we found a way to declare for peace without declaring against patriotism; the way to stand for a world banner without seeming to soil a national flag. Now we go forward to bear our testimony against all offensive war and to proclaim that the Hebrew prophets were not misguided fanatics when they foretold the swordless and spearless day of God. We will continue the work of prayer and the prayer of work, "Grant us peace in our time, O Lord"; for God has given us here the vision of a warless world.

You are all aware that some of our legislation will call for difficult administering. The putting of the time-limit back upon the terms of District Superintendents will throw upon the Conferences for pastoral or other appointments some of the best and most efficient men in Methodism; and they and their Conference brethren must prepare themselves for some inevitable inconveniences and penalties involved in the changed law of the Church. The only possible miracles here are those seen in resigned and loyal hearts that yield lives to the working out of a system that we trust, whatever may be our personal views of the wisdom of our altered legislation, may work for the glory of God.

The merger of several of our Boards is a frank experiment in the direction of consolidation. That known as the Board of Education will unquestionably offer complicated problems, and the man chosen as its premier secretary will need the counsel and aid of many, and the prayer of all. We venture the advice that the service of the former Boards shall in the new combination be so definitely "departmentalized" that our work for the education of our colored people, and the work of our young people may be held in an efficient separateness. For the former, God has given us a wonderful chance, and we have responded to him by raising up the finest colored preachers and the finest colored doctors on the planet. For the latter, let it be said that the Epworth League in its summer institutes has been giving our Church in these recent years amazing service. We trust that we indulge in no presumptuous counsel when we say that in the new big Board there should be no elimination of these vital factors that have made, on the one hand, a beautiful drama of service for our colored brethren, and on the other a preparation of our youth by the joyful study of the summer for the golden glory of the later harvest period. Nor should we pass from this glimpse at our Boards without thanking God for that secretarial and inter-Board cooperation that promises to remove the debt from our Foreign Missionary Treasury and that gave to this General Conference an event, of less than ten minutes' duration, which may tell most favorably upon the lives of millions of people and upon the eternities that shall unfold from the divine land.

Let us not falter, dear brethren, in prosecuting our Benevolent program—our total Benevolent program. Let us have done now for four full years, not only with tinkering, but with talking about tinkering! It is often said that the presidential election year is seldom a good one for business. The diversions and uncertainties are too many.

Perhaps much the same thing is true of General Conference year for our Church. The arithmetical historian might show us some interesting descending quadrennial curves on our financial and spiritual charts. The prophets said it truly, "He that observeth the winds shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap." Wind-observing and cloud-regarding may sometimes be good; but when they become chronic they are the defeat of the harvest. Our wonderful ecclesiastical machine has been duly examined, and somewhat repaired, and a bit oiled. Now start it to work for the praise of Christ. Our machinery must run in its revised form for full four years. Away with the hammers! Out with the oil can! Turn on the steam! Generate the electric power! Farewell, dear critic, for forty-eight months! Prolong your absence magnificently! We have now a quadrennium of opportunity for God. O Lord of the work, teach us that the night hastens!

After fifty-two years of discussion, we have virtually returned to John Wesley's position on Amusements. Now let us put aside that debate and go forward to the asserting and living of a glorious puritanism. He who thinks that the Amusement question is amusing proves the superficiality of his own heart. This closing message is an individual interpretation for which my colleagues are not responsible. But in the Episcopal Address we expressed to you our counsel on this long-mooted matter; and you have followed that counsel. That it is a serious time in the life of Methodism in its relation to "diversions" no thoughtful man may deny. Let us have no petty jokes—as if our new-old attitude were simply itself a piece of cheap opera! The simple truth is that the theater business is by many being terribly overdone; and not a few people are disintegrating their brains and making flabby moral natures by daily dwelling before the jerky and melodramatic film of the moving picture show; while it is again the simple truth that some modern dances could get appropriate designations only by borrowing names from the lower animals! The minister who now compromises in his advice and warning on amusements may easily become traitor to the kingdom of God. So far as our Discipline is concerned, the bars are not down; but we ourselves must be sure to open the gates to the Holy City. O Church of Wesley and Asbury, back to simplicity! O Church of the saddle-bags, back to good literature and personal piety! We have returned to our founder's method; now let us earnestly seek our founder's mind and heart. Let us hear the Pauline voice, "Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh." One bar is not down. It stands against the entry of the spiritual soul into the territory of the evil and the doubtful. "It will take only such diversions as can be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." Toss out that banner, dear brethren, over the houses of play, and over the fields of sport, and over the halls of pleasure. For years we have scarcely touched the world of amusements—partly because an impossible compulsion stood in our way. Now we have come to freedom of teaching and admonishing; and we have conferred upon our people a like freedom. O Spirit of the living Christ, emphasize the apostolic words for us all, "Brethren, ye are called to liberty; only use not liberty as an occasion to the flesh." We have acted wisely in our legislation. May the Lord God help us to act wisely in our later attitude and program! Above all, may the Holy Ghost send us a revival of personal religion that will so exalt behavior and service as to make us illustrate anew the "expulsive power of a great affection."

It is, of course, too early to make any assured appraisals of what we have here done. Time will test our work and will be the great interpreter. But the General Conference that voted favorably on the Plan of Unification; permitted the ordination of women to the ministry; reaffirmed Mr. Wesley's rule on Amusements; sanctioned personal, denominational and international attitudes that will help to shatter the institution of war; modified the doctrinal test for admitting members in the direction of simplicity, reality, and sincerity; and maintained all its missionary outposts for pushing the battle of the Kingdom to the ends of the earth—such a General Conference can scarcely be called ordinary! It is at least eventful; and some of us believe that it will become epochal. The historian of Methodism's future is likely to declare that here by the majestic Connecticut, the hands of the servants of the Lord gave a mighty bend to the spiritual stream that turned into providential directions and nourished at its borders the trees of life bearing all manner of fruits. We are honored in being partners in the work of this Conference, and each of us can repeat the great apostle's words, "I thank him that enabled me, even Christ Jesus our Lord, for that he counted me faithful, appointing me unto this service." Even so! Praise be to his Name!

Your General Superintendents thank you for all your evidences of confidence and love. Let an unworthy one from their midst testify that he knows on the average no finer and more devoted body of men; and out of sixteen years' experience with the Bishops he gives you this pledge for them all: We will stand by every phase of our work—editorial, secretarial, eleemosynary, pastoral—never destroying the unity of our forces by criticizing any department of our activities, but holding ourselves as "your servants for Jesus' sake." We feel that we have a very dear and very wonderful Church—one that makes each of us appropriate for Methodist use a Lutheran hymn:

"My Church, my Church, my dear old Church!

My father's and my own!

On prophets and apostles built,

With Christ the corner stone!

All else beside, by mind and tide,

May yet be overthrown,

But not my Church, my dear old Church,

My father's and my own."

Yet, we would not indulge a glorified ecclesiasticism. Rather would we unite you all in the prayer that Christ for his own glory may make our Methodism "as bright as the sun, as fair as the moon, and as terrible as an army with banners."

Here we are, dear brothers and sisters, in the final hour of our wonderful, wonderful Conference. It is bewildering to think of the different paths that we shall soon take—paths that lead everywhere. Two incidents of the closing days at Des Moines come back to me, as far beyond the midnight hour I write these words. We were in our final Bishops' Meeting there—praying together and for each other ere we started on those Episcopal journeys that are the tokens of the spiritual traveling of our Church. Men were in the room who have not returned to this Conference. Bishop Stuntz in his prayer quoted Madame Guyon's hymn as translated by William Wordsworth, and we were all caught up into its faith and hope and comfort:

My Lord, how full of sweet content
I pass my years of banishment!
Where'er I dwell, I dwell with thee,
In heaven, in earth, or on the sea.
To me remains nor place nor time;
My country is in every clime:
I can be calm and free from care
On any shore, since God is there.
While place we seek, or place we shun
The soul finds happiness in none;
But with a God to guide our way,
'Tis equal joy, to go or stay.
Could I be cast where thou art not;
That were indeed a dreadful lot;
But regions none remote I call,
Secure of finding God in all.

We have not heard here Bishop Stuntz's voice, but we have heard the voice of his Lord and ours; and his word remains forever true, "Lo, I am with you alway" even unto the end of all worlds and all ages!

The other incident was one of simple, human, spiritual interest. The new Bishops of four years ago were having a meeting for prayer ere they started on their itineraries for Christ. When they ceased praying a waiter in the hotel came from behind the screens in the dining room to say that he had been listening to their prayers. The man stood there with moistened eyes and trembling lips to say that he had been wandering from God and that he wanted them to pray him back to the Father. No wonder that those new Bishops took this incident as an omen of God for their work and felt that the recovery of a soul to the Lord was the best beginning for their labors. It is not only the best beginning, and the best continuing; but it is even the best ending. The Lord save us from cant—from using the name of Christ as an advertisement, and prayer as a form of propaganda! But may the Lord likewise increase in our hearts what our spiritual forefathers called "the burden for souls." Your Bishops feel that we should all go out to make the quadrennium one of urgent and daring evangelism; that our heralds of the saving Cross should ford the last river, cross the last sea, traverse the last plain, climb the last mountain, find the last sinner, even if he stands on the crumbling edge of despair, and bring him home to Christ. We cannot compete with varied forms of entertainment. We cannot rival the multifarious phases of music as a fine art! But we have one throbbing and thrilling monopoly—even the gospel of a redeeming Christ. Let us all send to the throne of grace this prayer: Stand with us here, O Saviour, on our Bethany hill; and with an emphasis that pierces our hearts through and through again, repeat thine august and confident command, "Go and disciple all nations." Our answer to the praying Christ is this, "Lord, we go, and as we go, we preach."

Prayer was offered by Bishop J. W. Robinson.

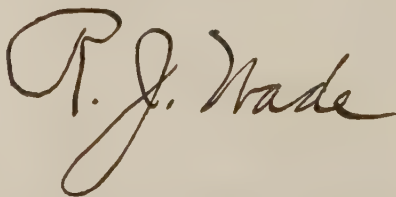

Hymn 408, beginning, "Lead on, O King Eternal," was sung.

Bishop Berry declared the twenty-ninth delegated General Conference adjourned, subject to the call of the Bishops, and then pronounced the Benediction.

REPORTS ADOPTED

A. REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES

I. EPISCOPACY

REPORT NO. 1. PRESIDENTIAL SUPERVISION

Your Committee recognizes the fidelity of the Bishops in carrying out the provisions of ¶ 574 of the Book of Discipline with regard to continuity of presidential supervision.

We call attention to the fact that under the plan of contiguous and continuous supervision, as stated in ¶ 573 of the Book of Discipline, the matter of presidential supervision is entirely in the control of the Bishops.

However, it is the judgment of your Committee on Episcopacy that more frequent changes in the presidency of the Annual Conferences within the Episcopal Areas in the United States of America as arranged by the Bishops, will promote the best interests of the whole Church, and we so recommend.

Adopted, May 15.

REPORT NO. 2. RESIDENTIAL ASSIGNMENTS

Your Committee recommends that:

The General Conference instruct the Committee on Episcopacy that in assigning Bishops to residences the committee shall have in mind the principle of a maximum of continuous tenure of eight years in any given residence in the United States of America.

Adopted, May 15.

ORIGINAL REPORT

Your Committee recommends that:

The General Conference instruct the Committee on Episcopacy that in assigning Bishops to residences the Committee shall have in mind the principle of a maximum of continuous tenure of eight years in any given residence, subject however to such exceptional circumstances and cases, as in the judgment of the Committee, may be essential to the most effective administration of the work of the Church.

REPORT NO. 3. THE AREA SYSTEM

Your Committee having before it Memorials 120 and 552, praying for the discontinuance of the Area System, would respectfully recommend nonconcurrence.

Adopted, May 15.

REPORT NO. 4. MISSIONARY EPISCOPACY

Your Committee having duly considered Memorial 266 and others asking the General Conference to resume the former practice of electing Missionary Bishops, respectfully recommends nonconcurrence.

Adopted, May 15.

REPORT NO. 5. PROVISIONAL BISHOPS

Your Committee having considered Memorial 1084, praying for the election of "Provisional Bishops," would respectfully recommend nonconcurrence.

Adopted, May 15.

REPORT NO. 6. EPISCOPAL RESIDENCES

The Committee, having given careful consideration to the memorials before it, recommend that the Episcopal Residences for the coming quadrennium be as follows:

Atlanta, Georgia; Boston, Massachusetts; Buffalo, New York; Chattanooga, Tennessee; Chicago, Illinois; Cincinnati, Ohio; Covington, Kentucky; Denver, Colorado; Detroit, Michigan; Helena, Montana; Indianapolis, Indiana; Kansas City, Missouri; New Orleans, Louisiana; New York City, New York; Omaha, Nebraska; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Portland, Oregon; Saint Paul, Minnesota; San Francisco, California; Washington, D. C.

Africa: Cape Town.

Eastern Asia: Peking, China; Shanghai, China; Foochow, China; Seoul, Korea.

Southern Asia: Bangalore, India; Bombay, India; Calcutta, India; Delhi, India.

Southeastern Asia: Manila, Philippine Islands; Singapore, Straits Settlements.

Europe: Copenhagen, Denmark; Paris, France; Zurich, Switzerland.

Latin America: Buenos Aires, Argentine; Mexico City, Mexico.

Adopted, May 16.

Reconsidered and recommitted, May 19.

When represented on May 20 the Committee acting under instructions recommended the elimination of Helena and Paris as Episcopal Residences. An amendment restored Helena and Paris so that the report was finally adopted on May 20 as above.

REPORT NO. 7. TEMPORARY RELEASE OF A BISHOP

Having considered Memorials 480, 1006 upon this subject your Committee respectfully recommends that Chapter XI of the Discipline, Bishops, IV Powers, be amended by inserting a new paragraph to follow present ¶ 214, to be numbered 215 and to read as follows:

“¶ 215. A General Superintendent who by reason of impaired health is temporarily unable to perform full work may be released by the General Conference from the obligation to travel through the Connection at large. He may choose the place of his residence and the Bishops shall be at liberty to assign him to such work as he may be able to perform. He shall receive his support as provided in ¶ 329, § 1. This release shall not be granted for more than one quadrennium.”

Adopted, May 17.

REPORT NO. 8. EFFECTIVENESS OF BISHOPS

Your Committee on Episcopacy, after giving careful consideration to the Effectiveness of the Bishops, respectfully recommends for your adoption the following:

1. That the characters of the following named Bishops be passed, and that they be continued on the retired list: Earl Cranston, John W. Hamilton, Thomas B. Neely, and Richard J. Cooke.

2. That the characters of William A. Quayle and Homer C. Stuntz be passed, and that in accordance with their own request under ¶ 216, § 3 of the Discipline, they be granted the retired relation.

3. That the characters of Bishops William Burt and Frank M. Bristol be passed, and that they be placed on the retired list at the close of this General Conference in accordance with the provisions of the Discipline, ¶ 216, § 2.

4. That the characters of the following named Missionary Bishops be passed, and that they be continued on the retired list: Joseph C. Hartzell and Isaiah B. Scott.

5. That the characters of the following named Bishops be passed, and that they be continued in the effective relation: Joseph F. Berry, William F. McDowell, Luther B. Wilson, William F. Anderson, John Nuelsen, Edwin H. Hughes, Theodore S. Henderson, William O. Shepard, Francis J. McConnell, Frederick D. Leete, Wilbur P. Thirkield, Herbert Welch, Thomas Nicholson, Adna W. Leonard, William F. Oldham, Charles B. Mitchell, Francis W. Warne, John W. Robinson, Eben S. Johnson, Lauress J. Birney, Frederick B. Fisher, Ernest L. Waldorf, Charles E. Locke, Ernest G. Richardson, Charles W. Burns, Anton Bast, Edgar Blake, Frederick T. Keeney, H. Lester Smith, Charles L. Mead, Robert E. Jones, Matthew W. Clair.

6. That the character of Bishop George H. Bickley be passed, and that he be released from the obligation to travel through the Connection at large, under the provisions of ¶ 215 just adopted.

Adopted, May 17, under special order.

REPORT NO. 9. UNIFICATION OF METHODISM IN MISSION FIELDS

Your Committee has had before it memorial 794 from Eastern Asia Central Conference urging the "rapid application" of the Unification Plan in the mission fields with immediate provision for unified Episcopal Administration of all the Conferences of The United Church of Eastern Asia. Having carefully considered the subject we would respectfully recommend:

That in view of the action already taken by this General Conference concerning Unification, and of action now in process, we recommend the present General Conference to take no action on this memorial.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 10. COMPLAINTS REGARDING ADMINISTRATION

Your Committee had before it four several instances of alleged maladministration. The action in each case was unanimous, as indicated:

1. In the matter of the complaint of the Rev. J. B. Risk concerning certain administrative acts of Bishop F. J. McConnell and Bishop W. F. Anderson, the complainant having on May 7th asked permission to withdraw his complaint your Committee recommends that his request be granted, and that no further action be taken.

2. In the matter of the Rev. H. C. Burrows vs. Bishop C. B. Mitchell, your Committee finds that the charges are wholly without foundation and recommends that the case be dismissed.

3. In the matter of the complaint of the Rev. A. W. Shamel concerning certain administrative acts of Bishop A. W. Leonard, your Committee finds that the alleged acts are not sufficiently substantiated to justify further proceedings, and recommends that the case be dismissed.

4. In the matter of the complaint of the Rev. M. L. Bennett against Bishop T. S. Henderson, the Committee finds the complaint without foundation and recommends that the case be dismissed.

Adopted, May 28.

II. JUDICIARY

REPORT No. 1. INTERPRETATION OF THE CHURCH LAW RELATING TO DIVORCE

The Committee on Judiciary has been instructed by the General Conference to report its conclusions upon the law of Divorce as requested in a Memorial presented by the California Annual Conference. The Memorial states:

"We particularly ask for an interpretation of the law relating to divorce so as to answer the questions, whether or not a member of an Annual Conference could be brought to trial and expelled from the Ministry for contracting a marriage, he being a divorced man, on grounds other than that of adultery, or whether a member of an Annual Conference could be brought to trial and expelled from the Ministry for contracting a marriage with a divorced woman, she being divorced on grounds other than that of adultery."

We answer the two questions in the affirmative, and will proceed to state the reasons therefor—

¶ 68 of the Discipline reads as follows:

"No divorce, except for adultery, shall be regarded by the Church as lawful; and no Minister shall solemnize marriage in any case where there is a divorced wife or husband living; but this rule shall not be applied to the innocent party to a divorce for the cause of adultery, nor to divorced parties seeking to be reunited in marriage."

It is plain that the law of our Church does not recognize the validity of a divorce on any other ground than that of adultery. A divorce granted upon other grounds is unlawful and invalid under the law of the Church. If, therefore, a man who has been divorced on other ground marries another woman while the wife under a former marriage is still living, the second marriage so contracted is under the law of the Church unlawful.

Any Minister of our Church, or any member of our Church who marries under the conditions named is liable to be brought to trial in the usual manner and may be expelled from the ministry, if he be a Minister, and from the Church if he be not a Minister but is a member of the Church. Any such member may be brought to trial and expelled from the Church. So far as the law of the Church is concerned it is immaterial that a marriage so contracted is valid under the law of the State in which the marriage ceremony was performed.

The reason applies with equal force to the marriage of a man who may himself be free to marry but who marries a woman who under the law of the Church is not free to marry because she was not divorced on the grounds of adultery.

We also are of the opinion that the language of ¶ 68, stating that "No divorce, except for adultery, shall be regarded as lawful" refers to the ground upon which the divorce was granted by the civil court, and that the case cannot be thereafter taken out of the operation of the law of the Church upon the claim that the divorce might have been obtained upon the ground of adultery. That is a claim which can be easily advanced in any case, and the truth of which the Church has no sufficient means of determining.

¶ 68 has been placed in the Discipline under "Special Advices." But the Bishops have ruled that it is not merely an Advice but a Law, and that ruling was confirmed by the General Conference of 1908 upon the recommendation of the Committee on the Judiciary. (See Judicial Decisions, p. 320.) To that construction of the Paragraph we adhere and reassert, having no doubt whatsoever concerning it.

Adopted, May 13.

REPORT NO. 2. CONSTITUTIONALITY OF THE AREA SYSTEM

The Committee on Judiciary has been instructed by the General Conference, in accordance with a request preferred by the California Annual Conference, to report its conclusions on the constitutionality of the area system of Episcopal supervision.

In answering the question submitted, let it be understood that it is the legal question alone which is involved, and that it must be determined solely upon legal reasons. We cannot consider whether the Area System has worked good or ill, whether it has been on the whole beneficial or otherwise, whether it is popular or unpopular; with such considerations, this Committee has nothing whatever to do. If it be found that the system is legal and not forbidden by the Constitution then, and not until then, does the question of its expediency or its in expediency arise, and even then this Committee has no duty concerning it. And we may add that the General Conference in approving or disapproving this report and therefore acting in its judicial capacity is no more concerned with such considerations than is this Committee. Those considerations only arise when the General Conference acts in its legislative capacity.

On May 9, 1904, there was introduced into the General Conference, the following resolution:

“Resolved: That the Committee on the Episcopacy consider (1) the question of assigning General Superintendents to particular sections or districts for periods of four years, with the possibility of continuing said General Superintendents in said districts for a longer period, and (2) to report as to the constitutionality and practicability of such a plan, and (3) if practicable and constitutional, to present a plan for such districting of the General Superintendents.”

That resolution, or so much of it as involved the question of constitutionality was sent to the Committee on Judiciary with instructions to report. Journal 1904, page 233. It will be observed that the sole question raised was that of districting the General Superintendents—to district a Bishop without defining his power beyond his district is to confine him to his district and to create a diocesan Bishop. Whatever the intention of the mover of the resolution might have been that was the proposal which he submitted and upon which the Committee on Judiciary was asked to report. The Committee submitted its report and on May 17 it was adopted. Journal, 1904, page 315. T. B. Neely moved as a substitute for the report of the Committee the following resolution, which was voted down:

Resolved: That, as to the assignment of General Superintendents by the General Conference to special sections or districts in the United States for a quadrennium, there is nothing in the Constitution of the Church to prevent the exercise of such power by the General Conference, but that it is merely a matter of expediency to be determined according to the judgment of the General Conference.

The Committee on Judiciary in its report evidently understood that it was reporting on a diocesan system of episcopacy, for in its report it stated the matter as follows:

"The resolution evidently contemplates a unional division of our church work, for the purposes of Episcopal supervision, to each part of which a General Superintendent must be confined. The proposition, therefore, upon which we are called upon to pass is whether, under our organic law, such a limitation of their fields of itinerancy, legally, can be imposed upon the Board of Active Bishops." And the Committee reported that in its opinion the plan proposed would necessarily operate to "destroy" the "plan of our itinerant general superintendency." Reports of Committee on Judiciary, page 98.

In that conclusion we are in full accord—but that decision and the action of the Conference thereon must be confined to the exact question which was decided and it has no bearing whatever upon the question which the General Conference has now submitted to us and upon which we are now reporting. If the existing law on the Area System creates a diocesan system and confines the Bishops to a particular locality we would have no hesitancy whatsoever in advising the General Conference that it is unconstitutional and void on the ground that it is contrary to the Restrictive Rule in paragraph 46, subdivision 3 which declares that "The General Conference shall not change nor alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away with episcopacy, nor destroy the plan of our itinerant General Superintendency." The itinerant General Superintendency is a distinctive and characteristic feature of Methodist Episcopacy and the General Conference is prohibited from substituting for it a localized supervision. If the Area System, as now established, has changed our itinerant General Superintendency into a localized superintendency it is clearly illegal—but we do not think that the existing Area System has had any such effect. It was not intended to establish and has not established a diocesan system of Episcopacy. The Bishops are still as they ever have been, General Superintendents. They so regard themselves and are so regarded by the Church.

The Bishops still have the power to assign any one of their number to preside over the Annual Conference outside of their particular area. In the interest of efficiency of administration and of continuity of administration the Area System was devised. What was intended was not to destroy the General Superintendency but to make it possible for the Bishops to exercise a more intensive leadership in the Church. A diocesan Bishop or a localized Bishop is not a General Superintendent. His power is limited and confined to his diocese or to his locality and he has no powers which he can exercise beyond it. Any such system is plainly unconstitutional as it destroys the itinerant General Superintendency, which is quite beyond the power of the General Conference to abrogate.

But the General Conference has not deprived our Bishops of the right to exercise the powers of their office outside of their respective areas. Any one of the Bishops may still be designated to preside over any one of our Conferences wherever such Conference exists in any part of the world. He may preside and make the appointments as fully as he could before the present Area System was established. And there is no power in the General Conference to deprive him of such rights. There is no power in the General Conference to confine a Bishop to a particular area and to forbid his exercise of the powers of a Bishop beyond a particular area, but this the General Conference has not done.

From 1784 to 1808 the powers of the General Conference were absolute and unrestricted. But in 1808 the General Conference provided for a delegated General Conference which was to meet in 1812 and every four years thereafter. It imposed upon such General Conferences what we know as the Restrictive Rules which have continued in force from that day to this unchanged. It was on May 24, 1808, that Jesse Lee moved and William Burke, also of Virginia, seconded the motion "that the next General Conference shall not change or alter any part or rule of our government, so as to do away episcopacy, or to destroy the plan of our itinerant General Superintendency." It was adopted and ever since has been in the Constitution of the Church with two slight verbal changes, the word "next" having been omitted and the word "or" having been changed to "nor."

At the General Conference of 1824, one hundred years ago, and within sixteen years of the adoption of the Restrictive Rule herein involved and in a Conference presided over by Bishop McKendree and in which sat Joshua Soule and Elijah Hedding, who were also members of the Committee on Episcopacy and who had drafted the Restrictive Rule, the Committee on Episcopacy reported as follows:

"Resolved: 4. That it is highly expedient for the General Superintendents at every session of the General Conference, and as far as to them may appear practicable, in the intervals of the sessions, annually, to meet in council to form their plan of traveling through their charge, whether in a circuit after each other or by dividing the connection into several episcopal departments as to them may appear proper and most conducive to the general good, and the better to enable them fully to perform the great work of their administration in the General Superintendency and to exchange and unite their views upon all affairs connected with the general interests of the Church." It does not appear to have occurred to the author of the Restrictive

Rule or to any member of that General Conference that the suggestion to divide "the connection into several departments" would "destroy the plan of our Itinerant General Superintendency." And if it did not we fail to see how the Area System can be said to have that effect.

The Church from the beginning has had an itinerant ministry. Division III, Chapter I, Article 3, declares that "the traveling preachers shall be organized" into Annual Conference. Once they had to be changed every six months; now our ministers sometimes hold the same appointment for as long a period as twenty-five years, but the system of an Itinerant Ministry and of traveling preachers has not been abrogated and still continues.

Again, ¶ 253 provides that "Any member of an Annual Conference who shall hold religious service within the bounds of any pastoral charge, when requested by the preacher in charge not to hold such service, shall be deemed guilty of imprudent conduct." If he does not refrain from such conduct after admonition he is liable to be put on trial. No one has suggested that this provision is destructive of our system of an itinerant ministry, and that because of it our ministers have ceased to be traveling preachers. But under the Area System as it now exists the Board of Bishops may, without the consent of the Bishop residing within a particular area, assign any one of their number for reasons satisfactory to themselves, to preside over a Conference within such area. The Board may still assign any one of their number to hold Annual Conferences outside of their areas for reasons which seem to them "necessary and desirable." See page 535 of the Discipline.

In 1908 the General Conference passed a resolution in which it was said: "We respectfully request the Bishops if they shall find it practicable:

1. To arrange the Annual Conferences into groups covering contiguous territory.

2. To form several groups of Conferences into districts.

3. To assign the individual Bishops within said districts to preside for the ensuing quadrennium, in rotation, over the several Annual Conferences in such districts."

It is our opinion that the Bishops have no more right to violate the Constitution of the Church than has the General Conference. If the plan "recommended" was one which destroyed "the plan of our Itinerant General Superintendency," the Bishops could not adopt the plan and thereby destroy what the Constitution plainly intended should be forever maintained, in the absence of an amendment of the Constitution itself.

In 1912 the General Conference by its legislation established the Area System. It did directly what in effect it "recommended" to the Bishops in 1908.

Prior to 1896 the Bishops had been free to establish their episcopal residences wheresoever they chose, but the General Conference of that year designated certain cities as the places for episcopal residences, leaving the Bishops free to choose for themselves where they would reside, and the Bishops made their choice in their order of seniority. This they continued to do until 1904, when the General Conference began the practice of making the choice for them. And this it has ever since continued to do—but in all this we fail to discern that the General Conference has transcended its powers.

In conclusion we may say we have not overlooked and are not unfamiliar with the arguments made in the recent work of Bishop Neely's on Vital Points in the Methodist Episcopal Church. In it he argues against the constitutionality of the Area System. We fully agree with him in the following statement in his book that "General Superintendent Bishops cannot be legally localized in the United States or anywhere else. They are for the whole United States of America, and in it they are to have general functions and to itinerate at large." But much as we respect him, we must be permitted to say that the difficulty with his argument is that it does not appear to our satisfaction that the Bishops have been localized and cannot itinerate.

We therefore answer the question asked by saying that in our opinion the Area System as now existing is not unconstitutional.

REPORT NO. 3. VOTING BY ORDERS IN COMMITTEES

Your Committee on Judiciary has been asked:

"Is it legal to vote by orders in a General Conference Committee?"

Since the action of a Committee is not final and is subject to approval or rejection by the General Conference, we are of the opinion that the right does not exist to demand a vote by orders in a General Conference Committee. If granted, it is a matter of courtesy and not of right, and the vote cannot be considered in determining the final vote in committee.

Adopted, May 16.

REPORT NO. 4. STATUS OF A MINISTER LOCATED BY AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The General Conference has referred to the Committee on Judiciary the question of the status of a minister who has been located by an Annual Conference, particularly as relates to his ordination.

We would state that when a member of an Annual Conference has been located, whether by his own request or otherwise, he retains his orders until he voluntarily surrenders them, or is deprived of them by subsequent judicial procedure. His status becomes that of a local preacher who has been ordained, with all the rights and privileges of such ordained local preacher, and the further right and privilege of re-admission to an Annual Conference in accordance with the provisions of ¶ 169 of the Discipline.

Adopted, May 16.

REPORT NO. 5. CASE OF J. L. BEATTY OF OREGON CONFERENCE

J. L. Beatty complains that the record of his case in the Journal of the Oregon Conference is incomplete and that he has been unjustly deprived of membership in that body; it is plain that the remedy lies with the Oregon Conference.

The Secretary of the Oregon Conference at the time of the alleged withdrawal of the appellant certifies to the correctness of the statements in his complaint.

We are of the opinion that the brother had the right to recall the withdrawal he had placed in the hands of his District Superintendent prior to action by the Annual Conference on the same or to be placed on trial on any charges, or complaints made against him. This opinion is supported by the restrictive rule of the constitution of the Church which secures to ministers the right of trial in the Annual Conference and by the Judicial decision of the General Conference of 1880, cited on page 34 of the "Reports of the Committee on Judiciary," which declares that "the withdrawal of a minister is not complete until the Conference with which he was connected takes action upon it."

We are also of the opinion that the record of his withdrawal in the Journal of the Conference should not be regarded as final or as a bar to a further review of the case and we recommend that a careful review of all the facts be made by the Conference and that he be restored to membership in the Church and Conference if the facts shall be found to warrant such action.

REPORT NO. 6. ELECTION OF DISTRICT SUPERINTENDENTS MAJORITY REPORT

The Committee on Judiciary has been instructed by the General Conference to report its opinion on the question, "Has the General Conference power to order the Election of District Superintendents?"

We answer that in our opinion the General Conference has no such power. We proceed to state the reasons which have led us to our conclusion.

The office of Presiding Elder, now known as that of the District Superintendent, has existed as long as our Church has existed. The office was never regularly established by the General Conference until 1792 when the Conference determined that there should be Presiding Elders; and that they should be chosen, stationed and changed by the Bishop, but before that action was taken by the General Conference the Bishop on his own authority had appointed such officials. Doctor Buckley in his Constitutional History of the Methodist Episcopal Church discusses this subject at some length and on page 330 says:

"No one denies that ever since Presiding Elders have existed, the Bishops alone have had this power, and have used it in every instance. No Presiding Elder has ever been elected or appointed by an Annual or General Conference since the Constitution was formed. No Conference has ever fixed the number or bounds of its districts." His statement shows that he is speaking of the practice which has prevailed, since the Constitution was adopted. Prior to the time and immediately after the Church was organized the General Conference elected twelve Presiding Elders. See Baker on the Discipline (1881), page 64.

It is evident that prior to 1796 the Bishop was making the appointments of Presiding Elders. This appears from the fact that the Journal of 1796 is silent on the subject and that the Journal of 1800 shows that on May 7, it was moved that the yearly Conferences be authorized to nominate and elect their own Presiding Elders. (Journal, page 32.) It was made the order of the day for May 13, and on that day was considered and voted down. (Journal, page 1800.) In 1804 it was moved that there be no Presiding Elders. The motion was lost. (Journal, page 54.) The question as to the manner of their appointment did not come before that Conference. In 1808, on May 16, it was proposed that each Annual Conference should annually choose by ballot its own Presiding Elders. The motion was defeated on May 18, Ayes 52, Nays 73.

That was prior to the adoption of the Constitution. In 1812, which was after the Constitution had been adopted, the proposition again came up and was again defeated. In 1816 it once more came up and was again defeated, and a resolution declaring that the election of Presiding Elders was not contrary to the Constitution was voted down. In 1820 the question reappeared. In that year the General Conference passed a resolution, the effect of which was to withdraw from the Bishops the power to appoint Presiding Elders. The same Conference had elected Joshua Soule to be a Bishop. In 1808 he had taken part in drafting and adopting the Restrictive Rule. It was his conviction that the resolution withdrawing from the Bishops the power to appoint the Presiding Elders violated the Restrictive Rule and he announced to the Conference that he would not be bound by the resolution taking from the Bishops the power to appoint Presiding Elders. He declined the Episcopal office in a letter which he addressed to the Bishops stating that the action taken violated the Constitution of the Church; he wrote: "I solemnly declare and could appeal to the searcher of hearts for the sincerity of my intentions, that I cannot act as Superintendent under the rules this day made and established by the General Conference."

It also appears that Bishop Roberts, who became a Bishop in 1816, shared the views of Bishops McKendree and Soule that the proposed legislation violated the Restrictive Rule and was unconstitutional. The General Conference thereupon adopted a resolution suspending until the next General Conference could pass upon it, the resolution withdrawing from the Bishops the power to appoint. Between 1820 and 1824 the question of constitutionality was submitted to the Annual Conferences and they held that the resolution of 1820 was unconstitutional. Thereupon the General Conference of 1824 passed a resolution declaring that the resolution passed in 1820 was not of authority and should not be carried into effect. The resolution of 1824, which was adopted, read: "Whereas, a majority of the Annual Conferences have judged the resolutions making Presiding Elders elective, and which were passed and then suspended at the last General Conference, unconstitutional; therefore, Resolved, That the said resolutions are not of authority and shall not be carried into effect." (Journal, page 278.) And in 1828 the General Conference formally rescinded the resolution passed in 1820.

The General Conference of 1824 having declared the resolution of 1820 unconstitutional again elected Joshua Soule a Bishop and he accepted the election and was consecrated. Soule's opinion that the resolution of 1820 was unconstitutional is entitled to much respect, for Tigert in his history of Methodism states that Soule was himself the author of the Constitution of the Methodist Episcopal Church, including the third Restrictive Rule, which is the one herein involved.

It also appears that Bishop McKendree, who sat in the Conference of 1808 which adopted the Constitution, shared Soule's view of the unconstitutionality of the resolution of 1820 providing for the election of Presiding Elders, and when the question of its unconstitutionality was before the Annual Conferences he addressed a communication to them in which he declared that "It would effectually transfer the executive authority from the Bishops to the Annual Conferences, and thereby do away with that form of Episcopacy and itinerant General Superintendency which is recognized in our Form of Discipline and confirmed in the third article of the Constitution."

Bishop Paine of the Church South in his "Life of Bishop McKendree" states as his conclusion concerning the action of the General Conference of 1820 that it was an attempt "To invest the Annual Conferences with power to elect Presiding Elders—all of which are unknown to our Form of Discipline, to the Constitution of the Church and to Episcopal Methodism." Asbury evidently shared the same conviction. In his Journal under date of July 21, 1811, he wrote: "It is said the wise men in the New York Conference have discovered that it will be far better to elect the Presiding Elders in the Conference and give them the power of stationing the preachers. I suppose we shall have more of this. If the preachers take any specific power, right or privilege from the Bishops which the General Conference may have given them it is clear that they dissolve the whole control." This was said three years after the Constitution was adopted.

The matter again came before the General Conference in 1876 on a report from the Committee on Itinerancy. The majority reported that to take from the Bishops the power to appoint Presiding Elders would be unconstitutional. The minority report which asserted the contrary was defeated by 195 to 123. Since that action was taken no serious attempt has been made in General Conference to take from the Episcopacy the power to appoint the District Superintendents.

In 1888 the Committee on Judiciary had referred to it the question: "May the Discipline be so changed, without resort to the Restrictive Rule processes, as:

'1. To authorize the election of Presiding Elders by the Annual Conferences.'"

It answered the question as follows:

"No. Such assumption of authority would in the opinion of a majority of your Committee, be in violation of the Third Restrictive Rule. The Constitution of the Church places the election and appointment of the Presiding Elders in the hands of the Bishops, and to restrict their prerogatives in this particular, except by the constitutional process, would be an infraction of the organic law of the Church."

There was also referred the following:

"May the Discipline be so changed, without resort to the Restrictive Rule process, as:

'2. To give the Presiding Elders coordinate authority with the Bishops in fixing the appointments of the preachers?'"

The answer was:

"No. By the organic law of the Church the Bishop alone is charged with the responsibility of 'fixing the appointments,' and cannot be relieved of this responsibility except in the way provided by the Constitution."

A minority report was submitted but was upon other questions and contains no reference to the two questions above mentioned. The opinion therefore appears to have been unanimous on the subject of the Presiding Eldership.

The report never reached a vote in the General Conference. The report was laid on the table which simply left the matter undecided on the merits. (See Reports of the Committee on Judiciary, page 257.)

It seems proper to point out that in the civil courts no principle of law is better established than that a long period of practical construction by legislative and executive departments charged with the duty of administering a constitutional provision is to be followed by the courts in cases of doubt and unless it is clear that the practical construction is repugnant to the language of the Constitution and the intent of its framers. We think this principle is applicable to the question upon which we are now reporting to you our conclusion.

Those who differ with us in our conclusion attach the greatest importance to the action taken by the General Conference in 1820 which provided that the Bishop should nominate three times the number of Presiding Elders to be selected and that the Conference should then elect by ballot without debate the number wanted. (Journal, page 221.)

We do not understand why the emphasis is put on a resolution which the Conference which passed it so much doubted that it was never allowed to be put into effect and was finally repealed. Neither do we understand why the action of the Conference of 1816, which specifically declared that the plan for the election of Presiding Elders was unconstitutional (Journal, p. 164), as well as the action of the Annual Conferences, a majority of which also so voted, and the action of the General Conference of 1824, which so declared, and the action of the General Conference of 1828, which formally rescinded the action of 1820, and the consistent practice of the Church from a time prior to 1796 to the present is to be brushed aside as without significance and as of no controlling importance while that of 1820 is cited as decisive.

This brings us to inquire into what was the plan of our Episcopacy when the Constitution was adopted in 1808 and which the Constitution protects? To answer that question we must revert to a consideration of the powers which were incident to the office at the time when the Constitution was adopted.

The Discipline of 1808, Section 5, answers the question for us, in so far as the presiding eldership is concerned. It reads as follows:

“Of the Presiding Elders and of their Duty—

Question 1—By whom are the Presiding Elders to be chosen?

Answer 1—By the Bishops.

Question 2—What are the duties of a Presiding Elder?

Answer 1—To travel through his appointed district.

Answer 2—In the absence of the Bishop, to take charge of all the Elders and Deacons, Traveling and Local Preachers, and Exhorters in his district.

Answer 3—To change, receive, and suspend Preachers in his district during the intervals of the Conferences, and in the absence of a Bishop, as the Discipline directs.

8—To attend the Bishops when present in his district; and to give them, when absent, all necessary information, by letter, of his district.

Question 3—By whom are the Presiding Elders to be stationed and changed?

Answer—By the Bishops."

It is evident that at the time the Restrictive Rules were adopted taking from the General Conference the power to "change" or "alter" any part of rule of our government so as to do away with Episcopacy, it was a part of the plan that the Bishop should appoint and station the Presiding Elders. That power belonged to him just as much as did the power to appoint the Ministers to their Charges.

It is also evident that the Presiding Elder had power in the absence of the Bishop "to change and receive and suspend preachers" in his district and was clothed with some of the Episcopal power in the absence of the Bishop. The work of a District Superintendent is and always has been closely associated with that of a Bishop, whose assistant he is and always has been in his Episcopal work. He is his adviser in the work of the Episcopal office. It is his duty to familiarize himself with the work of the District which he superintends. He reports to the Bishop in regard to the Pastors, the charges, and the conditions of the work. Through him a Bishop is enabled to have a direct and continuous local supervision of the work.

The Bishop appoints the Ministers to pastoral charges annually after consultation with the District Superintendents. He also appoints the District Superintendents. (§ 208 of the Discipline.) Each of these powers he has exercised practically from the time the Church was organized. It will hardly be claimed that he can be deprived of the power to appoint the Ministers to their charges. To do that plainly would be to do away with the plan of our Episcopacy as it existed when the Constitution was adopted. It is not less true that to deprive him of the power to appoint the District Superintendents which he exercised prior to the adoption of the Constitution and ever since is equally an alteration of the plan "so as to do away with Episcopacy" in part. And it cannot be done in part at one time and in part at another. If the Bishop can be deprived of the power to appoint District Superintendents why can he not also be deprived of the power to appoint Ministers? We confess our own inability to make the distinction. And if he be deprived of the power to appoint the Presiding Elders and of the Ministers, what is left of our Episcopacy except the right to travel?

To deprive the Bishop of his power to appoint and station the Presiding Elders which he undoubtedly possessed when the Restrictive Rule was adopted to that extent "changes" or "alters" a "part or rule of our government so as to do away Episcopacy." As well might the power to appoint the Ministers to their charges be withdrawn, as being no part of our Episcopacy. The Presiding Elders constitute the Cabinet of the Bishop. It seems to us that it is within his Episcopal prerogative to say who shall compose it. This power the Church allowed he possessed practically from the first and probably because it was important that the men who are his official advisers had to be those in whose wisdom and judgment he himself had confidence.

We summarize our conclusion as follows:

1. It is incontrovertible that during the entire period since the Constitution was adopted, and even prior thereto, with the exception of a few brief years immediately following the organization of the Church in 1784 when we really had as yet no "established plan of government," the power to appoint the Presiding Elders has been exercised solely by the Bishop residing in the Conference. This is a practical admission that the appointing power resides in the Bishop and ought not now to be departed from unless it be free from doubt that it is not a part of our Episcopacy. We are totally unable to see how it can be said that it is absolutely clear and beyond all doubt that it is no part of our Episcopacy.

2. At the time the Constitution was adopted the power to appoint the Presiding Elders in the Districts was in the Bishop who presided over the Annual Conference within which the Districts existed. It was as much a part of the plan of our Episcopacy as was the power to make the appointments of the Preachers to Pastoral Charges. To withdraw the power to appoint the Presiding Elders is to alter the plan of our Episcopacy, as much so as it would be to withdraw the power to appoint the Ministers to their charges.

3. In deciding the legal question submitted it must be determined without regard to the wisdom or unwisdom, the expediency or in expediency of some other method of appointing the District Superintendents. If the General Conference thinks that some other method of selecting District Superintendents is desirable there is a method by which that result can be accomplished, and the Constitution respected and obeyed. That method is provided for in the Constitution itself, which authorizes amendments to be made to it in accordance with ¶ 47 of the Discipline.

It is clear that under the Constitution the General Conference is without power to authorize the election of District Superintendents.

Adopted, May 24.

MINORITY REPORT

The Committee on Judiciary has been instructed by the General Conference to report its opinion on the question "Has the General Conference power to order the election of District Superintendents?"

We answer that in our opinion the General Conference has full power. We proceed to state the reasons which have led us to our conclusion.

In considering the acts of any legislative body it is presumed that all its acts are constitutional and all its acts in fact are constitutional, unless it can be clearly established that any one of them is unconstitutional, and it is so declared by a competent court.

This is particularly true of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for while nearly all legislative bodies have only such authority as is specifically given to them, the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church has all authority except that which is specifically denied. This fact must be clearly recognized, for it is in accordance not only with the practice of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but it was definitely and legally determined by the Supreme Court of the United States in 1853 at the December term.

Therefore, it is clear that the General Conference has sovereign power except as limited by the so-called six restrictive rules. We are concerned now with only one of these, the third. It reads, "The General Conference shall not change nor alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away Episcopacy, nor destroy the plan of our Itinerant General Superintendency." Does this definitely and specifically forbid the General Conference from authorizing the election of District Superintendents? We cannot see that it has any bearing on that subject. But it is not for any individual or group of individuals, nor for any committee whatever its name, to decide the question. The General Conference is judge of the constitutionality of its own acts. It never yet has decided the election of Presiding Elders or District Superintendents unconstitutional. Hence until this day such election is constitutional and will continue to be constitutional until the General Conference shall by vote declare otherwise.

In examining the history of the case it abundantly appears not only that no General Conference ever declared the election of District Superintendents, or, as they were first called, Presiding Elders, unconstitutional, but it also abundantly appears that, for many years after the adoption of this restrictive rule every General Conference acted on the assumption that they were entirely free to authorize the election of Presiding Elders if they considered it for the best interests of the work to do so. Clearly, had these General Conferences considered themselves constitutionally prohibited from selecting Presiding Elders, they would not have wasted this time by so long and so earnestly debating the desirability of thus electing. Indeed in 1820 the General Conference voted to begin electing forthwith by a vote of 61 to 25.

The General Conference of 1808 provided that thereafter General Conferences should be delegated, and adopted the restrictive rules including the one now under consideration. It was interested in the question of the desirability of electing Presiding Elders, and Ezekiel Cooper moved that "each Annual Conference respectively, without debate, shall annually choose, by ballot, its own Presiding Elders." After several hours of debate, extending over two days, this proposition was lost by a vote of 52 to 73. Now it does not seem at all probable that that General Conference of 1808, so nearly evenly divided on the question of the desirability of electing Presiding Elders, could have consented to adopt a restrictive rule which would forbid all subsequent General Conferences from authorizing such election if they chose to do so, particularly as this same Cooper, favorable to election of Presiding Elders, was one of the committee of three which drafted the Constitution. And had it been the intention to prohibit such election, words could easily have been found which would say so clearly and definitely. No such words were used.

The next General Conference was in 1812, the first delegated General Conference, the first General Conference working under this restrictive rule. Did this General Conference understand that it had no constitutional power to provide for the election of Presiding Elders? By no means. For it was moved that Presiding Elders be elected by the Annual Conferences, and after much discussion it was finally defeated by the close vote of 42 to 45. So it is evident that the first General Conference which worked under the restrictive rule in question had no notion that the election of Presiding Elders would be illegal, and if two men had changed their votes to the affirmative, the election of Presiding Elders would have begun forthwith.

It would seem that that General Conference, sitting the very year the Constitution was put in operation, ought to have known what the Constitution meant, and ought to have known far more about it than a General Conference sitting a hundred years afterward.

The next General Conference met in 1816. Did it understand that the third restrictive rule forbade the election of Presiding

Elders? By no means. It considered the matter for several days, which would have been time wasted and the height of folly had they understood that such election was unconstitutional. In discussing the desirability of such election they were much embarrassed by the presence of the Bishop in the chair, so they went into committee of the whole, with one of their own number presiding, and the Bishop out of the room, leaving them free to speak. A proposition introduced by Merwin providing for the election of Presiding Elders on nomination of the Bishop was finally lost by a vote of 42 to 60. Nine days later the same man introduced a resolution in which occur these words, "The motion relative to the election and appointment of Presiding Elders is not contrary to the Constitution of our Church." This negative motion was lost. It reveals the fact that in discussing the general proposition of electing, those opposed to it, in using every argument at their command made the claim of unconstitutionality for whatever it might be worth. Merwin's negative motion was lost, but such disposition of it did not mean that election of Presiding Elders was declared unconstitutional.

Indeed when the next General Conference met, in 1820, it is perfectly clear that it considered such election constitutional, and it proceeded to act on that basis. Feeling was running high. After considerable debate a resolution was introduced by Bangs and Capers, two great leaders of the Conference, the first favoring election and the other opposing. This joint resolution proposed the appointment of a committee consisting of three from each side, to confer with the Bishops and Bishop-elect Soule, and see whether they could devise something which would conciliate the brethren. The committee was ordered and the next day brought in its report. That report recommended that when Presiding Elders were to be chosen the Bishop should nominate three times the number needed, and from these nominations the Annual Conference would elect. This resolution thus to elect was adopted by a vote of 61 to 25. Carefully note not only that the General Conference wanted to provide for such election, but particularly note that the Conference was perfectly clear that it was not forbidden by the third restrictive rule, or by anything else. If they, eight years after the Constitution went into effect, so understood its terms, it would seem strange if this present General Conference should presume to understand it better, and give it an opposite meaning.

These brethren of 1820, after thus providing for the election of Presiding Elders by so great a majority, doubtless thought their troubles were over, but not so. A few days before they had elected Joshua Soule to the Episcopacy. For many years he had been opposed to the election of Presiding Elders. He now declared he would not consider himself bound by the action of the General Conference. The tension in the Conference was very great. After some delay he tendered his resignation and it was accepted. Near the close of the Conference a motion was passed to suspend the operation of the Conference action for four years.

Then followed a strange procedure, without authority of law. The senior Bishop presented to each Annual Conference a long address, arguing rather pathetically against the desirability of electing Presiding Elders, and claiming its unconstitutionality, and asking them to pass resolutions in conformity with his position. Seven Annual Conferences passed various and varying resolutions on the subject, and he reported them as favoring the unconstitutionality of such election, but of course such resolutions, even though alike, which they were not, had no legal standing, for they did not even purport to be voted on a Constitutional question. And five Annual Conferences recognizing the informality of the procedure, declined to take any action at all. These were the New England, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Genesee. So we must clearly recognize that these resolutions, passed by the seven Annual Conferences, especially under such circumstances, have no legal bearing whatever. Indeed when the next General Conference met in 1824, and all these matters were again brought forward, the final action taken on the last day, was to adopt a resolution reading, "It is the sense of this General Conference that the suspended resolutions, making the Presiding Elder elective, etc., are considered unfinished business and are neither to be inserted in the revised form of the Discipline nor to be carried into operation before the next General Conference." It is plain that the election of Presiding Elders was still Constitutional, and the opinion of the Bishops, interested parties, has no legal standing. Also, as a matter of fact, the Bishops were divided in their opinion.

We come next to the General Conference of 1828. It adopted a resolution as a substitute for the so-called suspended resolutions, which substitute read, "Resolved, etc., that the resolutions commonly called the suspended resolutions, rendering the Presiding Elders elective, etc., and which were referred to this Conference as unfinished business, and reported to us at this Conference, be, and the same are hereby rescinded and made void." But such election was still constitutional. At this Conference Joshua Soule was again elected to the Episcopacy, on the second ballot, by a majority of one, and remained with us until he went with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. And at this Conference another resolution to elect Presiding Elders was presented, but was laid on the table.

As far as General Conference action is concerned the matter was not again brought up for forty-eight years, but the refusal to elect Presiding Elders resulted in the greatest withdrawal from the Church which ever occurred in its history.

The subject is again brought forward in 1876, not by any report from the Committee on Judiciary, which was that year established, but through a report from the Committee on Itinerancy, but after several parliamentary moves the legal status remained unchanged—the election of Presiding Elders was still constitutional. The only other time it reappears until this General Conference was in 1888. At that General Conference the following question was submitted to the Committee on Judiciary: “May the Discipline be so changed, without resort to the Restrictive Rule processes, as to authorize the election of Presiding Elders by the Annual Conferences?” The answer given in the report of the Committee on Judiciary is exactly as follows: “No. Such assumption of power would, in the opinion of a majority of your Committee, be in violation of the third restrictive rule. The Constitution of the Church places the selection and appointment of Presiding Elders in the hands of the Bishops, and to restrict their prerogatives in this particular, except by the constitutional process, would be an infraction of the organic law of the Church.” It must be here noted that the Committee does not attempt to settle the matter by citing any decision made by any previous General Conference, making the election of Presiding Elders unconstitutional, for the simple reason there was no such decision to cite. But what was done with the report of the committee? The General Conference repudiated it by laying it on the table, and never took it off.

This decisive action is notable. Also, note that under authority of the General Conference of 1920 a volume has been published by The Methodist Book Concern this year entitled “Reports of the Committee on Judiciary.” It contains, besides these reports, all rulings of the Bishops, and all judicial proceedings from 1792 to 1920 inclusive. It is a very valuable volume, and most carefully prepared. It contains no record of any judicial proceeding calling in question the constitutionality of the election of Presiding Elders except this one report in 1888, which the General Conference so summarily rejected. This exhaustive volume was edited by Arthur Benton Sanford, and Henry Wade Rogers, advisory editor.

It is clear that under the Constitution the General Conference has full power to authorize the election of District Superintendents.

REPORT NO. 7. NECESSITY FOR MINISTERS IN DETACHED SERVICE TO REPORT MARRIAGES AND BAPTISMS

The Judiciary Committee has been asked by the New Jersey Annual Conference to answer this question—"Is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church in detached service required to report marriages, baptisms and funerals at which he officiates to the Quarterly Conference in order that they may be recorded on the Church records?" The Bishop holding the Conference answered the question as follows: "¶ 188 of the Discipline, page 148, § 3, requires that every Retired Minister shall report to the Fourth Quarterly Conference and to the pastor all marriages solemnized and all baptisms administered. This rule applies to all other ministers temporarily or permanently in detached service."

We are in accord with this answer that it is mandatory on all Ministers to report their official conduct in these matters to the Fourth Quarterly Conference. ¶ 208, § 3, provides that the Bishop may appoint Ministers to detached service provided the District Superintendent so recommends and the recommendation is concurred in by two-thirds of the Annual Conference. These appointments may or may not be within the Methodist Church, hence the name "detached service." While ¶ 208 does not refer in specific words to retired preachers as does ¶ 188, page 148, the act of appointment has the effect of the retired relation and is such by legal construction.

Therefore, we regard the application of the principle as set out in ¶ 188, page 148, proper to the question involved.

REPORT NO. 8. APPEAL OF MILTON L. BENNETT

Your Committee on Judiciary having considered the appeal of Milton L. Bennett of the Detroit Conference from the alleged action of the Bishop in placing certain conditions and restrictions on the appellant during his pastorate at the First Church of Highland Park, Michigan, during 1921 and 1922; in removing him from the pastorate of the church at Grayling, Michigan, in the Fall of 1922 and in failing to grant appellant a leave of absence at the meeting of the Detroit Conference in 1923, reports as follows:

That in suggesting to appellant the conditions of December 24, 1921, as conditions absolutely requisite for his retaining the pastorate of the First Church of Highland Park, Michigan, the Bishop acted for the best interests of the appellant and the church he was serving; that appellant was under no compulsion to accept said condition but was at liberty to reject same if he saw fit so to do; that he did accept same and agree to abide by the terms thereof and in so doing he waived any rights or privileges granted him as pastor by ¶ 182 and other sections of the Discipline more particularly referred to in the complaint; that it does not appear from the evidence submitted to your Committee that the Bishop was imposing an unnecessary hardship on appellant or acting unfairly in demanding that appellant either move his family to Grayling, Michigan, or that he quit the charge; that appellant according to his own testimony chose to quit the pastorate at Grayling, Michigan, rather than move his family from Detroit to Grayling; that the matter of leave of absence for appellant at the Conference session of 1923 was not properly put before the Bishop, hence could not receive action on his part; that the written and oral evidence submitted to your Committee in this case does not sustain the allegations and charges contained in the complaint.

In the opinion of your Committee the appeal should be dismissed.

REPORT NO. 9. APPROPRIATION BY COMMISSION ON FINANCE

Appeal of Andrew W. Shamel, a member of the Southern California Annual Conference, from a decision by the Presiding Bishop, on a question of law propounded by appellant and answered during the session of the Southern California Conference, October 2, 1923.

This is an appeal by Andrew W. Shamel, a member of the Southern California Annual Conference, from the decision of the Presiding Bishop, of a question of law propounded by appellant of the Bishop during a session of the Conference and answered by the Bishop.

The question and the answer made thereto, as each appears in the minutes of the proceedings of said Annual Conference, is before us in the form of a copy of said minutes duly certified by the Secretary of said Conference transmitted by him to the Secretary of the General Conference pursuant to the requirements of the Discipline. (¶ 313, § 14.)

From the minutes it appears that the appellant served notice of "his appeal to the Judiciary Committee of the General Conference from the ruling." In passing we may say that appeals should not be taken to the Judiciary Committee of the General Conference, there being no authorization of such practice in the Discipline. Appeals being not a matter of right, but of grace, must be prosecuted in the manner provided by the law, authorizing such appeal. However, the record having been referred to us in the usual way by the Secretary of the General Conference, we assume it was forwarded to and came into the possession of, the General Conference, pursuant to law, and is properly before us. (¶ 313, §§ 13, 14.)

The question is as follows:

"Is it legal for the Commission on Finance organized under ¶ 328, to make a gift to the District Superintendents out of surplus funds, after their salaries have been paid in full?

(a) Should not any surplus in this fund be pro-rated among the retired preachers and pastors who have not been paid in full?

(b) Or retained in the treasury as a surplus to be expended on the claims of the following year?"

The answer, exclusive of an extended recital of the record of the Commission on Finance of the Conference, and certain alleged facts, constituting what the Bishop denominated a special emergency, was as follows:

"Therefore in view of the fact that the intent of the law is that the Conference Commission on Finance shall provide for an adequate support for the District Superintendents, and that it is the only authorized body that could meet any emergency such as that due to failure to receive passes on the railroads for three months, or any other emergency that might arise, therefore, the Chair would rule that in view of the unusual circumstances obtaining at the time to which reference is made in the request for ruling, the Commission acted within its rights, and in making special appropriations to certain District Superintendents on the basis of the existing emergency, out of certain balance in their possession, they performed their duty in loyalty to all interests concerned, and no censure can justly be brought against the Commission for appropriating, or the District Superintendents for receiving, such amounts as are designated in the action of the Commission."

The question as propounded was not answered directly, but the answer is based upon an alleged emergency arising after the estimate of the amount necessary to furnish a sufficient and equitable support for the District Superintendent was made by the Commission on Finance and apportioned among the several pastoral charges. The fact that the appellant did not insist on his specific question being answered at the time the ruling was made, but apparently acquiesced in the form, though not the correctness of the answer, and that the record fails to disclose what Pastors and Retired Preachers, if any, have not been paid in full and the amount of the several deficiencies, if any, we must presume that the appellant concurred in the form in which the question was answered but dissented from, and denied the correctness of, said ruling.

The Discipline provides that there shall be held annually, in every district, a meeting of District Stewards, whose duty it shall be, with the advice of the District Superintendents presiding in such district stewards meeting "to make an estimate of the amount necessary to furnish a comfortable support for the District Superintendent and to apportion the same, including House Rent, and Traveling Expenses, and also the claims for the support of Conference Claimants and Bishops as apportioned to the District by the Annual Conference among the pastoral charges in the Districts, according to their several ability, and in all cases the District Superintendent shall share with the pastors in his district in proportion to what they have respectively received."

Provisions, relative to collection and distribution of the amount of said several apportionments, not pertinent to the questions involved in the matter at bar, follow. (§ 327.)

As an alternative to the plan provided in § 327 above referred to, any Annual Conference might, and the Southern California Conference did, adopt the plan provided for in § 328 of the Discipline. This plan in substance provided for a Commission on Finance to consist of the several District Superintendents together with one minister and two laymen from each district, the duty of which is stated to be "to make an estimate of the amount necessary to furnish a sufficient and equitable support for the District Superintendents of each District in the Conference," to "apportion the sum required to be raised for this purpose among the charges on such basis as the Conference may direct," and also to "apportion to the charges, on the same basis, the amount assigned the district for the support of Bishops and Conference Claimants." (§§ 4 and 6, § 328.)

It is further provided that "the amount apportioned to each pastoral charge for the support of District Superintendents shall be a pro-rata claim with that of Bishops, Pastor, and Conference Claimants." (§ 7, § 328.)

The provisions of §§ 327 and 328 are quite similar, and the purposes of each, to wit: providing funds for ministerial support, are identical. The only substantial difference is, that under § 327, the estimate, apportionment and collection of the fund is by the District Stewards: in § 328, by the Conference Commission on Finance.

§ 327 requires the District Stewards to furnish "a comfortable support" for the District Superintendent, and § 328 requires the Commission to furnish "a sufficient and equitable support" for the District Superintendent.

We think the same result was intended to be accomplished by each of these paragraphs and that each should be interpreted with reference to provisions of the other.

The record discloses that in 1918-1919 the salary of each of the District Superintendents was fixed by the Commission at $3,750 per year and that said salaries were paid in full. It also appears from the records that the Commission on Finance at its meeting held October 15th, 1918, subsequent to the meeting of the Southern California Annual Conference for 1918, voted "The District Superintendents $250 each for traveling expenses if they did not receive their passes," thereby rebutting the presumption, if any existed, that said salaries were intended to include traveling expenses.

One of the duties of a District Superintendent is to travel throughout the district, and any estimate which, by reason of error, inadvertence, or mistake, fails to include traveling expenses would not be, in our opinion, the "sufficient and equitable support" contemplated by ¶ 328 of the Discipline.

It further appears from the record that said District Superintendents did not receive, and traveled without passes for three months, during which time the inference is, the expenses incident to such traveling were paid by them out of their personal funds. The additional allowance made to them, to which objection was and is made by the appellant, was to reimburse them for expenses so incurred, and other and additional expenses not contemplated by the Commission when the estimate and apportionment to the several pastoral charges was made. The answer of the presiding Bishop and his ruling was based on what he conceived to be the equity of the situation, and to effect the disciplinary requirement (hereinbefore referred to) of a sufficient and equitable support for the District Superintendents. In this ruling we concur. The additional sum paid to and received by the District Superintendents pursuant to the direction of the Commission on Finance, was paid out of a fund known as the General Ministerial Support Fund, and inasmuch as there is no showing in the record that any persons other than the District Superintendents were interested in said fund, or the rights of other persons were prejudiced by the action of said Commission in making the order complained of, we hold that in making the additional allowance to the District Superintendents, the Commission on Finance acted within the scope of its authority, and that such action was in accordance with, and not contrary to the provisions of the Discipline.

The rule is well established in appellate procedure that the action of the trial court is presumed to be correct and in accordance with law, and he who appeals from the judgment of the Court must show error therein.

The record fails to disclose any error and the decision of the presiding Bishop is affirmed.

REPORT No. 10. APPEAL OF WILLIAM HUNTER, JR.

William Hunter, Jr., a member of the Pittsburgh Annual Conference, after preliminary investigation was tried by a Select Number of his Conference and on October 9, 1922, he was convicted of "unministerial conduct" on three counts and was deprived of his "ministerial office and credentials." He has appealed to this General Conference alleging irregular and illegal proceedings in the preliminary investigation and trial and alleging that the penalty imposed is excessive. The Discipline, §§ 292-300 provides procedure by appeal to a Judicial Conference by a member of an Annual Conference under such circumstances. If this Judicial Conference decides against the accused he may, if aggrieved, appeal to the General Conference on questions of law. The Conference minutes show that Mr. Hunter appealed to a Judicial Conference. But the record does not show that a Judicial Conference was ever convened or ever took any action in the premises. The Judicial Conference has been established by the Church to avoid so far as possible the expense and delay attendant upon an appeal to the General Conference and to insure a better review of the case than this General Conference can give and its decision on question of fact is final. We are powerless to act at this time and the appeal is dismissed without prejudice to the accused to have his case reviewed by a Judicial Conference.

REPORT NO. 11. MAY A RETIRED MINISTER DRAWING AN ANNUITY SUPPLY A CHARGE AND RECEIVE A SALARY?

The Committee on Judiciary is requested to answer the following question:

Is it legal for a member of the Annual Conference who has taken the Retired Relation and is receiving his annuity claim from the Conference funds to accept a "supply" charge and receive a salary for the same?

We answer that it is legal. Two questions are here involved: First, is it legal for a Retired Minister to accept a supply charge and, second, is it legal for him to receive salary for such service if he receives his annuity claim at the same time?

We answer both questions in the affirmative for the following reasons: A preacher may be unable to carry the heavy work, continuous responsibility and the resulting nervous strain of a regular pastorate, and may still be able to supply a small charge which would otherwise be supplied by a student who could give only part of his time and energy or by a local preacher. Such a minister is clearly entitled to the Retired Relation, and to the privilege of supplying a charge in which the work is light. In many cases this is now done.

¶ 188, § 3, of the Discipline, uses this language, "Every Retired Minister who is not employed as Pastor of a charge, shall have a seat in the Quarterly Conference and all the privileges of membership in the Church where he resides." While this section does not declare the legality of the employment of a Retired Minister as a Pastor it very clearly recognizes its legality. May such Retired Minister receive salary for such work?

He is a pastor. The Discipline makes it imperative for the Church to pay for pastoral support. (See Discipline, ¶¶ 319-323.) There is nothing in our law, as there is nothing in reason, to prevent a Retired Minister from receiving compensation for pastoral service just as other ministers do.

REPORT No. 12. THE LIFE TENURE OF THE BISHOPS

The Committee on Judiciary has been instructed by the General Conference to report its opinion on the Constitutionality of a time limit on the Episcopacy.

We answer that in our opinion the General Conference has no power to place a time limit on the Episcopacy.

We proceed to state the reasons which have led us to that conclusion.

Before doing so, however, we think it proper to state that the question proposed is quite distinct from the right of a General Conference to place a Bishop on the retired list when it finds that he has ceased to be effective. In placing such a Bishop on the retired list he is still a Bishop and may perform such duties as the General Conference may authorize. The change from the Active Class of Bishops to the Retired Class is for "cause," and for what the law regards as "cause," we do not doubt that a General Conference might even deprive a Bishop of his office and a fortiori, if it can do that, it certainly can place him in the Retired Class if "cause" exists.

We also desire to point out that the question we are asked to answer is a Judicial question which we must answer on legal grounds alone, and that the General Conference in approving or disapproving our conclusion is acting solely as a Judicial body. In acting in that capacity neither this Committee nor the General Conference is entitled to consider whether it is wise or unwise to limit the tenure of the Bishops. If in the opinion of the Conference the tenure ought to be limited, and the General Conference is now without the power so to limit it, that end can be obtained by an amendment to the Constitution sent down and approved in the usual manner.

Let it also be understood that we do not assume or assert that everything which may have been included in the "plan" of our Church government in 1808 is so protected by our Constitution as to be beyond the power of the General Conference to amend or modify it. But the Restrictive Rule does not permit the General Conference to change or alter any part or rule of our government so as to "do away Episcopacy." To make legislation unconstitutional within the intent of that Rule it is not necessary that the legislation should by a single act abolish the Episcopal office in its entirety. We "do away Episcopacy," even though we continue the office of a Bishop if we deprive the Episcopal incumbent of the attributes inherent in the office. And it makes no difference whether this be done little by little or all at one time.

With these preliminary statements we now proceed to declare our reasons for thinking that it is beyond the power of the General Conference to elect Bishops for four, eight, or more or less years, and where the period of years is an arbitrary period having nothing to do with the effectiveness of the incumbent of the office.

The General Conference under the Constitution of our Church has "full power to make rules and regulations for the Church under the following limitations and restrictions." Among the limitations and restrictions thus imposed is that "The General Conference shall not change nor alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away Episcopacy, nor destroy the plan of our itinerant General Superintendency."

The American Methodists organized themselves into a Church at the "Christmas Conference" held at Baltimore in 1784, and they gave it the name of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America. They decided that it should be organized as an Episcopal Church and they called it the Methodist Episcopal Church to distinguish it from other Episcopal churches. They did not undertake to define what the word Episcopal meant. This was because the word was so well understood and had such an established meaning that it was thought unnecessary to define it.

It is a well settled and unquestioned principle of law that if a word or term is used in the Constitution of the United States or of a State, or in an Act of Congress or in a Statute and the meaning of the word or term is not defined in the Constitution or the Statute, the courts will give to it the meaning which the common law attaches to it if its meaning at the common law has been established and is well known. In accordance with that principle we are entitled to look into the ecclesiastical law to ascertain what the common understanding has been as to the meaning of the Episcopacy as respects the tenure by which the Episcopal office is held.

At the time our Church was organized and at the time the Constitution was adopted it was the common understanding, known of all, that when a church having an Episcopal form of government consecrated a man a Bishop, the tenure of his Bishopric was for life unless he should be deprived of it for cause. That was the understanding of the Roman Catholic, Anglican and Protestant Episcopal Churches. It was the understanding of those who wrote and established the Constitution of our Church and who provided therein that the General Conference should not have power to "change or alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away Episcopacy." It was a common saying "Once a Bishop, always a Bishop."

Since that time a few denominations have organized with a limited form of Episcopal government and with Bishops elected for a period of years. That it was the understanding from the very beginning of our Church that our Bishops had a life tenure is shown by the Explanatory Note which Bishops Coke and Asbury appended to the Discipline of 1796, which was appended at the request of the General Conference of that year, which no one challenged, and which had the sanction of the General Conference of 1800.

The note read as follows: "The Bishops are obliged to travel till the General Conference pronounces them worn out or superannuated."

Where Bishops were elected the idea of an Episcopacy with a limited tenure was unknown to Wesley, Coke, or Asbury, or to those who organized the Methodist Episcopal Church. It was not in the mind of those who adopted the Constitution in 1808. The understanding concerning this matter is shown in the certificate given to Bishop McKendree who was elected by the General Conference of 1808, being the same Conference which adopted the Constitution and put into it the Third Restrictive Rule. The certificate issued to Bishop McKendree at the time of his consecration, and which was signed by Bishop Asbury, Jesse Lee, Freeborn Garrettson, Thomas Ware, and Philip Bruce, recited that he was set apart "to the office and work of a Superintendent or Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church as a man whom we judge well qualified for the office of a Superintendent, and one of the Bishops of the Methodist Church, and fit to preside over and feed the flock of Christ, so long as his spirit, practice and doctrine is such as becomes the Gospel of Christ, and he shall submit to the Discipline and Order of the said Methodist Episcopal Church in America." The certificates now used and which for years have been used, differ somewhat in language but not in essence from those used in 1808. They recite that the man to whom it is issued is one "who in the judgment of said (General) Conference is well qualified for that office (of Bishop) and work and fit to preside over and feed the flock of Christ so long as his spirit, practice, and discipline, are such as become the Gospel of Christ and he shall submit to and maintain the Discipline and Order of the Methodist Episcopal Church."

It is in the same way common understanding that when one enters the ministry having been ordained an elder his tenure is for life unless he is thereafter removed for cause. The certificate which is given to him at the time of his ordination is under the hand and seal of the Bishop, while in language verbally different from that given to a Bishop when he is con-separated, is in effect the same so far as tenure is concerned. It recites that he is set apart "for the Office of an Elder" for "so long as his spirit and practice are such as become the Gospel of Christ and he continueth to hold fast the form of sound words, according to the established doctrines of the Gospel."

It is to be observed that the certificate in the case of the Minister is like that given to the Bishop and it states that he is set apart to an "Office," and that each recites that it is "for so long as his spirit and practice, etc." It is the common understanding that the Minister holds for life. It is also common understanding that the Bishop holds for life. Either can be removed for cause. The ministry understand they hold for life. Such has been the common understanding and practice throughout the one hundred and forty years our Church has existed. The distinction which seems clear to us is that the General Conference is not prevented by the Restrictive Rule from enacting that in future all persons admitted into the ministry shall hold that office for a term of years. But if life tenure was inherent in our Episcopacy as it existed in 1808 when the Constitution was adopted, it cannot now be altered or changed without an amendment to the Constitution being protected by the Third Restrictive Rule which declares that "The General Conference shall not change nor alter any part or rule of our government so as to do away Episcopacy."

It was this common understanding and established practice of the Methodist Episcopal Church as to the life tenure of the Episcopal office protected by the Constitution which was one of the causes which led to the formation of the Methodist Protestant Church. A large part of the contention of those who left us and founded that church was the life tenure of our Episcopacy, and the fact that it was protected by our Restrictive Rule.

Doctor Buckley in his Constitutional History of the Methodist Episcopal Church, page 220, says: "From the election of Francis Asbury to the office of Bishop until the present time the Church has proceeded upon the assumption that a Bishop, unless he should of his own motion resign, is elected for life, or good behavior, although if he be enfeebled in body or mind, he may be superannuated, but still bears the title of his office, and is supported by the funds from which the support of the Effective Bishops is drawn," and he continues, "the detailed history of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and other Methodist bodies, whose Episcopacy has a life tenure, confirms its inestimable value." He adds: "The General Superintendency, with the life tenure, is the only connectional position of permanence in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is therefore its most revered office. It maintains the stability of the denomination and its uniformity in operation. The reverence with which the life tenure invests the Bishop is invaluable in a country such as the United States and especially in a church which puts forth so prelatival claims." In 1888 the Committee on Judiciary was asked:

"May the Discipline be so changed, without resort to the Restrictive Rule process as: 3. To restrict the tenure of the Episcopal Office to a term of years?"

The answer was:

"No. A life long tenure of office is one of the attributes of that Episcopacy, originated by our fathers, and which the General Conference may not do away nor destroy."

A minority of the Committee, however, dissented and stated: "We believe that the Third Restrictive Rule carefully guards the office of the Episcopacy and its prerogatives but it does not touch its tenure. It is our opinion, therefore, that it is within the power of the General Conference, in its wisdom, to limit the term of office of Bishops to be elected, as it may deem best."

The report was not acted upon but was laid upon the table. The laying of the report upon the table left the matter undisposed of and is without significance. It related to three distinct matters of which the life tenure of the Bishops was only one and placing the whole report upon the table may have been due to a want of time properly to consider the matter or the General Conference may have thought that the consideration of some portion of the report referring to other matters was inopportune. It certainly cannot be regarded as a decision of the question as to the life tenure. Judicial decisions of a General Conference cannot be made by laying a report on the table. Laying a matter on the table simply amounts to declining to submit the matter to a vote. We do not know the reasons for the action and need not speculate thereon. (Reports of the Committee on Judiciary, page 257.)

In this connection we repeat what was said in our report concerning the election of District Superintendents that in the civil courts no principle of law is better established than that a long period of practical construction by legislative and executive departments charged with the duty of administering a constitutional provision is to be followed by the courts unless it is clear that such construction is repugnant to the Constitution. And in view of the fact that in our Church as in all churches having an Episcopal form of government it has always been the understanding and the practice that the Bishops like the Ministers hold their office for life subject to removal for cause, and in view of the fact that no General Conference has ever attempted to limit their tenure to a fixed and arbitrary period, we think that the power to do this does not exist.

It has been said by one of the keenest and best informed men in Methodism, Doctor Buckley, that "from the time the Episcopal Office was instituted, the life tenure was assumed, and there was no more need to specify it in the Restrictive Rule than for specifying the separate parts of the plan." As a legal proposition we have no hesitation in saying that his statement is correct and incontrovertible.

For one hundred and forty years it has been assumed that the life tenure was a part of our Episcopacy. No General Conference has ever denied that it was ever attempted to limit the tenure of a General Superintendent's office. The Committee on Judiciary in 1888 reported that the General Conference is without power to abrogate the life tenure. For the reasons given herein we have reached the conclusion announced in the beginning of this report that the General Conference cannot under our Constitution, and without an amendment thereof, elect the Bishops for an arbitrary and fixed period of years.

Laid on table, May 28.

MINORITY REPORT

The Committee on Judiciary has been instructed by the General Conference to report its opinion on the constitutionality of a time limit on the Episcopacy. Being thus compelled to render an opinion, we can do no other than render that opinion according to our best judgment, and after careful examination of the facts. Having done this we affirm confidently that in our opinion the General Conference has full power to elect General Superintendents for a term of years whenever in its judgment such election shall seem desirable, and we proceed to state the reasons which have led us to that conclusion.

We agree with the majority report that the Third Restrictive Rule forbids the General Conference "to do away Episcopacy." The only question before us is whether election for a term of years would do away Episcopacy. If General Superintendents were elected for a term of years, would Episcopacy thereby be done away? We are not considering the relative merits of life tenure and limited tenure, but only the question whether or not Episcopacy would be done away by an election for a term of years. To us it seems clear that the length of time has no bearing on the subject. A limited term might be desirable or undesirable, but Episcopacy would still remain.

An examination of church history, and particularly the history of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will make it clear that the General Superintendency in the Methodist Episcopal Church is an office and not an order, and has no such basis or pretension as has the Bishopric in the prelatical churches.

Down through the dark ages and the medieval period, it was commonly assumed that a Bishop was some superior order of being, entirely different from other people. He was in a class by himself, with a wisdom, a sanctity, and an authority which nobody else possessed, except Archbishops and Popes. These latter were presumed to have yet more wisdom, sanctity and authority, so that when these higher ecclesiastics spoke even the Bishops must keep silence and obey.

Now nobody supposed that these peculiar qualities, which so elevated these few men above other men, even above Elders and Priests—nobody supposed these exalted qualities were born in them, or were acquired by long and careful study, or by any faithful following of the humble Nazarene, but on the contrary these extraordinary qualities were acquired all at once, by having a certain kind of hands placed on the head for a few seconds. The idea was that Jesus had ordained twelve apostles by imposition of hands. Eleven of these apostles, perhaps less, placed their hands on the heads of other men, and they on others, and they on others. By this means, and only by this means, could men become Bishops, endowed henceforth with extraordinary qualities. This method of thus setting apart certain men, and thus making them such exalted beings, was called "Apostolic Succession." Naturally such Bishops were Bishops for all time, and probably for eternity, and even subsequent behavior, however foolish or however bad, mattered little. Such kings could do no wrong. The really essential thing was the imposition of the right kind of hands—the "Apostolic Succession."

Now keep clearly in mind that when Methodism arose, under John Wesley, he was perfectly familiar with this old theory of Episcopacy. He studied it thoroughly and repudiated it totally. In this, as in most things, he reasoned clearly, and was ahead of his age.

After the American Revolution it was impossible for the Methodists in America to be longer governed from England. So Mr. Wesley, in 1784, sent Doctor Coke and Mr. Asbury to America accompanied by a letter which said, "I have accordingly appointed Doctor Coke and Mr. Francis Asbury to be Joint Superintendents over our brethren in North America."

At the famous Christmas Conference of that year the Methodists organized themselves into an Independent Church. The best account of these proceedings is in the Life of Thomas Ware, pages 105, 106, as follows: "After Mr. Wesley's letter declaring his appointment of Doctor Coke and Mr. Asbury Joint Superintendents had been read, analyzed, and cordially approved by the Conference, the question arose, 'What name or title shall we take?' I thought to myself I shall be satisfied that we be denominated the 'Methodist Church,' and so whispered to a brother sitting near me. But one proposed—I think it was John Dickins—that we should adopt the title 'Methodist Episcopal Church.' Mr. Dickins was, in the estimation of his brethren, a man of sound sense and sterling piety, and there were few men on the Conference floor heard with greater deference than he. Most of the preachers had been brought up in what was called 'the Church of England,' and all agreeing that the plan of General Superintendence, which had been adopted, was a species of Episcopacy, the motion on Mr. Dickins' suggestion was carried without, I think, a dissenting voice. There was not, to my recollection, the least agitation on the question. Had the Conference indulged a suspicion that the name they adopted would be, in the least degree, offensive to the views or feelings of Mr. Wesley, they would have abandoned it at once, for the name of Mr. Wesley was inexpressibly dear to the Christmas Conference, and especially to Mr. Asbury and Doctor Coke." What a pity that they did not in that hour know that the term they were so innocently using, would, before many years had elapsed, be so distorted in meaning as to nearly break the heart of their revered John Wesley!

Also note that on the second day of the session a layman by the name of Francis Asbury was ordained Deacon, on the next day Elder, and on the next day he was elected and consecrated Superintendent! Presto, change! Was this layman, made Deacon, Elder and Superintendent within three days, transformed into one of those almost superhuman beings which the mediæval church called Bishops? No "Apostolic Succession," no anything. Well, in those days when the Methodist Episcopal Church was being organized, nobody had any such notion, or would have tolerated it for one minute.

Note carefully that when the Church was organized, and so hastily took the name "Methodist Episcopal" and so hastily made that layman a Deacon, Elder and Superintendent, the "species of Episcopacy" which Ware mentions had not the remotest connection with "Apostolic Succession." It was not an order above elder, but was an office, as it has ever since been. It was superintendence, pure and simple, with no prelatical pretensions attached. Indeed the word "Bishop" was not so much as used, and never appeared in any of the minutes of any of the Conferences for four years after the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized, as it does not appear in the Constitution of the Methodist Episcopal Church until this day.

When in 1788 the word "Bishop" first appeared in the printed minutes in place of Superintendent, the historian Lee, referring to Coke and Asbury, says, "They changed the title themselves, without the consent of the Conference." When the news reached Wesley he wrote Asbury as follows: "I study to be little; you study to be great. I creep; you strut along. One instance of this, of your greatness, has given me great concern. How can you, how dare you, suffer yourself to be called a Bishop? I shudder, I start at the very thought! Men may call me a knave or a fool, a rascal, a scoundrel, and I am content. But they shall never, by my consent, call me a Bishop! For my sake, for God's sake, for Christ's sake, put a full end to this!" Would that Asbury had listened to the founder of Methodism! But no, the worst is yet to come. Maybe the spirit was willing, but certainly the flesh was weak.

It then is made perfectly clear, by these undisputed facts, that when the name "Methodist Episcopal Church" was adopted, nobody anywhere in the Church was known as a Bishop, and indeed that title was not used for years afterward, and then used first by the Superintendents themselves, without any authority whatever, but by unwarranted presumption, and greatly to the grief of Mr. Wesley. After awhile the term did come into more or less use, but nobody in those days had any notion that it meant anything more than Superintendent, and the terms are used interchangeably. It was absolutely at variance with the old prelatical conception. It was an office. Indeed in the infant republic, so recently freed from monarchy, the idea prevailed that men were free and equal. Class, rank and autocracy were emphatically repudiated.

There was one exception, however. Mr. Asbury, made Deacon, Elder and Superintendent within three days, assuming and exercising practically unlimited authority, grew great by what he fed upon. We have seen how, after a few years, this humble layman, so hastily elected Superintendent, attempted to seize the throne by unlawfully assuming the title of Bishop, greatly to the grief and disgust of Mr. Wesley. Next Mr. Asbury suddenly appears in full robes, with cassock and all the trimmings! Fortunately Mr. Wesley did not see him, or probably he would have collapsed on the spot. But those early democratic Methodists saw him thus arrayed, but they never would stand for it, and made such an uproar that he was obliged, with such meekness as he could muster, to put away forever this much of the vain pomp and glory of the world.

Keep to the thought that we are now considering a legal question. We are not considering the wisdom or unwisdom of electing General Superintendents for a term of years, or for life, neither are we considering what the custom has been. We are only considering whether to elect General Superintendents for a term of years would do away Episcopacy. It ought to be perfectly clear to any reasoning being that it would do nothing of the kind.

It is indeed true, as the majority report states, that no General Conference has ever decided that life tenure was a part of our Episcopacy. It is equally true that no General Conference has ever asserted that life tenure was a part of our Episcopacy. Much less has any General Conference ever asserted that to elect for a term of years would do away Episcopacy. Episcopacy would not thus be done away, but would remain in abundant measure, the same identical office.

The majority report states that the Committee on Judiciary in 1888 reported that the General Conference is without power to abrogate the life tenure. It does not particularly matter what the Committee on Judiciary reported in 1888, or any other year, for the Committee has no authority. Only the General Conference has authority. The Committee has neither authority nor infallibility, as ought to be well known. But what were the facts in 1888? According to the Journal of that year, as quoted by Stanford and Rogers, there was a majority report of the Committee on Judiciary which answering the question as to whether there is authority to restrict the tenure of the Episcopal Office to a term of years, answers: "No. A lifelong tenure of office is one of the attributes of that Episcopacy, originated by our fathers, and which the General Conference may not do away or destroy." But there was also a minority report reading exactly as follows: "A minority of your Committee on Judiciary with reluctance are compelled to dissent from the view of the majority, in relation to the tenure of the office of a Bishop. We believe that the Third Restrictive Rule carefully guards the office of the Episcopacy and its prerogatives, but that it does not touch its tenure. It is our opinion, therefore, that it is within the power of the General Conference, in its wisdom, to limit the term of office of Bishops to be elected, as it may deem best." Both reports were presented and laid on the table.

The General Conference of 1912, however, did touch upon the subject. (See Journal, pp. 512, 588, 589.) The Committee on Judiciary presented a report, which was adopted May 27. Referring to a Missionary Bishop it says: "To the question 'If he elects to fill the office of Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, can he vacate the office of Missionary Bishop?' we answer, that an acceptance of the office of Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions would operate to vacate the office of Missionary Bishop."

After answering two related questions in similar fashion the decision further states that "The principle of the common law is that the same person cannot at the same time hold two offices which are incompatible." This decision clearly holds that the Bishopric is an office, the same as the Secretaryship of the Board of Foreign Missions is an office, and acceptance of either would vacate the other, with no life tenure involved in either case.

In summing up, these historic facts are well established, and so far as we know never disputed.

1. When the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized there were no Bishops of any kind whatever in the Church anywhere.

2. The Methodist Episcopal Church has always repudiated utterly the old, unhistorical, prelatical theory of the Episcopacy, based on "Apostolic Succession."

3. The Methodist Episcopal Church for some years after its organization invariably used the term Superintendent, and never the term Bishop.

4. When the term Bishop was first used it was by the Superintendents themselves, arrogating the title to themselves, without any authority whatever.

5. In the Methodist Episcopal Church the terms Bishop and General Superintendent are interchangeable, and have the same meaning.

6. But in the Constitution of the Methodist Episcopal Church the term Bishop is never once used, but always General Superintendent.

7. In the Methodist Episcopal Church the terms General Superintendent and Bishop always refer to an office, and never to an order.

Hence it is clearly shown that in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Episcopacy is Episcopacy, whether the term of office be long or short, and a limited tenure of office does not, and cannot, do away Episcopacy.

Therefore our conclusion can be none other than that the General Conference has full power to elect General Superintendents for a term of years or for life. This does not raise the question of the wisdom of either course, but only the question of law. An election for a limited term would not do away Episcopacy.

REPORT NO. 13. BISHOP'S LACK OF AUTHORITY TO PUT MOTION TO ANNUAL CONFERENCE

This is an appeal by the Committee on Conference Relations of the California Annual Conference from the ruling of the Presiding Bishop, refusing to put a motion to adopt the report of said Committee on Conference Relations that the character of a member of said California Annual Conference be passed. (Number 608.)

The entire report of the Committee was as follows:

"Your Committee on Conference Relations convened as a special Committee of investigation in the case of (the member naming him) committed to us by the Conference, Wednesday, September 12, 1923, reports as follows:

"We find there has been a technical violation of the law of the Church as found in ¶ 68 of the Discipline of 1920, but upon careful investigation it is the opinion of the Committee that there are extenuating circumstances: We therefore recommend that the character of (the member, naming him) be passed.'"

A motion to adopt the report of the Committee was duly made and seconded, but the Presiding Bishop refused to entertain the motion, for the reason stated by him that he had no right to entertain a motion which would, if passed, take an action which was contrary to the law of the Church.

Before proceeding to a discussion of the merits of the appeal, we call attention (as we have heretofore in an opinion reported in The Daily Christian Advocate, 1924, paragraph 453, column 3) to the rule that appeals should be taken to the General Conference and not to the Judiciary Committee of the General Conference. (§ 313, §§ 13 and 14.) This appeal, though taken to the Judiciary Committee, was forwarded to the Secretary of the General Conference and by him referred to the Judiciary Committee and we will therefore consider it.

¶ 68 of the Discipline, which the Committee found the said member had violated concerns divorce, and the provisions thereof have been held to be mandatory on ministers (Decisions of the Judiciary Committee of the General Conference, Ed. 1924, p. 320) and the violation thereof by a minister an act of maladministration. (§ 264, § 1, Discipline.)

Further that "any minister of our Church, who marries under the conditions named is liable to be brought to trial in the usual manner and may be expelled from the ministry." (Report No. 1, Committee on Judiciary, The Daily Christian Advocate, 1924, pages 228, 229.)

The record fails to disclose the nature of the said member's violation of the provisions of said ¶ 68, but in view of the provisions of the Discipline and the various decisions above cited, that is not material, for in any event, a violation of said provisions, or any of them, by the said member, was a violation of the law of the Church for which he might have been "brought to trial and expelled from the Church." (Report No. 1, Committee on Judiciary, supra.)

If the Presiding Bishop had put the motion to pass the character of said member, the effect of his action would have been to submit to the vote of the California Annual Conference the question of obedience to a law of the Church. That by reason of "extenuating circumstances the Committee decided to palliate the violation and continue said member in his former relation. This, it has been held, he cannot do. (Decisions of the Committee on Judiciary of the General Conference, Ed. 1924, page 48.)

But it is contended that although the Presiding Bishop was authorized "to decide all questions of law involved in proceedings pending in an Annual Conference" the "application of law, in all cases" was with the Annual Conference. (§ 207, § 11, Discipline.)

The fallacy in appellant's contention is that it interprets the word "application" to include "ignore." Appellant did not apply the law by imposing a penalty and punishing the offender, but waived its provisions and excused the offender.

The General Conference has full power to make rules and regulations for the Church under certain limitations and restrictions named in the Discipline (§ 46). To permit an Annual Conference to excuse the violation of the law of the Church would in effect be to permit the Annual Conference to annul the law and pardon the violator. To this we cannot assent. We do not believe it was the intention of the General Conference to vest an Annual Conference with the power to veto or annul existing laws of the Church. The ruling of the Presiding Bishop was correct and should be, and is, affirmed.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 14. APPROPRIATION FOR EXPENSES OF UNDERGRADUATES IN CONFERENCE COURSES OF STUDY

The Judiciary Committee is asked: Is it legal under the provisions of § 460, § 6, of the Discipline for the Board of Education to appropriate to the Annual Conferences which conduct summer schools of theology for undergraduates in the Conference Course of Study such portion of the Public Education Collection contributed by said Conference as will meet the actual expenses of the undergraduates who are compelled to attend such schools?

The question is not whether it is wise to appropriate such funds for such a purpose, nor whether the Board of Education is obliged to answer such request in this way, but is it legal if in the judgment of the Board of Education it may seem wise and expedient? Has the Board a legal right?

§ 460, § 6 reads: "The Board shall receive the public educational collection taken annually in the charges throughout the Church and shall disburse the same for the aid of educational institutions and agencies under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church under such rules as the Board may adopt subject to General Conference legislation."

Summer Schools of Theology for undergraduates in course of study are under direction of a permanent commission on courses of study. (See § 216, §§ 1, 2 and 3.) This Commission and its work is a duly recognized agency of the Church and might properly come under the head of Educational Agencies under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church; but mission on Conference Courses of Study is duly and regularly financed as are the Boards of the Church and from funds contributed as Benevolences. This Commission, therefore, should be expected to finance any proper expenses for undergraduates also who are compelled to attend these schools.

It would, however, be legal for the Board of Education to supplement these funds if necessary.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 15. APPEAL OF B. S. TAYLOR OF NORTH DAKOTA CONFERENCE

In the matter of the petition to the General Conference to revise, correct, and adjust the past record of Brother B. S. Taylor, we find that this General Conference has not the authority or power to make such revision, correction, or adjustment.

If any revision, correction, or adjustment can be made, it should be made by the Annual Conference, and therefore, this General Conference cannot grant the relief which Mr. Taylor asks.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 16. RULINGS OF THE BISHOPS

Rulings of the Bishops

Your Committee on Judiciary to whom, under subdivision 2, § 3 of rule 40 of ¶ 567 of the Discipline, have been referred the rulings of the Bishops, beg leave to report that the rulings have been separately examined and each one is found to be correct with the exception of the answer to subdivision 10 in Question 55, which is disapproved, because subdivision 7 of ¶ 341 is inconsistent with ¶ 333, § 1, and ¶ 341, § 1, both of which were passed after subdivision 7 of ¶ 341 which conflicts therewith, and is therefore repealed by implication, and with the further exception of the answer to subdivision 8 of Question 55. His claim to the annuity is not prejudiced by the performance of secular labor; and with the further answer to subdivision 9 of Question 55. His annuity claim is not thereby prejudiced. The rulings are as follows:

Disciplinary Footnote Concerning Quarterly Conference

27. November, 1920. Is the footnote on page 149 a part of the Discipline, not having been inserted by authority of the General Conference? It is an editorial insertion for guidance and interpretation.

Condition of Admission into Conference Membership

28. November, 1920. A——— B——— is 27 years of age; not married; not in debt; has served three years under authority of District Superintendent; is graduate of a Methodist College; and of a Biblical Institute; signed pledge to abstain from the use of tobacco. Does the concluding provision of ¶ 161 of the Discipline make him eligible to election to membership in full connection?

Answer. He has never been admitted on trial and therefore cannot be received into full connection.

Leave of Absence—Condition

29. November, 1920. A member of the Wyoming State Conference requested one year's leave of absence, ostensibly for rest, but later admitted that it was for the purpose of going into business. The Committee on Conference Relations recommended that the request be granted. Is the Bishop in charge of that Conference compelled to make such an appointment?

Answer. The Bishop is not compelled to grant the year's leave. He may do so when the conditions of ¶ 186 of 1920 Discipline have been met.

Leave of Absence—Appointment During

30. November, 1920. A member of the Colorado Conference is living within the bounds of Southern California Conference. He is taking his "sabbatical year" and requests an appointment in the Southern California Conference. Is the Bishop in charge of that Conference warranted in giving him an appointment as per his request?

Answer. No. He is an effective member of the Colorado Conference and cannot be appointed to a charge in another Conference without due transfer.

"Leave of Absence—Transfer During"

31. November, 1920. A member of the Central Alabama Conference was on leave of absence for one year (1919-1920) during which time he has been supplying and doing evangelistic work in the Lexington Conference; also during that time a District Superintendent has asked for his transfer. May a preacher be transferred while on leave of absence?

Answer. Yes. He is an effective member of an Annual Conference.

Leave of Absence—Quarterly Conference Membership

32. November, 1920. What is the Quarterly Conference status of a minister who takes a year's leave of absence under ¶ 186? Is he automatically a member of the last Quarterly Conference he served or may he choose the Quarterly Conference with which he desires to affiliate as is the case with a Supernumerary?

Answer. The Bishop assigns each effective minister to a Quarterly Conference. If no definite assignment has been made the Quarterly Conference connection would be with the last one with which the minister was associated.

Widow—When Not Conference Claimant

33. November, 1920. Can a Methodist Preacher's widow, who is not a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and never has been, be a claimant on the Conference Funds.

Answer. No. See ¶ 333, § 2, 1920 Discipline.

Supernumerary Relation—Restricted Application

34. November, 1920. The relation of a member of the Northern Minnesota Conference was changed from effective to Supernumerary by the Conference, "in order that he might work as a minister for a private corporation." He refused to take a regular appointment from the Bishop. Was such action permissible?

Answer. We deprecate the use of the Supernumerary relation in this way. We call attention to the definition of a Supernumerary minister in ¶ 187, Discipline of 1920, and urge the Conferences to observe it carefully.

Episcopal Expenses

35. November, 1920. In reply to a question as to Episcopal expenses, it is answered that it has been the invariable custom that each Bishop shall determine what is administrative business and what expenses of travel are chargeable to the Episcopal Fund.

Lay Electoral Conferences, Duties

36. November, 1920. Under the action of the last General Conference it was proposed to call the Lay Electoral Conferences in 1920 or 1921 to approve the Constitutional Amendment for the admission of laymen to Annual Conferences. Is the call of a Lay Electoral Conference a valid call unless such Lay Electoral Conference is summoned to discharge its functions in the election of delegates to the General Conference?

Answer. The call is valid because it was made by the General Conference. It is not within our province to pass upon the legality of acts of the General Conference.

Vote on Constitutional Amendments

37. WHEREAS, The General Conference of 1920 submitted certain proposed amendments to the Constitution under the following titles:

Title 1—Ratio of Representation—See Discipline, 1920, ¶ 618.

Title 2—Change of Quarterly to Local Conference, ¶ 619.

Title 3—Lay membership in Annual Conferences, ¶ 620; and,

WHEREAS, The General Conference ordered that the second and third of these amendments should be submitted to the Annual Conferences and special Lay Electoral Conferences in 1920 and 1921; and,

WHEREAS, The Bishops have asked for advice in view of certain confusion. Therefore,

Resolved, That we are of the opinion that in those Conferences in which the vote was not or shall not yet be taken in the Fall Conferences of 1920, the vote must be taken upon Amendments under Title II and Title III in the Conferences of 1921. Upon the amendment under Title I the vote may thus be taken. We advise therefore that adequate provision be made for the necessary special Lay Electoral Conferences in 1920 and 1921; and,

Resolved, That in view of confusion, officially brought to our notice, concerning the Amendment providing for Lay Membership in the Annual Conference, we express the opinion that this Amendment must be submitted and voted upon as sent down by the General Conference. If this amendment be defeated, as has been proposed by certain friends, because of certain alleged defects in its form, it is clear that a perfected amendment can be voted upon and sent around in the regular way.

Book Concern Action

38. May, 1921. Replying to a question submitted by the Rev. W. F. Conner, D.D., chairman of the Book Committee, it was answered that, "In our judgment the Book Committee in assigning the duties of the office held by Edwin R. Graham, deceased, to the other agents, did not provide for the vacancy in the Publishing Department of the Book Concern in accordance with the intent of ¶ 382, §5. But, in any case, as Episcopal Concurrence was not given, the vacancy still exists."

Ad Interim Appointment of Deaconesses

39. May, 1921. The appointment of Deaconesses between Conferences should be made by the Bishop in charge of the Conference.

Transfer of Deaconess

40. May, 1921. The Board of Bishops, in harmony with the disciplinary precedents, considers that the transfer of a Deaconess into the territory of a Conference and her appointment for service there, are to be made by the Bishop in charge after consultation with the Deaconess Board.

Apportionment for Conference Claimants, ¶¶ 327 and 337

41. May, 1921. With reference to the conflict in the Discipline of 1920 (earlier editions) between ¶¶ 327 and 337, in the matter of estimating claims for Conference Claimants, the Board of Bishops considers that the latter paragraph, having been adopted by the last General Conference, during its closing hours, supersedes previous legislation. The apportionments, therefore, for Conference Claimants, are to be made in accordance with the provisions of ¶ 337.

Notice of Intent to Locate

42. May, 1921. It should be considered sufficient notice of the purpose of an Annual Conference to locate a member (see ¶ 263) if the Secretary shall send information to this effect within thirty days to the last known address of such member. The action of the Conference authorizing such notification should also appear in the published Minutes of the Conference.

Minister Withdrawing and Credentials

43. May, 1921. In the case of a Minister withdrawing from our ministry for the purpose of establishing an independent local church, the Conference should be satisfied as to the evangelical character and need of such church before the credentials (properly endorsed) be returned to such Minister.

Danish Church

44. May, 1921. The appeal of Saint Paul Danish Church, Rutland, Iowa, to join an English-speaking Conference has been considered. This is a case for the Committee on Boundaries of the General Conference.

Baptism: Its Subjects and Mode

45. November, 1921. In response to a communication from the members of the Scandinavian Conferences, we reply as follows:

1. Inasmuch as the Methodist Episcopal Church holds that "all children by virtue of the unconditional benefits of the Atonement are members of the Kingdom of God, and therefore graciously entitled to Baptism," we urge all members of the Church who are parents or guardians to present their children for Baptism, and to use all diligence in bringing them up in conformity to the Word of God."

2. By ¶ 17 of the Discipline we are reminded that the baptism of young children is to be retained in the Church; therefore it is valid. For a Minister to deny or question the validity of Infant Baptism would be a violation of the spirit of the Doctrine and Discipline of the Church.

3. A minister may not refuse to administer baptisms in any one of the three modes which the Church recognizes as valid and which the candidate may select as his preference.

4. A minister may not remain in good standing among us who teaches the invalidity of Infant Baptism or denies the validity of any one of the three modes of baptism (namely, sprinkling, pouring or immersion) recognized by the Church as valid.

5. It is for the Annual Conference to determine whether or not a member thereof fulfills his pastoral duties in the teaching, by precept or example, of the Doctrine and in the administering of the Discipline of the Church.

Ministerial Transfer to Foreign Mission Field

46. November, 1921. The Bishops resident in the Southern Asia mission field represent by letter that it frequently happens that men are sent out by the Board of Foreign Missions of whom the Bishops on the mission fields have but little information, and who have not been regularly transferred by the Bishops having charge of the Conference in which they hold membership.

Inasmuch as this makes impossible placing the men on committees or giving them regular examinations or Conference appointments, and inasmuch as the great distances, and frequently the shortness of time make it difficult to secure the transfer by correspondence after the missionaries appear on the mission field, the Bishops of Southern Asia therefore request that in cases of members of Annual Conferences appointed to the field by the Board of Foreign Missions they be permitted to take for granted the consent of the home Bishop concerned and to announce the transfer without further correspondence except to report to the home Conference.

In reply to this, we express our sympathy with the Bishops of Southern Asia and other mission fields in which confusion results from the failure to observe the provisions of the Discipline concerning the transfer of Ministers but we cannot give formal consent to the violation of the law. The remedy is in requiring the Board of Foreign Missions upon consent of the Bishop in the mission field, to secure the formal certificate of transfer for all Conference members before such Ministers are permitted to sail for mission fields. We call attention to ¶ 203 as fully covering the matter. Repeated in Rulings Part 2, 89.

Place of Annual Conference Sessions

47. November, 1921. In reply to a communication asking whether an Annual Conference may legally meet outside of its own boundaries, we reply:

We are of the opinion that an Annual Conference should not hold its regular session for the transaction of minute business outside its bounds.

The Time for Vote Upon Constitutional Amendment

48. November, 1921. The Liberia Conference did not vote upon the proposed Amendments to the Constitution. In explanation of this it was stated: First, the Lay Delegates had not been elected. Second, the District Superintendents had not been notified, and it is asked, "Should that vote be taken at the next Conference?"

It is replied, that the General Conference handed down three proposed Amendments to be voted upon by the Annual and Lay Electoral Conferences of 1920 or 1921, and may not be voted upon in any other year.

But any other Amendments, even though covering the same general matters as the proposed Amendments, if differently worded and legally presented may be voted upon at the Annual Conference and the Lay Electoral Conference immediately preceding the General Conference of 1924.

Where Quarterly Payment of Allowance is Ordered, Does Death of Claimant Vitate Claim?

49. June, 1922. Question: Providing an Annual Conference administers the Conference Claimant Funds on the "Quarterly Payment in Advance" plan may an Annual Conference withhold any balance due the claimant at his death, in mid-year, refusing to pay the same to the dependents of the deceased but settling with the dependents of the deceased for the balance of the year on the basis of the lesser amount they would receive a year later?

Answer. Where the Annuity allowance from the Conference Claimants' Fund has been duly voted to a minister for the ensuing year, to be paid in quarterly installments, but before the payment of the final installment the beneficiary dies, then the unpaid balance should be paid to the estate of the beneficiary because the whole amount had been voted to the said beneficiary.

Status of a Retired Preacher in a District Conference

50. June, 1922. Question: "What is the status of Retired or Supernumerary Ministers as to a place and membership in the District Conference?"

Answer. The Book of Discipline says, "The District Conference shall be of the Traveling Ministers, Local Preachers," etc. Retired and Supernumerary Ministers are of the class of Traveling Ministers, though they may be excused from actual travel.

The evident intention is that every member of the Annual Conference within the bounds of the District shall have membership in the said District Conference.

Right of Bishop in Attendance Upon Board

51. June, 1922. Question: What are the rights of a Bishop who is a General Superintendent, resident without the bounds of the United States of America, particularly the right to attend the Bishops' Conference or to travel wherever he or his Episcopal brethren in his or their godly judgment deem it necessary for the interest of the Church in its world-wide missions?

Answer. All the Effective Bishops who are General Superintendents in the Methodist Episcopal Church are equals with equal rights and privileges in said Church regardless of place of residence, and service in a foreign missionary field does not deprive a General Superintendent of his rights in the Board of Bishops and in Boards in which General Superintendents have membership, and he cannot be deprived of the right of "traveling at large" throughout the work which belongs to the "Itinerant General Superintendency" or of any other right that a General Superintendent has under the Constitution of the Church.

Legal Recourse When There Is Refusal to Pro Rate

52. June, 1922. Question: What legal or other recourse is available providing a minister refuses to pro rate in the matter of salary?

Answer. He may be brought to trial for a violation of the law of the Church.

Sale of Cemetery Lots and Use of Proceeds

53. June, 1922. Question: The Church used a lot in the rear of the church building for a cemetery. Two adjoining pieces of land were purchased for the purpose of enlarging the burying ground. The church building was sold and removed from the cemetery, and the unsold lots are being disposed of rapidly. Who should hold the proceeds from the sale of said lots?

Answer. Inasmuch as the cemetery is church property and the Book of Discipline provides that the Trustees are the legal custodians of the property, the proceeds from the sale of the lots in the cemetery should be held by the Board of Trustees, subject to the action of the Quarterly Conference.

54. November, 1922. In case of a minister and certain members (some of them trustees) of the Methodist Episcopal Church who have accepted membership and trusteeship in a so-called community church, it is asked: Are they still members and trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church?

It is answered: Membership or trusteeship in an undenominational community church does not of itself terminate membership or trusteeship in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

55. November, 1922. 1. Is the claim for annuity for years of service (§ 333) inherent in the Methodist ministry?

Answer. The Discipline so declares.

2. What can set aside the claim?

Answer. Only the action of the Annual Conference, taken under ¶ 341, §§ 7, 8, of the Discipline.

3. Is ¶ 341 auxiliary and supplemental to ¶ 333 rather than basal?

Answer. Both are equally the laws of the Church. ¶ 333 should be interpreted and administered according to the provisions of ¶ 341.

4. Did the General Conference of 1920 intend to give a retroactive effect to ¶ 341?

Answer. Annuities are granted by the Annual Conferences Annually. Actions of an Annual Conference after the General Conference of 1920 must be made under ¶ 341.

5. Is the case of each preacher who has retired for disability to be reviewed each year to ascertain if such disability still exists?

Answer. So far as claims are concerned the Annual Conference acts upon each case each year.

6. What is considered to be such disability as will permit voluntary retirement, without prejudice to the Annuitant claim?

Answer. The determination is with the Annual Conference.

7. What is the standing of those ministers who retired because of disability and were participants in the annuity distribution before the last General Conference action?

Answer. The determination is with the Annual Conference under the present law.

8. Does the performance of secular labor, for any reason, by a minister retired because of disability, prejudice his claim to annuity?

Answer. The determination is with the Annual Conference.

9. Does the holding of the pastorate of a regular charge, or the doing of evangelistic work, prejudice the annuity claim of a preacher retired because of disability?

Answer. The determination is with the Annual Conference.

10. (a) Does ¶ 341, § 7, apply to the annuity claim or to the necessitous cases only?

Answer. To the annuity claim only. Disapproved. It has no application to the annuity claim.

(b) Can the claim for the annuity be disallowed by recommendation of the Conference Stewards and action of the Annual Conference, for more than one year at a time?

Answer. So far as claims are concerned, the Annual Conference acts upon each case each year.

The ruling numbered 28 was made under ¶ 161 of the Discipline. That Paragraph reads:

A Preacher on Trial who has been employed in the regular itinerant work on Circuits or Stations, or as an instructor in one of our institutions of learning, for two successive years, from the time he was received on Trial, may be admitted into Full Membership in the Annual Conference after he has given satisfactory evidence of his knowledge of the first two years of the Conference Course of Study, and after the examination before the Conference prescribed in ¶ 162, provided this shall not be construed as to prevent the reception into full membership of one who, while a student in some one of our literary schools or theological seminaries, has been for the proper length of time regularly employed as Pastor in a Circuit or Station under the appointment of the District Superintendent.

The language in this paragraph is somewhat ambiguous. It is capable of two constructions. One is that the Proviso qualifies all that precedes it in the paragraph; the other is that the Proviso concerns only the latter part of what precedes it; that it refers to the applicant's evidence of his knowledge of the first two years of the Conference Course of Study and refers to his examination before the Conference. The latter construction is the one that has been given to the paragraph by the Annual Conferences; the General Superintendents and the District Superintendents. That construction of the paragraph in this instance is controlling and should be followed. To do otherwise would introduce confusion into much that has been done.

It therefore follows that the applicant is not entitled to election to membership in full connection until he has been on trial for the required length of time.

Approved, May 28, with the exception of 49, which was disapproved, and 55, question 10, which was amended by eliminating the words "disapproved" and "no."

REPORT No. 17. PLACE OF TRIAL OF A MEMBER OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The Judiciary Committee has been asked: "Is the phrase 'or the superintendent of the district within the bounds of which such acts are alleged to have taken place,' as it occurs in ¶ 252 of the Discipline, constitutional and legal?"

The phraseology in question relates to an investigation of a member of an Annual Conference between sessions thereof. Quoting down to, and including, the questionable words, ¶ 252 reads as follows:

"¶ 252. 1. If a member of an Annual Conference be accused of any violation of the moral law in the interval between sessions of that body, his District Superintendent, or the Superintendent of the District within the bounds of which such acts are alleged to have taken place, shall call not less than five nor more than nine members of the Annual Conference to investigate the same, and, if possible, bring the accused and accuser face to face. He shall preside throughout the proceedings, and shall certify and declare the judgment to the Committee."

The whole of ¶ 252 is devoted to the investigation of a member of an Annual Conference within the Conference of which he is a member.

¶ 260 provides a method of investigating alleged misconduct of one beyond the bounds of the Conference of which the accused is a member, but seems to be limited to those cases where members of an Annual Conference are residing without the bounds of their own Conference. Neither section seems to cover a case of misconduct alleged to have been committed by one in a Conference to which he then belonged but where the charges were not made until after the accused had been transferred and become a member of another Conference. It is claimed that the phrase in question was intended to meet just such a case. If so, it is unfortunate that it was not more specific. ¶ 260 specifically adopts the procedure of ¶ 252 and ¶ 261 follows with a provision requiring the result of the investigation to be certified to the Conference of which the accused is a member for trial therein. If the questionable phrase in ¶ 252 intended to accomplish such purpose, it fell short of it unless ¶ 261 be read into it, which does not seem logical, as they deal with a different character of cases.

Therefore, it seems to the Committee that the only logical construction to be put upon the phrase in question is that it applies to another district in the Conference of which the accused is a member. Giving the phrase this construction, the Committee sees no objection to its legality.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 18. POWER OF LAY ELECTORAL CONFERENCE TO ENACT RULES RESTRICTING CANDIDATES TO ONE FROM EACH DISTRICT

Your Committee on Judiciary to whom has been referred the Memorial of James R. Thorpe, of Denver, Colorado, inquiring concerning the validity of a rule adopted by a Lay Electoral Conference restricting the right of its members to vote for any eligible laymen within the Conference territory, the rule being as follows:

"All voting shall be done by ballot. Each ballot shall contain as many names as there are delegates to be voted for and no more, but not more than one candidate from any one District."

The rule was without binding force.- Each delegate had the right to vote for any eligible person within the Annual Conference boundaries. That right could not be restricted by any rule the Lay Electoral Conference might make. All the delegates could have been elected from one District or from one Church. If the rule, although invalid, is observed voluntarily by all, the election in obedience to the rule, is not thereby invalid.

Adopted, May 29.

REPORT No. 19. APPEAL OF GORDON GRAINGER OF SAINT LOUIS CONFERENCE

Your Committee on Judiciary, to whom, under the Discipline, has been referred the appeal of Gordon Grainger of the Saint Louis Conference, report as follows:

Gordon Grainger was tried by a select number of the Saint Louis Annual Conference in September, 1922. He was found guilty of several violations of the Church law and was deprived of his ministerial office and credentials. On October 8, 1922, he appealed to the Judicial Conference. The record does not disclose that a Judicial Conference was ever held on that appeal. On March 11, 1924, he notified the Secretary of the Saint Louis Annual Conference that he would endeavor to present his appeal to this General Conference.

No person has appeared before this Committee on behalf of Gordon Grainger and no paper has been presented setting out any matter of which he complains. For these reasons, there is no intelligent way in which this Committee can consider the appeal. We therefore recommend that the appeal be dismissed.

Adopted, May 29.

REPORT No. 20. APPEAL OF C. B. TAYLOR FROM RECLASSIFICATION OF RETIRED MINISTERS AFTER LEGISLATION OF 1920

Rev. C. B. Taylor, a member of the Illinois Annual Conference, was, prior to 1921, in the retired relation receiving annuity. At the Annual Conference of 1921 the Committee on Conference Relations reported Mr. Taylor "retired for other reason than age, years of service or disability." At the session of 1922 reclassification was denied. Mr. Taylor's statement says, "Upon the adoption of said report by the Annual Conference your petitioner filed with the Secretary of the Conference a notice of appeal." He further says, "Later upon the same day, petitioner was present before the said Committee on Conference Relations when the Committee denied his request for the grounds of its action. . . . Whereupon at the final session of the said Annual Conference, being later upon the same day, your petitioner secured the floor upon a question of personal privilege and addressed the Conference, stating his position of appeal and the causes of his retirement, etc. Following this address, the Conference voted to restore petitioner to the third class. Thereupon and wholly because there were other members of the Conference whose interests were similarly involved a motion was made by a member who had voted in the negative, to reconsider and to refer the question to the Board of Bishops for an opinion. The motion carried, the vote restoring petitioner was reconsidered and a Conference Attorney was instructed to prepare the questions and forward them to the Episcopal Board at its ensuing meeting."

The certificates of the Secretary show substantially the same facts. One of them states that following the address of C. B. Taylor "a motion to restore C. B. Taylor to the third class of retired ministers was made by F. A. McCarthy and said motion prevailed, and that upon the motion of A. S. Chapman above set forth the motion to restore to the third class was reconsidered, and the reference to the Board of Bishops was then acted upon and followed." Questions were propounded to the Bishops and answered. The answers were not presented to the session of 1923, but the presiding Bishop "stated in substance that the question of classification would be gone into at the next session of the General Conference and if any brother had been wronged the same would be corrected."

1. It appears from the record that after Mr. Taylor filed his notice of appeal he was heard, reclassification was made and later "reconsidered" and the matter referred to the Bishops. The Annual Conference has not taken final action. The action from which the appeal was taken was then opened and left open for the decision of the Board of Bishops. Therefore, Mr. Taylor's appeal cannot be sustained.

Appeal dismissed.

Adopted, May 29.

REPORT NO. 21. APPEAL OF J. B. RISK OF THE PITTSBURGH CONFERENCE

J. B. Risk of the Pittsburgh Conference asks for an opinion upon a ruling of the presiding Bishop.

It is stated that Mr. Risk submitted a question of law to the presiding Bishop, which question the Bishop refused to answer.

¶ 207 of the Discipline, § 11, provides among other things that the duties of a Bishop are:

"To decide all questions of law involved in proceedings pending in an Annual Conference," etc.

If the question asked was involved in proceedings before the Annual Conference then unquestionably the Bishop should have answered it. If, however, the question was not involved in any proceeding then before the Conference the Bishop was not required to answer it.

The record before us does not disclose whether the question submitted to the Bishop was involved in any proceedings then pending before the Annual Conference and we are therefore unable to determine whether the ruling of the Bishop was right or wrong. As to other matters involved the record is not in such shape as to enable this Committee to review them.

Adopted, May 29.

REPORT NO. 5. ANNUITY CLAIM OF WIDOW

Your Committee on Itinerancy to which was referred Memorial No. 269 from the Southern California Conference, and Memorial No. 19-A from the Colorado Conference respectfully recommend that ¶ 341, § 3 be amended by inserting after the word "trial" in the sixth line thereof, the words "regardless of any intervening period of widowhood," and adding to said § 3 the following: "A widow who has ceased to be a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, or has married a layman subsequent to her first widowhood, shall have no claim upon funds for annuity or necessitous distribution."

The section of the paragraph as amended will read:

The annuity claim of a widow shall be determined by the number of years during which she was the wife of a Preacher while he was in the effective relation, as a Member of an Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, including two years on trial, regardless of any intervening period of widowhood, and shall be three fourths of the annuity claim of a retired Minister for such term of years.

Adopted, May 15.

Original Report contained this addition:

A widow who has ceased to be a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, or who has married a layman subsequent to her first widowhood, shall have no claim upon funds for annuity or necessitous distribution.

REPORT NO. 6. THE MINIMUM ANNUITY RATE

Your Committee on Itinerancy to which was referred Memorial No. 297 from the Board of Conference Claimants respectfully recommends to amend ¶ 341 of the 1920 Discipline by inserting a new section between §§ 4 and 5, which shall be § 5, as follows:

REPORT NO. 8. TERMINATION OF CONFERENCE MEMBERSHIP

Your Committee on Itinerancy to which was referred Memorial No. 572 from Northwest Iowa Conference respectfully recommends the addition of a new Paragraph under the head "Termination of Conference Membership" following ¶ 170 as follows:

(2) By being deprived of the Ministerial Office. (¶ 263.)

Also to substitute for ¶ 263 the following:

When it is alleged of a member of an Annual Conference that he is so unacceptable, inefficient, or indifferent, or his ministry is seriously impaired by unministerial conduct or for other reasons as to be no longer useful in the ministry, or that without reason of impaired health of himself or his family disqualifying him for pastoral work he engages in secular business, his case shall be referred to a Committee of five or more, members of his Conference for inquiry; and if said Committee shall find the allegation sustained, and shall so recommend, the Conference may request him to surrender his Ministerial Office. Your Committee on Itinerancy, to which was recommitted Report No. 9 together with the amendment offered by F. G. H. Stevens, of Southern California Annual Conference, reports that it readopted said report, serial 72, p. 430 as follows:

Your Committee on Itinerancy to which were referred Memorials Nos. 7A, 287, 317, 310, 21J, 52C, 166, 724, 4, 307, from various sources respectfully recommend that ¶ 341, § 2, be amended by adding, following the word "trial," as follows: "as a Pastor or District Superintendent or under appointment to any institution or organization under the control of, or under the auspices of, Methodist Episcopal Church, excepting those institutions or organizations providing an annuity for years of service in them.

REPORT NO. 25. CONFERENCE STEWARDS' ACTION

Your Committee on Itinerancy to which were referred Memorials Nos. 303 and 712, respectfully recommends that ¶ 339, § 3, of Discipline be amended by striking out the following words in the first and second lines: "Upon the recommendation of the Annual Conference,"

So that ¶ 339, § 3, shall read as follows:

§ 3. The Conference Stewards may consider and act upon any claim which the Quarterly Conference may have overlooked.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 26. THE QUADRENNIAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF CONFERENCE CLAIMANTS

Your Committee on Itinerancy recommends the adoption of its report on the Quadrennial Report of the Board of Conference Claimants, as follows:

Your Special Committee desires to call the attention of the Committee on Itinerancy to important facts showing what has been done by Conferences in the United States.

The total number of Conference Claimants is 8,266, namely, 3,438 Retired Ministers; 3,929 Widows of Ministers and 889 Dependent Orphans.

The disciplinary claims for annuities were $3,965,873, on which $2,586,212 was paid, leaving a deficit between the total annuity claims and the total annuity payments of $1,379,661.

A comparative statement of the amounts paid to Conference Claimants since 1900 is of great interest:

During the

First quadrennium.....	1900-03	$1,183,000
Second quadrennium.....	1904-07	1,473,000
Third quadrennium.....	1908-11	3,171,000
Fourth quadrennium.....	1912-15	4,431,000
Fifth quadrennium.....	1916-19	4,597,000
Sixth quadrennium.....	1920-23	9,840,000
Total	1900-23	$25,604,000

It will be noted that two fifths of the total amount received during the last twenty-three years was paid during the last quadrennium.

It is a significant fact that while the amount of the annual distribution increased more than a million dollars during the quadrennium, the deficit increased half a million dollars due to the increased number of claimants, the doubling of the annuity rates which are based on salary and the large increase of annuity years; 32,000 years from 1916 to 1923, a fact which emphasizes the importance of establishing a Retirement Fund Reserve, as is done in other churches by which an actuarially determined amount is laid aside each year to provide for future claims. Many Churches have done this, or are in process of doing it; the largest and most perfect development being the Church Pension Fund of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

In addition to the amounts paid as annuities, $200,000 was paid to necessitous cases last year. To provide funds for this purpose is one of the duties of the Board. During the quadrennium, the Board paid to the Conferences $204,000 for this purpose.

We note the following increases: the average salary increased $324, the years of service increased 8,604, the average annuity rate increased $457, and the rate paid increased by $2.64. The number of retired ministers who received $600, or more, increased 575 and those receiving more than $1,000 increased 113.

The Board's activities are varied: assisting in Annual Conference campaigns; preparation and distribution of literature; the checking of records of ministerial services; gathering statistical and other information and publishing the same; preparing blanks and reports; Conference visitation; the investigation of the actuarial elements entering into annuity and pension problems; assisting local supply pastors and equalizing the claims of the several Conferences; administration and investment of permanent funds and funds held in trust.

During the quadrennium an intensive survey concerning aged and disabled supply pastors was made and, through the cooperation of the Council of Boards of Benevolence, over $20,000 was received for distribution to this neglected and deserving class of ministers.

By far the most important matter of a general nature has been the investigating and planning for an actuarial survey in order to secure facts on which may be established a contributory reserve pension system. This is an important, difficult and technical task, but when perfected and adopted will prove to be the most economical, practical and easy way of providing sure retirement benefits for Methodist Preachers.

Should the recommendation of the Committee of Twenty-one carry in the General Conference, similar principles may be applied to the pensioning of Local Preachers, Deaconesses, Missionaries and Lay Workers of the Church.

The Treasurer's report which is very complete, shows that the total holdings of the Board are over $1,500,000.

We record our appreciation of the work of Dr. Joseph B. Hingeley, Corresponding Secretary of the Board, who has been untiring in his efforts, in cooperation with the representatives of the Annual Conferences and the Conference Stewards. To him much credit is due for the advance that has been made.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 27. RIGHTS OF MINISTERIAL MEMBERS OF MISSION CONFERENCES

Your Committee on Itinerancy to which was referred Memorial No. 834 from Netherlands Indies Mission Conference, respectfully recommends that ¶ 96, § 2, of the Discipline, be amended by striking out the words of line 7, "nor vote on Constitutional changes," so that, when amended, ¶ 96, § 2, shall read as follows:

§ 2. A Mission Conference is authorized to exercise the powers of an Annual Conference subject to the approval of the Presiding Bishop; and its members shall share pro rata in the proceeds of the Book Concern with members of the Annual Conferences, but they shall not elect delegates to the General Conference.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 28. FUNDS FOR AGED AND DISABLED PASTORS AND THEIR DEPENDENTS

Your Committee on Itinerancy to which was referred Memorial No. 205, respectfully recommends the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That in Part V, Chapter X, of the Discipline, referring to the Board of Conference Claimants, there be inserted a new Paragraph as follows:

"The Board of Conference Claimants is hereby authorized to take such measures as may be necessary to establish a Permanent Fund for the relief of Aged and Disabled Supply Pastors who have served as Pastors for fifteen years or more, ten years of which shall have been consecutive, giving their entire time as Pastors to the work of the Church, and for their widows. The income of such fund shall be distributed directly to the beneficiaries on the basis of necessity, the allowance to be approved by the District Superintendent and by one of the Officers of the Board of Conference Stewards."

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 29. EQUALIZATION FUND

Your Committee on Itinerancy to which was referred a Memorial from the Board of Conference Claimants, recommends that the paragraph numbered 584, closing with the word operation, which is in the Appendix of the Discipline, be transferred to the Discipline and numbered 345, the paragraphs following to be numbered accordingly.

"In order to equalize among the several Annual Conferences the claims for Annuities paid by them for years of service rendered in other Conferences than their own, there shall be created an Equalization Fund, the receipts from which shall be distributed among the several Conferences in proportion to their liability for the years of service of their Retired Ministers which have been rendered in other Conferences than their own. Such equalization fund shall become a part of the connectional apportionment of the Board of Conference Claimants, and be distributed directly to the Annual Conferences in proportion to their several liabilities for such years of service; provided that the rate paid to an Annual Conference shall in no case exceed the rate paid by such Conference to its Conference Claimants. The Board of Conference Claimants shall determine the processes by which this legislation shall be put into operation."

Adopted, May 28.

V. TEMPORAL ECONOMY

REPORT No. 1. ADDITION TO DISCIPLINARY QUESTIONS OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCE

To add to the Order of Business of the Annual Conference.

The California Conference hereby memorializes the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at its session of 1924, to add to the Order of Business of the Annual Conference the following questions, to wit:

First: "Who have been left without appointment to attend one of our schools?"

Second: "Who have been granted leave of absence?"

The basis of this memorial is in the fact that both of these questions are strictly Disciplinary, and come regularly in the Order of Business.

The first of these questions should properly come following Question Thirteen, and the Second following Question Twenty-four; and each is in the interest of accuracy and completeness of the Conference Ministerial Record.

Adopted, May 13.

REPORT NO. 4. REORGANIZATION OF THE BOARDS OF BENEVOLENCE BASED ON TWENTY OR MORE MEMORIALS TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE ASKING FOR CHANGES IN THE PRESENT ORGANIZATION

Your Committee, having considered numerous memorials and plans calling for the reorganization of the Benevolent and Educational Boards of the Church, would respectfully recommend the following plan for the reorganization of Benevolent Boards.

THE WORLD SERVICE COMMISSION

1. Composition and Election

There shall be a World Service Commission composed as follows: one layman and one minister from each Episcopal Area in the United States, nominated by the General Conference delegates of the respective areas and elected by the General Conference; ten members at large, five ministers and five laymen, nominated by the Bishops and elected by the General Conference; five Bishops, elected by the Bishops; and one representative from each of the general divisions of the field outside the United States to be appointed by the Bishops annually from such representatives of these fields as may happen to be in the United States at the time of the meeting of the Commission. With the exception of the Bishops no member of the World Service Commission shall have official connection with any of the Constituent Boards.

As advisory members there shall be one representative of the American Bible Society, two members each from the Woman's Home Missionary Society and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Secretaries of the Constituent Benevolent Boards.

The Commission shall be elected for the quadrennium. Vacancies in the Episcopal membership of the Commission shall be filled by the Bishops. Other vacancies shall be filled by the Executive Committee from the respective group or groups in which they occur.

2. Officers

The officers of the World Service Commission shall be a President, two Vice-Presidents, and a Recording Secretary, elected annually by the Commission. Their duties shall be such as are usually connected with those offices.

The Commission shall, on nomination of the Secretaries of the Constituent Boards and the Episcopal Membership of the Executive Committee, elect for the quadrennium a Secretary and a Treasurer who shall be ex officio members of the Commission.

3. Meetings

The World Service Commission shall meet annually at such time and place as it may determine. Special meetings may be called by the Executive Committee or upon the request of one fourth of the members of the Commission.

4. Executive Committee

There shall be an Executive Committee of fifteen, elected from the membership of the Commission; at least two members of the Executive Committee shall be Bishops. The General Secretaries of the respective Boards shall be advisory members of the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee shall meet at least quarterly and shall represent the Commission and exercise its powers in the interim of the meetings of the Commission, but it shall not take action contrary to or in conflict with any action or policy of the World Service Commission.

5. Authority and Functions

The World Service Commission shall have full authority after due consideration of the needs of the field to fix the total budget of the askings for the Constituent Boards; to fix the plan and ratio of the division of the funds to the several causes; to determine all questions as to credit to be given for Designated and Special Gifts at home and abroad and to correlate the work of the Boards in the interest of cooperation, economy and efficiency.

6. Incorporation

In order to give strength and permanency of oversight the World Service Commission is directed to incorporate under the laws of some State.

7. Report of Its Activities

The World Service Commission shall prepare and present to the General Conference quadrennially, a report of its activities. It shall also submit to the General Conference a program of benevolent activities for the quadrennium next succeeding.

COOPERATING CONSTITUENT BOARDS

§ 1. There shall be the following units of service, otherwise called the Boards:

1. Board of Foreign Missions.
2. Board of Home Missions and Church Extension.
3. Board of Education, including Deaconess Training Schools, with the following departments:
 - (a) Schools and Colleges.
 - (b) Education for Negroes.
 - (c) Church Schools.
 - (d) Epworth League.

4. Board of Hospitals and Homes and Deaconess Work.
5. Board of Temperance, Prohibition, and Public Morals.
6. Board of Pensions and Relief.

§ 2. The several Constituent Boards are directed to reduce the number of their managers so that no Board shall have less than five or more than fifty members, to wit:

- (a) Board of Foreign Missions, fifty.
- (b) Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, forty-five.
- (c) Board of Education, forty-five.
- (d) Board of Hospitals and Homes and Deaconess Work, twenty-three.
- (e) Board of Temperance, Prohibition, and Public Morals, seventeen.
- (f) Board of Pensions and Relief, seventeen.

All of the above designated managers or trustees to be nominated by the Bishops and elected by the General Conference, all to be elected for the quadrennium.

§ 3. The World Service Commission is directed to appoint a commission of nine to study the needs of further reorganization and appropriate cooperation of the Constituent Boards, and report to the Commission before the close of the present quadrennium; such report to be reviewed by the Commission and sent to the next General Conference; in the event of the accomplishment of Union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, this Commission shall act as a joint Commission with one appointed for a similar purpose by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Cooperating Administrative Staff. The Corresponding Secretaries of the Constituent Boards, elected as heretofore, with the Executive Secretary and the Treasurer of the World Service Commission, shall constitute an Administrative Staff to carry out the directions of said Commission in a unified and cooperating manner. They shall promote Christian Stewardship and coordinate the Life Service activities of the Constituent Boards. All agencies of the Church engaged in these activities shall be required to cooperate in this unified system.

This Staff shall be the central agency for the cultivation of the field, as directed by the World Service Commission, supplying information, literature, slides, etc., in an economical manner as the needs of the fields may demand.

It shall establish a central receiving treasury which shall disburse to the several Boards according to the ratio established by the Commission.

The expense of this Staff shall be reduced to the lowest possible amount. The total shall be determined by the World Service Commission.

§ 1. Local World Service Council. There shall be a World Service Area Council consisting of the resident Bishop, the District Superintendents, Ministers, and Laymen from each District, and such other representatives of the Area as may be desired. The Ministers shall be elected annually by the Conference or the District which they represent. The Laymen shall be elected annually by the Laymen's Association or in such other manner as may be locally determined. To initiate this Council the resident Bishop shall convene the District Superintendents and the Delegates of the Areas of this General Conference to proceed in the organization of the Council as they may determine.

§ 2. There shall be a World Service Council in each Annual Conference, District and Local Church to be constituted as the Conference, District, or Church may determine. In the Annual Conference Council and the District Council both Ministers and Laymen shall be represented in equal numbers.

§ 3. It shall be the duty of the Area, Annual Conference, District and Church Councils to promote the program of the World Service in cooperation with the other organized agencies of the Church. In representing the needs of the fields for the various causes it shall be done through these Councils.

§ 4. When the World Service Commission has assembled and determined from the local appeals and estimates the benevolent budget of the Church-at-large it shall inform through the resident Bishop each Area Council and District Superintendents what the proportional share for each District would be. These amounts shall then be considered by the Area and District Councils before final apportionment to the several charges of the District, at all times holding before the Church the high purpose of providing for others at least as much as for ourselves.

§ 5. In the fields outside the United States, the geographical unit shall be the Conference, Mission Conference or Mission. The World Service Council of these units shall be selected by the Conference, Mission Conference, or Mission, and approved by the Commission or the Executive Committee. There shall be at least five members in addition to the resident Bishop, in each of these Councils.

§ 6. After the budget has been fixed for the year, the Council shall have power in case of emergency, or unforeseen developments, to change, within the appropriation, the items of disbursement, subject to review by the World Service Commission.

In territories that have a Central Conference, authorization is given to create a Central World Service Council, which shall have authority to make adjustments in askings, and in distribution of funds for a given country or group of Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions within the territory of the Central Conference, provided that such an adjustment shall not exceed in distribution of funds, the total current appropriation to the whole territory concerned.

Such Councils shall consist of the Bishops resident in the territory concerned and at least five other members chosen in such a manner as the Central Conference shall determine.

§ 7. All expenses of the local World Service Councils shall be provided for locally or in exceptional cases such as items of necessary travel the expenses may be charged against the budget of the Area.

§ 8. Each Area shall determine whether it desires an Area Secretary and if one is desired he shall be supported by the Area in such manner as it may devise.

It is the judgment of your Committee that the allowance to Bishops for office expense should be increased by the Book Committee so as to more efficiently carry out this program.

Adopted, May 23.

MINORITY REPORT

The undersigned members of the Committee on Temporal Economy, who are opposed to the adoption of the majority report of said Committee, present the following Minority Report of the said Committee:

WORLD SERVICE COMMISSION

Board of Foreign Missions

Board of Home Missions and Church Extension

Board of Education

Board of Negro Education

General Deaconess Board

and any other activities in the field of religion, education and philanthropy that may be assigned to it by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The World Service Commission shall be incorporated in order to promote the general activities of the Methodist Episcopal Church along the lines above mentioned.

Name and Object. The name of this organization shall be "The World Service Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church." Its objects are Religious, Educational and Philanthropic, designed to diffuse more generally the blessings of Christianity by the promotion and support of all phases of church work and missionary activity throughout the world.

The work shall be administered under such rules and regulations as the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church may from time to time prescribe.

The World Service Commission shall meet annually at its main office at such time as it may determine, due notice of the time and place of meeting to be sent to each member of the Commission.

Membership of the Commission. The World Service Commission shall consist of all effective General Superintendents, who shall be members ex officio; one lay representative from each Episcopal Area in the United States and one ministerial representative from each Episcopal Area in the United States; said ministerial representative shall be nominated during the session of General Conference by the ministerial delegates from each Area and elected by the General Conference. Those elected from the Areas designated by odd numbers shall be elected for a term of eight years and those from the Areas designated by even numbers for a term of four years and thereafter for eight-year terms.

The lay representatives shall be nominated during the session of General Conference by the lay delegates from each Area and elected by the General Conference. Those elected from the Areas designated by odd numbers shall be elected for a term of four years, those from the Areas designated by even numbers for a term of eight years and thereafter for an eight-year term. There shall also be fifteen representatives at large, five of whom shall be ministers and ten of whom shall be laymen, these representatives at large to be nominated by the Board of Bishops and elected by the General Conference.

The representatives from foreign fields shall be chosen from the General Geographical Divisions established by the General Conference and shall consist of one representative from each General Division. Such representatives shall be appointed annually by the Bishop or Bishops having Episcopal supervision in each General Division and whenever practicable should be chosen from persons in the United States at the time of the annual meeting of the World Service Commission.

Vacancies in the Area representation of the World Service Commission shall be filled by the Area World Service Committees of the Areas in which such vacancies may occur, but vacancies among representatives at large shall be filled by the World Service Commission.

The World Service Commission shall have authority to elect from its own number, a president, two vice-presidents, a secretary and such other officers as it may deem necessary to carry forward the work of the organization.

Administrative Committee

The World Service Commission shall elect from its own membership an Administrative Committee to consist of twenty-five members. This Committee shall meet monthly at the headquarters of the World Service Commission, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission, and at other times at the request of the Executive Staff or any five members of the Administrative Committee.

The Administrative Committee shall have power to take such executive action as may be necessary during the interim of the meetings of The World Service Commission, but in no case shall it exercise authority or adopt policies contrary to the policies that have been previously established by the World Service Commission.

At its quarterly meetings, the Committee shall hear the reports of the Executive Staff and of the Treasurer and shall take such actions as, in its judgment, will assist the Executive Staff in carrying out the policies and program of the World Service Commission.

The World Service Commission shall have power to appoint such other committees as it may deem necessary for the better conduct of the business of the Commission.

Quorum

A majority of the members present at any meeting of the World Service Commission, shall constitute a quorum. Eleven members, exclusive of the Executive Staff, shall constitute a quorum of the Administrative Committee.

Executive Staff

The General Conference shall elect nine persons to constitute the Executive Staff of the World Service Commission. Each member of the Staff shall have equal authority and each one shall be placed in charge of a Department of the work in which he shall nominate his assistants and shall have authority to carry forward the work assigned to him, under the joint direction of the entire Staff. The Staff shall recommend to the Administrative Committee the assignments of the Heads of Departments to be appointed by the Administrative Committee.

The Executive Staff shall present to the World Service Commission annually a report of the work of the preceding year, recommendations as to the program for the coming year and detailed budget for the coming year. The Commission shall determine the amount of the appropriations to be made for the work of the ensuing year, but in no case shall the appropriation exceed the total available net income of the preceding year.

When the program and the budget have been duly approved by the World Service Commission, it shall be the duty of the Executive Staff to execute the orders of the Commission without further authorization.

The methods of executing the orders and carrying out the program approved by the World Service Commission shall be by vote of a majority of the members of the Executive Staff. The Executive Staff shall have authority to employ a minimum number of assistants consistent with efficiency to carry out the work entrusted to it.

The Executive Staff shall negotiate with the proper officials of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, concerning the consolidation of the Boards of Benevolence, should unification of the two Churches be consummated during this quadrennium.

Treasurer

The World Service Commission shall elect quadrennially a Treasurer who may or may not be a member of the Executive Staff, but who shall be ex officio a member of the Commission, without a vote. His duties shall be such as may be prescribed by the By-laws adopted by the World Service Commission.

The salaries of the members of the Executive Staff and the salary of the Treasurer shall be fixed by the World Service Commission and shall be paid out of the Treasury.

The members of the Executive Staff shall be employed exclusively in performing the duties assigned to them by the World Service Commission, in supervising the various activities and in promoting by correspondence and otherwise the general interest of the cause.

Area Administration

There shall be World Service Committees in the Annual Conferences, the Districts, the local Churches and when practicable in the Areas.

The duties of these committees shall be to cooperate with the World Service Commission in making of quotas and in the raising of the same; in preparing annually a budget of askings from the benevolent funds, and in supervising their distribution. All askings shall be in the possession of the Executive Staff at least thirty days before the annual meeting of the World Service Commission.

When these askings have been approved by the World Service Commission, the Executive Staff shall remit funds to such person or persons or organizations as the Conference World Service Committee may indicate, subject to the rules and regulations governing remittances which may be adopted by the World Service Commission.

In foreign fields the geographical unit shall be the Conference, Mission Conference or Mission. The World Service Committee of these units shall be elected by the Conference, Mission Conference or Mission and confirmed by the Administration Committee. These Committees supersede the present finance committees. There shall be at least five members, in addition to the resident Bishop, on each of these Committees.

After the budget has been fixed for the year, the Committee shall have power, in cases of emergency or of unforeseen developments, to change within the appropriation, the items of disbursement, subject to review by the World Service Commission. In Areas that have a Central Conference, authorization is given to raise a Central World Service Committee, which shall have authority to make adjustments in the matter of funds that are to be used for purposes of a connectional nature in which all the units, within the territory of the Central Conference, are interested, provided that such adjustments shall not exceed in distribution of funds, the total current appropriation of the World Service Commission for such connectional purposes for the whole territory concerned. Such a committee shall consist of the Bishops resident in the territory concerned and at least five other members chosen in such manner as the Central Conference shall determine.

All the expenses of the World Service Committee shall be provided for locally, except items approved by the administrative committee as a charge against the budget of the Area.

Division of Funds

Since the greatest appeal for missionary funds is the work of the Church in the foreign field, both because of its needs and its opportunities, the World Service Commission is instructed to devote at least as large a percentage of the undesignated funds to the activities of the Church in foreign fields, as prevailed during the last pre-Centenary year. Designated gifts shall be applied to the purposes indicated by the donor and shall not be subject to any pro rata division of funds. Churches may not designate their benevolent funds until they have raised their fair proportion of the World Service Budget.

Central Headquarters

As the Commission Form of Administration is based upon the principle of a number of executives working together on the whole task, instead of individual executives administering a department of the work with slight relationship to other departments, the World Service Commission is instructed to establish a central office, keeping in mind the probability of union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The consolidation of the various headquarters now maintained by the Boards of Benevolence shall be effected at as early a date as practicable, during the present quadrennium.

Legal Status of Boards

The various Boards herein affected and their Corresponding Secretaries shall each perform such duties as are prescribed in their respective charters, articles of incorporation and constitutions, as may be necessary to maintain the legal requirements of these various organizations. They shall take such official action as may be necessary to commit the work now delegated to these various Boards to the World Service Commission. In all cases the World Service Commission and its Executive Staff shall have full authority in all matters pertaining to the carrying out of the benevolent and promotional work of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The General Conference shall elect from the Executive Staff of the World Service Commission such executive officers of the present Boards of Benevolence as are provided for in the respective charters of said Boards.

Department of Work

In order to carry forward more effectually the work entrusted to it, the World Service Commission may organize such departments as will facilitate the administration of the benevolent funds and the benevolent program of the Church.

AMENDMENTS

Amendments or alterations to the Constitution shall be made only by order of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

REPORT NO. 5. THE ORGANIZATION OF A GENERAL METHODIST HISTORICAL SOCIETY BASED ON MEMORIALS NOS. 706, 472

Your Committee on Temporal Economy to which were referred Memorials Nos. 706, 472, respectfully recommends the following:

"There shall be created a General Conference Historical Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, having for its purpose the discovery, preservation, and correlation of all available documents and other materials dealing with the history of said Church.

An Executive Committee for such Historical Society shall be named by the Board of Bishops, and shall be composed of one Bishop, two members of the Book Committee, and two Methodist Historians of recognized standing in their profession.

The Executive Committee shall be empowered to represent the Church in all matters pertaining to the historical interests of the Church, and to associate this movement with all departments of the Church directly interested or benefited.

The Executive Committee shall establish a secretarial office upon such a basis as will be self-supporting, and will not entail direct financial responsibility upon the Church.

The Book Concern, through its administrative offices, is authorized and requested to provide suitable headquarters of clearing house space for the said Society for its correspondence, for the assembling of documents and other historical materials, and for their exchange with cooperating Societies."

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 6. FIXING PASTOR'S SALARY

Your Committee recommends that ¶ 323, § 1, of the Discipline be rewritten so that it may read as follows:

"It shall be the duty of the Quarterly Conference of each Pastoral Charge at the session immediately preceding the Annual Conference, to determine the minimum amount the charge shall pay for pastoral support for the ensuing year. To this end the Committee on Estimating Pastoral Support, after conferring with the Pastor, shall report the amount of the support agreed upon for the ensuing year to the Quarterly Conference, to the action of which the report shall be subject. To the amount thus determined upon shall be added the amount apportioned for the support of Conference Claimants, Bishops and District Superintendents; and the Stewards shall provide for the raising of the sum thus required, when the method prescribed in ¶¶ 319-322 is not in force. In case it may seem desirable to increase the estimate, the Committee, after conferring with the Pastor, shall report the amount of the support agreed upon for that year to the First Quarterly Conference, to the action of which the report shall be subject."

In order that other legislation dealing with this subject shall be made to conform to the above, your committee recommends that the following additional changes be made in the Discipline:

First: Alter § 12 of ¶ 107 by omitting from the last line but one, the following, "(15) Estimating Ministerial Support," and changing in the last line "16" to "15."

Second: By adding to ¶ 107 another section as follows: § 13 "To appoint at some session of the Quarterly Conference prior to the fourth, a committee consisting of three or more members of the Church to be known as the Committee on Estimating Ministerial Support."

Third: Add to ¶ 108 two more sections, as follows, and renumber the other sections in conformity therewith:

§ 22, ¶ 4. "What amounts have been estimated for and apportioned to this Charge for the support of the ministry for the ensuing year?"

§ 31. (1, 2, or 3) "Who are the Committee on Estimating Ministerial Support?"

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 7. SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

Two Memorials, Nos. 1004 and 487, were referred to a special Committee in the Committee on Temporal Economy. Your Committee begs to report:

"The Quadrennial Report of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America has been received by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and read with deep interest.

"The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America was formally organized in Philadelphia in December, 1908, and includes over thirty denominations:

"The Methodist Episcopal Church was one of the original constituent bodies creating the Federal Council, its action having been taken in May, 1908, in Baltimore. The Council has been a significant factor for stimulation and conservation throughout the period of deepening interest in cooperative movements among the Churches."

Resolved, First: That the Bishops be authorized to appoint the number of representatives and alternates allowed by the Constitution of the Federal Council to represent the Methodist Episcopal Church as members of the said Council during the coming Quadrennium, and request the attendance of the appointees at the quadrennial meeting to be held in December, 1924.

Second: That the Methodist Episcopal Church share in the expenses of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America to the amount of $15,000 annually for both the general work and the Washington office, the same to be provided for as hitherto in the same manner as other Commissions appointed by the General Conference. If it should be discovered by any central Boards of Benevolent organizations or individual Boards that certain types of work can be carried forward to better advantage and more economically by the Council of Churches than by our own organizations, amounts not to exceed a total of an additional $10,000 may be appropriated by the foregoing Methodist agencies.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 8. NONRESIDENT-INACTIVE MEMBERSHIP

V—NONRESIDENT MEMBERSHIP

"Whenever the residence of a member who has removed cannot be ascertained by the Pastor, or by the Committee on Church Records for a period of at least one year, such member shall be recorded as 'nonresident' and shall not be counted in the returns of Full Membership, but shall be reported in a separate column in the statistics. If the residence of such member cannot be ascertained for a period of three years he shall no longer be counted in the statistical returns, and the Pastor shall write after his name, 'Removed Without Certificate.'"

1. Amend the title by striking out the word, "Nonresident," and substituting the word, "inactive," so that the title shall read "Inactive Membership."

2. Amend ¶ 58 by striking out the words, "Whenever the residence of a member who has removed cannot be ascertained" by the Pastor or Committee on Church Records, for a period of at least one year," and insert in lieu therefor the words, "Whenever the Pastor or Committee on Church Records shall ascertain that a member has resided in another community for a period of at least one year, and manifests no interest in maintaining his membership, whether his address be known or unknown."

Amend line 5 by striking out the word, "nonresident," and inserting the word "inactive" followed by a period.

After which, insert the words, "if any member, without sufficient reason, and for two consecutive years shall habitually (a) absent himself from the public means of Grace, and fail (b) to contribute to the support of the Gospel, and the various benevolent enterprises of the Church, the name of such member, after earnest but ineffectual search has been made by the Pastor, or by a Committee of the Official Board, or of the Quarterly Conference to arouse the member to the observance of his vows, may, by action of the Quarterly Conference, be recorded as inactive. Any inactive member," so that the Paragraph shall read:

If any member without sufficient reason, and for two consecutive years shall habitually, (a) absent himself from the public means of Grace, and, (b) fail to contribute to the support of the Gospel, and the various benevolent enterprises of the Church, the name of such member, after earnest but ineffectual effort has been made by the Pastor, or a committee of the Official Board, or the Quarterly Conference to arouse the member to the observance of his vows, may, by action of the Quarterly Conference, be recorded as inactive. Any inactive member shall not be counted in the returns of Full Membership, but shall be reported in a separate column in the statistics. If the residence of such member cannot be ascertained for a total period of three years, he shall no longer be counted in the statistical returns, and the Pastor shall write after his name, "Removed Without Certificate."

Amend Part II, Chapter II, ¶ 90, § 6, by striking out the word, "Nonresident," and inserting in lieu therefor the word, "Inactive," so that the same shall read: § 6—"Inactive Members shall not be reckoned in making apportionments."

Amend Part II, Chapter VII, ¶ 110, §§ 11 and 14 respectively by striking out the word "nonresident," and inserting in lieu therefor the word, "Inactive," so that the said sections shall read respectively:

"11—Members placed on Inactive list this year."

"12—Total inactive members."

REPORT NO. 11. DISCIPLINARY FINANCIAL PLAN, AND OFFICIAL BOARD

Memorials 74, 595, 1005, all seek revision and clarification of ¶¶ 111 and 112.

In place of ¶¶ 111 and 112 of the Discipline of 1920, substitute the following:

IV—DISCIPLINARY FINANCIAL PLAN

¶ 111, § 1. Foreword. This plan is based on principles concerned in promoting Christian Stewardship (¶ 71) and providing financial support of local and world service of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The essential features should apply to every local church; the details may be adapted to local conditions.

§ 2. Basic Principles. (1) Every Member should be A Recorded Contributor not only that the amount expected of him may be recorded but that a definite ideal may be set up for both members and administration.

(2) Every member should be fully informed regarding the needs and extent of the local and world service of his Church. Personal and thoughtful giving enhances in the mind of the giver the cause to which he is giving.

(3) Systematic Contributions should be sought and duplex envelopes provided that contributions may be received weekly and credited to Local Budget and Benevolence Budgets respectively.

(4) Quarterly or semi-annual statements should be issued and arrears collected. Contributions made on other than weekly basis if paid early in the fiscal year will help offset arrears naturally accumulating in summer and later months of the year.

(5) The ideal "Every Member a Recorded Contributor" may be more nearly achieved when the local expense Budget includes the Sunday School and the Epworth League. Contributions from children, youth, or invalids, who have no fixed income or allowance, should be the portion of their substance which they wish to share with their Church.

(6) Establish the custom of assigning envelopes to each new member taken into the Church, deliver the envelope with introductory letter explaining briefly the financial plan for support of the Church before the following Sunday.

(7) The requisite of any financial plan is control. Control must be based on accurate knowledge. Control of Church finance further must depend upon confidence. The Financial Secretary should provide the facts and the Finance Committee be so constituted that it has the confidence and support of every department of the Church. Under these conditions the control of the expenditure of moneys should be directly with the Finance Committee and no appropriations should be made for items not included in Local Budget without also providing additional funds for same, unless approval is made by the Finance Committee.

§ 3. The Finance Committee shall consist of not less than three members. It shall be the duty of the Finance Committee before the close of the fiscal year:

(1) In collaboration with the Financial Secretary prepare a Local Budget in form suggested in ¶ 3, § 6.

(2) In collaboration with the representatives of the Sunday School Board prepare budget for Support of Sunday School.

(3) In collaboration with the representatives of the Epworth League prepare budget for support of Epworth League activities.

(4) In collaboration with the Committee on Apportioned Benevolences and the Financial Secretary prepare the Budget for Benevolences.

(5) To present, previous to end of the fiscal year, the Local and Benevolence Budgets to a specially called meeting of the Official Board for approval or revision.

(6) To proceed immediately by personal canvass of entire membership of Church, congregation, Sunday School, Epworth League and other supporters of the Church, to secure pledges and to determine probable income for coming year.

(7) If probable income is insufficient to meet budgets as made, to report to First Quarterly Conference recommendations as to how the balance needed can be raised.

§ 4. The Committee on Benevolences shall consist of at least five members with the Pastor as Chairman. The several missionary societies, especially of the Sunday School and Epworth League or Young People's Organization, should be represented on this Committee.

It shall be the duty of the Committee on Benevolences:

(1) To inculcate the principles of Christian Stewardship as presented in ¶ 71 of Discipline.

(2) To arrange continual, periodic, and special presentation of the interests and work included in the World Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to the members and various organizations of the Church.

(3) To ascertain apportionments for World Service, Annual and Quarterly Conference Benevolences and with Finance Committee of Official Board make up Benevolence Budget.

(4) Wherever pledges and receipts seem to indicate failure to raise complete Benevolence Budget to report recommendations to Official Board.

(5) The Committee on Benevolences shall constitute the Local Church Committee, entitled "World Service Committee" or "World Service Council," provided for under Disciplinary Plan for World Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

§ 5. The Financial Secretary.

The duties of the Financial Secretary are:

(1) To receive and record in approved classified form all moneys coming to the Church, not subject to immediate control of the trustees.

(2) To keep an account with each individual contributor.

(3) To promptly deposit in Bank or Trust Company approved by the Official Board, in the name of the Church, designated "Local Budget Account," or "Benevolent Budget Account" respectively, and subject to draft of the respective Treasurers thereof.

(4) To keep respective Treasurers informed of all deposits or other accessions to such accounts.

(5) To keep record of all withdrawals by the respective Treasurers, classified under same terms used in the Budgets.

(6) Report to each monthly meeting of the Official Board and to the Quarterly Conferences as required.

(7) To assist Finance Committee in forming Budget for Local Expense.

(8) To cooperate with the Committee on Benevolences in promoting the Benevolence Interests of the Church.

§ 6. Local budget may include in approved classified form, provision for:

(1) Ministerial support, namely, Pastor's salary, House Rent (if paid in cash to owners or trustees), apportionment for District Superintendent, the Bishops and for Conference Claimants.

(2) Other salaries for music, secretarial, janitor or miscellaneous work.

(3) Sunday School Budget framed by authority of Sunday School Board approved by Finance Committee.

(4) Epworth League budget framed by authority of Cabinet of Epworth League approved by Finance Committee.

(5) Repairs, supplies and expense carefully classified in few comprehensive divisions. Include apportionment of Annual and General Conference Expense.

§ 7. Treasurer of Local Budget.

The duties of the Treasurer of Local Budget are:

(1) To disburse moneys from Local Expense Bank Account as ordered by Official Board or Quarterly Conference or Board of Trustees.

(2) To enable Financial Secretary to report all disbursements to Official Board or Quarterly Conference.

§ 8. The Benevolent Budget shall include provision for:

(2) The quotas or amounts sought by authority of the Official Board for the several Annual Conference Benevolences.

(3) The quotas or amounts sought by authority of the Official Board for Special Benevolences other than those for which special collection is ordered.

(1) Monthly, the Benevolences ordered by the General Conference which shall be forwarded as directed by the General Conference.

(2) Periodically, the Benevolences ordered by the Annual Conference which shall be forwarded as directed by the Annual Conference.

(3) Occasionally, the Benevolences and special collections ordered by the Quarterly Conference or Official Board and Benevolences provided for by individuals or organizations desiring to give through Church channels for credit as "Other Benevolences."

(4) To enable Financial Secretary to report all disbursements to Official Board or Quarterly Conference.

OFFICIAL BOARD

¶ 112, § 1. The Quarterly Conference of any charge may organize and continue during its pleasure an Official Board, to be composed of all the members of the Quarterly Conference. In the case of Circuits, the Quarterly Conference may organize and continue during its pleasure, Official Boards for the several appointments of the Charge, such Official Boards to be composed of the Members of the Quarterly Conference attached to the respective appointments. The Official Board shall hold its meetings monthly on a stated day. It shall be presided over by the Pastor, or in his absence, by a Vice-Chairman regularly elected; and there shall be chosen a Secretary, a Financial Secretary, and two Treasurers, one of Local Budget and one of the Benevolence Budget. When so organized the Official Board may discharge the duties of the Leaders' and Stewards' meeting. When such action is taken it shall void such provision of the Discipline, under "Ministerial Support," as relates to the financial duties of the Stewards. (§§ 317, 323.) The duties of the Secretary are to make a record of the proceedings of the Official Board and, after examination by Committee on Church Records, to send the same to the Fourth Quarterly Conference for approval. REPORT NO. 13. APPORTIONED BENEVOLENCES

We recommend to the General Conference that provision be made under "Disciplinary Benevolences Ordered by the General Conference" for the report of "World Service" payments in two columns: the first for report of payments on apportionment, to be headed "on Apportionment"; the second, for report of payments not credited on apportionments, and to be headed "Specials, Annuities, Bequests," etc.

We recommend that payments not credited on apportionment be excluded in the reckonings upon which the benevolence apportionments to the charges are based.

In order to give effect to this recommendation, we ask that the General Conference amend ¶ 90, § 6, to read:

"Nonresident members, sums paid to ministerial support from missionary appropriations to the charge, and World Service payments not credited on apportionment shall be excluded in the reckonings upon which benevolence apportionments are based."

So that the sentence shall read: "It shall be the duty of this Committee to raise the amounts apportioned to the Charge for the Benevolent Boards, as apportioned by the Commission on World Service, and to cooperate with the Committee on Christian Stewardship in the inculcation of the principles of Christian Stewardship as presented in ¶ 71 of the Discipline."

(This is suggested as a plan to remove the uncertainty and ambiguity with respect to the two committees provided for in ¶ 107, § 12, (1) and (2), and in ¶ 111, § 8, (2).)

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 16. REVISION OF THE DISCIPLINE

We respectfully ask the Committee to recommend a revision of the Discipline in the following particulars:

Amend ¶ 320 so that the second sentence shall read, "The Pastor shall be the President of the Official Board and shall preside over its meetings"—these words to be substituted for the first eight words in the sentence as it now stands.

Also amend ¶ 112 so that the third sentence thereof on page 112 shall read, "The Pastor shall be the President of the Official Board and shall preside over its meetings, or in his absence a vice-chairman regularly elected shall preside"—these words to be substituted in place of the first seventeen words of the sentence.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT No. 18. BUILDING CHURCHES

On consideration of Memorial 962 your Committee recommends concurrence.

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church be requested to amend ¶ 358 of the Discipline by adding after the word "also" in line nine, "upon nomination of the Pastor" and after the word "three" in line ten, "and not over seven," and by striking out after the word "and," in line twelve, the words "three-fourths," and substituting therefor the words "one-half," so that the paragraph as amended shall read:

¶ 358. In order more effectually to prevent our people from contracting debts which they are not able to discharge, it shall be the duty of the Quarterly Conference of every charge where it is contemplated to build a house or houses of worship, to secure the ground or lot on which such house or houses are to be built, according to our Deed of Settlement, which Deed must be legally executed; and said Quarterly Conference shall, also, upon nomination of the pastor, appoint a judicious committee of at least three and not over seven members of our Church, who shall form an estimate of the amount necessary to build; and one half of the money required, according to such estimate, shall be secured or subscribed before such building shall be commenced.

Adopted, May 29.

REPORT No. 19. CHANGES IN DISCIPLINE

Your Committee recommends Concurrence.

WHEREAS, At several points in the Discipline reference is made to "States and Territories" which clearly refers solely to the United States of America.

WHEREAS, Annual and Mission Conferences and Missions of the Church are organized in countries other than the United States, and,

WHEREAS, In the interest both of legal standing and of accurate form the legislation which is intended to apply to all Conferences and agencies of the Church should be so worded as actually so to apply, now therefore, Be it

Resolved, That the undersigned hereby petition the General Conference to correct these discrepancies by making the following amendments to the Discipline:

I. Amend ¶ 74, § 1, line 4, by inserting after the words "laws of the" the word "Countries," so that the line shall read — “—der the authority of the laws of the Countries, States, and Territories.”

II. Amend ¶ 190, § 8, line 4 by inserting after the words “of the” the word “Country,” so that the line shall read “forms of the Country, State, or Territory within which each”.

And Amend line 20, by inserting before the word “State,” the word “Country,” so that the line shall read—“of the laws of such Country, State or Territory, and.”

(Note: ¶ 362 refers solely to the United States and so need not be amended.)

VI. Amend ¶ 363, § 1, line 9, by inserting before the word “State” the word “or Country,” so that the line shall read—“property by such means as the laws of the Country or State may.”

VII. Amend ¶ 366, line 10, by inserting before the word “States” the word “Countries,” so that the line shall read—“Countries, States and Territories within whose bounds such.”

VIII. Amend ¶ 509, § 6, lines 3 and 4, by inserting before the word “States” the words “Countries or,” so that the lines shall read—“Countries or States in which it has been subscribed under the direction of deputies living in such Countries or States respectively.”

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 20. LAY ACTIVITIES

Your Committee recommends concurrence on Memorial No. 961 presented by the South Carolina Conference.

Whereas, the sessions of the Annual Conferences are of such deep interest to the laymen who attend, that it has proved impossible to hold successful meetings of the Laymen's Association at such time and place, therefore,

We memorialize the General Conference to amend ¶ 94, page

88 of the Discipline by inserting after the word "Conference" in line 2, the words "or elsewhere," so that when amended the paragraph will read:

§ 1. "There may be assembled at the seat of the Annual Conference or elsewhere a Laymen's Association organized within the bounds of the Conference, composed of Delegates selected from the Charges in such manner as the Laymen's Association may determine. The purpose of such Association shall be to advance the local and Conference interests of the Church and to enlist all laymen in the general activities of the denomination."

§ 2. There may also be organized a general Laymen's Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which may be assembled at the seat of the General Conference or elsewhere in the interim to federate the various Laymen's Associations of the Church.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 21. BONDING TREASURERS, AND ANNUAL CONFERENCE BUSINESS

Your Committee votes concurrence in Memorial No. 165 presented by the Central Pennsylvania Conference.

Your petitioner asks you to amend ¶ 377 so as to include all moneys, trust and otherwise, belonging to the Annual Conference and organizations under its control, or the General Conferences, so that when amended it shall read to this effect:

All persons holding trust funds, securities and money of any kind, belonging to the General Conference or to an Annual Conference or Mission Conference or to organizations under the control of the Annual or Mission Conference, shall be bonded, etc.

Amend ¶ 80, § 1 to this effect:

1. (a) Is this Annual Conference incorporated, etc.

(b) What officers and persons holding money, funds, etc., are bonded and in what amounts according to the requirements of the Discipline?

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 22. INTER-BOARD CURRICULUM CORRELATION

We endorse the plan suggested for the Inter-board Curriculum Commission to be composed as follows:

One Bishop.

Three representatives of the Board of Sunday Schools.

Three representatives of the Board of the Epworth League.

One representative of the Board of Home Missions.

One representative of the Board of Foreign Missions.

One representative of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society.

One representative of the Woman's Home Missionary Society.

And a Commission in the local church to be known as the Commission on Religious Instruction to take the place of the present Committee on Religious Instruction, and that it shall be constituted as follows:

One representative each from the Sunday School, the Epworth League, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, the Woman's Home Missionary Society, and the Committee on Apportioned Benevolences, the Pastor and Director of Religious Education being ex officio members.

§ 12, ¶ 107, of the Discipline to be changed as follows:

No. 5 in the list of Committees appointed by the Fourth Quarterly Conference to be omitted, and the numbering of the Committees be changed accordingly.

Then add one additional Section to be numbered § 13 and reading as follows:

"constitute at the fourth quarterly Conference a Commission of Religious Education to consist of one representative each from the Sunday School, the Epworth League, the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, the Woman's Home Missionary Society, and the Committee on Apportioned Benevolences, the Pastor and the Director of Religious Education being ex officio members."

We would also advise that the Commission authorized by the General Conference of 1920 be empowered to perfect Part No. 2 of their report, and make it available for local church commissions.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 25. REPORTS TO ANNUAL CONFERENCE, AND ESTABLISHING A FISCAL CONFERENCE YEAR.

¶ 88, § 2. At the end of the section add the following:

"Providing, however, an Annual Conference may direct the fiscal year of the Conference to be closed at least ten days before the time set for the annual meeting of the Conference, and require the pastors to send to the Conference Treasurer and Statistician their financial and statistical reports; said reports to be sent so that the aforesaid Conference Officers with their respective staffs may tabulate the reports and have them ready for the first day's session of the Conference."

So that the section shall read:

¶ 88, § 2. On the first day of the Conference Session each Pastor shall present his Statistical and Financial Reports, correctly and plainly written, all collections and other moneys being reported in dollars only, without fractions thereof. Provided, however, an Annual Conference may direct that the fiscal year of the Conference shall close not less than ten days before the time set for the annual meeting of the Conference, and require the pastors to send to the Conference Treasurer and Statistician their financial and statistical reports; said reports to be sent so that the aforesaid Conference Officers with their respective staffs may tabulate the reports and have them ready for the first day's session of the Conference."

VI. STATE OF THE CHURCH

REPORT NO. 1. MEMORIAL OF MICHIGAN CONFERENCE RELATING TO THE METHODIST FEDERATION FOR SOCIAL SERVICE

In reply to Memorial 96, from the Michigan Conference, the Committee on the State of the Church reply that the General Conference has no jurisdiction in the case in question and state that Mr. Harry F. Ward was, in this case, acting as an official of the Civil Liberties Union, which is in no sense related to the Methodist Episcopal Church and therefore is not answerable to the Church.

Adopted, May 14.

REPORT NO. 3. CHILD LABOR

Your Committee on State of the Church to which were referred Memorials 959, 1007, and 1017, on Child Labor recommends the following:

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, viewing with deep concern the persistent practice of exploiting childhood for mercenary purposes and believing that the future of the nation and of civilization depends upon the protection and proper development of the children of this generation, puts itself on record as favoring the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States giving to Congress power by legislation to control child labor and instructs the Secretary of the General Conference to transmit a copy of this action to the President of the United States, to the President of the Senate, and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Adopted, May 17.

REPORT NO. 4. RECEPTION OF MEMBERS

Your Committee on State of the Church having received and considered memorials referred to it concerning questions and answers in the forms for receiving members from preparatory into full membership, submits the following report and recommends its adoption.

Change the titles of ¶ 527 and 528 in the Discipline by adding the words "after Required Instruction Has Been Given," so that the titles will read as follows:

¶ 527: Form for Receiving Persons Into the Church from Preparatory Membership after Required Instruction Has Been Given.

¶ 528: Form For Receiving Children as Members of the Church after Required Instruction Has Been Given.

Substitute for the second, third, fourth, and fifth questions of ¶ 527, beginning at the third line from the bottom of page 418 and continuing on page 419 of the Discipline, the questions and answers now found in ¶ 528, page 422 of the Discipline, so that the questions and answers in ¶ 527 shall be as follows:

"Do you here in the presence of God and of this Congregation, renew the solemn promises contained in the Baptismal Covenant, ratifying and confirming the same, and acknowledging yourselves bound faithfully to observe and keep that covenant?"

Answer: I do.

Do you receive Jesus Christ as your Saviour and do you confess Him as your Lord and Master?

Answer: I do.

Do you receive and profess the Christian Faith as contained in the New Testament of our Lord Jesus Christ?

Answer: I do.

Will you be loyal to the Methodist Episcopal Church, and uphold it by your prayer, your presence, your gifts and your service?

Answer: I will.

Insert in ¶ 528 of the Discipline, page 422, after line 14, preceding the first question, the following question and answer:

"Do you here in the presence of God and of this Congregation renew the solemn promises contained in the Baptismal Covenant, ratifying and confirming the same, and acknowledging yourselves bound faithfully to observe and keep that covenant?"

Answer: I do.

No changes to be made in the other questions and answers in this paragraph.

REPORT NO. 5. AMENDMENT OF THE APOSTLES' CREED

Your Committee on State of the Church has given careful consideration to the various memorials asking for the following change in the Apostles' Creed:

In ¶ 72 of the Discipline, § 1, Division III, page 68, line 14, of the 1920 Discipline, replace the words "the holy Catholic Church" with the words "Christ's Holy Church," so that the whole sub-division shall read, "I believe in the Holy Ghost; Christ's Holy Church; the communion of saints; the forgiveness of sins; the resurrection of the body; and the life everlasting. Amen."

In ¶ 525 of the Discipline, page 414, lines 5 and 6, replace the words "the Holy Catholic Church" with the words "Christ's Holy Church," so that the whole sub-division shall read, "And dost thou believe in the Holy Ghost; Christ's Holy Church; the communion of saints; the forgiveness of sins; the resurrection of the body; and everlasting life after death?"

The footnote 2 on page 68 and footnote 1 on page 414 should then be omitted.

In the order of service as printed in the Hymnal the corresponding changes in the wording of the Apostles' Creed should be made.

We recommend nonconcurrency.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT No. 6. SABBATH OBSERVANCE

We call attention to the Episcopal address on the subject of Sabbath Observance. It sounds an alarm that cannot be ignored, yet your Committee finds it difficult to suggest a fixed plan by which proper observance may be brought up to a Christian standard. We do not believe ecclesiastical legislation penalizing a failure to keep this day in any particular way would be advisable, nor do we believe it wise for the Church to undertake to define a particular program for Sabbath observance, yet we believe the Church should stress with the greatest emphasis the duty of remembering and keeping holy the Lord's Day.

We therefore propose the following resolution:

WHEREAS, In the Episcopal Address to the General Conference warnings of the perils to the Lord's Day were sounded in no uncertain terms; and,

WHEREAS, These warnings are well founded; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we call upon the editors of all Christian publications and the secular press, as well as upon every preacher, every teacher in our schools and Sunday Schools, upon every auxiliary organization of our Church, and of other Christian churches, upon every member of every Church, and especially the members of every Christian home, persistently to insist by precept and example upon proper observance of this day as an integral and necessary part of Christian life and essential to the full glory of all religious, social and economic life.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 7. THE LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE

WHEREAS, The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at its session in 1888 took the initiative in forming the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States; and,

WHEREAS, Because of its efficiency it has been endorsed by sixteen other denominations and is now the accredited agency of the Evangelical Churches in America for the protection and preservation of the Christian Sabbath; and,

WHEREAS, The attacks upon this day have never been so deadly and the need for such an organization has never been so imperative; therefore be it,

Resolved, That we highly commend the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States, a child of the Church and its official representative in the important work, and rejoice in the large measure of success that has attended its activities in every State of the Union.

Resolved, That we nominate the following Permanent Committee on Sabbath Observance and again to represent the Methodist Episcopal Church on the Board of Managers of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States, in which they have rendered so effective service: John H. Willey, Chairman; F. Clare Baldwin, W. W. T. Duncan, Wallace MacMullen, and A. B. Sanford, and that we commend this Committee to our pastors and churches and ask their cooperation in the work of the organization. We also nominate Bishop Luther B. Wilson as Honorary Vice-President.

We commend the effort of the Lord's Day Alliance to secure the passage of a Sunday Observance Law for the District of Columbia.

Adopted, May 26.

The last paragraph was not in the original report.

REPORT NO. 8. DECLARATION ON SPIRITUAL LIFE

Methodism rejoices in the pronouncement of John Wesley "As to all opinions that do not strike at the root of Christianity, we think and let think." On that foundation our doctrinal structure is built. We insist only on the outstanding truths of Christian belief and leave the details of doctrine to individual judgment.

These central truths of the Christian religion were so clearly apprehended and stated by our founders that the progress of thought in theological and related lines of study has not compelled us to abandon any of them.

We therefore reaffirm our belief in the doctrines of Holy Scripture as set forth in the Articles of Religion of the Methodist Episcopal Church and emphasized in the Episcopal Address delivered before the General Conference, and we call upon all who exercise the teaching office as representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, whether in the pulpit or in the class room, to recognize the obligation that is upon them to be absolutely loyal to these basic beliefs of our Church.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 9. AMUSEMENTS

We recommend that ¶ 69, § 1, page 62, of the Discipline be amended as follows:

In place of line 11 insert "attendance upon immoral, questionable and misleading theatrical or motion picture performances; against dancing; against such games of chance."

In line 24 after the word "example" begin a new section to be numbered 2, and insert the following:

"We instruct our Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, or its successor, to lead the Church in a campaign of education which shall reveal to our people, both young and old, the dangers lurking in the amusements against which we warn. We instruct the above-named Board, or its successor, to produce and disseminate from time to time such scientifically prepared literature as shall awaken our people to the individual and social consequences of improper and excessive amusements."

§ 1 will then read in its entirety as follows:

¶ 69, § 1. "Improper amusements and excessive indulgence in innocent amusements are serious barriers to the beginning of religious life and fruitful causes of spiritual decline. Some amusements in common use are positively demoralizing and furnish the first easy steps to the total loss of character. We therefore look with deep concern on the great increase of amusements and on the general prevalence of harmful amusements, and lift up a solemn note of warning and entreaty, particularly against attendance upon immoral, questionable and misleading theatrical or motion picture performances; against dancing; and against such games of chance as are frequently associated with gambling; all of which have been found to be antagonistic to vital piety, promotive of worldliness, and especially pernicious to youth. We affectionately admonish all our people to make their amusements the subject of careful thought and frequent prayer, to study the subject of amusements in the light of their tendencies, and to be scrupulously careful in this matter to set no injurious example. We adjure them to remember that often the question for a Christian must be, not whether a certain course of action is positively immoral, but whether it will dull the spiritual life and be an unwise example.

§ 2. We instruct our Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, or its successor, to lead the Church in a campaign of education which shall reveal to our people, both young and old, the dangers lurking in the amusements against which we warn. We instruct the above-named Board, or its successor, to produce and disseminate from time to time such scientifically prepared literature as shall awaken our people to the individual and social consequences of improper and excessive amusements. We direct all our Bishops, District Superintendents, and Pastors to call attention to this subject with solemn urgency in our Annual and Quarterly Conferences and in all our pulpits; and our Editors, Sunday School Officers, Epworth League Officers and Class Leaders, to aid in abating the evils we deplore. We deem it our bounden duty to summon the whole Church to apply a thoughtful and instructed conscience to the choice of amusements, and not to leave them to accident, or taste, or passion; and we affectionately advise and beseech every member of the Church absolutely to avoid 'the taking of such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus.'"

The present § 2, page 63, will be numbered § 3, the contents remaining unchanged.

We further recommend that ¶ 280, page 195 of the Discipline, be amended as follows:

Omit the words "dancing; playing at games of chance; attending theaters, horse-races, circuses, dancing parties or patronizing dancing schools or taking such other amusements as are obviously of misleading or questionable moral tendency" and insert in their place, "taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." In line 5, page 196, change the word "second" to "further" and in line 7 change the word "third" to "continued."

¶ 280 will then read in its entirety:

¶ 280. In cases of neglect of duties of any kind; imprudent conduct; indulging in sinful tempers or words; "taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus"; or disobedience to the order and Discipline of the Church; on the first offense, let private reproof be given by the Pastor or Class Leader, and if there be an acknowledgment of the fault and proper humiliation, the person may be borne with. On further offense the Pastor or Class Leader may take with him one or two discreet members of the Church. On continued offense let him be brought to trial, and if found guilty and there be no sign of real humiliation, he shall be expelled.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 10. INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Your Committee on State of the Church reports concerning certain memorials as follows:

After a careful consideration of the memorial from the National Conference of Methodist Students (88) and Memorials 83, 85, 86 and 17, all of which relate to the same subjects, and Memorial No. 48 relating to certain topics treated in Episcopal Address, we call attention to those forceful utterances of the Episcopal Address on Topics of Church and Politics, Observance of Law, and Intersocial Cooperation as a statement of the position of the Methodist Episcopal Church in relation to these questions.

We furthermore call attention to the Social Creed of our Church, appearing in the 1920 Discipline as ¶ 592, and recommend the continuance of said paragraph in the 1924 Discipline with the following statements added thereto as embodying the principles of a larger conception of social service, taking the place of the present ¶ 593, page 562.

INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Methodism's Historic Emphasis. The fact that Christ died for all men is a sufficient warrant for our deep concern with all social forces which touch the welfare of men. The historic notes of emphasis in Methodism have been on conversion, on entire sanctification, on the capture of the child life from earliest infancy for the Kingdom of Heaven, on the right of way of the spiritual interests over all ecclesiastical organization. If these high religious values stand enthroned at the center of historic Methodism, we cannot stop short of the advocacy of such reconstruction of society in its industrial, agricultural, commercial and political aspects, as will tend to the spread of scriptural holiness. We must stand for such social measures as will give the inner personal life its chance. Our call for the evangelization of men rightly does not stop merely with the proclamation of free grace. We are under bonds to remove the contradictions which work against free grace. We must preach the duty of the conversion and sanctification of men in their wider institutional relationships. We cannot do our full duty to Methodism if we do not insist that industry and commerce and politics shall henceforth lead a new life following the commandments of God and walking in his holy ways.

Industry as an Instrument of the Abundant Life. Industry should be made the instrument for aiding men to find that abundant life for which Christianity stands. We call once again not merely for the physical conditions which will make for the Christianization of industry—for a living wage and for all possible safeguards for health and security—but for the higher prerequisites for sound human existence, for the recognition of labor's right to organize, for the laborer's right to be heard through representatives of his own choosing, for an increasing share of responsibility by labor in the control of industry. We believe that the time has come for the serious trying out of plans aiming at doing away with unemployment.

An Ethical Divergence. Property rights possess no inherent sacredness which puts them beyond the reach of criticism and revision by Christian society. We recognize the ethical divergence between property for use and property for power. We maintain the soundness of the principle that a man is entitled only to what he has in some real sense earned. Wealth accruing to the holders through monopoly values or special privileges, or through large opportunities for costless saving, is not earned, and wealth created by society should be devoted to the development of all the people in ways to be determined by the people themselves.

The Service Motive. The service motive in a Christian community must include industry. Except in many notable cases, humanity as now constituted does not put forth its best efforts unless a personal reward can be gained. The Church should have for its goal a time when pride in workmanship and loyalty in service will be the motives animating industry, and when all work will be so organized that these motives may be possible for all workers.

Immediate Duties. The elimination of unemployment, the interpretation of property rights in terms of property duties—the emphasizing of the motive of service rather than profit—the encouragement of all measures in every vocation which develop for all workers self-respect, self-control, self-determination, self-consecration, in a common purpose to achieve for each the highest values of life, these are the immediate obligations of the holders of the Christian faith.

The teachings of Jesus, summarized in the Golden Rule, are the only true guide to the relationships that should be maintained in industrial life. Christian employers have a unique opportunity in the field of industry to make a practical demonstration to the world of the teachings of the Master through the application of these teachings to industrial relationships.

Therefore we call upon our Methodist laymen to give careful study to the various experiments that are being made by industrial organizations, both large and small, in cooperative control, profit sharing and other methods of developing mutual confidence and understanding between employed and employer.

We urge our laymen not alone to study these experiments, many of which have been conspicuously successful, but to put them to practical test in business.

We call upon our ministers and editors to cooperate in giving publicity to such efforts to Christianize industry as will encourage those who are seeking to find a better way to settle industrial differences than through strikes, lockouts and the strife so common in modern industry.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT No. 11. TEXTBOOKS ON CHRISTIAN INTERNATIONALISM

Recognizing that permanent world peace can be achieved only as the children of the world are trained to believe in it, and to strive cooperatively for it, and,

WHEREAS, It has been demonstrated in our own time that a nation's attitude of mind may be completely changed within a generation through education of its youth, and,

WHEREAS, The Christian Church is an established educational agency, with its schools in all lands, "teaching all nations" as its Founder commissioned it to do, and,

WHEREAS, Goodwill, brotherhood and service are fundamental in the teachings which Christ commanded his followers to be extended to all nations; and,

WHEREAS, The various branches of the Church, through federated educational and missionary agencies, already have the organization by which to influence the thinking and form the ideals of millions of children now under their instruction; therefore be it

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church appeals to those who shape the curricula of our educational institutions at home and abroad, of our Sunday schools and young people's study courses, to elect or provide such textbooks as will develop a Christian internationalism based on mutual respect, understanding and cooperation, and that we call upon all who exercise the teaching function to avoid the glorification of war and to teach reliance on justice, law and reason instead of on passion and force in the adjustment of affairs between men and nations.

Resolved, That we welcome cooperation with other denominations and interdenominational agencies, and with the International Missions Council in an educational program to the end that the nations of the earth may learn war no more.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 12. METHODIST WORLD ASSOCIATION TO PROMOTE WORLD PEACE

Your Committee on State of the Church to which was referred Memorial No. 741, wherein lay the request of W. B. McCutcheon, Fraternal Delegate from the Methodist Church of Australia, that the Methodisms of the world form an association for the purpose of unitedly seeking world peace, recommends that the General Conference appoint a Committee for this purpose, and that said Committee urge the appointment of similar committees in other branches of Methodism for the purpose of conferring upon this matter and working unitedly in the interest of world peace.

Referred to Commission of Twenty-five, May 28.

REPORT NO. 13. DELETION OF NOTE AT END OF PARAGRAPH 538 OF THE DISCIPLINE

To your Committee on State of the Church has been referred a memorial No. 945, from the Central Conference of Southern Asia asking the General Conference "to delete from the Discipline the note at the end of ¶ 583 as it has already been covered by the provision in ¶ 95, § 4, (4).

This note has to do with the authority granted to the Central Conference of Southern Asia to prepare simplified and adapted forms of the ritual."

We recommend concurrence.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 14. CHRISTIAN UNITY

The Committee on State of the Church calls attention to the paragraphs of the Episcopal Address dealing with the subject of Christian Unity, particularly the following:

"The Methodist Episcopal Church believes in the largest possible cooperation among the Christian denominations in the common enterprises of the Kingdom. Now, as always, it is glad to give its support to every interdenominational movement that makes for the increase of the influence and power of the churches in their united tasks.

But it is the conviction of the Bishops that no interdenominational organization created for cooperative effort should assume the functions of the individual denominations, or in any way interfere with their freedom to do their own work in their own way. Nor should any interdenominational organizations assume to speak for, or in any way commit any of its constituent bodies to any program, policy or pronouncement without the approval and consent of those who are officially authorized to represent and speak for their respective bodies.

For an increasing spirit of unity and cooperation among the followers of our Lord called by many names and working in many lands, we most devoutly and constantly pray."

We recommend that this be adopted as the expression of the General Conference.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 16. ECUMENICAL CONFERENCE CONTINUATION COMMITTEE

The Committee on State of the Church has received and considered the following Memorial, No. 946:

"At the Fifth Ecumenical Methodist Conference held in London, England, September 6-16, 1921, action was taken following the precedent of the Fourth Ecumenical Conference in Toronto, Canada, in 1911, creating a Continuation Committee. in these terms:

"That it be the sense of this Conference that the conditions require the appointment of a Continuation Committee, to conserve the results of this Ecumenical Conference and for the furtherance of Methodism throughout the world, and that a committee of forty-eight be appointed, twenty-four of the Eastern, and twenty-four of the Western Section."

The Conference afterward proceeded to appoint twenty-nine of each section instead of twenty-four, so that there might be a wider representation.

Nominations were made by the Conference on behalf of both Sections for which the approval was asked of the constituent bodies they represent. Twelve of the Committee for the Methodist Episcopal Church were named as follows:

Bishop William F. McDowell, Bishop J. W. Hamilton, Bishop F. D. Leete, Bishop Edgar Blake, Rev. D. G. Downey, Rev. Clarence True Wilson, Rev. Paul Barnhart, H. K. Carroll, James R. Joy, James S. Watson, Mrs. May L. Woodruff, E. L. Kidney.

The Eastern Section has met and organized and is to hold its second session next September. The Western Section has not yet held a meeting.

The General Conference is requested to take action respecting the approval of the nominations for the Methodist Episcopal Church, to empower the Board of Bishops to fill vacancies and to make a suitable appropriation for the coming quadrennium for the expenses of the Committee.

Respectfully submitted,

J. W. Hamilton, Chairman.
H. K. Carroll, Secretary.

We recommend concurrence.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 18. COMMISSION ON CHURCH MUSIC

The Committee on State of the Church has had referred to it several memorials on Church Music. We recommend that the Bishops be asked to appoint a Commission of five ministers and five laymen to study the whole matter of Church music during the next quadrennium and report to the next General Conference, without expense to the Church.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 19. REVISION OF THE RITUAL

The Committee on State of the Church has carefully considered the numerous memorials referred to it proposing various changes in the Ritual. We recommend that in view of the pending movement for the Unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, any further revision of our Ritual be deferred indefinitely.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 20. CHRISTIAN CITIZENSHIP

The Committee on State of the Church recommends the following, as asked for in Memorial 1009:

Political righteousness is one of the safeguards of the nation.

Those men of great ability who frequently at great financial sacrifice are discharging the duties of important positions in the spirit of public service should receive the highest commendation and appreciation. Those who use such positions for private profit deserve the severest condemnation.

One of the greatest enemies to political righteousness, however, is the indifference of the Christian people to public and political affairs.

We therefore urge upon all our people the importance of taking part in the primaries and seeing that only honest and able men are nominated for office, and of voting upon election day and seeing that only such are elected to office.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 21. READING THE SOCIAL CREED

The Committee on State of the Church has considered Memorial 1049 asking "That the Editor of the Discipline be instructed to insert a footnote to the paragraph on the Social Creed of the Church, ¶ 592, recommending that the Social Creed be read to our congregations on the Sunday preceding Labor Day."

We recommend concurrence.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT No. 22. THE METHODIST FEDERATION FOR SOCIAL SERVICE

WHEREAS, The Methodist Federation for Social Service has been authorized by previous General Conferences as an inspirational and educational agency for the purpose of scientifically studying the social problems of our day, of acquainting the Church with the results of such study, and of raising with the Church questions of its responsibilities in regard thereto in the light of the ethics of Jesus; and,

WHEREAS, We have received its report at this General Conference, and,

WHEREAS, It has been understood from the time of its original authorization to the present, that the Methodist Federation for Social Service like other agencies of the Church does not speak officially for the Church, since that can be done only by action of the General Conference, and since the publications of the Methodist Federation for Social Service carry the explicit declaration that the editors thereof are solely responsible for the statements therein; and,

WHEREAS, It is imperative that there be some authorized agency in the Methodist Episcopal Church for the purpose of raising before the Church the question as to the social implications of the gospel of Jesus; therefore,

Resolved, That we commend the Methodist Federation for Social Service for its splendid activities in carrying on the work specified herein; and be it further Resolved, That the General Conference appoint a Commission composed of the following persons: Bishop Charles W. Burns, Bishop A. W. Leonard, W. H. Van Benschoten, E. L. Kidney, Ralph Diffendorfer, George H. Spencer, E. H. Cherrington, D. O. Colegrove, and G. Bromley Oxnam, who shall study the whole question of the organization of all the social service activities of the Methodist Episcopal Church and report to the next General Conference.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT No. 23. CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT PROHIBITING SECTARIAN APPROPRIATIONS

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church give its hearty endorsement to the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States now pending in the National Congress to prohibit the appropriation of public funds for sectarian purposes (House Resolution 159) and urge its immediate adoption.

The text of the amendment is, "No law shall be passed respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, nor shall the National Government or any State, county, city, town, village, or other civil division use its property or credit or any money raised by taxation or otherwise, or authorize either to be used, for the purpose of founding, maintaining, or aiding by appropriation, payment for services, expenses, or in any other manner, other than by remission of taxation, any church, religious denomination or religious society, or any institution, school, society, or undertaking which is wholly or in part under sectarian or ecclesiastical control."

We recommend however that this amendment be either modified or so interpreted that it may not prevent the payment to religious hospitals for their care of patients consigned to them by municipal authorities.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT No. 24. RESOLUTION ON THE OBSERVANCE OF EASTER WEEK

In the matter of the resolution on the Observance of Easter Week, printed on page 60 of The Daily Christian Advocate and referred to the Committee on the State of the Church, May 2, we recommend the following:

We rejoice in the growing practice by our churches of observing Holy Week with special and appropriate services, and we urgently request our General Superintendents to avoid, as far as practicable, fixing the dates of the Annual Conferences at a time which will interfere with a suitable observance of this week.

Adopted, May 28.

We recommend concurrence.

WHEREAS, There is pending before the Congress of the United States a proposal having for its object the amendment of the Constitution of the United States empowering Congress to establish uniform laws on the subject of divorce throughout the United States; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church assembled at Springfield, Massachusetts, May, 1924, that said Conference does hereby memorialize the Congress of the United States to pass such legislation as will result in the submission to the several States of a proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States empowering the Congress to establish uniform laws on the subject of divorce throughout the United States.

REPORT NO. 2. PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOOK COMMITTEE

Your Committee on Book Concern, to which was referred the Proceedings of the Book Committee, beg leave to recommend the adoption of the following report:

First: That this Committee has in no way attempted to audit or edit the accounts and minutes of the Book Committee. That we find duly certified audits of the accounts with full reports to same, the accounts as stated by the accountants being accurate and correct.

Second: That we find the Proceedings complete covering the Minutes of the Annual Meeting of the Book Committee, accompanied by detailed statements of financial operations during the past quadrennium; Minutes of the Corporation of the Methodist Book Concern, incorporated under the laws of the State of New York; Minutes of the Corporation of the Methodist Book Concern, incorporated under the laws of the State of Ohio; complete reports of the Local Committees at New York and Cincinnati; Proceedings of the Local Committees in Joint Session, also complete reports of the Publishing Agents at New York and Cincinnati. As a business organization, we, as Methodists, have just cause for pride in this our Book Concern and its remarkable record during the past quadrennium.

Third: It should be gratifying to all who are interested in the various departments of work to note that, in view of the fact that two of the past four years have witnessed a severe business depression, the profits of the Book Concern have been larger than usual, and the dividends declared the past quadrennium amount to $1,175,000. The necessary reserve amounts for the financial safety of such a Concern are amply set out and drawing a fair rate of interest. A comparative statement of sales and net earnings is shown below:

Year	Sales	Gross Earnings

shown by the Book Concern in its relations with those who labor for it, has been fully maintained, there being approximately 1,000 people in the employ of the Book Concern.

REPORT NO. 3. BOOKS AND OTHER PUBLICATIONS

Your Committee on Book Concern makes reference to that portion of the Report of the Book Committee to the General Conference, dealing with Books and other Publications.

We note with pleasure the eager demand for Methodist literature and the high grade of Methodist Publications.

Much of our efficiency as a denomination is due to the fact that we have not only helps for the novice, but also books well calculated to lead the very leaders of the Church into greater and better service. Their value is further evidenced by the increasing market which they are finding in other denominations.

We especially commend the conception, and completion of the Biblical Introduction Series under Professors Eiselen and Hayes, and trust that the series of Abingdon Religious Education Texts may soon be completed, and that as our varied work grows, the publications of our Book Concern may meet every demand of our world-wide plans.

Adopted, May 16.

REPORT NO. 4. SPANISH HYMNALS

Your Committee, having considered the Memorial No. 177, from the Chile Conference, requesting the aid of the Book Concern in publishing a hymnal in the Spanish language, recommend that the aid be granted, provided that satisfactory business arrangements can be made by the Book Concern, and provided also that such publication receive the sanction of the resident Bishop or Bishops and be in harmony with the doctrines of the Church.

REPORT NO. 5. GERMAN HYMN BOOK

Your Committee, having considered Memorial No. 460, from the North Germany and South Germany Conferences asking permission to publish a revision of their hymnal, recommend that the matter be approved by the resident Bishop or Bishops and that the contents of the hymnals thus published be in harmony with the doctrines of our Church, and provided also that such publication involve no financial obligation on the part of the Church.

REPORT NO. 6. EPISCOPAL FUND

Your Committee on Book Concern having carefully examined that portion of the Proceedings of the Book Committee to the General Conference on the Episcopal Fund, beg leave to submit the following report:

Your Committee desires to call your attention to the following:

First—The excellent manner in which the Episcopal Fund has been administered during the past quadrennium by the Treasurer, George P. Mains, and the Assistant Treasurer, John H. Race, all the details of which have been admirably handled by Mr. John R. Huff, Cashier of the New York House. We call especial attention to the small administrative cost, the same being one and four tenths per cent on the amount administered.

Second—Whereas, George P. Mains and John R. Huff have recently tendered their resignations, which have been accepted by the Book Committee, be it Resolved, That the General Conference by a rising vote, express to these brethren our high esteem and appreciation for their many years of faithful service as the custodians of the Episcopal Fund.

REPORT NO. 7. EPISCOPAL FUND

Your Committee on Book Concern, having carefully examined that portion of the Proceedings of the Book Committee to the General Conference on the Episcopal Fund, beg leave to submit the following report:

Whereas, The first year of the past quadrennium, the expenditure of this fund exceeded the receipts by $40,992.21; making it necessary for the Book Committee to increase the rate from one and three fourths per cent to two and one fourth per cent, based upon pastor's salary and house rent, as required in the Discipline, ¶ 331, page 225; in 1923, action was taken reducing the rate to two per cent, beginning January 1, 1924.

Whereas, At the time this action was taken figures were not available indicating the great increase in pastors' salaries for the past two years, which figures, now available, show the increase for 1922-1923 to be more than $3,500,000; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Book Committee be hereby instructed to fix the apportionment for the Episcopal Fund from year to year so that the surplus in the fund shall not, at the end of any fiscal year, exceed the approximate sum of $150,000.

REPORT NO. 14A. PURPOSE OF THE BOOK CONCERN

Your Committee to which were referred certain Memorials together with paragraphs from the Episcopal Address and the Quadrennium Report of the Book Committee concerning the purpose or purposes of the Book Concern, begs to emphasize the significance of the inquiry and the importance of a clear and full understanding of the reason for the creation and continued existence of the Book Concern of the Methodist Episcopal Church. For the largest success and unimpaired influence of the Book Concern there must be no misunderstanding, no misconception. The contention of some is that the Book Concern exists solely for the benefit of "the traveling supernumerary and the superannuated preachers, their wives, widows, and children." Such an assertion is historically inaccurate, not in accordance with the facts, and misleading. The implications of such a statement are mischievous and divisive. So also are the intimations that the Book Concern is fulfilling its purpose only when without consideration to financial results, the presses of the Book Concern are serving the Church and the world.

The Church must never forget or confuse the objects and purposes of the Book Concern.

The beginning of the publishing business of Methodism was not the beginning of a commercial enterprise, but the creation of a new and powerful agency for the spread of Scriptural holiness throughout the land. Mr. Wesley, early in his ministry, made use of the printed page. Thirty years after his first book was published he wrote in his Journal: "In the same year (1773) I printed for the use of my pupils 'A Collection of Forms of Prayer.'" His followers needed instruction and guidance and the printed page provided both. With the same high purpose he first sent books to the Methodists in America. The itinerant preachers here almost from the start of the Methodist Movement in America, realized the importance and value of printing as an aid in their ceaseless endeavors for the salvation of souls and the establishing of Christian ideals of righteousness in the cities and towns of the new republic and along the frontiers of a new civilization. The genesis of the Book Concern was spiritual, not material. Its primary purpose was educational and in other ways helpful. It was established not to make money, but to help make saints.

The obligation of the Book Concern is to the whole denomination, not to an organization, or a group. Its mission is to all people called Methodists. It has a duty to the whole world. The ministry of the Book Concern now as at the beginning is to the whole Church; ministry and people; it was created for the people, it exists for the people. It is not an institution; it is a Divine agency. It is not a corporation, it is spirit, energy, life, light. It is fulfilling its mission, surely in part at least, when the people are being helped, instructed, guided, encouraged, comforted. The Book of Discipline very clearly indicates this, ¶ 379, § 2, "The objects and purposes for which The Methodist Book Concern was established and is carried on are: the promotion of Christian education; the dissemination of moral and religious literature; the spread of Christianity by the publication, sale, and distribution of moral and religious literature; the transaction of such business as is properly connected with book publishing, book making, and book selling; the produce of the same to be applied for the benefit of the Traveling, Supernumerary, and Retired Preachers, their wives, widows, and children, in accordance with the Constitution and Discipline of the Church."

The objects and purposes for which the Book Concern was established and is carried on, which are here so specifically indicated and so carefully phrased, when these have been fulfilled, then but not until then, the produce of the Book Concern by the wise provision of the fathers is distributed to the Traveling, Supernumeraries, and Superannuated Preachers, their wives, widows, and children. This provision was an inspiration of God, and has resulted in immeasurable blessings to thousands of faithful retired ministers. No other denomination can show such superb results as have come from the forethought of the founders of Methodism. Starting with practically no capital, The Methodist Book Concern by careful and representative management and in accordance with the provisions of the Discipline (§ 393) "The produce of the Book Concern after the Book Committee has determined and retained a sufficient amount with which to carry on its affairs, shall, etc.," has grown to be one of the largest publishing houses in the world. This position of distinction has been attained only through long years of painstaking fidelity to the objects and purposes of the Book Concern, and the loyal devotion of many laymen and ministers of the Church, who have not been disobedient to the heavenly vision, and who have steadfastly believed and maintained that the largest interests of the retired preachers could best be safeguarded and advanced by holding to the primary purposes of the Book Concern. This steadily growing "produce, or profits of the Book Concern" are a justification both of their policy and the management of the affairs of the publishing interests of the Church. The Book Concern has promoted Christian education, has disseminated moral and religious literature, has sought to advance Christianity by the publication, sale and distribution of moral and religious literature, and has at the same time not only built up a necessary capital, but also has made possible the distribution of millions of dollars to the retired preachers of the Church; during the present quadrennium alone the total amount distributed being $1,175,000, an achievement of such magnitude as to furnish grounds of devout thanksgiving both for the objects and purposes for which The Book Concern was established and is carried on, and for the glorious results, many of which are intangible but very real, even though they cannot be measured or tabulated, and others which are material, as evidenced by "the ever-increasing volume of produce distributed to the Annual Conferences at home and abroad" for the benefit of the Traveling, Supernumerary, and Superannuated Preachers, their wives, widows, and children."

In the Book Concern of the Methodist Episcopal Church, mercy and truth have met together. It exists to serve the Church and humanity, to herald with a thousand vibrant voices the glad, good news of our blessed gospel, to show the young, wandering amid devious and alluring paths, the one true way, to comfort the sorrowing, to shield the weak, to champion the oppressed, to give instruction and guidance to all who lack wisdom and understanding, and to lend a strong arm and abundant succor to old age. In this multifarious ministry it is fulfilling its holy purpose.

REPORT NO. 5. CENTRAL CONFERENCE AND CENTRAL MISSION CONFERENCES

After due consideration of the report of the Commission on Central Conferences and of Memorials No. 115, 151, 290, 746, 749, 751, 775, 776, 798, 928, 954, 955, 956, 963, 999, and 1002 your committee recommends that hereafter there shall be Central Conferences and Central Mission Conferences and that Chapter IV of the 1920 Discipline shall be superseded by the following two paragraphs:

CHAPTER IV

CENTRAL CONFERENCES

¶ 95, § 1. There shall be such Central Conferences as have been heretofore authorized, or shall be hereafter authorized by the General Conference, or that may develop from authorized Central Mission Conference as set forth in § 17, with the privileges and powers as hereinafter set forth, provided that a Central Conference shall have at least a total of 20 ministerial and 20 lay delegates on the basis of representation as set forth in § 2.

§ 2. The Central Conferences shall be composed of ministerial and lay members in equal numbers, chosen in such manner and with such qualifications as the Central Conference shall itself determine, provided that each Annual Conference, Mission Conference and Mission shall be entitled to at least two ministerial and two lay delegates, and that no other selection of delegates shall be authorized which would provide for more than one ministerial delegate for every six members of an Annual Conference, Mission Conference, or Mission, except that a fraction of two thirds of the ratio fixed by a Central Conference shall entitle an Annual Conference, Mission Conference, or Mission to an additional ministerial delegate, and to an additional lay delegate.

§ 3. The first meeting of a Central Conference shall be called by the Bishop or Bishops in charge, at such time and place as he or they may select, to which all of the members of the Conferences and Missions concerned shall be invited, and at which a ratio of representation shall be fixed by the Conference; provided, that in a Central Conference the ratio of representation shall not be greater than one ministerial delegate to every six members, except as set forth in § 2. The time and place of future meetings shall be determined by the Central Conference.

§ 4. Each Central Conference shall meet at least once every four years at such time and place as it may elect. The sessions of said Conference shall be presided over by Bishops in attendance in such order as they may determine. In case no Bishop is present, the Conference shall elect a temporary President from among its own members. The resident Bishops, or a majority of them, with the concurrence of the Executive Committee or other authorized Committee, shall have the authority to call an extra session of the Central Conference, to be held at the time and place designated by them.

§ 5. The presiding officer of the Central Conference shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the Central Conference, and he shall decide questions of law subject to an appeal to the General Conference; but questions relating to the interpretation of the Rules and Regulations made by the Central Conference shall be decided by the Central Conference.

Central Conference Powers

§ 6. (1) To a Central Conference shall be committed for supervision, in harmony with the Book of Discipline and interdenominational contractual agreements, the educational, industrial, publishing, medical, and other connectional interests of the Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions within its territory, and such other matters as may be referred to it by the Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions concerned, or by order of the General Conference.

When in any of our foreign Mission fields there is more than one Annual Conference or Mission, if ordered by the General Conference, it shall be lawful to organize a Central Mission Conference, to be composed of either all of the members of those Annual Conferences or Missions, or of delegates from the same, elected according to such ratio as may be agreed upon between the constituent parties, who may also provide for the admission of laymen to such Conference, the number of lay delegates not to exceed that of the clerical delegates.

§ 2. The first meeting of the Central Mission Conference shall be called by the Bishop in charge, at such time and place as he may select, to which all the members of the Conferences and Missions concerned shall be invited, and at which a ratio of representation shall be fixed by the Conference. The time and place of future meetings shall be determined by the Central Mission Conference; provided, that it shall meet at least once in four years.

§ 3. A General Superintendent or Missionary Bishop, if present, shall preside over a Central Mission Conference, but in his absence the Conference shall elect a president from among its own members. Missionary Bishops have equal rights and privileges with General Superintendents in the sessions of the Central Mission Conferences with which they may be connected.

(1) To a Central Mission Conference shall be committed for supervision the educational, industrial, publishing, medical, and other connectional interests of the Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions within its jurisdiction; but never in contravention of the Book of Discipline, or the orders of the General Conference; and it shall have no authority to

(8) A Central Mission Conference shall have power to make such rules and regulations for the purchase, holding and transferring of property, not related to the Board of Foreign Missions and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, as the local laws allow or require.

§ 5. In the Central Mission Conference the right shall be reserved to vote by Conferences or Missions whenever the delegations from one third of the several Conferences or Missions represented shall so demand. In such cases the concurrent vote of the delegations from two thirds of all the Conferences and Missions present and voting shall be necessary to complete an action.

REPORT NO. 6. AMENDING CONSTITUTION OF BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

Your Committee, to whom was referred Memorial No. 62, relative to Amendments to the Constitution of the Board of Foreign Missions, makes the following recommendations:

First: Amend ¶ 413, title and § 1, by striking out the title and the section and substituting the following:

“¶ 413. Article II.—Life Members and Honorary Managers.”

“§ 1. Members of the Foreign Missionary Society who contribute $1,000 at one time shall become Life Members and may attend the Annual Meeting of the Board, but without vote.”

Second: Amend ¶ 414, § 2, by striking out from the first sentence the words “thirty-two traveling ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church and thirty-two laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church” and substituting therefor the words “twenty-five traveling ministers and twenty-five lay members of the Methodist Episcopal Church,” and further strike out in the second sentence the word “laymen” and substitute the words “lay members,” so that the section as amended shall read:

“§ 2. The Board of Managers shall consist of all the effective General Superintendents, who shall be ex-officio members of said Board, and twenty-five traveling ministers and twenty-five lay members of the Methodist Episcopal Church elected by the General Conference upon nomination of the Bishops. In constituting the Board of Managers, the Bishops shall nominate one representative from each Episcopal Area in the United States, preserving as nearly as may be an equality in the number of ministers and lay members chosen from these Areas.”

§ 2. (Withdrawn.)

Third: Amend ¶ 414, § 4, by changing the words “not less than thirty" to "twenty-one" and strike out the third sentence so that the section as amended shall read:

"§ 4. The Board of Managers shall elect an Executive Committee consisting of twenty-one members. This Committee shall meet monthly at the headquarters of the Board of Foreign Missions in New York City, unless otherwise ordered by the Board."

Fourth: Amend ¶ 414, § 5, as follows:

1. Strike out the word "Vice-President" in line 6 and insert the words "one or more Vice-Presidents."

2. Insert before the last sentence the words "The funds of the Board shall be administered on the Mission field by agencies which the Board shall approve."

So that the section as amended shall read as follows:

"§ 5. Vacancies in the Board of Managers shall be filled as the Charter provides. The Board shall have authority to make By-laws, not inconsistent with this Constitution or the Charter; to print books, periodicals, and tracts for Foreign Missions; to elect a President, one or more Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer and such Assistants as may be necessary, a Recording Secretary and such Assistant and other Secretaries as may be necessary; to fill vacancies that may occur among the officers elected by the Board; to organize departments for the administration of the work of the Board; to invite the cooperation of other agencies, where such cooperation will increase efficiency of the work in the foreign field. The funds of the Board shall be administered on the mission field by agencies which the Board shall approve. It shall present a statement of its transactions and funds to the Church in its annual report, and shall lay before the General Conference a report of its transactions for the preceding four years, and the state of its funds."

Fifth: Amend ¶ 418, by changing the title to read "Constitution and Support of Missionaries," reversing the order of the sections, changing the words "above provided" in § 2 to read "provided in § 2" and at the end of the new § 2 add the sentence "In this matter the Board shall as far as practicable base its procedure upon provisions similar to those prescribed for Annual Conferences," so that the Paragraph as amended shall read:

"¶ 418. Article VII. Appointment and Support of Missionaries.

§ 1. A person shall be acknowledged as a Missionary or receive support as such from the funds of the Board of Foreign Missions only when such person has been approved by the Board of Managers and has been assigned to some definite field except as provided in § 2. Ministerial missionaries shall be constituted by the joint action of a General Superintendent and the Board. Lay missionaries shall be appointed by the Board of Managers.

§ 2. The Board may provide for the support of Retired Missionaries and of the widows and orphans of Missionaries who may not be provided for by their Annual Conferences respectively; provided they shall not receive more than is usually allowed retired ministers, their widows and orphans in home Conference. In this matter, the Board shall as far as practicable base its procedure upon provisions similar to those prescribed for Annual Conferences."

Sixth: Add after ¶ 418 a new Paragraph as follows:

"¶ 419, Article VIII. Field Finance Committees.

§ 1. In a mission field of the Board of Foreign Missions in which there may be an Annual Conference, Mission Conference or an organized Mission, there shall be a Committee on Finance, consisting of the following members, ex officio: the Resident and the Presiding Bishops; the Mission Treasurer and the Mission Superintendents. The Committee shall also include such other persons as the Annual or Mission Conference or Mission may elect, subject to the approval of the Board of Foreign Missions. The Committee shall elect its own Chairman. This Committee shall be responsible to the Board of Foreign Missions for the administration of the funds provided by the Board.

§ 2. In territory of a Central Conference or a Central Mission Conference said Central Conference may prescribe the method of constituting such finance committees, subject to the approval of the Board of Foreign Missions. This Committee shall be responsible to the Board of Foreign Missions for the administration of its funds."

Seventh: Amend ¶ 423, by striking out the words "lay male" and substituting the word "laymen," so that the first line shall read:

"¶ 423. Laymen, missionaries of the Board of . . ." also change the title to correspond.

Eighth: Amend ¶ 426, by striking out the last clause, reading: "cooperate with the missionary office in New York City in the distinctive work of the Missionary Education Department and keep said office informed as to missionary conditions on the District"—and substituting:

"Cooperate with the Board and other agencies of the Church in the promotion of missionary education and keep the Board informed as to foreign missionary conditions on the district."

REPORT NO. 7. BIBLE WOMEN AS MEMBERS OF QUARTERLY CONFERENCE

Your Committee, to whom was referred Memorial No. 791, recommending the standardization of courses for Bible women and that they shall be eligible for membership in Quarterly Conferences and District Conferences, recommend that said Memorial be approved to the extent that such legislation is commended to the Central Conferences and Central Mission Conferences wherever such legislation is desired.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 8. BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY OF WILLIAM TAYLOR

We, your Committee, to whom was referred Memorial No. 363, relating to the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of William Taylor, beg leave to report as follows:

1. We endorse the movement to celebrate the 100th Anniversary of the birth of Bishop William Taylor.

2. We recommend the reference of this matter to the Board of Foreign Missions with instructions to cooperate in such ways as are desirable.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 9. RELIEF FOR ALL OUR WORK IN GERMANY

We, your Committee, to whom was referred Memorial No. 1111, asking for additional relief for our churches in Germany, recommend:

That the Board of Bishops be requested to appoint a committee of seven, of which two shall be Bishops, to study, in conjunction with the Board of Foreign Missions, the conditions in Germany and to seek ways of relief from the situation, the request of the Committee to be submitted to the Board of Foreign Missions, and the Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions be a member of this Committee ex officio.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 10. LAY MISSIONARIES

We, your Committee, to whom was referred Memorial No. 1082, asking that lay missionaries be invited to sit as associate members of their various Annual Conferences, recommend that the same be referred to the Board of Foreign Missions.

Adopted, May 29.

REPORT NO. 11. WOMAN'S FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY

We, your Committee, to whom was referred the Report on the Activities of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, beg leave to summarize the splendid record of said Society as follows:

Since 1869—The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society has sent overseas $30,000,000. Led 175,000 women to Christ and into Church membership.

To-day it works in 19 countries. Maintains schools which enroll 50,000 students. Supports 5,700 native workers and nearly 700 missionaries.

It is a mighty agent to turn the thought of the Orient toward Christ's ideal for women.

At home the record of 1923 touches the 600,000 mark for membership and $2,303,000, a single year's receipts.

But beyond record it is a mighty agency in extending the horizons and expanding the ideals of the women of Methodism.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 12. FURTHER RELIEF FOR JAPAN

We, your Committee, to whom was referred the reference in the Annual Report of the Secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions to the earthquake fund for Japan, beg leave to report as follows:

We commend to the sympathy and generosity of our entire Church the unfinished task that lies before the Board of Foreign Missions and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society in replacing their property losses in Japan, sustained during the recent earthquake. Generous as has been the response to the Christmas appeal there still remains unprovided for almost two thirds of the total amount asked. A million dollars must yet be found before our properties in Japan will be restored. We, therefore, urge the fullest support of such efforts as shall be authorized and undertaken by our Church agencies for the completion of this work.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 13. QUADRENNIAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

Your Committee, on report of the Secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions, would report as follows:

The past quadrennium has been a period of trials and triumphs never before known in our history.

We began with an enthusiasm which was illustrated by sending of seventeen Bishops to foreign fields, representing plans which were, in large part, a wholly new departure.

For the first time in our history, the total problem of the kingdom of God in the world was taken into consideration, and our programs drawn accordingly. A broader and more comprehensive plan of attack was outlined and nothing that humanly could be foreseen was omitted to make the plans eventuate in success.

The Church was called to prayer for the whole world. Christian stewardship was elevated from a mere call for funds to a worthy ideal of the whole life. The broadest appeal for dedication to world service was sent throughout the Church. And to the whole Church went the appeal to accept its full share of responsibility for the evangelization of the world.

In response to this fourfold call 537 new recruits were actually sent into the foreign field. The waning of the remarkable enthusiasm universal at the close of the World War is a matter of record and more serious than the lapse of enthusiasm was corresponding lapse of idealism, that great idealism which so many had thought was surely about to secure the redemption of the world.

The plans of the Board were drawn on the basis of a general payment of Centenary subscriptions. The first break in the line resulted from the serious falling off of Centenary income. With the decrease in income, and nearly, if not quite equal in consequences, was the tremendous loss in exchange, amounting since the war to much more than eight hundred thousand dollars.

The doubling of all transit costs, the large deficit in the Columbus exposition and the loss because of the Interchurch Movement were among the seriously heavy blows that have caused distressing embarrassment to the work of the Board.

But those serious losses and disappointments do not blind our eyes to the great achievements of the quadrennium.

It is apparent that these losses were due to causes which no one anticipated and which could not be foreseen. In the meantime our work has been expanded far beyond all former accomplishments. Never before was our Church so truly a world Church as at this hour.

There is still no appeal that touches the heart of the Church at large as does the Foreign Missionary enterprise, and it is to be regretted that our present plans as to designated gifts renders largely vain the purposes of devoted and loyal people to maintain this cause. It is certainly to be hoped that a more satisfactory arrangement can be made in the near future whereby the desire of the people may be transformed more effectively into missionary contribution.

In the midst of the other financial difficulties came the tremendous appeal from Japan to meet the earthquake situation. For this cause nearly $600,000 was contributed, the Christmas offering being devoted to that purpose.

We rejoice in the development of the principle and practice of cooperation on the field resulting in the avoidance of overlapping and the best possible use of all funds and forces available.

The study of foreign governments and the adaptation of our work to all the complicated situations that arise from differences of race, religions, and government is a matter of utmost importance and approval.

We believe that our leaders are highly equipped to grapple with those situations and are meeting them with every promise of success. Our workers are in touch with the Moslem and the Roman Catholic world as never before. In the présence of forty governments our Church carries on through the Board of Foreign Missions.

In the midst of all the complexity the one great Church is being carried on in organization and life. Very great changes may be impending. The development of nationalism and on the other hand of Central Conferences are indications of the problem and of its solution.

The Central Conferences especially have had large attention from our General Committee and the outcome will be observed with the greatest interest. Visiting the fields and consultation with the Bishops on the ground have been means of closer cooperation and wise planning throughout the quadrennium. Correspondence is difficult because of the time and distances involved but has been used to great advantage. Methodist travelers, Bishops, missionaries, and educators have taken part in that important phase of the work.

In full consciousness of the financial problems of the quadrennium, we nevertheless express our gratitude to God for the amazing progress of the Church on the field. Gifts of money in all mission lands have greatly increased. Six thousand, five hundred new national workers and 115,000 members have been added; six hundred residences have been built and hundreds of churches and other buildings also.

As in the home field, numerous forms of service have been rendered of which we had not dreamed a generation ago, so it is abroad. Every new thing of value that the years are bringing to us is being taken at once to the most distant places in a most remarkable manner. Social centers, Boy Scouts, health instruction sound strange to our ears as part of the Missionary Program, but such they are. Agricultural help is most highly important, is greatly appreciated and great advance is being made in that direction.

We believe that there is not only no department of our Church life which has a greater claim upon our interest and attention than the foreign service, but also that its administration has been of the highest order of religious spirit and of ecclesiastical statesmanship.

And we would express our highest appreciation of the administration of our Secretaries, Frank Mason North and Titus Lowe, and our gratitude in behalf of the Church for their wise and successful leadership.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT No. 14. AMENDING POWERS OF BOARD OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

We, your Committee, to whom was referred Memorial No. 1129, amending the powers of the Board of Foreign Missions in the Articles of Incorporation, make the following recommendations:

In Chapter III, ¶ 411, of the Discipline, relating to the Board of Foreign Missions, omit all after the word "work," in the fifth line of § 1, of said ¶ 411, and substitute therefor the following:

"There shall be a Board of Foreign Missions duly incorporated according to law and having its office in New York City; said Board shall have committed to it the general supervision of all work in fields outside of the jurisdiction of the United States, in harmony and cooperation with the constituted authorities of the Church in said fields, and similarly in such places subject to the sovereignty of the United States as may be assigned to it by the General Conference from time to time and shall be subject to such rules and regulations as the General Conference may prescribe." And substitute for § 2 of said ¶ 411, the following:

"Other denominational agencies shall undertake work in the fields indicated only in cooperation with this Board," so that the whole ¶ 411 will read as follows:

"¶ 411, § 1. There shall be a Board of Foreign Missions duly incorporated according to law, and having its office in New York City; said Board of Foreign Missions shall have committed to it the general supervision of all work in fields outside of the jurisdiction of the United States, in harmony and cooperation with the constituted authorities of the Church in said fields, and similarly in such places subject to the sovereignty of the United States as may be assigned to it by the General Conference from time to time and shall be subject to such rules and regulations as the General Conference may prescribe."

"§ 2. Other denominational agencies shall undertake work in the fields indicated only in cooperation with this Board."

In § 2, ¶ 415, omit the last four lines of said Section and after the words "missionary intelligence" in the sixth line of said Section, add the words:

"In promoting the work committed to this Board and the general interests of the cause by correspondence, travel and such other methods, activities as the service involves and the Board may approve." So that the whole section will read:

"§ 2. They shall be subject to the direction of the Board of Managers and their salaries, which shall be fixed by the Board of Managers, shall be paid out of the treasury. They shall be employed exclusively in conducting the correspondence of the Board, in furnishing the Church with missionary intelligence, in promoting the work committed to this Board and the general interests of the cause by correspondence, travel, and such other activities as the service involves and the Board may approve."

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 15. EUROPE AND NORTH AFRICA

Your Committee has given careful consideration to the "Statement to the General Conference," from the Special Committee appointed at the last Annual Meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions, to be prepared by its own Committee on Policy and Work in Europe in collaboration with the Executive Officers of the Board. It also had before it the reports of Bishops Nuelson, Bast, and Blake, covering this territory, as well as the Journals of the second session of the European Central Conference and the first session of the Northern Europe Central Conference, and the Annual Reports of the Board of Foreign Missions and the statement prepared by Dr. George M. Fowles, Treasurer of said Board, and has availed itself of personal conversations with representatives from the various fields in Europe and North Africa.

In view of the possible unification with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, we should keep in mind that the work in Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium, and the southern part of Russia, including the Ukraine, is by mutual agreement allocated to that Church.

The success of our work in Germany, Switzerland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden, is no doubt due to their common Protestant heritage, to the contrast of the evangelical spirit of Methodism with the more formal life of the state churches, and to the approach to these countries by nationals.

We suggest that the legal department of the Board of Foreign Missions prepare a brief constitution which could be submitted to the governments of Europe as the sum and substance of our Methodist Disciplinary Code of Law, thus insuring uniformity of our legal status quo.

While we gratefully recognize the growing desire on the part of the nationals in the various countries where we are at work to assume responsibility for programs and policies, we would earnestly commend the example of the Scandinavian brethren in the matter of corresponding self-support.

Has the time not come when we should profit by the example of successful operations of such religious organizations in Europe whose main emphasis of missionary activity has been placed upon the distribution of their specific literature in nearly all the languages of Europe? In view of the great dearth of Methodist literature in European countries, we would suggest that there be a coordinating of publishing interests in Europe under the joint direction of The Methodist Book Concern and the Board of Foreign Missions, placing a Depository of The Methodist Book Concern in some centrally located city.

BULGARIA

Many are the indications that we are on the verge of a great revival in Bulgaria. The Holy Synod has sensed it and is stirring the country to reaction. The people crowd the churches to hear the preached word. Any preacher with an evangelistic passion and with a message worth hearing can have a crowd. When the revival comes it will be in proportions seldom seen in European countries. Prejudice against our evangelical schools has broken down. Our one school, crowded when harboring eighty students, is housing one hundred and could have three times that number.

Intelligent young men are seeking the ministry through the portals of our Church to a degree never known before. The larger portion of these are graduates of gymnasiums of the land—institutions equal to any of the same class in Europe. Others lack only a year or two of meeting the same qualifications. Some sixteen of these have been sent to various points in Europe for further training during the last three years.

We should entrench ourselves strongly in Sofia, the capital of the kingdom. We have been handicapped here for lack of equipment. The Centenary program was to give us a church, a hall for Sunday School and social work, home for the Superintendent and pastor, office for administration, rooms for nursery and clinic for children, room for Boy Scouts, hostel for university students, gymnasium for athletics, and baths and rooms for women's work. Not one of these features has materialized. We have secured a lot in the center of the city which for adaptability, size and situation, no better can be found in the entire city. Only one of the three buildings planned is half completed and we are halted for want of funds. Not one of the eight hundred and more of the completed buildings erected by Centenary funds can yet be registered for Bulgaria. We need this plant and need it mightily.

FRANCE

Leaving aside the institutional and benevolent aspects of the work in France, and looking only at the conditions of the organized Church Work, there can be no doubt that we are facing a magnificent opportunity to develop a sturdy, aggressive French Methodist Episcopal Church, which will be both a challenge and an inspiration to all the Protestant forces in France.

Prior to the beginning of the war, in 1914, the annual disbursement of the Board averaged less than $8,000, while the contributions from the field for all purposes did not amount to $1,000 a year. But beginning with the year 1919, following the signature of the Peace Treaty, the work in France has entered upon a period of remarkable development. For the calendar years 1919 to 1923, the contributions on the field for all purposes have increased from 20,000 francs to 1,000,000 francs, though the value of the franc has varied but little (about sixteen to the dollar). This is an increase of 500%. The growth in membership has been from under 600 to 1,374, or over 100%. The leaders of our work in France confidently predict the doubling of our membership within the next five years.

GERMANY

We are grateful for the encouraging reports about the work in Central Europe. Methodism brings a saving and healing message to the broken nations and our Church is called by the Master to fulfill a great task for the future in this critical hour of European history.

We appreciate the splendid relief work our congregation in Switzerland did. We rejoice in the remarkable successes in Austria, Hungary, the Baltics and Russia. The Conferences in these countries need all the support that the Church is able to give.

Our sympathy is stirred by the conditions in Germany, for the preachers and their families, the deaconesses, the congregations, the thousands of children and women now suffering under heavy burdens, and we give our warmest support to the relief activities which have been undertaken.

Our hearts are glad in hearing of a religious revival in Germany. Our prayer is that this revival may become a strong factor in the building up of the kingdom of God and in the reconstruction of Europe. We congratulate our brethren in Germany on the success they have had in behalf of the prohibition cause and hope that Methodism will retain its leadership in this great world movement.

The most outstanding factor of greatest importance for the work in the whole Area is, in our judgment, the Theological Seminary, Martin Mission Institute, in Frankfort-am-Main. Eighty students are there at present, representing ten different nations. The problem of the Church in Central Europe is the problem of leadership. The need of such leadership is the challenge of the day. We therefore heartily favor the plan which the Conferences in Germany and Switzerland adopted, that in connection with the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Germany and Europe, there should be raised a jubilee fund for this very important institution, which on account of the financial situation in Germany is threatened with catastrophe, and we recommend that the Committee of Seven, for studying conditions in Germany, be instructed in connection with the Board of Foreign Missions to find a way in which the Church at home may participate in this celebration and contribute special gifts for this seminary.

ITALY

During the past few years the budget for the Italy Conference has been administered by the committee composed entirely of Italians. This administration has been completely satisfactory both to the Board of Foreign Missions and the Italy Conference. In view of the present delicate political situation on this field, it is most imperative that the Italian character of our work be thus emphasized and put in evidence, and while the Italy Conference is very grateful for the confidence the Board in New York has shown it, the Italian brethren request to have the local administration continued with frequent inspection by the Board.

NORTH AFRICA

North Africa is a field radically different from Europe. It is our distinctive Moslem field. Swept clean of thousands of early Christian churches, for eleven centuries Islam was supreme from Morocco through Algeria, Tunisia, and Tripoli to Egypt, over 2,000 miles, and from the Mediterranean to and across the Sahara, over 1,500 miles to the South. France took Algiers in 1830, and in French North Africa the population to-day is some 13,000,000 Mohammedans, Berbers of European stock, and Arabs of Semitic origin, besides about 1,200,000 Europeans.

Under the impact of French government, education, literature, commerce, colonization, etc., Moslem intolerance has crumbled. In the war over 500,000 North Africans served in France as soldiers or workmen. Since then a very large proportion of the Berber young men spend longer or shorter periods of work in France. Their viewpoint has changed, their horizon enlarged, and their influence is profoundly changing their whole people. What was one of the most difficult Moslem problems to reach has become the most accessible and responsive.

Special types of automobiles are crossing the Sahara, the French government is hastening the construction of a trans-Saharan railway. Soon tropical Africa will be opened up across the Sahara. As goes North Africa, so will go those vast regions.

Our two main branches are evangelistic and educational. From four city and two interior regional centers and outstations, the evangelistic push is going forward with ever increasing success. In the Moslem work center in Algiers over 600 children are reached each week. Four years ago, after something like two quadrenniums of effort, our native Christian community numbered seventy-eight. To-day it is 288, an increase of nearly fourfold in four years. Our Sunday Schools have more than doubled, with about 2,000 children. Already the native Christian mission workers number seventeen. In 1919 there was contributed on the field 5,890 francs; in 1923 the amount was 47,673 francs, an increase of 750%. Thanks to the Centenary and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, in seven centers properties have been acquired, carrying the total values from Frcs. 170,000 to Frcs. 4,113,000.

In the educational work, the main effort has been in six "Homes" for boys and girls, where the children are turned over to us for upbringing and education. Early in the quadrennium every "Home" was filled to capacity, 206 children in all. The only apparent limit to this work is our ability to enlarge our "Homes," and receive the children whom people are eager to send us. These children become Christians. Already some have married and have established Christian homes. Some twenty of the boys are learning trades. An industrial and agricultural school has been started in sheer self-defense. The carpet school for women and girls is flourishing. In the new School of Theology are already eight students. In no other purely Moslem field is there such an opportunity. Dr. S. M. Zwemer has characterized this work as the most successful Moslem work he has seen. In addition to the Moslem work carried on in Arabic and Kabyle, there is the important French work, with churches in the cities of Oran, Algiers (2), Constantine, Tunis, and Sousse. This branch, under French pastors, is just getting well under way. The membership has more than doubled during the four years.

Dr. John R. Mott, after a recent visit to conduct an Inter-Mission Conference, wrote: "The very great importance of North Africa as a mission field was borne in on me during these days. I have tried to keep in fairly close touch with the establishment and progress of our missions in different parts of the world, but I confess I had no conception of the desperate need, of the uniqueness of the opportunity, and of the high strategy of our work in Northwest Africa, . . . the plans of which impressed me as being conceived on well-thought-out, wise and promising lines."

RUSSIA AND BALTIC STATES

We are deeply grateful to a watchful Providence that has preserved our pioneer work and property in Russia and the Baltic section during the trying years of the Great War and ensuing revolutions. We desire to record our profound appreciation of the heroic and statesmanlike services which the able organizer and superintendent of Russian and Baltic Methodism has rendered our Church during the past seventeen years on one of the most extensive, multi-lingual and hardest fields in Wesley's world-wide parish. We furthermore wish to record our appreciation of the fine type of loyal and consecrated coworkers that have shared the labors, spirit, and enthusiasm of our American Methodist pioneer.

The Russia Mission Conference, which includes the work in the Baltic states, now numbers nearly 50 preachers, with 70 appointments, 110 preaching places, 65 Sunday Schools, 175 officers and teachers, 4,500 scholars. There are 18 church buildings, 12 parsonages, with a sum total valuation of $400,000 without debts. Full members and probationers, total 3,212, with an increase of 870 during the past year. There are 1,612 Epworth Leaguers. Twenty candidates are preparing for the ministry; and ten more are waiting to be enrolled in the preparatory seminary, which has recently been opened in Riga. Nine Deaconess candidates are preparing themselves for the Russian and Baltic field and eight more young women are on the waiting list. During the past year 926 actual conversions were reported with possibly fifty per cent more which have not been included in the statistics. This field now supports four day schools in China, Korea, Japan, and India, one school for each of our four countries.

In view of the multi-lingual work in the three Baltic Republics, Esthonia, Latvia, and Lithuania, which formerly belonged to Russia, it would seem advisable to coordinate the matter of training workers and publishing literature in the five languages used on this field and having for the present a definite point of contact with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in these matters, there will not be any over-lapping in the matter of translations and publications.

There should be a strong institution for the training of preachers and workers for Russia and the Baltic States. This institution ought to be situated either in Riga, Latvia, or Warsaw, Poland. Some arrangement should be made for giving the graduates from this institution further study in the United States or England. Steps have already been taken to this end.

In view of the low exchange in these various countries it would seem advisable to purchase suitable properties at once in strategic centers in these countries, and also to put up church buildings and parsonages in such country districts where our missionary outlook is remarkably encouraging.

Thus far there has been no money allotted for the upkeep of the child welfare work inaugurated under the Centenary relief program. Our children's homes in various centers should receive regular support.

As our work in Russia is not operating as a so-called church of religious activity, but under the caption "American Methodist Relief and Child Welfare," it would seem most advisable to strengthen that part of our activity by giving a regular amount for that purpose.

SCANDINAVIA

There has been established a Union Theological School of an advanced grade for the whole of Scandinavia, namely, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Finland, by the purchase of a large property at Gothenburg, Sweden, by the recommendation of the Board of Foreign Missions, express action having been taken by the Annual Meeting of 1922.

The political and religious spirit of unity between the peoples of Scandinavia has opened the way for such a Union School, and the Annual Conferences of the several countries have given distinct approval.

This Theological School of higher grade is a vital necessity to supplement the work of the Training Schools in the four countries of the Area to secure better leadership and to promote self-support for all the churches concerned, as well as for the training of Methodist missionaries. Inasmuch as the purchase and reconstruction of the property at Gothenburg have involved an indebtedness of $100,000, we suggest that very important institution of the Copenhagen Area be commended to the care of the Board of Foreign Missions and to the Church at large, said institution planning to have a course of study for the preparation of missionaries for the Foreign Missions, the last year of such training to be in the United States.

Adopted, May 29.

REPORT NO. 16. SUPERINTENDENTS FOR ANNUAL CONFERENCES OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES

We, your Committee on Foreign Missions, to whom was referred Memorial No. 1171, recommend that an Annual Conference in territory outside the United States may by a two-thirds vote of the members of the Annual Conference present, request the presiding Bishop to appoint from among its own members a Conference Superintendent. The Superintendent thus appointed shall perform the same functions as those now performed by a Superintendent of a Mission Conference.

Adopted, May 29.

REPORT NO. 1. JOINT COMMITTEE ON RELIGIOUS TRAINING OF STUDENTS

Upon consideration of Memorial No. 353, we recommend that the Discipline be amended as follows:

To ¶ 446, § 3, after the word "funds" in line 10, add the words: "or to assist in campaigns for raising funds"; so that the whole section of said paragraph when amended shall read:

¶ 446, § 3: The Board of Home Missions and Church Extension shall cooperate with the Board of Education in providing for the religious training of Methodist students at tax-supported, independent, and other educational institutions not under control of the Methodist Episcopal Church, by naming three of its

REPORT NO. 2. ENDORSEMENT OF RESIDENT BISHOP TO APPLICATIONS FOR CHURCH EXTENSION AID

Memorial No. 197, coming from the Puget Sound Conference, requests a change of ¶ 438, § 2, so as to require that all applications for Church Extension aid, and all appropriations for missionary work shall have the endorsement of the resident Bishop. Upon this we recommend nonconcurrency.

Adopted, May 13.

Adopted, May 13.

REPORT NO. 4. ALLOCATION OF RURAL MISSIONARY TERRITORY

Upon consideration of Memorial No. 445, your Committee recommends that the following resolution be adopted and that the same be printed in the Appendix of the Discipline:

Whereas, In rural missionary work there is much overlapping of fields of service in the same territory by Protestant denominations;

Whereas, Lack of adjustment of fields of service results in vast areas of unoccupied or uncared for territory; and,

Whereas, In most sections of the United States the Methodist Episcopal Church is in a position to assume responsibility for the care of families not cared for by any other denomination; therefore be it

Resolved, That wherever possible District Superintendents in cooperation with their pastors and laymen definitely allocate all the territory within their respective fields so that no rural family will be without definitely assigned pastoral care; and so that the missionary responsibility of the Methodist Episcopal Church may be definitely known.

Adopted, May 14.

REPORT NO. 5. MEETINGS OF COUNCIL OF CITIES

Report No. 5, on Memorial No. 352, was recommitted by the General Conference upon the request of the Committee itself.

Your Committee upon further consideration recommends as follows:

In ¶ 441 § 6, beginning with the second sentence on line 4, strike out the words: "It shall be the duty of the Department of City Work to" and substitute the words: "The Department of City Work may," so that the said section, as amended, will read:

¶ 441, § 6. "There shall be a Council or Councils of Cities, composed of the Corresponding Secretary, the Superintendent of the Department of City Work, and two delegates from each duly organized City Society. The Department of City Work may convene the Council or Councils annually at such time and place and under such conditions as said Department shall determine; at least four weeks' notice having been given to the City Societies."

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 6. WOMAN'S HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY

After considering Memorial No. 479, of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, your Committee unanimously recommends the following:

§ 2. It shall be governed and regulated by its Constitution, which may be altered or amended, when presented in proper form, by the Board of Managers, such changes to be approved by the General Conference after having been approved by the Annual Meeting of the Board of Managers of the Society.

§ 3. Its field of labor, general plan of work, and its appropriations shall be submitted for approval to the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church at its Annual Meeting.

¶ 439, § 5. All askings for work in cities shall be reviewed by the Department of City Work. Appropriations for such work shall be administered by said Department and shall be paid to the Treasurer of the Conference Board, except where there is a City Society duly organized and in active operation, in which case all appropriations shall be payable to the Treasurer of the City Society.

¶ 444, § 1. Rural Societies, with the District Superintendent as a member, ex officio, may be organized on any District of any Annual Conference. They shall be auxiliary to the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, and report to the same.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 12. QUADRENNIAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF HOME MISSIONS AND CHURCH EXTENSION

Your Committee reports that it has carefully examined the Quadrennial Report of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension and the abstract from that report as printed in the Handbook of the General Conference, which were both referred to your Standing Committee by your action.

Your Committee rejoices in the marked progress made, as it is disclosed in this important document through convincing statistics, charts and illustrations. The revelation of the many and varied activities of this successful organization not only enchains the attention, but deeply stirs the heart. We recommend a careful reading of these publications with the assurance that those who follow our recommendation will find their interest absorbed, their minds informed, and their hearts encouraged.

Through constant, intelligent, and sympathetic study of its work, the whole scope and plan of the Board's activities have been greatly enlarged, and the entire field in which this organization operates shows fine results from its larger ministry. Among noteworthy achievements we record the enlarged vision and equipment received by approximately 5,000 rural pastors who have been brought together under trained leadership in summer schools. Approximately the same number of city pastors and workers have taken training for their special fields with the consequent results of seven days a week programs being projected in nearly every city in the United States.

By making possible their adequate support, part-time workers have been replaced in many fields by those who have given their full time and energy to their work. In yet other fields, better trained leadership has been supplied through the wise administration of Home Mission aid. So resultful has this administration been that, in the first two years of this quadrennium, 1,780 rural fields, many of which had been receiving missionary aid for a considerable period of time, have been brought entirely to self-support.

Along the frontier, by the same agencies heretofore named, earnest and capable workers are playing no small part in the making of a Christian empire. By a wise cooperation with other Christian churches in many fields, especially in the State of Montana, competition has been avoided, effecting not only a saving of men and of money, but insuring that all the missionary funds invested are applied to the sole purpose which justifies their contribution, namely, the extension of the kingdom of Christ.

Fields hitherto neglected or receiving but scanty attention, due, of course, to the insufficiency of our income, such as logging and mining camps, have shared in the increased resources which the generosity of the Church has placed in our treasury, and as a result chapters of Home Mission achievement as absorbing in their human interest and appeal as any that have been ever written are now in the annals of this Board and form part of its imperishable history.

The great and complex city problems which for years have challenged, perplexed, and often discouraged the Church, are now being met with a clearer understanding and with a wiser and more resourceful adaptation of means to the ends which are legitimately to be sought. As a consequence, the note of retreat, which has all too often been sounded during our past history, has almost vanished, and instead the Church has not only held its ground in most difficult fields, but registers positive advance. Better still, the way is at least fairly clear as to the policies and methods which promise success in the future, and those of us who all too often in the past have had difficulty in repressing a feeling of discouragement akin to despair now "thank God and take courage."

As to Church Extension, it is perhaps sufficient to record that during the past four years we have aided in constructing an average of 869 buildings per year, or a total of 3,476 for the quadrennium. When it is remembered that for perhaps fifty years our average was something more than 200 per year, the greatness of the advance becomes evident. For the four years just closed, the Church has invested through this Board for building more than $9,600,000, or an increase greater than fifty per cent over and above the total investment for church expansion for the preceding half century. These gifts have helped in the building of 933 city projects, more than 2,000 in the towns and rural districts, 677 in Negro communities, 205 among foreign-speaking peoples and 9 among the original Americans, the Indians.

We note with pleasure the remarkable growth of the Permanent Fund, which now has assets of $3,523,730.60, as compared with $2,269,175.53 five years since, or an increase of over one million and one quarter dollars for the five-year period. The chief source of additions to this Fund is through annuity gifts. On November 1, 1918, there were outstanding annuity bonds totalling $871,636.14. There have been received since that date annuity gifts amounting to $1,042,965.33, an addition of more than the total amount that we held five years since.

The undesignated income from the Permanent Fund, after caring for the payments to annuitants, and all other disbursements from Income Account, left in 1923 a balance of $31,231.55 to add to surplus. This surplus will greatly increase during the current year, on account of the increased income from the Wesley Building, which after deducting operating expenses will yield an annual net income of over $80,000 to $85,000.

The Treasurer states: "With this Fund steadily increasing, the Board might well give consideration to the advisability of applying this surplus each year toward the general administration expenses, thereby reducing the amount necessary to be provided in the appropriations for that purpose. This annual surplus in Income Account should, in a year or two, care for half of our administration expense, and in a few years will doubtless care for nearly all of it, thus eliminating that unpopular item, 'Overhead.'" What a great day it will be for the Church when this Board can say that it is administering to the field 100 cents on every dollar contributed by the Church!

Your Committee feels that it cannot close this report without mentioning the wise and capable leadership of the Corresponding Secretary, Rev. David D. Forsyth, D.D., who has given himself unstintingly to the work of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 13. BUREAU FOR WORK AMONG NEGROES

On Memorial No. 1063, we recommend the following:

Amend ¶ 437 by adding a third section to read: ¶ 437, § 3. The Board may organize a Bureau for Work Among Negroes, which Bureau shall cooperate with all the Departments as their activities may affect the Negro populations of the country.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 14. REPORT OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE COMMISSION

Your Committee, to which was referred the Report of the Foreign Language Commission created by the General Conference of 1920, upon consideration thereof, and of Memorials Nos. 190, 350, 426, 446, 574, 592, and 1074, submit for your adoption the following findings of facts and its recommendations thereon, involving four changes in the Discipline, duly noted as they occur:

I. AGGRESSIVE ADVANCE

The problem among foreign language peoples facing Protestantism, and particularly the Methodist Episcopal Church, is staggering. The large proportion of foreign-born and of foreign parentage in our great centers of population and in certain rural sections without apparent religious affiliation challenges Christianity. The Methodist Episcopal Church has been from its inception the great missionary agency to the unchurched. The task, however, is so great and so complex that, while Methodism should assume her full share of it, there should be cooperation with other interested denominations in matters relating to the discovery and allocation of responsibility and, where possible, in the prosecution of a common program. More particularly is this true concerning newer immigrant groups. Because of this challenge and need,

We recommend an aggressive advance be made by the Methodist Episcopal Church in work among foreign language peoples in the United States. To this task we urgently appeal for a united approach by all denominational and other interested agencies.

II. APPROACH AND PROGRAM

In matters relating to approach and program:

First, Language: We recommend that work among newly arrived immigrants be carried on in their native tongues, but that work with both children and adults be in the English language as soon as feasible.

Second, Literature: Believing that the Christian printing-press can be one of the most effective means in bringing the Christian message and American ideals to the foreign-born and their children, and that the development of religious vitality in a new environment is largely dependent upon literature either in periodical or in leaflet and book form,

We recommend that the Methodist Episcopal Church assume its share of the responsibility of providing a missionary, educational and evangelistic language literature. In this connection we especially commend the foundations already laid by the Committee of Six on Foreign Language Publications during the past quadrennium, and recommend that its work be continued.

Third, Location: The Methodist Episcopal Church has up to this time failed to adopt a policy in the matter of location of foreign language work and inasmuch as this has often resulted in the location of two Methodist Episcopal churches in the same neighborhood, oftentimes side by side; and, because competition becomes serious when the foreign language Church begins to use or finds itself in need of using the English language to serve adequately its constituency,

We recommend that the leadership of our Church in the future locate new foreign language Churches or Mission Centers with the thought in view of making such work serve the entire constituency of the parish when its special language mission shall have been accomplished and that the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension discourage in its program such overlapping and that it cooperate in carrying out the principles of Church extension as set forth above.

Fourth, Cooperation with Community Agencies: We recommend that in the process of evangelizing and in the development of Christian citizenship the Church cooperate as far as possible with civic, educational, fraternal, social and welfare organizations among the various nationality groups, and wherever possible make use of the press and forum. In this connection we commend the work of the Goodwill Industries, whose approach in workrooms and stores is reaching vast numbers of foreign language peoples.

III. LEADERSHIP

The most important single factor in all Christian work is leadership. No less is this true in work among foreign language peoples.

We recommend: First, that our schools and Church organizations be urged to secure young men and women of ability and consecration to enter this field of Church activity.

Second, that in the training and use of bilingual leadership, both ministerial and lay, emphasis should be placed not only on the necessity of using the language of the group with which they are working, but also the use of the English language.

Third, that the training of bilingual workers, wherever possible, be carried on in connection with our English-speaking training agencies, and that provision be made for specialized graduate training, as well as for those who are not qualified to do graduate work.

IV. EDUCATION OF ENGLISH-SPEAKING CHURCH

One of the fundamental needs in relation to work among foreign language peoples is that of restating the responsibility of the Methodist Episcopal Church for training its leadership to think not alone in terms of Anglo-Saxon responsibility, but in terms of every person within the parish. To this end:

We recommend a careful study of the national backgrounds of our immigrant peoples on the part of the Methodist ministry and laity as a basis for a program of evangelization and induction into American citizenship and that our colleges, universities, and theological seminaries be urged to take cognizance of this larger phase of our Church's responsibility in the preparation of their courses of study, and that Conference Courses of Study be prepared with this need in view.

V. RECOGNITION OF CONTRIBUTION OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE WORK TO ENGLISH CHURCHES AND CONFERENCES

Since the practice of the Church has magnified the importance of annual reports of addition to membership:

We recommend a recognition of the contribution being made to English-speaking Churches and Conferences by our foreign language work, and suggest that a column be provided in annual reports in which shall be recorded the number of members transferred to English Churches and Conferences and that the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension give favorable consideration for increased aid in cases where this transfer of membership is sapping the strength of work and where there is still need for bilingual missionary effort.

ORGANIZATION RECOMMENDATIONS

I. Policy Regarding Foreign Language Conferences

During the past quadrennium certain foreign language Churches have merged with English-speaking Churches or have transferred into English-speaking Conferences; and inasmuch as several foreign language Conferences have taken action looking toward a merger with English-speaking Conferences:

We recommend: First, That every effort be made to conserve the excellent results secured by our foreign language Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions.

Second, That such foreign language Conferences, Mission

Conferences and Missions be fostered and encouraged to continue so long as there is a constituency needing such special language ministry and supervision.

Third, That the process of merging our foreign language Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions with English-speaking Conferences should not be forced, but left to the particular foreign language organizations involved, and that the process for accomplishing such mergers of interests be simplified.

Fourth, That the merging of a foreign language Conference, Mission Conference, or Mission with an English-speaking Conference or Conferences or the transfer of a foreign language Church or Mission Center to an English-speaking Conference shall not be consummated without the consent of said foreign language Conference, Church, or Mission Center concerned.

We further recommend: Fifth, That any local Church or Mission Center located in a foreign language Conference, Mission Conference, or Mission may be transferred to the jurisdiction of the English-speaking Conference within whose geographical territory it is located when two thirds of the membership of such Church or Mission Center, twenty-one years of age or over, take action favorable to such transfer in a meeting called for this purpose by the Quarterly Conference; and when the Bishops having jurisdiction concur, the Church or Mission Center and its property shall be transferred. Property adjustments shall be made in accordance with the provisions of the Discipline now in force. If, however, the Bishops fail to concur, the matter shall be referred to the Board of Bishops for action.

Sixth, That any foreign language Conference, Mission Conference, or Mission may be merged with the English-speaking Conference or Conferences within whose geographical territory it is located when two thirds of the membership present and voting of such Conference, Mission Conference, or Mission take action favoring such merger; and when the Bishops involved concur, the merger shall be consummated. If, however, the Bishops fail to concur, the matter shall be referred to the Board of Bishops for action.

We further recommend, where a foreign language Conference is merged with an English-speaking Conference or Conferences:

That all Conference members and Probationers shall have the same respective relations in the Conference or Conferences with which they are merged.

That all matters relating to Annuities and distribution of Conference Claimants or Preachers' Aid Society funds be committed to the Board of Conference Claimants for actuarial adjustments, such moneys as are held by the various Conferences asking merger to be administered by the Board of Conference Claimants until adjudication is completed. It is recommended that a choice of residence be given Superannuated Ministers providing a proportionate amount of the funds follow such residence.

That in the matter of Institutions where foreign language Conferences, Mission Conferences, or Missions are being merged with an English-speaking Conference or Conferences, it is recommended that all property adjustments be consummated through commissions representing the various Conferences and interests involved; not unmindful, however, of benevolent consideration due to those who made these institutions possible.

It is further recommended that ¶ 512, § 2, be amended by adding the following words: "And foreign language Conferences, Mission Conferences, Missions, Churches, or Mission Centers in the United States being merged with or transferred into English-speaking or other Conferences"; so that when amended, it will read as follows:

No division or absorption of Annual Conferences or Mission Conferences, or the organization of new Annual Conferences, out of the territory already occupied by organized Conferences, shall be effected until the General Conference shall have approved such division, absorption or organization; except in the case of Central Mission Conferences as provided for in ¶ 95, § 6; and foreign language Conferences, Mission Conferences, Missions, Churches, or Mission Centers in the United States being merged with or transferred into English-speaking or other Conferences.

II. Policy Regarding Organization of New Work

In order to make clear the attitude of the Church regarding organization of new work among foreign language peoples:

We recommend that, while the Church recognizes the necessity of organizing into Missions foreign language Churches and Mission Centers, scattered throughout the English-speaking Conferences, into Missions in order to begin specialized language work among immigrant peoples, such organized Missions should be reassimilated into our English-speaking Conferences after the specialized task is completed.

III. Bi-Lingual Foreign Language Mission

There are in the United States at least 136 foreign language Churches and Mission Centers, without relationship to Conferences, Mission Conferences, or Missions of their own language, scattered over 18 Areas, 41 English-speaking Conferences and 68 Districts, making united administration and equitable appointment extremely difficult; and as there is great need of an aggressive forward movement among the immigrant groups represented by these Churches and Mission Centers.

We recommend that, for the purposes of united administration and the appointment of ministers and missionaries, a Mission be organized to be known as the Bi-lingual Mission, to comprise all foreign language work being carried on in connection with English-speaking Conferences in the United States, including also those Churches whose chief activities are among foreign language groups. It is further provided, that, in the merging of a foreign language Conference, Mission Conference, or Mission, such Churches or Mission Centers not yet ready to merge on account of language conditions shall be placed in the Bi-lingual Mission. Whenever five or more such Churches or Mission Centers desire it a group may be formed and such leadership assigned as may be deemed wise by the Bishop in charge of the Bi-lingual Mission and the Bishops of the Conferences involved.

In order to maintain mutual sympathy and interest between the English-speaking and foreign language work:

We recommend that the Quarterly Conferences in this Bi-lingual Mission be held by the District Superintendent of the white English-speaking Conferences in whose geographical territory the various Churches and Mission Centers are located; and that Ministers of the Bi-lingual Mission be members of the English-speaking Annual Conferences in which their various charges are located, and that they assemble for such meetings, either as a whole, or in such national groups as may be deemed wise by the Bishop in whose Area the Mission is placed, for the purpose of fellowship, the discussion of common tasks and such other activities as may be assigned them by the Bishop.

It is further recommended that ¶ 207, § 13, be amended by omitting the words "within his Area" so that when amended it will read as follows:

"To organize such Annual Missions as shall have been authorized by the General Conference."

IV. The Local Approach

To insure a nation-wide sense of responsibility on the part of Methodist Episcopal leadership everywhere:

We recommend that it be the duty of the District Superintendent and Pastor to place before the Quarterly Conference of each English-speaking Church in America the fact of its relationship and responsibility to any foreign language peoples resident in the parish.

We further recommend that a Foreign Language Committee be created in each Quarterly Conference to give attention to the needs of any group or groups of foreign language people found in the community not already included in our foreign language Conferences, Mission Conferences, or Missions; such Committee to communicate with the District Superintendent and the Bishop or Superintendent of the Bi-lingual Mission for developing a program to meet the needs of the situation. In view of the varying conditions in different communities, one of three methods of approach is suggested:

First: Where the numbers are not sufficiently large to constitute a grave problem of assimilation, it is recommended that evening classes be organized for the instruction of foreign-born, living in the community, in the principles of Christianity and good citizenship; also that the Superintendent and other leaders of the Sunday School organize classes in the Sunday School for the instruction of adult immigrants and children of foreign parentage, and that provision be made for the reception of these peoples into the regularly organized activities and membership of the local Church.

Second: Where the numbers and conditions are such as to warrant a more intensive program and where a neighboring Church is conveniently located, it is recommended that a foreign language Department be organized in such local Church under the direction of the Foreign Language Committee of the Quarterly Conference.

Third: Where racial or polyglot colonies are of such size, or where there is no neighboring Church to foster a departmental program, it is recommended that the District Superintendent report such need to the Bishop or Superintendent of the Bi-lingual Mission and give cooperation in the development of the field through an organized language Church or Mission Center.

V. The Bureau of Foreign Language Work

Your Commission is convinced that it is of the utmost importance that our foreign language work be united and correlated, and believes that if the Bishops having supervision of our foreign language work can be brought together with representatives of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension for conference and study of the needs and formulation of policies, much more effective work can be done among these foreign language groups.

We therefore recommend that the Bureau of Foreign Language Work of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension be constituted as follows: the Bishops having jurisdiction over foreign language Conferences, Mission Conferences, or Missions, three ministers and five laymen selected by the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension, and the Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension; also that the Superintendents of Departments of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension be made advisory members of the Bureau.

The Bureau thus constituted shall have the following powers and duties:

First: To formulate general policies and principles for work among foreign language peoples.

Second: To recruit and make provision for the necessary training of leaders to be employed in work among foreign language peoples.

Third: To review the askings from the field, and recommend appropriations for foreign language work.

Fourth: To conserve and place upon a missionary basis foreign language Churches and Mission Centers which should continue in their specialized task.

Fifth: To cooperate with other organizations and agencies which are working among foreign language peoples.

VI. Area Adjustments

Our foreign language work is now distributed over eleven Areas, in many cases only one Conference or Mission to the Area, and believing that the unifying of the work, the carrying out of an aggressive program and the conservation of the largest results would be facilitated if Conferences were grouped in fewer Areas:

We further recommend that our foreign language Conferences, Mission Conferences and Missions be grouped in not more than five Episcopal Areas.

VII. Administration of Home Mission and Church Extension Funds

We recommend that all Home Mission and Church Extension funds appropriated for use in the promotion of foreign language work in the United States be administered through the regularly constituted channels of the Church.

Believing that a more unified missionary administration in cities will be secured by organizing all missionary work under City Societies:

We further recommend that ¶ 440 be amended by substituting for the words "communities contiguous to each other" in line 3 the words "their contiguous communities" and by substituting for the words "city, or community" in lines 4 and 5, the words "centers of population" and by adding the words "or Bishops" after the word "Bishop" in line 6; and by substituting in the second sentence after the words "The Resident Bishop" the following: "All Bishops, District Superintendents and Superintendents of Missions or Mission Conferences having jurisdiction in the geographical territory"; so that when amended, it will read as follows:

"In order to promote evangelization and to coordinate the work of our Church in cities and in their contiguous communities, it is recommended that, wherever such centers of population shall have three or more Pastoral Charges, and where, in the judgment of their Resident Bishop or Bishops, and the District Superintendent or Superintendents concerned, it is deemed advisable, a City Society shall be organized, under such name and control as it may determine. All Bishops, District Superintendents and Superintendents of Missions or Mission Conferences having jurisdiction in the geographical territory covered by the Society and all pastors therein, shall be ex officio members of said Society or of its Board of Managers. Each Quarterly Conference shall also be entitled to at least one lay representative in the Society or Board."

In order to promote Evangelism and to coordinate the work of our Church in rural communities:

We further recommend that ¶ 444 be amended by adding a new section, to be designated § 3, and read as follows:

"In order that all Conferences, Missions, or other interests considered in Missionary Work shall have representation, all Bishops, District Superintendents, and Superintendents of Missions having jurisdiction in the geographical territory covered by the District Rural Society, and all pastors therein, shall be ex-officio members of said society or of its Board of Managers or Executive Committee. Each Quarterly Conference shall also be entitled to at least one lay representative in the Society or Board."

The present § 3, ¶ 444, to be renumbered § 4.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 15. REVOLVING LOAN FUND

Your Committee, having considered Memorials Nos. 158, 355, 380, 615, and 745, all dealing with Church Extension donations and loans, presents for your adoption the following resolution:

1. That the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension be hereby authorized and instructed to consider the creation of a Fund or Funds for Church Extension purposes to be known as the Revolving Loan Fund, and, if found practicable, to proceed to create such a Fund. This Fund shall have in view particularly the aid to be given for Opportunity Building Projects, such as suburban and newer residential, in the cities, and similar types in the towns and rural districts, the aid rendered to be in the form of Loans instead of Donations.

2. The Fund may be created out of such resources and in such a manner as the Board may decide, and may be in a single fund for the whole Field, or, for the purposes of administration may be distributed, according to some equitable basis, among the several Annual Conferences or Districts thereof.

3. Loans from the Fund shall run without interest charges for a period of time not to exceed five years. At the close of the noninterest bearing period, a sum not to exceed ten per cent of principal of the loan shall be due and payable, and annual payments of an equal proportion of the total amount of the loan shall continue to fall due and be payable at intervals of one year from the date when the first payment fell due, until the total loan shall have been repaid. Should the trustees of a Church having a Loan from this Fund fail to pay the first installment of the principal within thirty days from the time it shall fall due, interest at the rate of five per cent annually, payable in semiannual installments, shall at once begin against the entire loan, and the Board shall continue to charge and collect said interest until the amount due on the principal sum shall have been paid in full. This same rule regarding interest shall be applied by the Board in case the Trustees shall fail to pay any installment on the principal sum within thirty days after the said installment shall be due; the interest to be charged against the amount of the Loan then remaining unpaid.

4. The security to be required for Loans from this Fund shall be determined by the Board, to which is hereby committed the formulation of such other needed rules of administration as are not provided in this action.

REPORT NO. 16. EVANGELISM

A study of that great religious movement in which our Church was born shows us the value and power of the evangelistic note. Wesley and his coworkers proclaimed the supreme importance of the spiritual world. They put first things first. "They put the spiritual life at the top of the world." The order of their procedure is the New Testament order and it cannot be improved upon.

The trouble with the world to-day is not economic, it is spiritual. Man's heart is wrong. Sin and selfishness are dominant. That part of the Episcopal Address dealing with the vital matter of evangelism calls the Church to proclaim with renewed interest the great evangelistic message—the reality of the spiritual world, the deadliness of sin, the urgency of repentance, the deepening experience of God in the soul, and the unchanging helpfulness of Jesus Christ as a personal and present Saviour. We are agreed that only in this Gospel is there hope and healing for the world.

Evangelism is a very broad word. It is more than a revival meeting. Evangelism is more than the conversion of men and their enrollment in church membership. Saved souls must be nurtured and trained and engaged in the work of building the kingdom of God.

Evangelistic Methods

Methods are important. They must necessarily be varied.

Methods that succeed in one church and community may not succeed in another.

No method of winning is exclusive in Methodism. New methods ought not to be held with suspicion if they show results in quickened Christian life and an increased and devout membership.

Therefore, we urge Bishops, District Superintendents, pastor, Church officials, editors, and the whole membership of our Church to an awakened sense of evangelistic responsibility.

The following methods, which are set forth in the report of the Committee of Twenty-five on Evangelism, we reaffirm as suggestive and practical, and recommend that our Department of Evangelism get these methods before the whole Church. These methods are wide and varied; some of them have been tried and proved:

1. Systematic, organized, prayerful, persistent Personal Evangelism.

2. Careful training and dedication of all child life in the home, Sunday School, and Church.

3. Congregational revival campaigns.

4. Community cooperative revival campaigns.

5. Street preaching and open air meetings and missions. This phase of evangelistic effort should be greatly increased in both city and country.

6. Parlor conferences for the deepening and promotion of the spiritual life of the Church.

7. Cottage prayer meetings.

8. Summer Institutes, Camp Meetings, and special work in vacation resorts.

9. Organized prayer groups of pastors under the direction of District Superintendents.

We would call attention to the following groups, which we believe to be great evangelistic opportunities and responsibilities which our Church should face.

1. Business men's groups and clubs.

2. Women's groups and social clubs.

3. Industrial groups.

4. College students.

5. High school groups.

6. Foreign speaking groups.

Evangelistic Leadership

The quadrennial report of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension shows that an extensive and varied program of evangelism has been carried on with splendid success under the Department of Evangelism. We congratulate the Department upon its work and urge upon all the Church the necessity of Church-wide cooperation in carrying out its work.

We recommend that the Board of Bishops appoint five of its members, who shall be advisory members of the Department of Evangelism.

We are very clear in our conviction that any true and permanent work of evangelism that will be at all commensurate with the needs of the time must have the unconditional loyalty and zeal of the pastor and the local leadership of the congregation. It is not likely that souls will be saved until our pastors really want to see souls saved. Evangelism must be promoted by pastoral leadership. Evangelism cannot be promoted by Conference resolutions, it can be promoted only by prayer, plans, and sacrifice. We do not hesitate to say that the chief pastoral responsibility of the hour, a responsibility that cannot be delegated to another, is his duty to enlist and lead his congregation in saving souls. Freedom of method he must have, but from the true work of evangelism he cannot, he must not, be excused. Ultimate and permanent success in making our Church what it ought to be depends upon a deeply spiritual and intensely evangelistic leadership—a leadership born of agonizing prayer and sacrifice—a leadership under which worldliness will go out of the Church—a leadership under which the Church will go out into the world—a leadership positive and prophetic, dynamic and evangelistic. To this end the great affirmatives of our faith must be proclaimed from our pulpits. We must see afresh sin's ruin and the absolute need of divine redemption. Family religion must be restored; the family altar must be revived and rebuilt. The Holy Bible and the Divine Christ must be given preeminence in all things.

The Episcopal Address calls upon us to provide for the most daring evangelistic advance in our history. We can suggest programs but it is not so much program as it is power of the Holy Spirit that we need.

We recommend, therefore, that the Department of Evangelism with its advisory committee of five Bishops set itself to the task of calling all our Bishops, all our District Superintendents, all our pastors, all our college presidents, all our professors and teachers, all our editors, all our Church officials and all our Church members, to personal, spiritual preparation that will make for and give to evangelism a supreme place in our Church life during this quadrennium.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 17. SUPERINTENDENT OF CITY SOCIETY TO BE CONSULTED IN MAKING APPOINTMENTS AFFECTING MISSIONS OR CHURCHES AIDED BY CITY SOCIETY

Upon Memorials Nos. 44 and 402 we make the following recommendations:

Amend ¶ 441, § 3, by striking out the words "consulted as far as practicable, in fixing" in lines four and five, and substituting therefor the words "invited into consultation with the Bishop and District Superintendents in the consideration of the," so that the said section as amended shall read as follows:

¶ 441, § 3. In Annual Conferences, where there exists a City Society having an executive official, giving his entire time to the work, it is recommended that said executive official shall be invited into consultation with the Bishop and District Superintendents in the consideration of the appointments that affect Missions or Churches administered or aided by said Society.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 18. COMITY COMMISSION

Upon consideration of Memorial No. 543, signed by the entire Northern Minnesota Conference delegation, your Committee recommends the following:

Add a fifth section to ¶ 444, as follows:

¶ 444, § 5. These societies may, wherever it is desirable, create a Comity Commission, composed of the District Superintendent, and of ministers and laymen in equal numbers, for the purpose of meeting and conferring with like commissions, or bodies, of other evangelical denominations, to make such arrangements and agreements as may be necessary either to vacate, or take over, or exchange charges or properties, in order to promote the religious care and welfare of such communities. Such arrangements and agreements shall be made with due regard for the denominational investments and interests involved in such proportions, and shall be subject to the approval of the Annual Conference.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 19. APPROPRIATIONS BY CITY SOCIETIES

Upon consideration of Memorial No. 858, we recommend the insertion of the following section in ¶ 441, after § 4, to be known as § 5:

It is recommended that any church within its territory expecting to receive aid for building or improvement from the City Society, be required to secure, as a condition for receiving such aid, the approval of the City Society with respect to location, plans and methods of financing.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 20. HOME MISSIONS COUNCIL

After considering Memorials No. 323, relating to community churches, and No. 495, relating to the conservation of Home Missions funds and the Home Missions Council, your Committee recommends the following:

Be it resolved—

1. That this Conference recommend that our administrative officers continue such a policy in field administration as will make possible a greater degree of cooperation with other denominations and thereby prevent unnecessary waste of consecrated talent and money through unwarranted duplication; and

2. That we express our confidence in the Home Missions Council as providing a promising channel through which the various home mission forces may discover a way to a more unified approach to the common task of Christianizing America, and that we approve cooperation with this organization on the part of our leaders and Boards of the Church engaged in Home Missionary work.

Adopted, May 29.

X. EDUCATION

REPORT NO. 1. APPROPRIATION OF BOARD OF EDUCATION THROUGH ANNUAL CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION

This report relates to Memorials 104 and 219, requesting amendments to ¶¶ 460 and 465 of the Discipline, having to do with the support of educational agencies by the Board of Education upon recommendation of an Annual Conference Board of Education.

The Committee voted nonconcurrence.

Adopted, May 13.

REPORT NO. 2. PROVISION BY THE BOARD OF EDUCATION FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF INSTRUCTION FOR BELATED STUDENTS PREPARING FOR THE MINISTRY

This report relates to Memorial 241, requesting the General Conference to take steps to enable one or more properly located colleges or seminaries to broaden their course of study for the benefit of belated students preparing for the ministry. The Committee voted nonconcurrence.

Adopted, May 13.

REPORT NO. 3. THE RECOGNITION OF TRAINING SCHOOLS AND NORMAL SCHOOLS FOR CHRISTIAN WORKERS

This report relates to Memorial 827. The Committee recommend that there be added to the list of Educational Institutions given in ¶ 463, § 1, of the Discipline, "Training Schools for Christian Workers."

Adopted, May 16.

REPORT NO. 5. MORE ADEQUATE SUPPORT OF OUR THEOLOGICAL SCHOOLS

This report is the result of a careful consideration of a large number of memorials urging a more adequate support of our Theological Schools, Memorials 30, 82, 105, 129, 137, 145, 206, 240, 242, 315, 411, 470, 482, 497, 392, 293, 627, 638, 589, 679, 688, 722, 739, 427, 830.

Your Committee recommend the amendment of § 5 of ¶ 463, which reads:

The Theological Schools of the Church shall be those whose professors are nominated or confirmed by the Bishops, and they shall exist for the benefit of the whole Church. It is the duty of the Bishops, District Superintendents, and pastors to direct the attention of candidates for the ministry of our Church, having proper qualifications, to our Theological Schools. This shall apply to Theological Schools in the United States only. So that it shall read:

The Theological Schools of the Church shall be those whose professors are nominated or confirmed by the Bishops, and they shall exist for the benefit of the whole Church. Since they exist for the benefit of the whole Church, the Church therefore recognizes its obligation for their maintenance and support.

The Theological Schools of the Methodist Episcopal Church, located within the boundaries of the United States, shall be under the advisory supervision of the Board of Education, from which they shall receive such financial aid as such Board shall determine, after giving due consideration to their needs as exhibited in carefully prepared reports on budget forms provided by the Board.

It is the duty of Bishops, District Superintendents, and pastors to direct the attention of qualified candidates for the ministry of our Church to, and secure their attendance at, our Theological Schools.

No Theological School or department of theology in an existing institution shall be established without first securing the consent of the Board of Education.

Adopted, May 17.

REPORT NO. 6. CONFERENCE COURSES OF STUDY

After giving careful consideration to the numerous memorials (272,412, 365, 349, 132, 239, 267, 458, 528A, 469, 78, 207, 236, 237, 238, 977, 902, 692, 645, 781, 768, 81, 244, 564, 591, 621) relating to the Conference Course of Study, your Committee on Education recommend to amend ¶ 210, § 2, by adding after line 19 the statement: "It shall at the same time communicate them to any member of the Church who may make such request," so that the section which now reads:

"The Commission shall prescribe the Courses of Study upon which those applying for License to Preach, for Orders as Local Preachers, and for Reception on Trial, respectively, shall be examined; also a Course of Study for Local Preachers extending through four years; and a Conference Course of Study extending through four years to be pursued by those who have been Received on Trial in the Annual Conference; it being understood that only such books shall be prescribed as are in full and hearty accord with those doctrines and that outline of faith established in the constitution of the Church; and that the Discipline, with some special emphasis upon the Articles of Religion, and the standard sermons of John Wesley, recognized as standards in American Methodism, shall be included in the Conference Course. It shall bring its recommendation as to the constitution of these courses and the texts to be used to the Board of Bishops for final approval. It may provide means for carrying on the work of the Conference Course of Study by correspondence, and may also provide a Postgraduate Course of Study for use in the Annual Conferences."

So as to read:

"The Commission shall prescribe the Courses of Study upon which those applying for License to Preach, for Orders as Local Preachers, and for Reception on Trial, respectively, shall be examined; also a Course of Study for Local Preachers extending through four years; and a Conference Course of Study extending through four years to be pursued by those who have been received on Trial in the Annual Conference; it being understood that only such books shall be prescribed as are in full and hearty accord with those doctrines and that outline of faith established in the constitution of the Church; and that the Discipline, with some special emphasis upon the articles of religion, and the standard sermons of John Wesley, recognized as standards in American Methodism, shall be included in the Conference Course. It shall bring its recommendation as to the constitution of these courses and the texts to be used to the Board of Bishops for final approval. It shall at the same time communicate them to any member of the Church who may make such request. It may provide means for carrying on the work of the Conference Course of Study by correspondence, and may also provide a Postgraduate Course of Study for use in the Annual Conferences."

Adopted, May 24.

REPORT NO. 7. BOARD OF EDUCATION—EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS—UNIVERSITY SENATE

After giving careful consideration to Memorial 1145 the Committee on Education submit the following recommendations:

That ¶ 460, § 6, which now reads:

"The Board shall receive from the Treasurers of Annual Conferences, Mission Conferences, and Missions in the United States the public educational collection taken annually in the Charges throughout the Church, and shall disburse the same for the aid of educational institutions and agencies under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church under such rules as the Board may adopt subject to General Conference legislation. In making appropriations from this fund to individual institutions the Board shall give due consideration to the actual current needs of the institution as shown in carefully prepared reports presented to it by the institution on budget forms provided by the Board. Small colleges with limited endowment but rich in their contribution to the religious leadership of the Church are especially commended to the favorable consideration of the Board. In case the public educational collection in any Conference in a given year shall exceed the official apportionment for this cause, the excess may be retained by the Conference for the benefit of the approved educational institutions under its patronage as the Conference may determine. No university, college, secondary school or theological school of the Methodist Episcopal Church receiving aid from the public educational collection in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1920, shall hereafter receive less from this collection than it is entitled to receive under the provisions of the Discipline of 1916 (see Discipline, 1916, ¶ 469) nor less during each of the four years following this action than is secured for it by present special arrangements under the Centenary guarantee, except that any Annual Conference desiring a redistribution of the said guarantee may have the right to appeal to the Board of Education. In the case of such appeal the action of the Board of Education shall be final."

Be amended by the substitution of the following words, which shall be known as § 6 of ¶ 460:

"The Board of Education shall receive such funds as are contributed for educational purposes through the general benevolences of the Church and shall appropriate the same for the aid of institutions and educational foundation under the patronage of the Church under such rules as the Board may adopt, provided they are in accord with General Conference legislation. In making appropriations from this fund to individual institutions the Board shall give due consideration to their actual current needs as shown in carefully prepared reports presented by them on budget forms provided by the Board. Small colleges with limited endowment but rich in their contribution to the religious leadership of the Church are especially commended to the favorable consideration of the Board. In case an official apportionment is made for the cause of education to any Conference, any excess which may be raised by the Conference above this apportionment may be retained by it for the benefit of approved educational institutions under its patronage as the Conference may determine."

And that ¶ 460, § 10, which reads:

"The Board of Education shall cooperate with the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension in the care and religious training of Methodist students at tax-supported, independent, and other educational institutions not under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church by naming three of its members to serve with a like committee of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension to have general supervision over all such work. The Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education and the Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension shall be additional ex-officio members of this joint committee. The Board of Education may make grants of money from available funds for the support of such work."

Be amended by adding the following words:

"Provided that any institution or foundation thus aided shall have first submitted to said Board carefully prepared reports on budget forms provided by the Board."

So that ¶ 460, § 10, when amended, shall read:

"The Board of Education shall cooperate with the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension in the care and religious training of Methodist students at tax-supported, independent, and other educational institutions not under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church by naming three of its members to serve with a like committee of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension to have general supervision of all such work. The Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education and the Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension shall be additional ex-officio members of this joint committee. The Board of Education may make grants of money from available funds for the support of such work, provided that any institution or foundation thus aided shall have first submitted to said Board carefully prepared reports on budget forms provided by the Board."

And that there be added to ¶ 460 the following words, which shall become § 11:

"No educational institution or educational foundation of the Methodist Episcopal Church shall hereafter be established or receive support from the Church funds without their plans and organizations having been first submitted to the Board of Education for its approval."

And that ¶ 464, § 4, which reads:

"At the request of the President and the Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education or at the written request of five of its own members the University Senate shall investigate the scholastic requirements and methods of any designated educational institution or foundation claiming to be under the patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church and shall report to the Board of Education its decision as to whether the requirements and methods of said institution are such as to justify its official recognition by the Church. The Senate shall report at least quadrennially to the Board of Education a proper classification for each educational institution or foundation under the patronage of the Church and on a basis of this report the Board of Education shall prepare its official lists of institutions and shall be governed in its administration."

Be amended so that it shall read:

"At the request of the President and Corresponding Secretary of the Board of Education or at the written request of five of its own members the University Senate shall investigate the scholastic requirements and methods of any designated educational institution or foundation claiming or adjudged to be under the patronage or supervision of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church and shall report to said Board its decision as to whether the requirements and methods of said institution are such as to justify its official recognition by the Church. The Senate shall report at least quadrennially to the Board of Education a proper classification for each educational institution or foundation under its supervision, and on the basis of this report the Board of Education shall prepare its official lists of institutions and shall be governed in its administration."

That ¶ 464, § 5, which reads:

"At the request of any of the Benevolent Boards of the Church the University Senate shall examine the quality of the educational work done under the auspices of such Board and shall report to the Board concerned its estimate of the merit of such educational work."

Be amended so that it shall read:

"At the request of the President or the Corresponding Secretary of any of the Benevolent Boards of the Church, or at the written request of five of its own members, the University Senate shall examine the quality and standards of the educational work done under the auspices of such Board and shall report to that Board concerned its estimate of the merit of such educational work, and its recommendations as to what changes or improvements, if any, should be adopted."

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 8. PROVISION FOR EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Your Committee on Education, having given careful consideration to Memorials 563 and 880, praying for an enlargement of the educational program of the Methodist Episcopal Church, respectfully submit the following report:

The schools and colleges of the Methodist Episcopal Church are facing the demands of a world order that is rapidly changing and increasingly complex. If civilization is to endure, it must be inspired and fashioned by a leadership that is intelligent, systematic in view, broad-visioned, well-poised and Christian. As a Church and as a people, we are one in believing that consecrated scholastic training is fundamental to the realization of these aims.

Schools and colleges are indispensable to society. Upon them devolves the responsibility of providing instruction competent and well balanced for the developing of the administrators of the vast resources of a Christianized world.

Our Church schools have demonstrated their ability to do these things. They are, almost wholly, the source of supply for our ministry, the leaders in our reform movement, our professions, our widespread and varied missionary work and our great philanthropies. In consecration to their task, in zeal for the truth, in loyalty to the Church, the instructors in these schools are not excelled. Their achievements in the field of knowledge, and their scholastic ideals are the glory and pride of the Church.

It is, however, true that our educational agencies and forces are seriously embarrassed. The mass movement of students toward our colleges, the heavy demands made upon our graduate schools, the obvious necessities of our theological seminaries, the needs of the Wesley Foundations—all these together with high living costs, have laid an impossible strain upon our financial resources. The difference between dependable income and expenses has rapidly increased until last year the excess of expense reached the alarming total of $2,303,152 for the schools and colleges, not taking into account the Wesley Foundations and other inescapable responsibilities of the Board of Education. All these would add at least $200,000. Although every school has practiced severe retrenchment at the cost of essential facilities for training, necessary expenses have exceeded dependable income by more than $2,500,000.

It should be noted that many of our schools are operating so close to the danger line that unless relief is soon obtained they will inevitably be discredited, and our whole educational situation suffer serious loss of prestige. Schools of other communions better financed and more adequately equipped are drawing off strong men from our faculties; business claims many. The situation is serious and threatening.

The Church is grateful to the Board of Education for its skillful and impartial administration of funds, for its effective publicity, for the conduct of Children's Day, and for the direction of financial campaigns for the relief of our schools and colleges. But our immediate problem is vastly too complicated and fundamental to be solved by the annual public educational collection, or by emergency campaigns for relief of distressed schools or colleges. We must quicken the realization of the whole Church and organize the financial strength of the Church for the adequate support of all our educational forces. The essential importance of better equipped schools and of more efficient organization of scholastic ideals must be made to move the very soul of our ministry and people. Education will then be able to render its underlying service to all the major activities of the Church.

We therefore recommend,

(1) That the Board of Education be charged with the responsibility of informing the ministers and members and friends of the whole Church as to the needs, the accomplishments, and permanent value of our schools, colleges, theological seminaries and other educational foundations. This will mean a program of enlarging publicity, utilizing as fully as possible our Church papers.

(2) That education be recognized as one of the major activities of the Church, underlying all other activities, and the World Service Commission or its successor, is hereby instructed in the allotment of funds, to hold this principle in mind, with the purpose of so serving all our undertakings.

In view of the existence of an annual difference of $2,500,000 between the dependable income of our schools and colleges and their maintenance expenditures, and in view of the action of this General Conference in adding the theological schools to the list of institutions to be assisted from the income provided through the Board of Education;

(3) Therefore, we recommend that this General Conference authorize and direct that in so far as may be consistent with the just requirements of other causes the apportionment made to our educational tasks through the Board of Education, be sufficient to give substantial aid to our schools and colleges in meeting their necessary maintenance costs, as above shown.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 9. THE STERLING-REED EDUCATIONAL BILL

The Committee on Education recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Whereas, On May 6, 1924, this General Conference instructed the Committee on Education to present to the Conference as soon as possible a suitable resolution expressing our attitude respecting the Sterling-Reed Educational Bill in Congress and requesting that Congress give consideration to such bill before it adjourns, and

Whereas, The purpose of this bill is to create a Department of Education in the Government with a Secretary of Education for the promotion and development of education in the United States, and particularly for the Americanization of immigrants, reduction of illiteracy, advancement of public schools, especially rural, and to promote health and physical education, and

Whereas, Education is essential in the life of a self-governing people and the Government ought to have a special Department for the promotion of the same, and it is urgent that such legislation be obtained,

Now, therefore, the Methodist Episcopal Church in General Conference assembled, does hereby urge the Congress of the United States to give the Sterling-Reed Education Bill prompt attention and pass at the present session of Congress legislation creating a Department of Education in the Government.

And, further, it is directed that copies of this resolution be personally presented by Bishop McDowell to Senator Sterling, to Representative Reed, and to the Committees in Congress on Education and Labor.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT No. 11. VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS IN INDIA

Having given due consideration to Memorial No. 992, asking for the appointment of a Commission to investigate various possibilities of establishing vocational schools in India, your Committee recommend that the General Conference instruct the Board of Foreign Missions to give careful attention to the establishment of vocational schools in India.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT No. 12. EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS OF THE CHILE MISSION

After due consideration of Memorial 203, urging the General Conference to place the educational institutions of the Chile Mission under the administration of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, your Committee recommend that the Board of Foreign Missions give special attention to educational matters in Chile and, when advisable, call in assistance from the Board of Education and the University Senate as suggested in ¶ 464, § 5 of the Discipline.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT No. 13. CLASSIFICATION OF OUR EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

The Committee on Education, having given due consideration to Memorials 1147 and 733, recommend that ¶ 463, § 1, of the Discipline be amended by adding immediately after the classification of schools the sentence: "No Institution having been classified by the Board of Education shall change its classification without first having secured the approval of the Board," so that the Section will read as follows:

"The Educational Institutions of the Methodist Episcopal Church shall be classified as follows: first, primary schools and Religious Day Schools; second, Secondary Schools; third, Colleges and Universities, Schools of Theology, Auxiliaries and Foundations. No Institutions having been classified by the Board of Education shall change its classification without having first secured the approval of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church."

Adopted, May 27.

XI. EDUCATION FOR NEGROES

REPORT NO. 1. QUADRENNIAL REPORT

The Committee has carefully considered the Quadrennial Report of the Board of Education for Negroes and deeply appreciates the great prosperity which has attended the work.

We submit the following recommendations:

(A) Real Estate. We would recommend that the Board continue its policy of care and caution in investigating the titles to any property sought to be purchased in the future, and also that said Board continue to exercise care in effecting good and adequate insurance on said real estate.

We would further recommend that said Board in the future include in its General Report to the General Conference a summary statement showing location of, value of, insurance upon and general condition of all real estate held by it, and a certificate showing right to and title by which all said real estate was acquired and is now held.

(B) Endowments and Trusts. The report shows great care in the investments covering Endowment and Trusts, and we recommend that the General Conference approve the action of the Board in so safely and successfully handling and investing the funds under its care.

With reference to "Scholarships" referred to in the report of the Board, we are in hearty accord and desire to encourage the raising of Scholarship Funds, the interest from which shall be used to assist promising boys and girls to acquire Christian Education.

We approve the plan to organize Inter-Alumni groups of graduates and undergraduates of each institution looking to the securing of Endowments.

The Church having made possible the institutions from which these leaders of the Negro race have been prepared for service, we commend their efforts to help the continuance of these schools by giving their time and money for the same.

(C) Academic Schools and Standards. We recommend that the General Conference approve the efforts being made by schools to meet the high standards fixed for them, and that the support of these schools through the generosity of the Church was never so imperative as now.

The contribution made through these schools to American Citizenship in the transfer of our colored people from liabilities to assets has been so phenomenal that the work should continue without abatement and be favored in the most vigorous way.

Since there is great need of trained teachers in the public, elementary and high schools of the South for the Negro, we suggest that special attention be given in the Colleges to Courses in Teacher Training that the standards may be met which are fixed by the States for their teachers.

(D) Professional Schools. The Board of Trustees of the Gammon Theological Seminary, the Meharry Medical College, and Flint-Goodridge Hospital and Nurse Training School are to be commended for the high state of efficiency developed by their wise and careful administration and we urge the Church to continue their support of these worthy institutions. We call especial attention to the needs of the Gammon Theological Seminary and commend it to the Church with all other Theological Institutions as worthy of support from the General Church. It is sorely needing additional funds to meet the demands for the training of Negro Ministers.

We recommend Extension Courses by Gammon Theological Seminary for the Negro race and the linking up of the Seminary with "Older Boys' Conferences," now being held by many Negro Conferences at the seat of the Annual Conferences.

(E) General Reference. The great advance in Negro education made possible by the Centenary brings great encouragement. Thousands of boys and girls, the future leaders of their race, are now receiving their secondary and higher education in our schools. The fact, however, that Negroes in the South receive less than one ninth as much from the State for educational purposes as compared with the white population, while they compose nearly one fourth of the total population in the seventeen Southern States, including the District of Columbia, indicates that the need for still further expansion of Methodism's educational program is imperative.

We recommend to the General Conference, and through it to all Methodism, loyal support of this great work.

Through the efforts of State authorities, and through such private agencies as the Southern Interracial Commissions, the University Commission, and the Christian Associations, the conditions that have caused discontent and interracial friction are gradually being removed. Interracial Conferences are being held. The Negro is being heard. This cooperation is resulting in new schoolhouses being built, better teachers being employed, better living conditions being introduced, and legal protection for the Negro being extended. We recommend continuance of cooperation in this worthy movement as the most promising solution of interracial difficulties that has been tried in recent years.

With reference to the Memorial entitled "Amendment or Addition to Authorization" submitted by the Board of Managers of the Board of Education for Negroes, we recommend that the following paragraph be inserted in the Discipline as ¶ VI, page 306, the same to read as follows:

"To promote educational work for Negroes, and to avoid duplication, the Board of Education for Negroes of the Methodist Episcopal Church shall have authority on such terms as by majority vote of its entire membership the Board shall approve, to cooperate or to unite with schools of other denominations, or those under independent control."

Adopted, May 14.

XII. SUNDAY SCHOOLS

REPORT NO. 3. QUADRENNIAL REPORT OF BOARD OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Your Committee on Sunday Schools, having reviewed the quadrennial report of the Board of Sunday Schools, and having interviewed the Corresponding Secretary and others associated with him, beg leave to express the highest appreciation of the Board for splendid service rendered during the past quadrennium.

Our attention is called first to the increased numbers now enrolled in the Sunday Schools of Methodism. At the close of the former quadrennium alarming losses in both membership and attendance were reported, due, it was thought, to the direct and indirect influence of the World War, but during the four years now closing a complete recovery in membership and attendance has been effected and a splendid increase is reported. During this period the total enrollment of pupils and teachers in our Sunday School sessions has increased a half million, making the present enrollment 4,929,000.

During this period, no fewer than 750,000 members of Methodist Sunday Schools have united with the Church. This is a gain of 100,000 over the previous quadrennium.

We rejoice in the splendid gains thus reported. Yet we realize that the uncultivated field is rich in possibilities. Many millions of people in the United States alone are outside of all Sunday Schools, and there are many more millions in the foreign field unreached. Our Sunday School work must not be retarded but greatly accelerated if we are to do our part in building the Kingdom of God in the world. The Board of Sunday Schools realizes the magnitude of the task and is giving itself unstintingly to the work.

We call your attention to the increased giving on the part of the Sunday Schools during the quadrennium, both to the benevolences of the Church and to the running expenses of the schools. The giving to the apportioned benevolences of the Church has been $7,258,847, an increase of more than 100% over the preceding four years. The increase in the giving to the current expenses of the Sunday Schools has been $3,606,048 above that of the previous four years, or a total of $11,862,092. In addition to these amounts generous offerings have been made by the schools to various causes not included in apportioned benevolences or current expenses.

We note with special satisfaction the fact that the Board of Sunday Schools has completed the four years without indebtedness.

We call attention to one of the great needs in the field of religious education, as revealed by the report of the Corresponding Secretary, when he reports that though there has been an increase of 18,900 Sunday School teachers, this increase is not commensurate with the increase in the number of pupils. This reveals to us the necessity of placing larger emphasis than ever upon securing and properly training teachers for the increased numbers now being enrolled in our schools. The Board of Sunday Schools has been diligent in its work of promoting classes in the local church schools for the study of the prescribed courses for teacher training. It has conducted correspondence courses for individual study and it has conducted short term institutes for workers brought together from the district and sub-district areas. In this way a great service has been rendered and your committee believes still greater emphasis should be placed upon this feature of the work in the days to come.

We would suggest in this connection that greater effort shall be made in securing through the days of training actual practice in teaching on the part of those in training. We would suggest in the training of young people that greater emphasis shall be placed upon securing for the training classes, young people of outstanding natural qualities of leadership not only as teachers, but as superintendents of departments in schools.

We would voice the need of a closer cooperation of Church and Sunday School in the matter of Christian worship. There is a feeling in many circles that there is a widening gulf between the church school and the worship service of the Church, and we would urge the Board of Sunday Schools to seek in every possible way to lessen this gulf, and bring about a closer cooperation.

The importance of week-day religious education and Daily Vacation Bible Schools is more marked to-day than ever before. Methodism has been a pioneer in the movement to secure arrangements with the public school authorities by which the children are released from the public schools certain hours during the week for the purpose of securing through their churches, thorough instruction from trained teachers in the essentials of Christian faith and practice. The Board of Sunday Schools has not only encouraged this but has helped in every way possible.

We wish to record our appreciation of the way in which city and other educational administrative units have cooperated with the Church, in making it possible, by releasing pupils from their classes at certain hours, to thus secure the religious training furnished by the Church. We desire also to express the hope that other State, city and educational administrative units will be encouraged to do the same.

We rejoice in the program of missionary education now being carried on by our Board of Sunday Schools.

We call attention to the 426 new Sunday Schools organized during the past year under the leadership of the field men of the Board of Sunday Schools and to the fact that no less than 18,071 new scholars are enrolled in these schools.

We commend the work of the Board in encouraging and organizing Parent Training Classes and in seeking to secure a Revival of Religion in the Home. We rejoice in the work accomplished in the cultivation of childhood and youth for Life Service and in definite whole time service, and would urge a still greater emphasis upon this needed work.

Since the Board of Sunday Schools and the Board of Epworth League are in many cases working with the same groups of our young people, we feel that while we have not the power to recommend the union of these two organizations, as they now exist a greater degree of cooperation than we now have should be effected.

This we would seek to further, not only among the organizations themselves, but in the life of each local church.

Therefore we suggest that the Sunday School continue to plan with the Epworth League for a more uniform program and a greater cooperation, to the end that there shall be the least possible overlapping, whether in the organization or in the local churches.

We would also suggest that the Board of Sunday Schools invite the Board of the Epworth League to provide Devotional meeting topics bearing upon the responsibility of young people for the work of the Sunday School and other young people's agencies in the Church.

Your Committee commends the work of Dr. William S. Bovard as Corresponding Secretary. He has had vision and faith. The results of the quadrennium have been such as to cause the Church to have confidence in the Board and in the work being carried forward.

Adopted, May 17.

The following paragraph was in the original report but eliminated.

We rejoice in the work of our Board overseas. We realize that while great needs are manifest in the United States, greater needs are apparent in the Foreign Field, and our Board has been seeking to reach the untouched millions among the nonChristian people of the world.

REPORT No. 4. SUNDAY SCHOOL LITERATURE

After considering Memorials 320, 322, and ¶¶ 1, 2 and 3 of Memorial 387, we present the following report:

Recognizing the great delicacy of the task that is set for the editor of our Sunday School literature and his staff; and also recognizing, and rejoicing in the wonderful success that has attended them in the production of such excellent literature that not only vast quantities are being used by our own schools, but that other denominations are taking the same materials for the supply of their schools:

We nevertheless do listen to the earnest queries and the words of caution coming from wise and thoughtful men and women concerning statements which are used occasionally, and the omission of statements which would clarify lesson comments, and harmonize them with our doctrinal standards. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we instruct our editor and his staff to studiously avoid the use of those expressions which disturb the spiritual sensibilities of our children and people, and seek in every way to bring every comment into accord with the standards of faith and doctrine held by the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Adopted, May 21.

In the original report were the following words: "That we urge upon our editor and his staff all diligence in preventing those expressions," etc.

REPORT No. 5. SUNDAY SCHOOL LITERATURE

Your Committee on Sunday Schools, to which was referred Memorial No. 334, presented by A. M. Wilkinson, from Laymen's Association of the Southern California Conference, concerning temperance lessons in our Sunday School publications, having considered said Memorial in connection with Memorial No. 546, on the same subject, reports:

That it concurs in said memorials and recommends that the editors of our Sunday School publications continue to lay increasing emphasis on temperance instruction and to furnish to teachers all needful helps to enable them to best present the subject to their pupils.

Adopted, May 23.

REPORT No. 6. BUREAU FOR COLORED CONFERENCES, BOARD OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Your Committee on Sunday Schools, to which was referred Memorial No. 826, signed by Albert J. Mitchell, of the Washington Conference, and others, which relates to the creation of a Bureau of Sunday Schools for Colored Conferences, reports that it believes that the Board of Sunday Schools has now the authority, if it deems best to do so, to create such a bureau and recommends that this Memorial be referred to the Board of Sunday Schools for such action as said Board deems best.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 7. STEWARDSHIP IN SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Your Committee on Sunday Schools, to which was referred Memorial No. 1141, dealing with a special Sunday for Christian Stewardship, respectfully report that we do not favor the establishment of a separate Sunday but recommend the following:

To insert among the duties of pastors, ¶ 476, § 2 of the Discipline, the following:

"To see that regular instruction in Christian Stewardship shall be given in the Sunday Schools under his charge," so that the entire ¶ 476, § 2, shall read as follows:

"¶ 476, § 2. It shall be the special duty of the Pastor, with the aid of the other Preachers and the Committee on Religious Instruction, to form Sunday Schools in all our Congregations where ten persons can be collected for that purpose, which schools shall be auxiliary to the Board of Sunday Schools of the Methodist Episcopal Church; to engage the cooperation of as many of our members as he can; to visit the Schools as often as practicable; to see that regular instruction in Christian Stewardship shall be given in the Sunday Schools under his charge; to preach on the subject of Sunday Schools and the religious instruction of children in each congregation at least once in six months; to form classes, wherever practicable, for the instruction of the larger children, youth, and adults in the Word of God, and, where he cannot superintend them personally, to see that suitable teachers are provided for that purpose."

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 8. ANNUAL CONFERENCE BOARD OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Your Committee on Sunday Schools, to which was referred Memorial No. 636, dealing with the organization of the Conference and District Boards, report concurrence, and recommend that ¶ 472 be revised so that it shall read as follows:

¶ 472, § 1. It shall be the duty of each Annual Conference to organize a Conference Board of Sunday Schools. Said Board shall consist of the Superintendent of each District, ex officio, and an equal number of Laymen and Ministers from each District. The Conference Board shall be auxiliary to the Department of Church Schools of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and shall have oversight of the Sunday School interests of the Conference, and shall cooperate with the General Board in promoting the Sunday School work of the Conference and of the denomination at large.

The Conference Board may add not to exceed five members at large in order to more adequately carry forward its work.

The Conference Board shall be elected annually by the Annual Conference.

§ 2. The District representatives on the Conference Board of Sunday Schools may act as a District Board of Sunday Schools when they so desire.

What is now § 2 shall become § 3.

Adopted, May 26.

XIII. EPWORTH LEAGUE

REPORT NO. 1. STUDY OF EPWORTH LEAGUE METHODS

Your Committee on Epworth League respectfully recommends:

That we request our theological schools, schools of religious education, and the Commission on Conference Courses of Study, to provide a definite place in their curricula for instruction whereby students in these schools and courses of study may be more adequately trained in Epworth League methods and leadership.

Adopted, May 16.

REPORT NO. 2. STANDARDIZED EPWORTH LEAGUE

Your Committee on Epworth League has carefully considered Memorials No. 754, 758, 803, 804, and 939, all of which deal with the Constitution of the Epworth League, and respectfully recommends the following amendments in ¶ 484 of the Discipline of 1920:

Strike out the whole of Article 3 and substitute therefor the following, so that Article 3 under ¶ 484 shall read:

Standard Organization. With a view to carrying out the objects of the Epworth League there may be organized local chapters, and District Conferences and Area Leagues, each conforming to the standard of organization set forth in this Article. A standard Chapter shall be constituted of a group of young people organized with a President, Secretary, Treasurer, Superintendent of Junior League and four departments, namely, (1) Spiritual Work; (2) World Evangelism; (3) Social Service; (4) Recreation and Culture; with a Vice-President and committee at the head of each department, and with a Cabinet composed of the President, the Secretary, Treasurer, the Superintendent of the Junior League, the four Vice-Presidents, the Director of Social and Recreational Life, and the Pastor, ex officio. The Chapter shall be under the control of the Quarterly Conference and Pastor. Any young people's society may become an affiliated Chapter of the Epworth League provided that it adopt the aims of the League, that its President and other officers and its general plans of work are approved by the Pastor and Official Board or Quarterly Conference and that it is enrolled at the Central Office. Any group of young people not naturally affiliated with an existent Chapter may become a separate chapter under the provisions of this paragraph. A standard District League shall be composed of the Chapters in a District, organized with the same officers as a local Chapter who shall be elected at a delegated convention, and together with the District Superintendent, ex officio, shall constitute the District Cabinet. A standard Conference League shall be composed of the District Cabinets within the Conference. They shall elect officers corresponding to those in a local Chapter, and these together with one District Superintendent chosen by the District Superintendents of the Conference shall constitute the Conference Cabinet. A standard Area League shall be composed of all the Conference Cabinets in the Area, and the Area member of the Board of Epworth League. The Area Cabinet shall be elected by this body and shall consist of the same officers as those of a local Chapter, together with one District Superintendent chosen by the District Superintendents in the Area League, and the resident Bishop ex officio. (It is understood this Article does not prevent the organization of city, county or State Leagues where such may be desired.)

REPORT NO. 4. YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK IN FOREIGN FIELDS

Your Committee has given careful consideration to Memorials Nos. 752 and 807, and respectfully recommends:

That the Methodist Young People's work in foreign fields be continued under the direction of the Epworth League; and that the present plan of cooperation with the Board of Foreign Missions be continued.

Chairman ruled as not in order because of ¶ 151 already adopted.

REPORT NO. 5. OLDER BOYS' CONFERENCES

Your Committee has carefully considered Memorial No. 1098, and recommends:

We approve the idea of the Older Boys' Conference held in connection with the Sessions of the Annual Conference, and recommend to the Annual Conferences that they confer with the Board of Epworth League, the Board of Sunday Schools, and the Life Service Commission in planning and promoting these Conferences.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 6. EPWORTH LEAGUE ACHIEVEMENTS

The action of the General Conference of 1920 in giving the Epworth League the standing of a regular Board of the Church has been eminently justified, not simply because the League's membership has increased 48,158, the total membership now being 753,988 (530,713 seniors and 223,275 juniors) with 17,540 chapters (11,769 senior chapters and 5,771 junior chapters), but because the League has been a vital factor in advancing the work of the Kingdom in America and in thirty-one other countries.

During the quadrennium the Epworth League members have purchased 10,000 Bible study books, 7,246 books on evangelism, 33,279 on mission study. The growth in circulation of the Epworth Herald has more than doubled the total combined growth in circulation of all the other papers of the Church. In 1922-23 there were 5,751 registered mission study classes, with 4,000 already registered this year and with over 3,000 more in prospect.

Between 40,000 and 50,000 young people will be in attendance at the 150 Institutes to be held in 1924.

As a result of the Institutes held there have been enrolled and accepted for life service 6,389, the Epworth League thus presenting to the Methodist Episcopal Church during the four years more recruits for our world-wide work than all other agencies combined.

Not only has the Board of Bishops in the Episcopal Address commended the good work of the League, but ten of the Bishops in their quadrennial reports have particularly referred to the assistance of the League in their Areas. "The Epworth League still maintains its power of enlisting young people in Kingdom Service through the varied departments of this much needed organization," says Bishop Henderson of the Detroit Area. "The State of Michigan has led the nation in the number of mission study classes." "The students in our theological schools," says Bishop Bast of Copenhagen, "come largely from the Epworth Leagues. It was in the Epworth League prayer meetings and Bible study classes that the abilities of these young people were discovered."

Bishop Fisher, of Calcutta, reports the Epworth League as one of the agencies that has contributed largely to the Christian victories in that country. Bishop John W. Robinson, of Bombay, reports 451 Epworth League Chapters, with 12,000 members.

Bishop Leonard, reporting for the San Francisco Area, says that there is no more aggressive or vital force in the Area than the Epworth League. "Larger numbers volunteered for the ministry, mission field, and various lines of Christian service from the League Institutes than ever before. With such an army of Epworth Leaguers, devoted and loyal as they are, the Methodist Church of the future is secure."

XIV. DEACONESS WORK

REPORT NO. 1. DEACONESS WORK

The Committee on Deaconess Work, to whom were referred certain memorials, numbered 553, 774, 307, 1028, and A-600, all bearing on Deaconess Work, having carefully considered the same, beg leave to recommend that no change be made in the statutory requirements and regulations governing Deaconess work as now contained in ¶¶ 229 to 240 inclusive and ¶¶ 491 to 499 inclusive, of the Discipline of 1920.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 2. FORM OF CONSECRATION OF DEACONESSSES

The Committee on Deaconess Work, to whom was referred a Memorial petitioning for certain modifications of the Form for Consecration of Deaconesses as contained in ¶ 536 of the Discipline of 1920, having carefully considered such memorial recommend that there shall be substituted for all of said ¶ 536 of the Discipline of 1920 the following:

FORM OF CONSECRATION OF DEACONESSSES

¶ 536. (The following Order of Service may be preceded by a sermon or address, with such other exercises as may be desired; after which the President of the Conference Deaconess Board, or some one named, shall present those to be consecrated Deaconesses to the Bishop or other Consecrator.)

Then shall be sung hymn 411 or other appropriate hymn.

Then shall the following be read by the leader and congregation responsively:

For the gift of Thyself in Jesus Christ,

We praise Thee, O Lord!

For the life, the death and the resurrection of our Lord, and for His holy example,

We praise Thee, O Lord!

For the abiding presence of Thy Holy Spirit,

We praise Thee, O Lord!

For the glory of Christ's Kingdom and the assurance of its triumph,

We praise Thee, O Lord!

For the high privilege of being colaborers with Thee,
We praise Thee, O Lord!

For the purpose of the Church to extend Thy Kingdom over the whole earth,

We praise Thee, O Lord!

That Thou wilt continue Thy favor to us; that we may be in harmony with Thy will and fitted for Thy purposes,

We beseech Thee, O Lord!

That Thou wilt save us from uncharity and selfishness, from vanity and self seeking, from dullness of heart and sins of the spirit,

We beseech Thee, O Lord!

That Thy richest blessing may be given to these who in this place and in this hour dedicate anew their lives to the ministry of their vocation; and that they may ever walk in the light of Thy truth, in the power of Thy love, and in the fullness of Thy life,

We beseech Thee, O Lord!

Then shall be sung the Consecration Hymn (Tune, Gratitude, 410).

Let us pray.

O eternal God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who didst call Phoebe and Dorcas into the service of thy Church, look upon these thy servants, who are now set apart to the office of Deaconess, and grant them Thy Holy Spirit, that they may worthily discharge the work committed to them, to the blessing of mankind and the praise of Thy Christ, our adorable Saviour.
Amen.

Then shall the Consecrator address the Candidates, saying:

Dearly Beloved, we rejoice that a door of usefulness has been opened for you in the service of the Church. To you are accorded peculiar privileges and priceless opportunities. Released from other cares, you are to give yourselves without reservation to the service of the Christ. Like Him you will henceforth go about doing good. The Church now solemnly sets you apart for this special service. You are to minister to the poor and the rich, the ignorant and the educated, the sick and the dying, the orphaned and the sorrowing, the wandering, and the sinning. To you is committed instruction of the youth of the Church and the performance of many of its sacred services. Take good heed therefore, to its doctrines and to your own manner of life that you bring no reproach to the Church of the living God by precept or example. This service confers a great honor, but also lays upon you a solemn responsibility.
What you have done alone with God, in consecrating your lives to this service, you are now to do formally and publicly in the presence of the Church.

Consecrator: Do you believe that you have been led by the providence of God to engage in this work, and to assume the duties of this office?

Answer: I do.

Consecrator: Do you, in the presence of God and of this congregation, promise faithfully to perform the duties of a Deaconess in the Church of God?

Answer: I do.

Consecrator: Do you fully accept the Holy Scriptures as the Word of God?

Answer: I do.

Consecrator: Will you strive to live that you may convey the blessed sense of God's presence to the hearts and homes of those to whom you minister?

Answer: I will.

Then shall the Candidates kneel for a brief season in silent prayer, after which the Consecrator shall say:

May the Spirit of the Living God descend upon you and abide with you evermore. May He impart to you grace for every trial, and strength for every service. May His presence be to you a pillar of cloud by day, and pillar of fire by night; and may the blessing of God the Father, the Son, and Holy Spirit be with you now and evermore. Amen.

Then shall the Candidates rise, and the Consecrator, taking the right hand of each one, shall say:

I admit thee to the office of a Deaconess in the Church of God, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.

Then shall be given the Deaconess Pin and the Consecrator shall say:

This pin is presented to you in the name of the Methodist Episcopal Church. It symbolizes your call and commission as a servant of the Lord Christ. It is a visible expression of the confidence the Church has in you. May you wear it worthily.

Then may be sung the Deaconess Hymn of Service (Tune, Lancashire, 408).

Benediction

That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God. Now unto Him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, unto Him be glory in the Church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT No. 3. PROPOSED COMMISSION ON WOMEN'S WORK IN THE CHURCH

Adopted, May 28.

XV. TEMPERANCE, PROHIBITION, AND PUBLIC MORALS

REPORT No. 1. AMENDMENTS TO NATIONAL PROHIBITION ACT

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church urge Congress and the Judiciary Committee to defeat the fifty-nine beer bills, to strengthen law enforcement by enacting pending legislation to put prohibition agents under civil service, to concentrate all enforcement activities into a responsible enforcement bureau and to enact a law to deport aliens upon the second conviction for violation of our prohibition and narcotic laws.

Adopted, May 10.

REPORT No. 2. COMMENDATION OF ROY A. HAYNES

Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church commend Hon. Roy A. Haynes, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, and a member of a previous General Conference, for his efforts and measure of success in the enforcement of the Volstead Act and Anti-Narcotic laws and for the energy and courage he has displayed in his exceedingly difficult task.

Adopted, May 24.

REPORT No. 3. TEMPERANCE AND PROHIBITION

Temperance and Prohibition

The Methodist Episcopal Church records its grateful thanks to Almighty God for National Constitutional Prohibition of the Beverage Liquor traffic.

The Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution was adopted by a larger majority than was given the original Constitution and was ratified by a larger number of States and a larger proportion of the States than that given any other amendment to our fundamental law.

It is not a mere remedial statute or a bit of police regulation. It is a concrete statement, in terms of advancing civilization, of an enduring principle of human government. It voices a universal law, that only a sober people can make a growing, progressive, and Christian nation. There can be no successful challenge of the propriety of incorporating in the basic law of a nation the abiding underlying moral convictions of its people.

Though the traffic in intoxicating drinks has been prohibited by the action of a great and sovereign people, the forces that fattened upon it are striving to reinstate their nefarious trade. Under the guise of a campaign for beer and light wines the attempt is being made to restore the traffic in intoxicating beverages.

The Present Crisis

The real issue before the American people to-day is, whether the Prohibition Amendment and the federal prohibitory law are to be nullified by a law-defying minority which insists upon flagrantly showing its contempt for the emphatically expressed and properly recorded will of the American people. That issue goes to the very heart of free government and will determine whether the minority in this Republic is to acquiesce in the will of the majority or whether such minority is to be permitted successfully to defy the law of the nation and treat the Constitution of the United States of America as a scrap of paper. The decision of the American people on this important issue involves the far more vital question as to whether after a century and a half of trial this government of, for and by the people is able to secure obedience to its own mandates and thus perpetuate itself.

That for which we have stood and still stand before the world, the orderly rule of the majority, under a reign of law, must and shall be maintained regardless of all who oppose or whatever its preservation may cost.

The W. C. T. U. and Other Organizations

We gratefully recognize and commend the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, that pioneer organization of American women, and all other temperance and prohibition agencies which have contributed by their effort and sacrifice to the triumphant position now occupied by the forces of sobriety and civic righteousness.

The Board of Temperance

Methodism's own organization in the field of prohibition is recognized everywhere as a strong factor in the magnificent results accomplished. Devoting particular attention to the creation of moral sentiment and civic opinion through the carrying on of research work, the circulation of literature, the holding of public meetings, the conduct of total abstinence campaigns, and by personal interviews with legislators, this great Board has given ample proof of its value as a militant Christian power in the war against alcohol throughout the nation. We gladly give our confidence to its wise and aggressive tactics. Independent in its thinking and planning, it has always been ready to cooperate with all worthy temperance agencies. Ready to take the initiative, it has been careful not to outrun public sentiment. Basing its activities on the tested foundation of scientific investigation, it adopts new and original methods. Faithful to its heavy responsibilities, and loyal to the traditions of the great Church it represents, the Board of Temperance has become a terror to the lawless liquor traffic and a bulwark of national defense.

In the larger field of activities among the nations of the earth we confidently expect its work to be as successful as at home. By correcting misstatements as to the results of prohibition in America, by disseminating accurate information, by conducting inquiries into conditions in other lands, and by cooperating in every acceptable way with prohibition forces everywhere, the Board of Temperance will do its part in creating a new and sober world. It thoroughly deserves and will continue to receive the hearty support of all our people.

The Anti-Saloon League

By action of the General Conference of 1908 and of each General Conference since, the Methodist Episcopal Church has recognized the Anti-Saloon League as the approved agency for cooperation with members of other churches and temperance organizations for the destruction of the liquor traffic. We hereby reaffirm our confidence in and our indorsement of the Anti-Saloon League, recording also our grateful appreciation of the truly remarkable service which it has rendered and is continuing to render to the cause of Prohibition in America and throughout the world.

The permanence of prohibition here depends upon destroying the liquor traffic everywhere so that it will have no legal base of operations anywhere. We therefore call upon our churches and people not only to continue but to increase their moral and financial support of this tested agency for the accomplishment of those phases of the enforcement, conservation, and extension of prohibition which cannot be wisely undertaken or successfully carried through by any single denomination as such, to the end that we may discharge our responsibility and utilize our opportunity under the slogan "Enforce Prohibition in America—Redeem the World from Alcohol."

The World League Against Alcoholism

As a world Church, Methodism is deeply concerned, not only with a more intensified interest in temperance and prohibition activities within the Church in all its branches and in all lands, but also with the fullest cooperation, on the part of Methodist people everywhere, with the constituency of other Christian Churches and with all other moral and religious forces throughout the world.

We, therefore, most heartily indorse the "World League Against Alcoholism" which has been officially constituted by joint action of the Anti-Saloon League of America, The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and similar organizations in most of the leading countries of the world.

We call upon our people everywhere to cooperate with this great international agency for righteousness in order that the omnipartisan and interdenominational methods which have proved so successful in the fight against the liquor evil in the United States may thus be applied to the solution of the world's liquor problem, to the end that the prohibition of the liquor traffic in all its forms may speedily come to be a fixed policy of all government, and that sobriety may be completely established in the earth.

Facing the Future

No great human welfare problem can be permanently solved by action of a single nation. The liquor evil is a world problem and as such requires a world-wide remedy. Permanence of prohibition in the United States requires international action. Just as township, municipal, and county prohibition could not be fully enforced without State action and just as State prohibition could not be fully enforced without national action, so in this day of close international relationships, when the several different countries of the earth constitute a great neighborhood of human interest, national prohibition cannot be fully enforced without world action.

On the other hand, the first essential to a successful movement for world prohibition is of necessity the strict enforcement of the prohibitory law in the United States.

We pledge our brothers in the foreign field our fullest cooperation and assistance in combating the growing evil of alcoholism in their several countries, and insist that the Congress of the United States refuse the protection of the American flag abroad to any institution outlawed by the American government at home.

Rising to the high privilege which is ours, responding to the solemn duty which has been laid upon us, and confidently trusting in the leadership of Almighty God, with renewed vigor, fixed determination, and consecrated abandon, we move forward to the larger conflict which does not cease until the liquor traffic has been banished from the face of the earth.

Adopted, May 24.

REPORT NO. 4. APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEES TO APPEAR BEFORE NATIONAL POLITICAL CONVENTIONS IN BEHALF OF STRICT PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

Your Committee on Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, to which were referred Memorials Nos. 335 and 709, recommend that the Board of Bishops be requested to appoint two committees consisting of one Bishop and four other members each, one committee to appear before the Platform Committee of the Republican party at the coming National Convention of that party to be held in Cleveland, Ohio; the other to appear before the Platform Committee of the Democratic party at the coming National Convention of that party to be held in New York City; to urge each convention through its platform committee to place a plank in its platform pledging the effective enforcement of the Volstead Act and against its modification permitting a greater amount of alcohol than one half of one per cent by volume.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 5. STATEMENT OF PUBLIC MORALS

We rejoice in the good that is found in the public life of to-day, and we believe that in quantity it far exceeds the evil. Yet all thoughtful minds are aware of many danger signals indicating those zones of peril with which we must reckon.

The Methodist Episcopal Church hereby records itself as irrevocably opposed to all those evils which tend to break down the spiritual life of our people, such as various forms of gambling in social life, the evils of the race track, the pool room, the modern dance, improper suggestive motion pictures, immodesty in dress, and many other similarly demoralizing practices:

We protest against brutalized prize fighting.

We earnestly call to the attention of the American State Department the embarrassments to which our missionaries and Christian people in foreign lands are subjected by the misleading character of many exported motion picture films. We emphatically condemn the vicious traffic by which the national prohibition law is evaded through the use of so-called patent medicines of alcoholic content.

The alarming growth of the use of cigarettes by both men and women is a menace in our social life. We denounce this evil, and we urge our people to do all within their power against it.

We recognize the demand for a ministry of prevention as well as of rescue, and we pledge anew our total strength and our corporate efforts for the removal of everything that threatens the moral life of our civilization, for our Church is the ally of all those who are seeking to make this a better world.

We believe that religion furnishes the essential dynamic of good morals, and because we belong to Christ, we shall work at these moral tasks until all life shall be shot through with the light of the glory of God as it shines in the face of Jesus Christ.

Substitute adopted May 28, see page 429.

REPORT NO. 6. AMENDMENT TO FIRST GENERAL RULE

Your Committee on Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals to which was referred Memorial No. 964 from Fred F. Thornburg and others to amend Section 4, of the first General Rule in ¶ 30, Division 2, of the Discipline, respectfully recommend that the General Conference is without jurisdiction to revoke or change the General Rules of the Church except as provided in § 4 of ¶ 46 of Article 10 of Chapter II of the Constitution of the Church, and the memorial should be returned to the General Conference without action.

Adopted, May 26.

REPORT NO. 7. REPORT ON PUBLIC MORALS

Your Committee on the Report of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, reports as follows:

We record our gratification at the record of achievements from the discouraging beginning at Chicago with many inconveniences as to housing, to its triumphant occupancy of its own building in Washington, D. C.

We approve the strategy of selecting Washington as its headquarters.

We commend the organization and successful working of the several departments of the Board.

1. The department of statistics, which has gathered, compiled and published reliable facts as to the progress of prohibition enforcement and other moral reforms.

2. The distributing of these facts through the Clip-sheet to the secular and religious press of the United States, The Voice to our preachers and others, and the publication of books of high value to these reforms, and the utilizing of various publishing houses to get these on the market.

3. We especially express our appreciation of the acceptance of world responsibility by this Board as revealed in establishing reform offices in Europe, South America and the Orient.

4. We commend the zeal, industry and fearlessness of our Secretaries in prosecuting the work of the Board which has made a high place in our churches.

REPORT No. 8. THE QUESTIONNAIRE ON PROHIBITION

The questionnaire on Prohibition, recently presented by the Temperance Committee to the American delegates of the Conference, elicited 482 replies. These replies came from delegates representing Conferences in every State in the Union with the exception of Arizona and Nevada. New York led with 46 replies, Illinois was next with 40, and Pennsylvania third with 37, showing the natural order by population.

Among the responses were those from delegations representing the foreign language Conferences, such as the Central German, the Saint Louis German, the Western Norwegian Danish Conference, etc., as well as the delegates from Negro Conferences in the South.

The responses also came from delegates of widely diversified occupations. Of those replying, 175 were pastors, 25 were district superintendents, 43 lawyers, 39 merchants, 19 educators, 19 others college presidents, 21 were bankers, 18 were manufacturers, 15 were newspaper men (mostly editors), 10 were doctors, 12 were housewives, 9 were farmers, 7 were in the insurance business, 5 were corresponding secretaries, 3 were judges, 3 postal employees, and two each were accountants, real estate men, traveling salesmen, salesmanagers, hospital superintendents, field secretaries, undertakers, dealers in investments, while each of the following occupations were represented by one delegate, namely, board secretary, consulting expert, mayor, telegraph manager, rural mail carrier, druggist, deaconess, U. S. inspector, lumber dealer, home missionary, credit man, printer, barber, chairman of workman's compensation board, "Sky Pilot," contractor, architect, president of Lyceum Bureau, industrial engineer, and there were 24 who did not state their occupation.

However, among all this diversity of residence, nationality, race and occupation, there was a striking agreement on certain fundamental things regarding prohibition. Four hundred and fifty-three out of 482 expressed their conviction that the people of their State regarded prohibition as a desirable thing; 418 out of 430 felt that the people back home regarded any increase of alcohol in beverages as undesirable; 238 felt that in their State, the prohibition law was as well enforced as other laws; 160 that while not quite up to that standard, it still was well enforced, while only 94 regarded its enforcement as really lax. Four hundred and sixty-three to 5 expressed the conviction that prohibition had decreased crime; 483 to 2 that it had stimulated and improved business; 375 to 25 that it had decreased their prison population; 457 to 6 that it had reduced poverty in their State; 344 to 3 that it had improved labor conditions in general; 304 to 4 that it had reduced the number of strikes or rendered them less violent; 351 to 2 that it had reduced the number of industrial accidents; 263 to 1 that it had increased output, and 404 to 3 were convinced that employers of labor favored prohibition because of its good effect industrially.

On the attitude of the political parties in the several States, there was less assurance felt and yet the expression is significant: 384 as against 57 felt satisfied the Republican Party in their State was favorable to prohibition laws and their maintenance "as is," while on the Democratic side 292 to 94 expressed similar convictions.

Of course such an expression of opinion as this was of necessity, one dealing in generalities and personal opinion, based on personal observation. Many safeguarded their replies by emphasizing this, and many failed to answer all of the questions, feeling they were not qualified to express an opinion as to strikes, steadiness of labor, output, etc. However, the replies coming from delegates representing so wide, intelligent and diversified a constituency, have a very real value and significance, which should not be overlooked by students of the prohibition problem in the United States.

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 9. CHANGE IN DISCIPLINE

Memorial No. 304 seeks to amend ¶ 490, § 1, line 7, by adding after the word "law," the following: "And to all attempts to undermine or destroy established civil and religious liberties." And to add to § 2 of the same paragraph the words: "and to promote and maintain established civil and religious liberties." In this the Committee recommends concurrence.

Adopted, May 7.

REPORT NO. 7. AMENDMENT OF RULE 7, IV (1) AND (2)

In the matters of Report No. 7 of the Committee on Rules and the substitute therefor offered by the Committee, and recommitted to the Committee by the General Conference, your Committee recommends that on the memorial with reference to the amendment to Rule 7, ¶ IV, §§ 1 and 2, as the same appear in ¶ 567, page 507, of the Discipline, be amended by inserting the word "then" between the words "may" and "speak" in the last line of § 1, and further by striking out all of the section after the words "to it" in the last line of the section; further, by striking out of § 2 all of the words thereof from the beginning of the section to and including the word "or" in the third line of the section on page 507 of the Discipline; also by striking out of § 2 the words "at which time also it shall be subject to the question of consideration or the motion of reference the same as when originally introduced."

The rule as amended will then read as follows:

Rule 7, IV. (1) When a proposition has been presented under the Call of Conferences, and before the person who introduced the proposition shall speak, the Question of Consideration may be raised by a member saying:

"Mr. President, on that I raise the Question of Consideration."

The Question of Consideration shall then be put without debate, and if there is a two-thirds vote against consideration the proposition shall not be entertained; but if consideration be not denied, the person introducing the proposition may then speak to it.

(2) A motion to defer consideration and print in The Daily Christian Advocate, if sustained by one hundred and fifty members shall prevail without debate; in which case the proposition shall be presented for action at the next session of the General Conference; provided, however, that a proposition which has been refused consideration shall not be printed in The Daily Christian Advocate or the General Conference Journal.

Adopted, May 14.

ORIGINAL REPORT

On the memorial referred to the Committee on Rules, with reference to the amendment to Rule 7, ¶ IV, § 2, as the same appears in ¶ 567, page 507, of the Discipline, your Committee recommends that said § 2 of said rule be amended by inserting after the word "proposition" in the first line the word "or others," and by changing the word "has" to "have"; also by adding after the word "debate" in the third line the words "but the motion to refer shall be subject to amendment and substitute as to the place of reference"; also by striking out all of the section after the word "introduced" in the fifth line of the section on page 508 of the Discipline.

The rule as amended will then read as follows:

Rule 7, IV. (2) After the person introducing the proposition, or others, have spoken, a motion to refer, if made, shall be decided without debate; but the motion to refer shall be subject to amendment and substitute as to place of reference; or a motion to defer consideration and print in The Daily Christian Advocate, if sustained by one hundred and fifty members, shall prevail without debate; in which case the proposition shall be given precedence under the next call of Conferences; at which time also it shall be subject to the question of consideration or the motion of reference the same as when originally introduced.

II. AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY

Your Committee on the American Bible Society has had before it the report of this Society as published in the Handbook of this General Conference and has read with appreciation and gratitude of the enlarged work and far-reaching influence during the past quadrennium of this great organization, the Society of The Book.

Your Committee feels that record should be made of the fact that very recently the Rev. William Ingraham Haven, D.D., LL.D., completed twenty-five years of distinguished service as General Secretary of this society. Doctor Haven, bearing an honored name, has by his spirit and achievements brought added honor to the name he bears. He is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a member of the New England Conference, a devoted and unfailingly loyal servant of the Church, a friend of all peoples and all good causes, a wise counselor, intimately familiar with national and international questions, a lover of the Word of God, eager and zealous in the distribution of that Word, which is a lamp unto hesitant, stumbling feet, and which floods dangerous or uncertain paths with a glorious light. The Church has reason to be proud of his quarter of a century of service in connection with the American Bible Society and may fittingly congratulate both him and the Society.

Doctor Haven has appeared before your committee and has given more detailed information concerning the policies, opportunities and manifold activities of the Society than is found in the report in the handbook and has also outlined plans for the future development and larger service of the Society.

Your committee can scarcely do more than call attention to the record of the quadrennium, which shows a circulation for four years of over seventeen million copies of the Scriptures in the United States, in the extended mission fields of Latin America, in Europe and Africa, and throughout the vast populations of the Far East. The report completes the thrilling story of war distribution, bringing the total of the Society's supplies for the American forces during the war to approximately five million volumes, and the amazing total of seven million volumes distributed among all the forces engaged in the war, special New Testaments having been prepared for this war ministry in addition to English, in Bohemian, French, Italian, Yiddish, Polish, Russian, Spanish, Roumanian and Greek.

An important Department of the Society's work is that of Translations and Revisions. During the past four years there have been numerous outstanding events, the most significant, undoubtedly, being the completion of a revised Spanish New Testament upon which many thousands of dollars have been spent. This vast undertaking in which the American Bible Society and the British and Foreign Bible Society cooperated was begun upon the invitation of the South American Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church and upon the Committee representing the American Bible Society were two eminent Methodist scholars, the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Drees and the Rev. Dr. Victoriano D. Baez.

Also during this period the two great union versions in China, the "Mandarin" and the "Wenli," on which missionaries have patiently toiled for more than forty years, have been completed. This is an achievement of immeasurable good for the people of China. In addition to these there have been brought out other versions for peoples in Africa, Siam and other lands, where as everywhere the leaves of the book are for the healing of the nations.

During the quadrennium there have been other matters of significant interest to which attention should be directed, such as the transfer of Korea to the British and Foreign Bible Society in exchange for their work in the Philippines for purposes of comity; the creation of the upper Andes Agency, constituted of Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, and part of Colombia, thereby making six Latin American Agencies; the establishment of an Arabic Agency, with headquarters at Cairo, thus dividing the old Levant Agency; the printing of special editions of Scriptures for the Peruvian and the Brazilian centenaries; the giving up of the manufacturing plant in the Bible House, where for so many fruitful years Bibles and Testaments have been printed in many languages, for the purpose of securing larger editions, more quickly and more economically than from the Society's own presses.

The death of Dr. John R. Hykes in 1921, for nearly fifty years a Methodist missionary and Bible Society Secretary in China, deserves more than passing mention. Among the outstanding Christian leaders in China during the last half century this noble man of God, passionate herald of the good news and tireless servant of the Society of the Book, Dr. John R. Hykes, must be placed high up on the list.

As of special interest to Methodists should be noted the election to the Board of Mr. Arthur L. Brown and Miss Ellen McLean, and to the Vice Presidency of the Society of Mr. Frank A. Horne of New York, Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas, President Edmund Janes James of Illinois, Mr. Hanford Crawford of Saint Louis, Missouri; the election of Mr. Paul Penzotti to succeed his father in South America, and of the Rev. G. Carleton Lacy to have charge of the work in China. All these are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

It is cause for rejoicing that under the Centenary the Church has given $150,000 each year of the quadrennium for the work of the Society, which has not only made possible the expansion of the work, but has also influenced many other churches to place the Society in their budgets. The total appropriations for the four years have amounted to $4,491,596.

Recommendations

We therefore recommend that this cause be presented to all our churches annually, as has been the custom since 1836, as one of the official benevolences.

We would suggest that the amount to be asked or appropriated be left to be determined by the organization created by the General Conference to have charge of the official benevolences. Our churches and our missions at home and abroad have increasing need of this missionary circulation of the Scriptures.

We recommend that the observance of Universal Bible Sunday be encouraged in all our churches in order that the place of the Bible in our national life and the life of the world may be suitably emphasized.

We recommend that authority be given to the Board of Bishops to appoint a representative on the Advisory Council of the American Bible Society with whom the Board of Managers may advise during the quadrennium concerning the budgets, appropriations, etc., of the Society, with the understanding that the expenses of this representation shall be met by the American Bible Society.

Adopted, May 24.

III. EDITING BENEVOLENCE BOARDS ITEMS FOR DISCIPLINE

Your Committee appointed to edit and recommend necessary changes in the constitutions of the several Boards to correspond with the report Number 4 of the Temporal Economy Committee makes the following report:

1. The action taken by the General Conference upon the said report does not make any change in the Discipline affecting the election of the corresponding secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions; corresponding secretary of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension; corresponding secretary of the Board of Conference Claimants, authorized to be changed to the Board of Pensions and Relief; corresponding secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals.

In order to place the responsibility for the coordination and merging of the work of the several Boards which you have directed shall be combined into one Board under the style and title of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, we recommend that the person elected as corresponding secretary of the Board of Education for the quadrennium shall also be declared elected to serve as corresponding secretary of the Board of Education for Negroes, the Board of Sunday Schools, and the Board of Epworth League until said merger shall be consummated; and that the salary of the said corresponding secretary shall be paid by the Board of Education and shall not exceed the salary now paid to a corresponding secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions.

We further recommend that the present corresponding secretaries of the said Boards be and hereby are appointed by the General Conference as department heads of their respective Boards until the merger shall have been completed.

The Committee also further recommends that pending the merging of the Board of Hospitals and Homes and the General

Deaconess Board the General Conference directs that the same person serve as corresponding secretary of the Board of Hospitals and Homes and the General Deaconess Board and of the merged Board.

We further recommend that this General Conference shall appoint the present corresponding secretary of the General Deaconess Board as head of the department of said Board until the said merger shall have been completed.

The Committee further recommends that the World Service Commission be empowered to authorize a change in the name of the departments of the Board of Education if desired and to authorize the organization of an additional department if it shall be found necessary to accomplish the best results in the consolidation of the four Boards.

When the merger of the Board of Education, the Board of Education for Negroes, the Board of Sunday Schools, and the Board of Epworth League has been consummated as directed by the General Conference, there shall be committed to the corporation thereby created under the name "Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church" the work now committed to the Board of Education, the Board of Education for Negroes, the Board of Sunday Schools, the Board of Epworth League, and the Deaconess Training Schools, heretofore committed to the General Deaconess Board. The membership of said corporation shall consist of forty-five members to be appointed by the Board of Bishops, to serve until the close of the next General Conference.

Your Committee further recommends that the work heretofore committed to the respective Boards about to be merged shall after the elimination of all duplication be emphasized as an integral part of the main task of the consolidated organization.

We recommend that the responsibility for the consummation of the mergers of the several Boards ordered by the General Conference shall be placed upon the World Service Commission and that the several Boards ordered to be merged shall promptly take such action to consummate the said mergers as may be ordered by the World Service Commission or its duly authorized sub-committee.

The Committee recommends that the General Conference authorize the World Service Commission to continue in operation any charter of any of the Boards ordered consolidated, namely, Board of Education, Board of Education for Negroes, Board of Sunday Schools, Board of Epworth League, the Board of Hospitals and Homes, and the General Deaconess Board as the commission shall determine necessary to properly protect the assets of all the said Boards. We recommend that no change be made in membership of Board of Education for Negroes pending the merger of this Board with other Boards above named.

Your Committee further recommends that the membership of the several Constituent Boards shall be reduced so that no Board shall have less than five nor more than fifty members exclusive of the Bishops as hereinafter set forth:

a. Board of Foreign Missions

¶ 414, § 2. The Board of Managers shall consist of thirty-two traveling ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church and thirty-two laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church elected by the General Conference upon nomination of the Bishops. All the effective General Superintendents shall be ex officio members of said Board without vote. In constituting the Board of Managers, the Bishops shall nominate one representative from each Area in the United States preserving as nearly as may be an equality in the number of ministers and laymen chosen from the Areas.

The said Board of Managers shall be elected to serve until the Board of Foreign Missions shall have accomplished the amendment of its charter as herein directed. The said Board of Managers is hereby directed to reduce the membership of the said Board so that it shall consist of not more than fifty members and shall be composed as follows:

The Bishop resident in the city of New York, who shall be an ex officio member and twenty-four ministers and twenty-five laymen nominated by the Board of Bishops and elected by the General Conference, chosen from the Areas in the United States preserving as nearly as may be the number of ministers and laymen from the Areas. The other effective Bishops shall be ex officio members without a vote. When and as soon as the charter of said Board of Foreign Missions shall have been amended as aforesaid, the Bishops shall reappoint the membership of the said Board of Managers in accordance with this provision to serve until the close of the quadrennium.

b. Board of Home Missions and Church Extension

¶ 432, § 1, of the Discipline of 1920, shall be amended to read as follows:

"The Board of Home Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church shall be composed of the Bishop resident at Philadelphia, the Corresponding Secretary elected by the General Conference who shall be ex officio members, twenty ministers and twenty-three laymen nominated by the Board of Bishops and elected by the General Conference. In constituting the membership of said Board, the Bishops shall nominate one representative from each Area, preserving as nearly as may be equality in the number of ministers and laymen chosen from the Areas. All the other effective Bishops resident in the United States shall be ex officio members without a vote. The Superintendents of the Five Departments shall be advisory members. The terms of office shall begin at the adjournment of the General Conference and continue for one quadrennium or until their successors are chosen."

c. Board of Education, Board of Education for Negroes, Board of Sunday Schools, Board of Epworth League

We further recommend that the World Service Commission shall determine the place of the headquarters of the merged Boards, under the name of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church and also the headquarters of the merged Boards under the name of the Board of Hospitals and Homes and Deaconess Work. It shall also determine whether any one or more of the said charters of the respective corporations shall be amended and used as the basis for the new corporations or whether application shall be made for one or more new charters for such corporations. That this General Conference direct the several Boards whose work has been ordered combined, upon request of the World Service Commission, to grant, assign, convey and set over all of the assets of the respective Boards to such Boards respectively as the said World Service Commission shall direct. The World Service Commission shall be further empowered to take such other and further action as may be necessary to consolidate and merge the work committed to said Boards.

Pending the merger of the said Boards, your Committee recommends that the vacancies of the Board of Education to be filled by this General Conference shall be filled by persons especially qualified to represent the interests of the Board of Education for Negroes, Board of Sunday Schools and the Board of Epworth League.

That ¶ 457, § 1, shall be amended to read as follows: "The management of the affairs and property of the Board of Education shall vest in the Board of Trustees consisting of thirty-six members, of whom one-half shall be laymen and at least three shall be Bishops. The said Board of Trustees shall constitute the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a corporation existing under the laws of the State of New York; one third of the Board shall be elected at each General Conference on the nominations of the Board of Bishops to serve for a term of twelve years. Provided, however, that the terms of all of said Trustees shall cease when the merger of the Board of Education, Board of Education for Negroes, Board of Sunday Schools and Board of Epworth League shall have been consummated either by obtaining a charter for a new corporation or the amendment of an existing charter.

The Board of Bishops shall thereupon appoint the forty-five members of the reorganized or newly chartered Board as may be determined.

¶ 468, § 2. The Board of Sunday Schools shall until merged with the Board of Education be composed of the Corresponding Secretary of said Board and the Editor of the Sunday School publications, who shall be ex officio members thereof; one effective Bishop, twenty-six members at large, lay and clerical. All the members of said Board except the two ex officio members shall be elected by the General Conference upon nomination of the Board of Bishops.

¶ 484, § 4, Article IV, Government. The management of the Board of the Epworth League until merged with the Board of Education shall be vested in a Board which shall consist of a Bishop, General Secretary, the Editor of the Epworth Herald, and twenty members at large. The members at large to be nominated by the Board of Bishops and elected by the General Conference.

The Bishop shall be president of the Epworth League and of the Board of the Epworth League. The Assistant Secretary of the Junior League and the elected field and departmental secretaries shall be advisory members of the Board. In case of a vacancy in the office of General Secretary during the quadrennium, the same shall be filled by the Board of Bishops. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of the Board shall be filled by said Board of Bishops.

Your Committee recommends that ¶ 491 shall be amended as follows:

INCORPORATION AND FUNCTIONS

§ 1. For the promotion of Deaconess Work throughout the Church there shall be a Board known as the General Deaconess Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This Board duly incorporated shall, until merged with the Board of Hospitals and Homes, have general supervision of all Deaconess work in the Church and control of all the Deaconesses. The General Deaconess Board shall be composed of twenty-three members and the Corresponding Secretary, who shall be a member ex officio without vote. The elective members shall be nominated by the Board of Bishops and shall include one Bishop and at least two Deaconesses. Any vacancy in the Board which may occur during the quadrennium shall be filled by the Board of Bishops.

¶ 502 to read as follows: "Government. The management until merged with the General Deaconess Board shall rest in a Board which shall consist of twenty-three members including one Bishop appointed by the Board of Bishops who shall be President of the Board. The additional members shall be nominated by the Board of Bishops and elected by the General Conference. The term of office shall be one quadrennium."

Your Committee recommends that when the merger of the General Deaconess Board with the Board of Hospitals and Homes shall be consummated, the Board of Bishops shall appoint the managers of the Board of Hospitals and Homes and Deaconess Work consisting of three Bishops, eight ministers and twelve laymen of whom two shall be Deaconesses.

When the merger of the Board of Hospitals and Homes and the General Deaconess Board has been consummated as directed by the General Conference under the name of Board of Hospitals and Homes and Deaconess Work, there shall be committed to the corporation thereby created the work now committed to the Board of Hospitals and Homes, and the work of Deaconess Training Schools, and the General Deaconess Board excluding Deaconess Training Schools.

The Committee further reports upon the provision committed in the original report, namely, the World Service Commission, is directed to appoint a special committee of nine to study the needs of further reorganization and appropriate cooperation of the constituent Boards and report to the Commission before the close of the present quadrennium, such report to be reviewed by the Commission and sent to the next General Conference; in the event of the accomplishment of union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, this special committee shall act as a joint commission with one appointed for the same purpose by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Adopted, May 28.

W. B. Farmer (Indiana): Under the previous question I wish to bring up the matter of an omission or two. Inadvertently, the clause or paragraph taking the same care of the Board of Education for Negroes that we have taken with each of the other boards, was omitted. We want authority to treat it the same way that we have treated the others.

The Bishop: By common consent, authority is given.

Given, May 28.

J. B. Hingeley (Northern Minnesota): The Committee found it unnecessary to make any particular resolutions concerning the relation of the Board of Conference Claimants to any other of the Boards but, in order that our charter privileges may be protected, with the approval of Brother Farmer, I introduce this resolution:

"Resolved, That the Board of Conference Claimants be and is hereby authorized to change its name to the Board of Pensions and Relief and to secure such amendments to its charter as may be necessary to include the additional duties that have already been assigned to it by the General Conference, including the provisions for the relief of aged and disabled local supply pastors; the equalization of the annuity claims among the several Annual Conferences; the receiving in trust and administering of endowments and other funds for the benefit of Annual Conference deaconesses, medical missionaries, teachers, and other church workers who are not members of an Annual Conference, and administering the same in accordance with such trust."

I move its adoption.

Adopted, May 28.

W. B. Farmer: I ask unanimous consent to present a resolution that came in the form of a memorial from our Deaconess interests in Europe. It cannot come in the regular form, because there are many reports that have not been completed, but Bishop Nuelsen and other representatives of the work in Europe insist through this memorial that we give them the authority asked for in this memorial. The resolution follows:

DEACONESS WORK IN EUROPE

Amend ¶ 498, § 2, by substituting for that now printed in the Discipline.

"In those countries in Europe where the Union of the Deaconess Association of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Europe, Germany and Switzerland is at work, the provisions of ¶¶ 229 to 240 and ¶¶ 491 to 497 shall be replaced by the provisions of the constitution of said Union and of the constitution of the legally incorporated Deaconess Association, provided that they are approved by the resident Bishop and the Board of Hospitals and Homes and Deaconess Work, on the recommendation of the Annual Conference concerned. All proposed changes of such constitution shall first be submitted for approval to the Bishop and the said Board of Hospitals, Homes and Deaconess Work. Like authority is given to similar deaconess organizations in other states of Europe." It is set out to your Committee that our provision for oversight and direction of Deaconess schools and organizations in America does not cover the needs in Europe, that there they have associations and organizations legalized under the laws of the several states in which they operate. And we are asked in this memorial to grant them the privilege of operating under these laws rather than under the rules and usages of Deaconess work in the United States of America. It is represented that all the Conferences in Europe have approved this; and Bishop Nuelsen has stated to your chairman that it meets his full approval and he wishes it adopted.

Adopted after it was agreed to strike out Board of Hospitals and Homes and Deaconess Work, May 28.

C. O. Holmes (Northwest Indiana): A question of privilege. This afternoon in connection with the amendment that was submitted amending ¶ 494 it was read to us, not being in the Advocate, and the amendment was so ambiguous that the proponents of it have asked that it be withdrawn and referred to the World Service Commission. I move that we grant that request.

Adopted, May 28.

D. D. Forsyth (Colorado) presented the following resolution which the secretary read:

Resolved, That the terms of the members of the Executive Committee of the Board of Home Missions and Church Extension appointed at the last annual meeting of the said Board and reappointed to membership on said Board by this General Conference, be extended until the close of the next annual meeting of the Board. Resolved, further, that the Executive Committee be empowered to fill vacancies in said Committee until the said annual meeting of the Board."

Adopted, May 29.

W. B. Farmer: In order to treat another Board with the same fairness that was accorded to the Board of Foreign Missions and the Board of Home Missions, I have this resolution in addition to the one already presented:

In view of the fact that the Board of Hospitals and Homes has not yet been appointed, be it Resolved, That the Executive Committee of said Board be continued and empowered to transact this necessary business, until the new Board shall have opportunity to meet and organize.

Adopted, May 29.

W. B. Farmer: In order to make more clear an action that was taken this morning in the report of the special committee of five, there is an additional item of information which Doctor Downey will present.

D. G. Downey: I am speaking as representing the committee of five to which this matter of revision of legislation concerning benevolent boards was committed. If you will turn to page 678, "Committee on Revision of Legislation of Benevolent Boards," I will say this: It was the purpose of your committee to deal in perfect equity with all those boards and the various corresponding secretaries. By an inadvertence we have at least failed in seeming to do that in one instance. At the bottom of the first column you read with respect to the merger concerning the Board of Education, the Board of Education for Negroes, the Board of Sunday Schools and the Board of Epworth League the following:

We further recommend that the present corresponding secretaries of the said boards be and they hereby are appointed by the General Conference as Department heads for their respective boards until the merger shall have been completed. This is plain and simple and clear and is as desired. It was our intention to make the next two paragraphs on the top of the next column with respect to the Board of Hospitals and Homes and the Deaconess Work, of similar content; but we phrased it differently and seemed to be doing an injustice to one of the boards. Therefore, on behalf of the committee, I desire simply to repeat the previous language with respect to the other boards as a substitute for the first paragraph in the second column. On behalf of the committee I move this substitution.

Adopted, May 28.

IV. FEDERATION

REPORT NO. 1. FEDERATION

We note with deep gratitude the development of the spirit of unity among the Christian churches. We rejoice in this trend toward unification, which has found its conspicuous expression in some of the churches of Canada and of our own nation. We are profoundly persuaded that the plan for the unification of the two branches of our Methodism is of God, and that incalculable blessing will result to our beloved church therefrom, in all the years that are to come.

We enthusiastically indorse the general ideals of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. We are confident that this organization can accomplish great good in furthering the principles of Christ as they apply to social, educational, civic, industrial, national and international problems. We urge the loyal cooperation of our churches in all causes that require unified action, whether in city or nation or world.

We are convinced, however, that the successful operation of any Federation action shall depend upon the recognition of the freedom and autonomy of the individual denomination.

We eagerly anticipate the time when the Evangelical Churches of Christ of all denominations can unitedly express themselves upon the great questions that affect the welfare of nation and world. With new enthusiasm we are moved by that noble utterance spoken a generation ago by Bishop Simpson when he said, "We live to make our own Church a power in the land, as we live to love every other church that exalts our Christ."

Adopted, May 14.

SUPPLEMENTARY REPORT—CHURCH COOPERATION AND FEDERATION

WHEREAS, There is an increasing recognition of the fact that very many of our towns and villages are overchurched, and,

WHEREAS, In many instances overtures are being made calling for closer cooperation, union or federation, and,

WHEREAS, Our Discipline gives no clear method for either of these ends. Therefore, be it Resolved, That we request the board of Bishops to appoint a Commission of seven, two of whom should be Bishops, to suggest methods of cooperation, particularly for smaller communities. If possible, a report bringing in such suggestions to be made during this session.

Adopted, May 14.

REPORT NO. 2. COMMISSION OF TWENTY-FIVE

Your Committee on Federation heartily commends the work done during the last quadrennium by the special committee upon "Organic Union," and we earnestly suggest that every member of this General Conference give their report, as printed on page 431 of The Daily Christian Advocate, a careful reading.—Recognizing that complete uniformity in polity, doctrine, and practice may never be established between the Evangelical Churches, and that it may never be essential to vital Christianity, we nevertheless heartily endorse all sentiments favoring organic unity as the ideal for the future, and we rejoice in all evidences of cooperative effort which increasingly generate that spirit of unity which is the true bond of fraternity between all churches, as together they labor for the establishment of God's kingdom.

We recommend that in order to insure the practical cooperation of our own Church with all other denominations related to the Federal Council of Churches—a special commission be appointed by the Bishops to represent the Methodist Episcopal Church—this commission to consist of five Bishops, ten ministers and ten laymen. The duty of this commission shall be to make all pronouncements regarding the purposes and convictions of our Church relative to matters of interdenominational significance; to consider, and to approve when that seems advisable, all communications incident to our participation in the affairs of such organizations as the "Federal Council of Churches," and the "Commission on Organic Union," and the "International Committee of the Y. M. C. A." and the "Universal Christian Conference on Life and Work," and the "World Conference on Faith and Order," and similar organizations of inter-church scope.

We are favorable to the continuance of cooperation between denominational Boards represented in the Home and Foreign Missions Councils; but in order to provide for other cooperative activities, we suggest that all matters affecting our Methodist Church shall be referred to the above-mentioned special Commission of Twenty-five.

It is our conviction that all policies and pronouncements of the Commission of Twenty-five must be supported by a vote of 17 out of the 25 members.

The General Conference having authorized the continuance of the Commission on Federation of Colored Methodist Churches, we recommend that the Bishops appoint such a Commission, consisting of three Bishops, three Ministers and three Laymen.

We recommend that the Committee on the "State of the Church" be requested to formulate a letter of transfer suitable for those who desire to change their affiliations from one evangelical church to another; and also that the Committee on "State of the Church" be requested to consider and report such changes in our law as will make possible the receiving of members from other denominations upon certificate of transfer or dismissal from their churches.

We recommend that the Commission of Twenty-five have no authority to involve the Methodist Episcopal Church in any expense relative to interdenominational activities except by order of the General Conference, and that the only expense it shall be at liberty to incur shall be in support of the Commission itself.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 3. METHODISM IN IRELAND

Your Committee upon Federation wishes to express its deep joy over the success of the Methodist Church in Ireland, as portrayed by the Rev. Dr. W. L. Northridge, the fraternal delegate to our General Conference, in his forceful address on Wednesday night, May 14th.

We therefore most cordially commend to our American Methodism the worthy plans of our devoted and heroic brethren in Ireland.

Adopted, May 27.

V. FOREIGN BOARD DEBT

The Committee appointed to consider the condition of the Treasury of the Board of Foreign Missions and likewise the general condition of our Benevolences, and to make recommendations relating thereto, would report as follows:

I. Explanation

1. We find that the debt of the Board of Foreign Missions as of October 31, 1923, was $2,003,056; and we believe that the Church should definitely set itself to the payment of this sum.

2. It is our conviction, however, that the method adopted should not be such as to divert our people from the maintenance of the current benevolent program of the Church, but that on the contrary the method selected should be one that may command the cooperation of all our Boards.

3. Hence your Committee has had consultation with the Secretaries of the various Boards, and has found their attitude noble and worthy of high praise. We are glad to report that the program suggested herein has the approval of these Secretaries.

4. We deem it needless to discuss, at length, the causes of the debt. Obligations of honor to the Interchurch World Movement; the deficit on the Columbus Exposition; advances to the field ordered for war reconstruction and the relief of suffering; the losses in exchange, and other matters, all figure in the total but would aggregate far more than the present debt. Our work is not the discussion of these causes but rather that of presenting a constructive plan for providing the debt, so as to remove the hindrance from the work of the Board of Foreign Missions and from that of each of the other Boards.

II. Program

In order that there may be no special and extra campaign for the raising of the debt we suggest to the General Conference the following program of procedure:

1. That the interest-bearing part of the debt of slightly more than two million dollars be funded in four-year serial bonds—to the best advantage.

2. That as a first charge on the total giving to the World Service Program three per cent of said giving be put aside as a sinking fund to be used solely for the retirement of the debt—on the following terms: Inasmuch as the askings for the year ending May 31, 1925, have been fixed by the Council, we recommend:

That the treasurer of the World's Service Commission be instructed, beginning June 1, 1925, and continuing for a period of three years, to deduct 3 per cent of the monthly receipts, after paying the expenses of the Commission, and remit the same to the treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions.

In making this agreement it is understood that this amount shall be applied direct to the debt of the Board of Foreign Missions; and furthermore that the present ratio of askings between the Board of Foreign Missions and Board of Home Missions and Church Extension shall remain the same, and that the present plan of handling designated gifts as outlined in the World Service Volume shall not be disturbed during this period.

It is also understood that this action of the other Benevolent Boards shall not be considered a precedent to cover future contingencies of a similar character; and that the agreement ceases if the debt is paid in less than the three-year period.

3. That until the debt is paid all income of the Board of Foreign Missions from undesignated legacies, lapsed annuities, and matured estate notes be applied to the liquidation of the debt.

4. That the Board of Foreign Missions put aside each year from its current income as a first charge additional money of an amount which, by careful calculation, may be judged sufficient to cover the interest on the bonds and to pay for the serial bonds maturing in that year.

It is the judgment of your Committee that if the above outline program be followed, the debt which so greatly embarrasses the Board of Foreign Missions and all the other Boards as well, may be removed in the coming quadrennium.

We are glad to report to the General Conference that the Board of Foreign Missions has not in the last three years gone beyond its appropriations as authorized by the General Conference, and that, in the same period, it has diminished its debt by fully $1,200,000.

The Committee earnestly recommends that the Board continue its policy of making no further debts, even though this policy involves decided economies in administration and painful decreases of appropriations.

It is the further conviction of your Committee that the carrying out of this program will hold and increase the benevolent interest of our people and will give to the Church an example of inter-Board cooperation that will be gratifying to our constituency and pleasing to our Lord; and we bring the plan to the General Conference in the confidence that this body, by the adoption of this program, and by the prayerful and enthusiastic assistance of its individual members, as they return to their churches and fields, will solve this problem of the debt and will likewise put our entire work of Benevolences upon a foundation worthy of the sons of Wesley and of the followers of Christ.

As for the prosecution of the wider program, we recommend that the World Service Commission organize before the adjournment of the General Conference or immediately thereafter. We advise that a small committee of their number be appointed at once whose duty it shall be to prepare and put into execution plans for the arrest of the falling income of our Benevolent Boards. Our lowest aim should be an amount equal to last years receipts. Toward this end all Bishops, District Superintendents, Pastors and Laymen should give the heartiest and most prayerful cooperation, and the passing of this resolution by this body should be taken as our pledge to prosecute the program in the name of Christ, even unto victory.

Adopted, May 27.

VI. HOSPITALS AND HOMES

REPORT NO. 2. NATIONAL METHODIST EPISCOPAL SANATORIUM FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Memorial No. 811, coming from the Board of Hospitals and Homes, sets forth the great needs which have called into existence the National Methodist Episcopal Sanatorium for Tuberculosis, located at Colorado Springs, Colorado, and petitions the General Conference to give official recognition to this National Institution, as operating under the Methodist Episcopal Church (for the care of tubercular victims coming from all parts of the country), through the duly accredited agency of the Church, and to authorize the representation of its work for the raising of funds necessary for its development.

The Committee on Hospitals and Homes concurs in this request, and recommends: That a paragraph be included in the appendix to the Discipline and entitled and reading as follows:

National Methodist Episcopal Sanatorium for Tuberculosis.

"WHEREAS, The Council of Boards of Benevolence at its annual meeting in 1923 approved the establishment of the National Methodist Episcopal Sanatorium for Tuberculosis, at Colorado Springs, Colorado, as a part of the world service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, operating under the Board of Hospitals and Homes of the Methodist Episcopal Church;

Now, therefore, we, the General Conference, endorse this action of the Council of Boards of Benevolence, and hereby cordially commend the National Methodist Episcopal Sanatorium for Tuberculosis to the generosity and active cooperation of our people everywhere."

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 3. CHILD WELFARE

Your Committee on Hospitals and Homes, to which was referred Memorial No. 644, coming from the Colorado Conference, in harmony with said Memorial, recommends that Article No. 1 of ¶ 500 of the Discipline, of the year 1920, be amended, by striking out the word "and" in the fifth line of said paragraph, and by inserting the words "and child welfare work" after the word "dependents," in the same line; so that the entire paragraph, as amended will read as follows: "For the promotion and general supervision of an advisory character for all hospitals, homes, or other organizations and institutions, for the care of the sick, incurables, other dependents, and child welfare work, there shall be a board known as the Board of Hospitals and Homes, incorporated according to law and subject to the control of the General Conference."

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 4. HOSPITALS AND HOMES DAY AND THE WHITE CROSS

Your Committee to which was referred Memorial No. 348, coming from the National Methodist Hospitals and Homes Association, desires to recommend: That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church recognize the American White Cross, and urge that wherever possible in the churches the Sunday before Thanksgiving be observed as Hospitals and Homes Day.

Adopted, May 27.

REPORT NO. 6. ANNUAL CONFERENCE BOARD OF HOSPITALS AND HOMES

Your Committee to which Memorial No. 1046, coming from the Baltimore Conference was referred, desires to recommend: That Chapter XV of the Discipline, which deals with Hospitals and Homes be amended by the addition of a paragraph, reading as follows:

"Each Annual Conference shall form within its bounds a Conference Board of Hospitals and Homes, which shall elect its own officers, and shall exercise under the General Board such authority within the bounds of the Annual Conference as is necessary to promote the interests of the Hospitals and Homes within the boundaries of said Annual Conference."

Adopted, May 28.

REPORT NO. 7. HOSPITAL FOR NEGRO PEOPLE

Your Committee on Hospitals and Homes, to which was referred Memorial No. 1167, presented by George W. Dixon, of the Rock River Conference, relating to the subject of a hospital for Negro people, respectfully recommends the adoption of the following:

WHEREAS, There is no hospital located in the northern States and operating under the Methodist Episcopal Church which gives its entire attention to the treatment of members of the Negro race who are sick and suffering, and,

WHEREAS, There is the possibility of securing Wesley Memorial Hospital, Chicago, Ill., which owing to its new building program, will be located in another part of the city, and which hospital is well situated to serve the large numbers of Negro people living in Chicago, and adjacent territory. Be it therefore

Resolved, That we the members of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, look with favor upon the organization of this hospital for Negroes and urge the careful consideration of this opportunity by proper authorities believing such a project worthy of the support of all public spirited citizens who are interested in welfare of the Negro race.

VII. IMMIGRATION AND JAPANESE EXCLUSION

Now, Mr. Chairman, if I may also ask the indulgence of the house, it will be a pleasure for me to tell of the interview that Bishop Nicholson had with the President concerning the Japanese situation. Through the courtesy of Bishop McDowell, arrangements were made with the secretary to the President, Mr. Slemm, who, by the way, is an ardent Methodist. He has declared that though he has lived in the south for many years, he has a very strong leaning toward the Methodist Episcopal Church and was delighted to learn of the action taken the other day on the question of unification. He made it possible for us to have a brief interview with the President at about five o'clock in the afternoon. We were received very cordially. After stating to the President the reason for our presence there, the President thanked us and desired to have us say to you, for him, that he very greatly appreciated the action that had been taken. Now, Mr. Chairman, after conference with Bishop Nicholson and the other members of the commission, I am going to suggest to the Conference, that if it meet with the judgment of the delegates to the Conference, it is thought by those concerned with this Japanese question that if this General Conference were to authorize the printing of this resolution as presented by Doctor Johnson and signed by the representatives from California, and have it mailed to each senator and representative, and mailed just as soon as possible, it might have a very great effect in supporting the President in his attitude of reasonable delay before the conclusion of that whole Japanese question. It is merely a suggestion that we bring to you, and leave it to your judgment.

Adopted, May 9.

RESOLUTION—THE IMMIGRATION BILL AND JAPANESE EXCLUSION

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, assembled in quadrennial session at Springfield, Massachusetts, and representing over four and three quarter millions of members, respectfully appeals to you in the interest of international justice and goodwill, to prevent so far as possible the immediate consummation of the enactment of recent legislation in Congress looking to the exclusion of all people not eligible to citizenship in the United States.

We recognize that the question of immigration is and must be one of domestic policy; but we also recognize that it is far-reaching in its international implications. We do not plead for the wide-open door policy of immigration, but recognize that some kind of a restriction of immigration from all countries is a national necessity. We make grateful recognition of the soberness and wisdom manifested by yourself and Secretary Hughes in attempting to adjust, or modify, the recent legislation so as to produce the most satisfactory results possible; and in this we wish to assure you of the sympathy and support of our entire Church.

Great emphasis has been placed upon the rising tide of color and the necessity of the preservation of the Nordic peoples; but as Christian leaders in this great country, we beg you to consider the greater interests of international fellowship and good will at a time when the influence of a mistaken policy will be felt for generations to come. As Christians, we cannot countenance racial prejudice and discrimination, but insist that when this great nation speaks through its legislation, it must be in a manner which will commend itself to the thinking and conscience of the nations of the world regardless of color or previous condition. It is not good policy to enact legislation in such a way as to awaken and stimulate enmity and to create a solid bloc of nations who from this hour must regard themselves as under suspicion and necessarily as on the defensive in dealings with the white race.

The Oriental peoples during the last half century or more have made such progress as to make impossible treating them as some might have thought proper in the earlier days. It is well to remind ourselves that the first treaty between Japan and the United States provides that "there shall be a perfect, permanent and universal peace between the United States of America on the one part, and the Empire of Japan on the other, and between their people respectively without exception of persons or places." In order to secure this treaty which the representatives of Japan were reluctant to sign, Commodore M. C. Perry, the Special Ambassador to Japan, wrote a letter calling the attention of the Japanese government to the large liberty enjoyed by the Chinese people who had emigrated to the United States, and to the special advantages which the Japanese would enjoy under the proposed treaty. This letter, which is printed in the official narrative of the Perry expedition, published by authority of Congress, contains assurances which place the United States under a special obligation in dealing with the Japanese government and people as regards matters touching immigration and fair treatment.

After a long period of probation, during which time Japan revised her laws, codes and courts, she was admitted into the sisterhood of civilized nations on the basis of absolute equality and has shown herself in every way as worthy of such recognition. Under these circumstances it seems inconsistent to treat her less courteously than was done when the first treaty was enacted.

We can never forget the thrill that came to the world at and after the Washington Disarmament Conference when Admiral Baron Kato, the Father of the Japanese Navy, agreed to sacrifice the pride of his heart in the interest of world peace. And later, as Premier of Japan, just before his death, he carried out the pledge which he had made.

No greater calamity can be imagined than for leading citizens of Japan to change their attitude, who for a generation have been outstanding advocates of peace, and who have recently expressed publicly the hope that the United States may be as liberal with her justice as she was with her benevolence following the unprecedented disaster of the earthquake and fire in September last.

Not only are great business interests at stake, in view of the recent and proposed legislation, but missionary and other interests will surely suffer as a result of the growing sense of injustice. We are now facing either unprecedented opportunities or closed doors in all Oriental lands.

The pending legislation in its present form we regard as inopportune. A Pacific Coast Oriental survey is now being conducted jointly by the Institute of Social and Religious Research of New York and Regional Committees on the Pacific Coast representing varied interests such as church organizations, universities, civic and patriotic bodies. This survey includes a study of economic, religious, educational and social conditions and tendencies among the Chinese, Japanese, and British Indian residents. Doctor Park, of Chicago University, is in charge, and if given time, can produce data which should be of untold value as a basis in dealing with these peoples in our varied international relations.

We confidently depend upon you to use your influence as President in so adjusting the recent immigration enactments as to prevent the calamity that is sure to follow the consummation of such legislation.

Adopted, May 7.

VIII. LAYMEN IN ANNUAL CONFERENCES

Let Article 3, Chapter 1, ¶ 36, Articles of Organization and Government of the Constitution, be amended by numbering the present paragraph as ¶ 36, § 1, and adding sections as follows:

§ 2. Annual Conferences, subject to the limitations hereinafter set forth, may admit one lay delegate from each pastoral charge within its bounds which has a ministerial member. Such lay delegates shall be elected each year by the lay members of the charge, over twenty-one years of age, in such manner as the General Conference has prescribed for the election of lay delegates to the Lay Electoral Conferences. Such charges shall also elect in like manner a reserve delegate. A lay delegate shall be over twenty-five years of age and for two years next preceding his election a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

§ 3. The lay delegates shall attend the Conference sessions of Friday and Saturday and such other sessions as the joint Conference may determine, at which sessions the ministerial members and lay delegates shall deliberate together in one body except as otherwise provided herein. When deliberating as one body they shall vote together with the following exception:

A separate vote shall be taken when requested by a majority of the entire body present and voting. In all cases of separate voting it shall require the concurrence of the two orders to adopt the measure proposed.

§ 4. The lay delegates shall not consider nor determine matters relating to the passing of character, examinations, trial of ministers, courses of study, ordination and Conference relations.

§ 5. There shall be a lay session of the Annual Conference when a vote on constitutional changes is to be taken; and a meeting shall be held on the first Friday of the session of the Annual Conference in the year next preceding the meeting of the General Conference, in which lay and reserve delegates equal in number to the ministerial delegates shall be elected by ballot to the General Conference. At these sessions any charge not represented by a delegate in the Annual Conference shall be represented by a delegate chosen in the same manner as those elected to the Annual Conference.

Resolved, That if the above proposed amendment be adopted by the General Conference the Bishops be requested to submit the said amendment to the members of the Annual Conferences which shall meet in the year 1925 and to Lay Electoral Conferences, which are hereby called, for the purpose of voting on the aforesaid amendment, and which shall meet at the time and place of meeting of the Annual Conference within the bounds of which the lay Electoral Conferences are constituted.

Resolved, That if the amendment shall obtain the necessary constitutional two-thirds vote of the General Conference and of the Annual and Lay Electoral Conferences, upon the announcement of the result by the General Superintendents, ¶ 36 of the Discipline, shall be thereby replaced by the amendment and any other provision of the Discipline inconsistent therewith shall be stricken out.

Resolved, further, That the Secretary of the General Conference be, and he is hereby instructed, to send, within thirty days after the close of this General Conference, to all District Superintendents a copy of the action of the General Conference in this matter of Lay Representation in the Annual Conferences, together with a copy of the proposed amendment to the Constitution of the Church, approved by the General Conference; and the District Superintendents shall take the necessary action to insure the timely election of delegates and reserve delegates to the forthcoming special Lay Electoral Conferences of 1925, for all the charges under their superintendency.

Recommended, May 28.

Substitute—Resolved, That the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church recommend that Division 3, Chapter 1, Article 3, of the Constitution of the Methodist Episcopal Church be amended by adding the words, "Laymen shall be admitted to the Annual Conference on such conditions and under such regulations as the General Conference shall from time to time determine. So that the entire article shall read: "The traveling preachers shall be organized by the General Conference into Annual Conferences, the sessions of which they are required to attend. Laymen shall be admitted to the Annual Conferences on such conditions and under such regulations as the General Conference shall from time to time determine."

Resolved, That in case this proposed amendment shall receive the necessary recommendation of the Conference it shall be submitted to the several Annual Conferences for their concurrence.

Adopted, May 29.

IX. METHODIST STUDENTS' CONVENTION

Your Committee appointed to prepare a message to the youth of Methodism, in response to the visit and addresses of a delegation representing the Students' Conference of Louisville in recent session, begs leave to report as follows:

The Methodist Episcopal Church has always had an interest and pride in its young people, and has gradually come into clearer apprehension of the value and significance of the mind and spirit of the young life of the Church. The recent session of the Students' Council at Louisville, Kentucky, was the occasion of the first meeting together of students representing our two great Methodisms.

We acknowledge with profound gratitude the messages of your representatives speaking in behalf of the youth of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church. Our imagination has been quickened as we have thought of the possibilities for the redemption of society in the great hosts of Methodist youth in the colleges and universities of our land. We do not forget that almost a fourth of all college students in this country are Methodists by preference.

More and more do we see that we need the mind of the youth of the Church to lead, illuminate, strengthen and enlarge the same. We are now asking, What do you see? What are your visions? What are your ideals? How can we capitalize those ideals for the service of the Church and the world?

We rejoice in the fellowship we have with you, our younger comrades, in the great Christian program. It is characteristic of youth at its best to deal, as you did, with living issues, to pierce through the secondary and accidental to the primary and essential, and to seek first the mind of Christ for all human relationships. Your serious and earnest desire to accept your responsibilities and tasks has put heart into our own endeavor. Together, by hard straight thinking, and consecrated purpose, we can make our beloved Methodism a vastly more effective instrument for humanity's larger life.

In the General Conference to which your messages were delivered, grave issues of profound seriousness affecting the welfare of humanity are being faced. In united endeavor, we are seeking to find the Christian way of solving those problems and of establishing the Christian way of life for all people and all lands. On some of these questions deliverances have already been made, and in those which await attention we need the vision of youth in the hope that it may be joined to the growing experience of earnest men and women in the attempt to reach Christian solutions.

Our Church is a living Church, with forward look and plans. This General Conference has already taken action on unification, and soon we shall have a united Methodism. We are trying to bridge international chasms. We recognize the imperative need of a Christian industrial order. Working together we may hope to create a public opinion in harmony with the mind of Christ, and powerful enough to effect the redemption of society according to His purpose.

Very earnestly do we covet for our entire company of Methodist Youth around the world the leadership and inspiration which they may have by reason of the privileges and position which you enjoy as representatives of student life.

"The Civilization of Brotherly Men" may become an actuality as Youth sets itself to this accomplishment.

Adopted, May 28.

X. PROHIBITION LEGISLATION

C. A. Pollock (North Dakota): Mr. Chairman, your Committee sent to Washington, upon their return, voted to ask the permission of this house that Bishop Leonard make just a short statement of what happened, he doing this in the absence of Bishop Nicholson, who could not return at this time. I move you that the privilege of the platform be given to Bishop Leonard to make this statement.

Motion carried, May 9.

BISHOP LEONARD: Mr. Chairman and Members of the Conference, your representatives went to Washington and immediately Wayne B. Wheeler called at the headquarters of the Methodist Church and informed us that, together with Mr. Pickett, arrangements had been made whereby we could be given a hearing before the House Committee on Judiciary at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. However, sometimes when hearings are in progress, it is possible to have representatives come earlier than the hour appointed.

We waited from 10 until 12:30, listening to a very remarkable statement concerning the Volstead Act and the law, by Mr. Wayne B. Wheeler. At 2 o'clock we were again in the committee room, and Bishop Nicholson, as Chairman of the Committee, was recognized by the Chair. He made a very complete statement of the reasons why we were present, of the Church we represented, and of what we desired to do. In the course of his address he was interrupted repeatedly by one of the members of the committee who endeavored to embarrass our committee by asking him very pertinent questions, so far as he was concerned, but questions which we felt did not have any particular bearing on our mission, questions concerning Bishop Nicholson and his relation to the Anti-Saloon League. Following the address by Bishop Nicholson, and his explanation, he then introduced the members of the Committee. It was my privilege to speak concerning the sentiment on the Pacific Coast. Each member of the committee was given as much time as he desired. The committee was received with very great courtesy. It is not for me to outline what was said. Suffice it to say that Mr. Van Benschoten made a very remarkable statement from the standpoint of an attorney; Judge Pollock an equally important and significant statement from the standpoint of a judge, and from the standpoint of one who has dealt with this question in the part of the country where he has lived for so many years. Following Judge Pollock, Dr. Clarence True Wilson was introduced, and concluded our argument with a very remarkable address on the success of the prohibition law.

Following a hearing which was, as I have said, a very courteous one, a member of the committee followed us into the hall, thanked us for being there, and declared that it was the finest impression that had been made on that committee by any of the numerous committees that had been there. In the lobby were other very distinguished people, Miss Cora Stoddard, Superintendent of the Scientific Temperance Bureau of Boston, and Mrs. W. H. Boole, the Vice-President of the National W. C. T. U., and President of the New York State W. C. T. U.

Mr. Chairman and members of the Conference, if there was anything left unsaid when your representatives got through with their addresses, we fail to know what it was. In concluding his address Doctor Wilson said to the committee concerning the permanence of the Volstead Act and the supporters of it, "We are like the Irishman's epitaph on his tombstone, 'Here to stay.'"

XI. WORLD PEACE

Millions of our fellow men have died heroically in "a war to end war." What they undertook must be finished by methods of peace. War is not inevitable. It is the supreme enemy of mankind. Its futility is beyond question. Its continuance is the suicide of civilization. We are determined to outlaw the whole war system.

The patriotism of the Methodist Episcopal Church has never been challenged. Neither our motives nor our loyalty must be impugned when we insist on the fulfillment of pledges made to the dead and assert our Christian ideals for the living. Governments which ignore the Christian conscience of men in time of peace cannot justly claim the lives of men in time of war. Secret diplomacy and political partisanship must not draw men into the dilemma of deciding between support of country and loyalty to Christ.

The world is now open to a crusade for peace. War-weary nations everywhere are eagerly waiting. America should lead the way. The nation and the Church can do now what they may never, never be able to do again.

We set ourselves to create the will to peace. We recommend that a prayer for peace be prepared and used at every communion service. Through its educational program, our Church must do its full share to mold the present youth of all races into a peace-loving generation. We shall launch an aggressive campaign to teach the nature, causes and consequences of war. The glorification of war must end.

We set ourselves to create the conditions for peace. Selfish nationalism, economic imperialism and militarism must cease. We demand the establishment of the principle that conscription of wealth and labor must be the counterpart of any future conscription of human life. As great odium must be put upon the war profiteer as is put upon the slacker. The protection of special privileges secured by investors in foreign lands has too often imperiled the peace of nations. This source of danger must be prevented. The rights of the smallest nation must be held as sacred as those of the strongest. We hold the cause of peace dearer than party allegiance and we shall tolerate no dilatory or evasive attitudes on the part of those who represent us.

We set ourselves to create organization for peace. Grateful to our government for leadership in the movement toward reduction of armaments and the promotion of tribunals for international arbitration, we insist upon a still more decided and aggressive policy in these directions. We urge the President of the United States to summon another Conference of the nations for the more drastic reduction of armaments. We likewise urge upon the Senate the immediate entrance of the United States into the Permanent Court of International Justice. The participation of the United States in a League of Nations will receive our active aid. We call upon all our people to support for public office men pledged to secure these ends. The ballot and other direct processes of democracy must now be employed in securing a warless world.

World Christianity is enlisting in the campaign for peace. We seek alliance with all the forces which make for the principles here advocated. We therefore propose that our Church now assume its full share of responsibility by appointing at this General Conference a commission of twenty-five members, composed of five bishops, ten ministers, and ten laymen authorized and instructed to invite the religious forces of the world to unite in a conference to consider the best plans and methods for making the impact of a world-wide religious sentiment against the evils we deplore.

The principles of brotherhood are plainly challenged. The progress of the kingdom of Jesus Christ is clearly at stake. The issues are so momentous, the opportunity for leadership is so great, that we here and now call upon all people to avoid divisive and fruitless discussions and unite their energies in this great movement for a war-free world. To this sublime end we dedicate ourselves, and for its accomplishment we invoke the blessing of Almighty God.

Adopted, May 24.

XII. WEEK-DAY RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION—COMMITTEE ON JOINT COMMISSION OF TWENTY ON RELIGIOUS DAY SCHOOLS

REPORT NO. 1. DISPOSITION OF REPORT OF GENERAL CONFERENCE COMMISSION ON RELIGIOUS DAY SCHOOLS

The report of the Commission has been printed and is in the hands of the members of the General Conference. It sets forth the present status of Week-day Vacation Schools, defines the responsibility of the Methodist Episcopal Church relative thereto, and recommends:

1. Supervision of such schools with the Board of Sunday Schools or its successor.

2. That the training of directors and teachers in these schools shall be the joint concern of the Board of Sunday Schools and the Board of Education.

The Joint Committee approves the report of the Commission, and recommends its adoption.

Adopted, May 20.

FRATERNITY

1. THE METHODIST CHURCH OF AUSTRALASIA

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND BROTHERS OF THE CONFERENCE: In behalf of my committee I have the fine privilege of presenting a gentleman from far off Australia. After his landing he came across the country in an auto. He was stopped at the Nevada frontier; he slept in the deserts; he got lost in the Grand Central Station at New York, but he is here, serene as a summer morning. He creates the impression that we would naturally get from him from our contact with him, even without his expression of it, that the Methodist atmosphere is easy for him to breathe and agrees with him thoroughly. I suspect that it is his native air. He represents the Methodist Church of Australasia, and he comes from that land of which we have read through the works of F. W. Boreham, through the windows of whose speech we have had glimpses of the unseen.

Mr. W. B. McCutcheon has the distinction of being the first accredited representative from his Church to our Church. He has another distinction; he had on his coat yesterday a badge—perhaps he has hidden it today through modesty—called the Fathers' Badge, which indicates that he had two sons who were members of the Anzacs, who stopped the German army at Amiens, stopped the invaders there and broke the ranks of the invasion.

I have the honor of presenting to you, Mr. Chairman, Mr. W. B. McCutcheon, who is the treasurer of Queen's College, Melbourne, and the accredited representative from his church to ours.

The Conference arose en masse and enthusiastically applauded while Mr. McCutcheon came forward to address the Conference.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF MR. W. B. MCCUTCHEON, DELEGATE OF THE METHODIST CHURCH IN AUSTRALIA

Mr. Chairman, Fathers and Brethren, if I may call you such, I feel embarrassed by the warmth of your welcome. After 10,000 miles of travel from my native city, Melbourne, to this great land of magnificent distances and noble ideals and wonderful achievements, I am glad to find myself in a Methodist atmosphere; amongst people who know how to pray; amongst people who know how to sing. They say the Methodists are singing, singing, singing to the gates of Paradise. I am glad to have been present to have heard that statesmanlike and masterful deliverance yesterday afternoon.

I deeply feel the honor of your brotherly reception of myself; of your gracious hospitality, and of your invitation to be present on the platform to address you, and I shall prize and treasure this badge which you have conferred upon me.

This is a great and distinguished conference of men eminent in church and state whom I see around me. The impelling call of the Methodist brotherhood, the tie that binds us together in a common faith, and that sense of courtesy, racial as well as religious, making it difficult to believe I am in a foreign country—all these things come to my mind and stir my heart at this moment.

For weeks I have been traveling through your great country. I have seen sixteen of your States and found everywhere signs of prosperity and energy and industry, and wherever I have been, I have found Methodist activity; great temples for the worship of God and agents of the Methodist church busy doing their Master's will. I have long admired American Methodism, but I feel that the half was never told me. I too, come from a great country, a little larger than this, but populated by a mere handful of people. We have less people in our great area than you have in your city of New York. Although we are a part of the British Empire, we are the freest people in the world. Modeling our parliament on yours, we have state legislatures, and we have also a federal parliament. We have no president, but we have a governor who belongs to no party and wields no power; therefore there is a saving of expense of electing a president every four years.

I have been asked: "Does England tax you?" No, she learned a lesson not many miles from here over a century ago. She allows us to tax her. But the very freedom with which she has endowed us has strengthened and deepened our loyalty. We are voluntary helpers, and we are proud to belong to the British Empire, because she has given us liberty to do as we like. And may I say this: We sent 400,000 men, at the call of the empire, to that great war. Every one of them was a voluntary offerer. We refuse to legislate conscription, but nearly 10 per cent of our population went to that war, each man voluntarily going at the call of the empire. We helped the mother country in her time of stress, and the world knows how bravely our men did their duty, and they were proud that in that great crisis of the world's history, they fought and marched side by side with the sons of your great land.

Only one thing more I want to say about my country—a delicate subject. We have a policy of what we call "White Australia." We do not despise any other race. God forbid we should do that! But in spite of economic advisers who have told us that to make our country great and make it pay we should have other races there, in some way we believe that we should keep our country for one people, all planning together and all building to the same civilization. We know that "God made of one race all the people to dwell on the face of the earth," but the text does not stop there. It also says that "He fixed the bounds of their habitation."

In this great land the Methodist Church is playing a very important part. We do not, like you, claim to be the biggest Protestant church there. The Church of England has that, but we do claim that we are the church of the pioneer, the church that follows the settler into the sparsely settled parts, and the church that on any given Sunday has more people in public worship than any other church in that great land. We have 1,000 ministers, an army of lay preachers, and we are trying, as a young people, to build up, as you have so gloriously done, colleges and universities and benevolent institutions. We have some things that you do not have.

We have Methodist union. All the branches of the Methodist church became one thirty-four years ago.

We have a quiet Sunday. In my city the trams and trains do not run until one o'clock. We have no Sunday newspapers and no Sunday amusements. But there are some things here that we covet. I hope some day, sir, we shall have a system, call it what you will, of general superintendency and that we shall do what you have done in the way of great progress in the evangelization of the country.

And we crave your progress in prohibition. We still have the saloon; shorter hours, but it is there. Please God, it will go some day.

I love to think of your Easter campaign. I wish we could get that into our Australian Methodism.

And I want to say, too, that we are indebted to you for that man of God who came out in an early day to us, from California, and brought to us a great vision. They called him "California" Taylor. His clarion call, "Get right with God," still rings through our country. They say that he brought with him to California the seeds of the eucalyptus tree. But he brought with him to Australia the seeds of righteousness and those results are still flourishing there to-day.

I bring to you greetings from our Church, the General Conference and the colleges, and my president would be proud if he knew of the reception you are giving his representative. We pray that God will bless you and give you wisdom, and brood over you in all your deliberations.

Before I conclude, may I offer a suggestion. I hope this is not too much presumption on my part. You have a noble program—I have tried to read it, and have not yet had time to read it all, but I hope to read it some day—a noble program of world service. May I suggest to you whether it is possible for you to enlarge that program and include in it this: That the imperial Methodists, whose banner is in every clime, that they shall unite, British Methodists and all Methodists coming together and trying to promote the cause of world peace. That is the crying need of the world to-day. And in a day when votes count, and when moral issues count, can we not get together? Will you people take the lead? Will you send out a radio to Britain and Australia on this subject? And you will find we are listening in and quick as ether, I believe will come back the response, "You lead and we will follow." I cannot conceive anything more important at this time to engage the attention of the church, the kingdom and the people of God than that good people shall try to get together and try to quiet the disorders and cure the maladies from which this old world seems to be suffering.

Mr. Chairman, may I appeal to you not in vain. I know there are old grudges to heal.

I have heard the story told that in the Great War a Jewish Chaplain serving with the troops came across a French soldier at the point of death. The man could not speak, but was grasping at his tunic and trying to open it. In that tunic he had a crucifix. The Jewish rabbi, in spite of his prejudice, in spite of his training, under the constraint of a great humanity, opened the tunic, took out the crucifix, and held it before the eyes of that dying soldier. In the supreme moment of stress, he forgot his prejudices and set them aside and stood for humanity. Let us forget our prejudices, the things that keep us apart, and see whether we can as a Methodist brotherhood do something unitedly, do something to meet the needs of the world. And I would be proud if the stars of the Australian flag and the stripes of the Union Jack could bring themselves together with the stars and stripes of Old Glory, and unitedly try to bring about a better condition of affairs than exists to-day. May I conclude as is not inappropriate in a Methodist gathering. I hold in my hand a book that I prize, the Methodist hymn-book of my own land. Let me quote:

"These things shall be! a loftier race
Than ere the world hath known shall rise,
With flame of freedom in their souls,
And light of knowledge in their eyes.
They shall be gentle, brave, and strong
To spill no drop of blood, but dare
All that may plant man's lordship firm
On earth, and fire, and sea, and air.

Nation with nation, land with land,
 Unarmed, shall live as comrades free;
 In every heart and brain shall throb
 The pulse of one fraternity.
 New arts shall bloom, of loftier mould,
 And mightier music thrill the skies,
 And every life shall be a song
 When all the earth is paradise."

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

Your Committee on the reception of fraternal delegates is very glad that we have present a representative of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Ministerial and Lay Representatives of the Methodist Church of Japan. These brethren will give their fraternal messages at the evening session. There will be then present, we hope, also the representatives of the Methodist Protestant Church; but the three first named are here now. Your committee wishes the privilege, through the presiding bishop, to present them in formal fashion to the Conference. Their credentials from their Churches to our Church will be read at the evening session. They are Prof. W. A. Shelton of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, head of the department of Semitics and Old Testament Literature of Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia; Rev. K. Ishizaka of the Board of Reconstruction of the Japan Methodist Church, and Mr. Yoshida, lay delegate from the same Church. I have the privilege of presenting to the Conference through you, Prof. Shelton, and also these representatives from Japan.

These fraternal delegates were received by the General Conference.

EVENING SESSION

Wallace MacMullen: MR. PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE. It is always an event of high importance to us to receive the fraternal message of the designated messenger from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. You will remember that on Sunday when, in the Episcopal address, that item relating to unification was reached, instinctively and enthusiastically the entire Conference arose. I had the privilege of being present six years ago in the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when they rose with the same enthusiasm in response to the mention of the same topic, when the Joint Commission on Unification had reached an agreement and made a report as to the method of union.

Yesterday morning we were greatly stirred in that part of our program when we heard the representatives of our young manhood and young womanhood in convention assembled at Louisville, Kentucky. Perhaps there isn't anything more thrilling than the vision and passion of youth. And when we were told by these leaders that that Convention voted enthusiastically for unification we had our reminder of what the wish and the purpose of the leaders of the Churches North and South is, and how they are regarding this matter of union. To-morrow we are to receive our report on that subject and act upon it.

Eighty years ago our fathers were together in one household of faith, and then, having become persuaded that the differences existing were too acute to be healed, they agreed to separate. It was an agreement reached and a decision pursued with very deep sorrow of heart. The reasons for that division that then was inevitable have long since vanished. There may be, there are, practical problems in unification which need to be solved, but they can be solved by the collective wisdom of the united Church. And increasingly we have the feeling that any practical obstacles in the way of this consummation devoutly to be wished should prove as nothing in the fires of brotherly love. We, believing that we are listening now to the call of God and to the call of the world which we think needs our joint ministry, and feeling the urge of our common doctrinal and spiritual inheritance, are waiting for the time when, with a joy as deep as was the sorrow of our fathers when they parted, we will welcome the reunion which, please God, will last until the judgment day.

I have here the credentials of Professor Shelton. Bishop Locke has asked me to read them. Professor Shelton, besides his regular university work, has had some interesting supplementary work. He was a member of an archaeological expedition which was financed and maintained by some allied universities, which took him to Egypt and to Mesopotamia, and he had the rare good fortune one day, when he was digging in the sands with his cane, to poke out something that had not been discovered in all the diggings and all the searchings of recent years—the personal cylinder of the father of Nebuchadnezzar, which recorded the religious acts of his reign; and that great find is now a part of the property of Emory University through the good fortune of its professor.

This is the credential:

"OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COLLEGE OF BISHOPS OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH, RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

To the Bishops and Members of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Springfield, Massachusetts.

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN: Authorized by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, our college of Bishops has appointed its Fraternal Delegate to your Church the Reverend William Arthur Shelton, Master of Arts, Doctor of Divinity, and Professor of Old Testament and Semitic Languages in Emory University. Among us, Dr. Shelton has attained distinction as a student, a pastor, a teacher, an archæologist, and an author. We sent him to you confident that he will interest you by his report of the activities and prosperity of our Church.

With joy we record, that measured by increase of membership, financial support, additional and improved church and Sunday school buildings, widening fields of service, and constantly increasing lay activities, our Church was never more prosperous.

We give thanks to the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, that the faith of our fathers—that the glorious and sacred deposit committed to us and for whose preservation in purity we are responsible to Him—is believed and confidently proclaimed among us, and that multitudes continue to find in the Lord Jesus the salvation that He alone can give.

The College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

COLLINS DENNY, Secretary."

[SEAL.]

Mr. President: I have the high privilege of presenting to you Professor Shelton.

The Conference rose and enthusiastically greeted Professor Shelton.

BISHOP LOCKE: I wish to extend a most cordial welcome to Professor William A. Shelton, the fraternal delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to our General Conference. Dr. Shelton is a graduate of Yale University, and feels very much at home in New England. I trust he will feel quite as much at home in this General Conference.

Our two Churches began exchanging Fraternal Delegates in Baltimore, in 1876, and have continued in unbroken succession until this eventful year. There is no disguising the fact that there are very many members of this General Conference who sincerely hope and pray that this will be the last time that we shall ever have a delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, because our two Churches, too long separated, should come together in the bonds of Jesus Christ, and together we should go forth for the subjugation of the earth for our Redeemer, Lord and King. It is with special delight, Dr. Shelton, that I present you to a company of your friends.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF PROFESSOR WILLIAM ARTHUR SHELTON, D.D., OF EMORY UNIVERSITY, ATLANTA, GEORGIA:

MR. CHAIRMAN, DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN: "We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the charity of everyone of you all toward each other aboundeth; so that we ourselves glory in you in the churches of God, for your patience and faith."

Mr. Chairman and Brethren, I am deeply conscious of the high honor bestowed upon me as the fraternal messenger, to bear to you the sincere greetings of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. I cannot bring myself to believe that I am in any way a worthy successor of that long line of distinguished fathers who have come to you from us since that day in 1848, when our Church appointed its most beloved and honored prophet, Nestor of Methodism in the South, Dr. Lovick Pierce of Georgia, to bring you fraternal greetings, in the midst of a time and conditions, where even a Christian found it difficult to exercise a spirit of genuine fraternity and brotherly love. Whatever you have thought of these messengers, our Church has sent you its best available men up to and including the last General Conference, and only now has it broken its record. May you be merciful in the spirit of forgiveness for this her first offense. We, feel, too, that you have sent us your very best, and if you have not, then you must indeed have giants among you. From that time in 1847, when Dr. Albert S. Hunt, Dr. Charles H. Fowler and General Clinton B. Fisk came to bring us their messages of profound love and fraternity and thus reestablish fraternal relations between the two great American Methodisms, with a skill born of the Spirit's presence, to the good year 1922, when Dr. David G. Downey, much beloved in the Southland, moved our hearts with his message, flaming with evangelical fire. His words, softened by tones of brotherly love, inspired confidence and brought us so close together that we felt the bonds of a common Methodism strengthened as never before. Indeed, I take pleasure in reporting to you that none have ever presented a finer spirit of fellowship, exhibited a more genial personality and thrilled us with a greater deliverance than did Dr. Downey as he sojourned with us at Hot Springs two years ago. May he live to see all his hopes fulfilled and all his dreams come true. I wish I might be privileged to utter my sentiments with reference to each of that line of giants which you have sent Southward on their missions of love and friendship. I would speak of the venerable Dr. D. C. Huntington and Lieutenant-Governor John L. Bates, the first delegates it was my privilege to hear; of that matchless spirit, Dr. Matt S. Hughes, knight of the golden heart, who seemed to walk the upper terraces with God, breathe the atmosphere of the holy of holies and inspire his audience with seraphic fire reminding one of Isaiah. And when he caught the high note of earth's last reveille and stepped into the heavenly chariot, Methodists of the North mourned no more deeply than Methodists of the South. I would speak of Dr. Wallace MacMullen, who performed the almost impossible feat of taking the place of Dr. William V. Kelley, so popular with us. I only mention those it has been my personal privilege to hear.

After this brief catalogue of spiritual and intellectual masters, I find myself much embarrassed to stand upon this platform and attempt to respond in any adequate way to the messages of fraternal greetings and brotherly love presented not only in their great addresses, but splendidly exhibited in their fellowship and personal charm while among us.

But I assure you, my brethren, that none have ever stood here with a deeper feeling of love and brotherly interest, nor with a profounder consciousness of the tremendous responsibility developing upon him in the gigantic task of conveying to you the love and fraternal greetings of nearly two and one half million Methodists of the Southern clime whose hearts toward you are warmer than the clime in which they live. I pray that wherein I fail in expressing their regard for you, God, despite my weakness of expression, will impress it upon your hearts. I feel that if I could only make you know how very much we love you and you could make us feel how much you love us, it would put an end to misunderstandings forever. What all the world most needs is to get acquainted. "Acquaint now thyself with Him and be at peace; thereby good shall come unto thee." When the human heart is properly probed, it will be found to contain at least fifty-one per cent of good intentions toward others. Every war waged by nations, communities or churches has been entered into and fostered by misunderstandings. Brethren, let us know each other! And may the gentle command of Him who spake as never man spake, fall upon us to-day as the dew of Hermon: "Love one another."

I have chosen to speak to you this evening upon "The Spirit of Methodism." Methodism is an ideal. It is an exemplification of the Mind of the Master with reference to humanity. I would not for one moment assert that Methodism is the only potent force in world affairs. As Methodists we are perhaps more liberal than others in recognizing other creeds who honor our Lord, but I am speaking just at this time of the work of Methodism in particular. Methodism started both high and low. It began with a group of earnest university students in the classic atmosphere of old Oxford. Its leaders were most learned men. It moved from university halls out into the fields and down among the lowliest of earth's laborers, and there it took root. It is a growth in divinely prepared soil. But that which takes root soon springs up and spreads and bears fruit. Methodism, founded amid the lowly, soon reached the hearts of the great, and nobles and ladies were early among its converts. It is an enigma. Never was there a movement like it on earth. It differed from the Protestant revolution in Germany in that it in no wise arose from theological differences. Luther was concerned with proving a theological dogma, but Methodism extracted every credal statement which it has, from the Church out from which it came. Neither was Methodism in any sense a political movement. It has been said that the rise of the Wesleyans saved England from an industrial revolution like that which swept France. Early Methodism slightly concerned itself with the American Revolution, but political situations were only incidents in its life and in no way the accounting cause. Moreover, there were no differences on the question of Church Government, and it has flourished under Episcopal, Presbyterian and Congregational forms. Its secret is found not in negative statements, but in the positive fact that its foundation principles are laid in the realm of the human spirit and operate in the fields of human experience. The secret is that it was not born in Oxford University, hoary with age and filled with wisdom. Its natal day was in Aldersgate Street, when in the consciousness of the human heart, John Wesley realized the witness of the Spirit and on the basis of this mighty transforming experience, a movement was started, not for theological or governmental reform but the reform of the soul and that by direct regeneration which offers hope for every man and every woman on earth. By reason of this it makes its appeal to all men everywhere. And because of this it does not primarily address itself to theology, but rests, not so much upon facts of history, as upon the truths of a present experience. Christ was born nineteen centuries ago, lived and died for mankind and arose again. Pentecost was a fact of history, but Methodism insists that Jesus must be born, live, die, and be raised from the dead within our present consciousness, or the historical fact is invalidated. Pentecost was a glorious experience of the early church, but it is also an experience which we not only may, but must have in the present, if we fulfill the Lord's command. The fires that burned then still burn in the fervor of spiritual energies which make life service worth while. Methodism is not the first institution of the sort. The whole work of Saint Paul was based upon his Damascus road experience, and that was the stake to which he tethered his faith. Experience was the beginning of the religious life and labors of Isaiah, who, in the year Uzziah died, saw also the Lord, and when his own lips had been cleansed, he heard the voice of the Lord, saying, "Who will go for us?" and then he said, "Here am I, send me!" The Hebrew Nation itself was built upon the vision of Abraham which led him out from his kindred and country, to form a new people and seek a "city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God." John Wesley was but the inheritor of those wonderful experiences and had he never gone to Aldersgate Street and found his heart strangely warmed, he might have lived and died a plain Anglican clergyman and some other force been raised up by God for the great service of Methodism. Thank God, he did go to Aldersgate Street that night and did find that inner assurance and stamped it upon the hearts of myriads of men in every clime, and this fact is the very heart of Methodism. It presents ever the spiritual element in Christianity. It is primarily a revival; an uninterrupted revival. Here are its greatest conquests. Not in the realm of the intellectual, though it has done well in this field; not in the realm of social reform, though no other faith has done so much there; not in the realm of politics, though its communion has numbered among its adherents many men of statesmanship and influence; not in schools and hospitals, church buildings and other material things, though it has led in these; but its primary purpose is to call men to repentance, and in this it has lived and excelled, and by it it shall go on and without it, shall die. Methodism is an Ideal, Idealism finds its most fertile field among us. Idealism is the wings upon which the world has risen. The Church itself is an Ideal. That is the reason we have been so hard put to find the explanation of its organization. Some have said it was organized by John the Baptist in the wilderness, at the Baptism of Jesus or at the Last Supper. Others have asserted that it was organized with the establishment of the Covenant with Abraham in the Field of Mamre, and it is a wonder why more have not insisted on the time when Ezekiel founded Judaism, for there really was the first organized Church on earth. But none of these are adequate explanations, for the very reason that they do not first answer the question, What is the Church? The Church is the place where God and man meet in that communion which reveals the favor of God for the communicant. Then the Church was with the first pair in the pristine garden; with righteous Abel when he offered sacrifices acceptable to God; with Enoch who walked three hundred years with God and then went home with him; with Abraham when he entertained God unawares; with Jacob when, lying upon the stony ground at Bethel, he beheld the ladder which Jesus afterwards identified with himself, as the bridge between God and Man, heaven and earth, angels descending and ascending on it and the Patriarch crying, "Surely the Lord was in this place and I knew it not. This is none other than the house of God and this is the gate of heaven"; with Moses at the burning bush and on the mount; with Elijah as he went back to Sinai with the complaint that all the altars were torn down and all the Prophets killed, but there he found God, who showed him the Church in the silent small voice which brought courage anew and sent him back to choose his successor and anoint kings; with Daniel and the Hebrew Children; with Paul and Silas; with Luther on the steps of Saint Peters; and with John Wesley in Aldersgate Street. This is true apostolic succession. Methodism does not have to worry about tracing its history back to the beginning, not even to Pentecost, for its credentials are here in its heart and in the power of its impulses. For this reason the revival fires burn on. They do not go out as in other revivals. Time is a remorseless critic of religious movement and Methodism had no distinctive doctrine or dogma and no peculiar form of government to preserve it. It lives by its evangelistic spirit, which is more than a creed, more than a government, more than controversy. Its only controversy is with the powers of darkness, and its only claim to perpetuity, is its power to call men to God and interpret the supernatural to a dying race. The very life and on-goings of Methodism depend upon its quenchless fires of revival spirit and its unbounded enthusiasm.

Methodism authenticates its charter rights to existence and a place in the sun by its proven ability to meet the issues of the day, some of which are as old as the human tendency to sin, and others, perhaps just as old, appear under new names and changed conditions and are emergencies for which the Church frequently finds itself unharnessed and untrained.

Just now, the world is crying out for social justice, as it has cried since the building of the walls of mighty Babylon; since Elijah came forth from Gilead, to condemn Ahab, the rich, for his treatment of Naboth, the poor, and through all the centuries. There is nothing new about labor crises and the world swings as on a pivot. Yesterday it was autocracy of royalty, then autocracy of capital, now perhaps autocracy of labor. Both labor and capital seem adequately organized but the world cries out for some mighty Moses of industry, who can lead that great third estate, the consumer, out of his wilderness of injustice and deliver him from the oppression of capital on the one side and the discontent of labor on the other and demand justice for all. It should be the task of the Church to sit down together with capital and labor and teach them that differences are never settled until they are settled right, and this result can never be attained on the primitive basis of might. The Church must lead these great forces of American industry to know, that conference, and not conflict, is the principle by which organizations operating in a Christian community should settle all differences. There is no other way. The Golden Rule applied to business methods produces astonishing results, both in the peace and the prosperity of a community. It has been tried and found practicable. Jesus is as potential in the industrial centers as He is in the temples of worship, and wherever his principles have been applied, they have solved every problem of labor and capital, and when the result is reached on this basis, the consumer has nothing to fear. Jesus, clothed as a king, though in mockery, went to the tomb, but He arose in the habiliments of a working man. Many thought he was the gardener. He was the friend of Joseph of Arimathæa the rich man, of Bartimæus the beggar, of Mary the pure and Mary out of whom he cast seven devils. He called Matthew the publican and John the fisherman, while Luke the physician and Timothy of mixed blood, were among the most distinguished disciples of the early Church. Methodism holds a peculiar place of power and influence in the arbitration of hurtful labor disputes and the great Arbiter whom it represents is Jesus, the friend of man.

In the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, a commission of Temperance and social service has been organized, which may later on be dignified by being formed into a General Conference Board. But we have lagged in the matter, and forgotten that our first ministry was to the begrimed colliers of England. Only the Church can deal with a problem that enters into the very fabric of a people's life. The Church has had much to do with the elimination of the legalized saloon and the segregated districts and protection of workmen and their families. Now let the Church awake to the danger that lurks in the insidious propaganda that it were better to have these institutions back than to have illicit traffic in them. An immense amount of money is being spent in this country to bring in light wines and beers, which mean nothing more than letting the camel's head in the door that he may soon have his whole carcass in the house. May the Church beware of complacency and arouse itself to fulfill its obligations to humanity.

Methodism must also meet the ideal of its existence by being just to those who have labored within its own communion. No institution can be unjust to its own household and prosper. "He that provideth not for his own household is worse than an infidel." No other Protestant Church exacts so much of its minister. He stands at the bar of the Conference and promises to go where he is sent without question and to serve with sacrifice. He is a member of a military order and were that order connected with the civil government, he would be educated at the expense of the country, and retire on an adequate pension, after having received a living wage during his active labors. In our branch of the family, we are just now engaged in the pleasant task of remembering "The Forgotten Man." Already the minimum goal has been subscribed and the prospects are that the sum of $15,000,000 will be realized.

A new situation which Methodism must make the most of and which our Church has set out to do, is to utilize and organize its lay forces. Attention was called to its necessity by the Centenary and Christian Education Movements which laid emphasis on Stewardship and tithing, and the laymen were aroused and organized for service. They have largely taken over the work of raising the budget of missionary propaganda, of assisting the pastor, of ministering in rural districts in his absence and of reclaiming abandoned country Churches. They have been organized into Local, District, and Annual Conference Boards and the last General Conference formed a General Board of Lay Activities.

Methodism has long been lagging in the care of the sick. We had somehow thought that to be the prerogative of the Catholic Church, and only two years ago, did the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, organize a Hospital Board. You had been doing splendid work for some time and showed us the way and we gladly followed. Already we have nearly $5,000,000 in assets and with three hospitals now in operation and four in process of organization. The Master's injunction, "Heal the sick, cast out devils and raise the dead," has been misinterpreted and we have proceeded to cast out the sick and raise the devil. Methodism has a real mission in this field and should gird itself to do it. The lowest possible basis upon which we can do this work is that of self-preservation. The building of places of healing for the sick improves the health of the community and makes business more profitable. Dives would have served his day and generation better had he built places, out of his abundance, to care for Lazarus and every Lazarus who lay upon the streets of Jerusalem, and it might have been that in so doing his heart had found the way upward to a very different place from where history leaves him. Preservation and prevention are far better than perpetuation of beggary and disease. The best approach to the human heart is after all by beds of pain and amid deepest distress. The splendid spectacle of Christian American feeding China and Japan in the hour of distress and ministering to their sick and wounded in the time of disaster, presages the awakening of the Eastern mind to inquire the source of this magnanimity and will open the door to Christianity as nothing else could do. The Matchless Teacher of Galilee knew this and never ministered to the soul until he had made comfortable the body. So may we learn of Him.

Another expression of the spirit of Methodism is its open door to women. The strangest fact in all history is the universality with which women have been downtrodden and outcast. Wherever Christianity has not gone, this still remains supremely true, and there is no solution of the problem, except through the ministries of the Christian Church and even there, it has been surprisingly slow in recognizing the attitude of the Master toward womankind. Though the prophets and the apostles were men, it was perhaps because of the attitude of the times toward women and the impossibility of utilizing them until they should gradually be emancipated by the liberating forces of the gospel of all ages. Women were potential factors in the life and ministry of Jesus. His attitude can best be seen, perhaps, in his ministry to the woman at the well of Samaria. She was surprised at his speaking to her, not alone because she was a Samaritan but because she was a woman. He said to her, "If thou knewest the gift of God and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldst have asked of him and he would have given thee living water." "The woman saith unto Him; Sir, give me this water, that I thirst not, neither come all the way hither to draw." In that pathetic appeal, she voiced the burdened cry of Eastern womanhood, breaking under the hard taskmaster of custom. Jesus was woman's first emancipator. Recognizing this friend of the friendless, womanhood gave herself to him and seemed better to understand his mission than did men. Mary, looking thus, by intuition, deep into the secrets of his soul, where man's material vision was not able to delve, rises in the enthusiasm of extravagant spiritual impulse and breaks upon his head the precious alabaster vase and sets free a fragrance so sweet that it has perfumed all the areas of human sentiment and liberated spiritual symphonies that will go singing down the ages as a memorial to the soul's devotion, wherever this gospel shall be preached. But Methodism has been slow and obstinate in allowing women to realize the high design of Christ which he purposed in her. At last, we have given her full recognition, and, in our branch of the Church, she has equal rights with men and everything is open to her except ordination to the ministry, and she is making full proof of this new found freedom. All the factors of motherhood, sisterhood, wifehood, and Christian sainthood are realized in her and she has proven herself well worthy of a place in the councils of the Church's administration. Methodism's destiny is wrapped up with the mobilization of its consecrated womanhood. The spirit of Methodism is exhibited in its great building operations. Our Boards of Church Extension have gone forward in assisting and encouraging the building of temples consecrated to the service of the Most High. Since the organization of our Board in 1882 more than 11,000 church houses have been aided and 3,000 parsonages, and the work moves forward with a loan fund of more than two and one fourth million dollars. The goal is, "A house for every congregation and a home for every pastor." Since 1917 we have had a Department of Architecture to assist in adequate buildings, with a degree of symmetry and grace, well becoming the house of God, and to prevent monstrosities of architecture, so dear to the heart of some communities. The Spirit of Methodism is to look well to the development of the intellectual life along with the spiritual.

It has ever been the genius of Methodism to erect schools and colleges and universities, particularly to educate ministers, and give to the world well rounded men, students of the highest and best, with a culture second to none. John Wesley's first preachers were for the most part, like the disciples of the Lord, untrained men, but he proceeded to teach them to study and to teach others, to found schools and promote education. If there was ever a time in which a minister could go out with a call and a religious enthusiasm and successfully preach the gospel, that time has passed, and the world demands of its ministers knowledge, deep and profound, of the very foundations of life and service and the things about which men think. Christian education has had a new impetus in recent years. In our own Church this mighty impulse was called The Christian Education Movement, and netted a subscription of $18,000,000, and so advertised schools that our present problem is to find room for that surging mass of the finest of youth, who are knocking at the doors of our institutions for admission, thousands of whom must be turned away for lack of room. Approximately 250 young men are in our seminaries, looking toward a degree in theology, while under the inspiration of the recent Centenary movement, pastors' schools have been organized and conducted at various places in the church, bringing together many hundreds of ministers, a large per cent of whom have never been inside a seminary. A correspondence school is conducted in our two Universities, which looks forward to real University Extension work and which reaches about two thousand undergraduates each year. Methodism, perhaps more than any other church, has need to realize that it has a great obligation in the realm of ministerial education, to the unprepared man already on the field. We also have a mighty task to hold the high idealism of culture as over against the ever increasing materialistic conception of training. The insidious motto, "Learn more to earn more," must be displaced by the sublime conception that education is the development of the inner man and that "The soul of culture is the culture of the soul."

The spirit of Methodism is reaching out into a still greater realm in its program of religious education. The old word, Sunday school, is almost forgotten, and we are bending our energies to the cultivation of the spiritual impulse, in the hearts and lives of both young and old, in a way that promises to be as serious and fundamental as the day school. No other institution has been so awakened to its purpose and opportunities as that which we called the Sunday school. Thousands heretofore uninterested are now seriously laboring, seeking to show themselves workmen of God, that need not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. The Bible is being more efficiently taught than ever before. And this challenges a better ministry, for the layman is coming to know something about religion for himself and the minister who does not fully prepare for his work must be left behind the procession. Religious education not only proposes to train men to a new appreciation of the Word of God, it also undertakes to prevent the leakage whereby the young are ever supposed to go out into the Far-away country and be rescued. As one of your own men has said, "The greatest task of the Church is not to save the lost, but to save the loss." The dissemination of good literature is one means of education which Methodism is not neglecting. The Church is proud of its great publishing interests. Our own House which has suffered many vicissitudes, from absolute bankruptcy at the close of the uncivil war and many uncertain years of struggle, now enjoys a business of more than $2,000,000 per annum. It has recently added a trade name, "The Cokesbury Press."

One of the unsolved problems is the Church paper. If it is needed, the Church should support it and if not then it should be chloroformed and not turned out to die of neglect. We ought to find a way to stand most heartily by our editors and realize in them one of the most helpful and necessary adjuncts to the life of the Church. With the wide dissemination of literature, good and bad, by the daily press, the increased facilities of communication and travel, the dissipation of the movies; the only claim many of our Church papers have for support is loyalty, and that rarely reaches to the low plane of the pocketbook. Shall we have a great Methodist Daily at some central point and each weekly edition, relating to individual Conferences, be made up from this daily? It remains to be seen what will be the solution of the problem. Having been born in a revival and for revival purposes, the Church cannot possibly meet its obligations, without the deepest concern for the evangelization of the whole world. When Methodism ceases to be evangelistic, it will cease to have a reason for continuity. The revival fires must be kept burning, first of all in the family, so that genuine religious enthusiasm embodying the spirit of Jesus, may permeate the fountain head of society. Every local congregation must keep before it the flaming cross of perpetual challenge against sin, and the gates of mercy be kept open, so that they shall not be shut by day or by night, and each pastor must be an evangelist three hundred and sixty-five days in the year. Let the Church be in the community as a spiritual lighthouse, to guide shipwrecked humanity into the port of Christ's saving grace. Every institution and every officer from the least to the greatest should realize that the function of the Methodist Church and its ministry is to call sinners to God, and lift Christians into closer fellowship with Him. Let America learn from Israel that God's main purpose in a nation is the salvation of the world. And the nation's chief agency for saving the world and ministering to other nations, is the Church of Christ.

The Christian Church faces many serious social problems but none more vital than the race question. It involves all denominations, but two in particular, for a very large percent of all the colored race in America belong either to the Baptist or the Methodist Church. A colored bishop once remarked that when he found a Negro member of any Church but Baptist or Methodist he knew that white folks had been fooling with him.

Approximately one ninth of the entire population of the United States is colored and the problem is therefore a real one. Too often hasty conclusions have produced unseasoned judgments and hurtful results. A very distinguished Missionary Secretary once said that he had often wished to study the race question at first hand and had at last realized his ambition, and after an eleven days' trip through the South, was then able to speak with authority on the subject. Others less precocious had spent fifty years in the midst of the problem without attaining such confident knowledge. There are those who are willing to give their lives to darkest Africa, who are unwilling to give anything to darkest America or to show the slightest consideration for the African neighbor. The thing we most need is a Christian attitude toward Our Brother in Black, in both theory and practice and in North and South alike. If Simon of Cyrene, the African, was a Negro, as some have asserted, then he was a man of high privilege, for he carried the Cross of Christ in that last sad hour of the world's humiliation and he still bears his own cross and that is our humiliation. John Stuart, an Ohio Negro, was Methodism's first missionary. In this vital question both democracy and Christianity face the acid test. Can our great country, founded on the basis of human liberty, make good her claim to equality of right and opportunity to peoples of dissimilar bloods? Can the Christian idealism of the Family of God be realized among peoples between whom runs the line of racial difference? Every genuine Christian American faces the question with grave and serious soul, for in it is held the destiny of flag and faith. To fail here is to fail of the very ideals of Americanism, of the genius of the Church and to deny the spirit of Christ. But we shall not fail. The Spirit of Christ is our hope and the ultimate solution of our problem. The leaders of neither race desire the mixing of blood; that would help neither and destroy both. But every justice of fair dealing, every guarantee of liberty, opportunity and privilege, of growth and achievement, must be the heritage of every child of whatever blood or station under our flag, in this Christian democracy. This task faces the peoples of all sections and all churches. We of the South have to face this work under circumstances of peculiar difficulty. The scars, the tears, the passions, and the tragedies of long years have been ours. But to this work we have turned our hands and we see our way in the light that shines from the face of Jesus.

But the task of Methodism is also to go to the African beyond the blue waters and to every man in all the world, who has not heard the Good Story. Our beloved Methodism has been somewhat slow, but at last we are awake to the great command of the Master, "Go ye into all the world."

In the Centenary program an appeal was made for the huge sum of $35,000,000 for missions alone. The audacity of the undertaking was almost overwhelming and the amount asked for astounding. It was one of those exploits of faith which have ever staggered the world's belief and outstripped every heroic deed of field and forum. It was the very romance of daring, the daring of the spirit. The result in material things was a subscription of $54,000,000 and the quickening of every other Protestant denomination to undertake a like enterprise, until the entire amount subscribed by the Protestants of America amounted to more than $600,000,000. In this great enterprise, I can only mention that which our own Church of the South has done. Two hundred and forty-seven missionaries have been sent to foreign lands and five new fields have been entered. $20,000,000 has been collected and disbursed at a cost of 8 per cent, and the whole Church has been quickened both at home and abroad. Family religion has been revived, 28,000 family altars erected, 300,000 new members brought into the Church, and Pentecost has been repeated. The Church has had a new birth and the whole world about us is aflame with the breaking of a new day. The Epworth League has been reborn and doubled in membership and efficiency, and assumes the support of all our work in Africa. Add to this the accomplishments of your own and other branches of Protestantism in America, entering upon this great adventure, and you will catch some idea of the mighty strides of the Church of Christ toward preaching the gospel to the last man in the last land in all the world.

Methodism has ever been the exponent of pure doctrines. Its controversies have rarely been doctrinal and its articles of faith give large liberty in the theological processes of the individual mind. Ours has ever been an insistence on right living and right acting and we have been too busy moving out our horizons and conquering the world for Christ, to examine minutely the theories involving infinitesimal differences of opinion. Nevertheless we have been influenced by those waves of controversy which again and again have swept the sea upon which the old ship sails. Just now, as an aftermath of the war, perhaps, a storm of doctrinal dispute threatens the peace of the Family of God. To some of us it seems that the ferment is the result of one of those periodical probes that someone has said produce more pus than purity. There is no intention of minimizing the dangers of the destructive criticism nor of belittling the efforts of those faithful souls who have undertaken to cleanse the Augean Stables. For the most part they are men of God, who are earnestly endeavoring to steady the Ark of Covenant, as it is threatened by the rough times through which we are passing. They are at least as trustworthy as those blatant iconoclasts, who would demolish the Ark to investigate how the joints are fastened together. But neither revolution nor stagnation has a place in the program of the Kingdom. The majority of Methodists, as between the rabid revolutionists and the fixed fundamentalists, will follow neither. However, there are certain fundamentals of faith which every true Methodist and especially every Methodist minister should hold: the immanence of God, a supernatural Christ, who is more than divine, who is Deity and through whom alone the world can hope for salvation, the personality of the Holy Spirit, the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures, the immortality of the Soul, the divine origin and mission of the Church and human brotherhood expressed in the highest Christian service for man. One who believes and proceeds to preach and live by these holy doctrines is a Methodist. If he is uncertain about the most fundamental things, particularly concerning the person and offices of Christ, then he has no place among us. Methodism needs to reassert its ancient teaching that the spirit of doctrine and not the letter is important. Its emphasis shifts the basis of faith from the body to the heart of the Scriptures. It has been well said, that "The most important thing is not the Cross of Christ, but the Christ of the Cross," so we may also say, the most important thing is not the Book of God, but the God of the Book. Our Bible is in no danger of destruction. It has fallen upon worse times than these. It has been ordered burned; men have been martyred for its sake and it has been bitterly attacked by critic, scorner, infidel and atheist and wounded in the house of its friends, but it is still the world's best seller. And when every critic is dead and forgotten in the dust of oblivion, when every star of the heavens has finished its course and faded from the sky, when the sun has unhitched his chariot horses never to run his course again and the world shall be wrapped in its last conflagration, Christ shall still be sitting calmly upon his throne and the Old Book beside him. The most dangerous atheism is that which rules God out of our life and conduct, and the infidelity which fails to take him at his word. Let us not stop at the outer shrine of the book, but lift the latch and enter the Holy of Holies and there find comfort to our souls. The Bible does not need our defense, it needs our exemplification.

The Church is in no danger from false doctrine, at least Methodism is not. Ezekiel learned twenty-six centuries ago that the Church is not dependent upon the perpetuity of Jerusalem, Palestine, nor of the Jewish people, but its field of operation is the human heart and wherever that turns to the Infinite for communication, there is the Church and her one foundation is Jesus Christ her Lord. Let our people abide in the peace of divine confidence.

The spirit of Methodism has been challenged in the last ten years to meet a new world condition. Ours has been a program that is as comprehensive as the horizon. The world is our parish, and, like Paul, we adjust ourselves to the mighty stream of world influence, to minister not alone to the lowly, of the outer Provinces, but also to the very household of Cæsar. The last great war threatened to submerge the whole world in the black despair of materialism, to which war inevitably leads unless counteracted. War is a menace to any nation but sometimes God makes even the wrath of men to praise him. Broken and shattered and down in the dust of humility nations are forced to seek him. But America came out of the war enriched, having increased her taxable property by more than $15,000,000,000. War inclines mankind to savagery and fosters greed, hate, selfishness and dishonesty. Suffering and sacrifice are necessary to bring us back to God and righteousness, but America was threatened with blood lust amid heaping coffers of gold, and although she gained the war, she stood in danger of losing her own soul. I honor my country for the spirit in which she has entered all of her wars. If a nation is ever justifiable in going to war, then America has thrice been justified. She went to war in 1776 for political liberty, in 1898 she fought with Spain for the freedom of the weak and in 1918 she warred for the preservation of human liberty and to destroy war forever. In all these she asked for no indemnities and no concessions and in this she taught the nations of the world their greatest lesson. But war upon any basis is dangerous, not only to the nations that engage in it but more so to those on the outside who may be but campfollowers fattening on the misfortunes of others, even as vultures await the end of the death struggle to feast upon the carcass of the unfortunate. America's prosperity at the beginning of the war together with the fact that she must ration the nations suddenly become unproductive, was her danger and she probably came out of it much better than had she chosen to remain in that fictitious splendid isolation about which political orators have told us. America, steeped in gold, regnant in power, and bloody with battle, stood in dire peril of selling her birthright for a mess of pottage. On that day the Church of Christ arose and took the nation by the hand and began to show her the way which God intended she should live. As he led Israel in the long ago, so he purposed that nations throughout all ages should, first of all, be ministers of God to others.

Methodism is peculiarly fitted to teach the world the ways of God. It has never aspired to be a state Church, and has never engaged in politics, as such, but seeks to follow him, who said, "My kingdom is not of this world, but is within you." It has sought to find its sphere of influence in the hearts of those who govern. It has sailed across uncharted seas, blazed the trails of civilization through the deep forest and over the trackless desert and made itself felt in every land and among every people. It is as much at home with the Oriental as with the Occidental. It has sent its heralds of the cross to every nook and corner of the earth and the sun never sets upon its chapels. It travels with Chronos and every hour of earth's revolution, its hymns of praise rise as a morning sacrifice. There is not a throne, not a government of any kind in all the circle of the globe but feels and respects its power. Moreover it has fed and clothed other denominations and fostered the spirit of evangelism among them until it works in a thousand fields by proxy and among untold multitudes by indirect influence. Filled with the enthusiasm of its divine indwelling spirit, it sweeps the seas and walks the earth with a mighty tread and challenges the administration of men and angels. Methodism is but another name for world opportunity and it needs but one thing and that is the union of all its forces and the mobilization of all of its resources, that it may present a solid front to the world, for its task is great.

This is an age of synthesis and not analysis. Money moves in millions and men in multitudes. The greatest word of the times is, "Together." The trend of business is to cooperation and consolidation. It is the very fabric of stable society, and the nations must of necessity remain together, bound by strict treaty alliance, in order to exist and to preserve the integrity of the world, and the Church of Christ is set to lead the way. The hope for the evangelization of humanity is that those churches of like faith and order may come together in one communion and those of dissimilar creed shall work in harmony as brethren in a common cause. The Church should march under the regulations of an army whose Commandant is indeed a generalissimo, and whose orders are imperative all along the line. The author of the 19th Psalm sings, "Their line is gone out through all the earth." What line? The word means, a cord. Then a harp string, then a chord of music. God strikes the strings of the harp of his divine purposes and a golden harmony sweeps over all his handiwork and governs all the forces of the earth. It is so with radio, which only needed the tuning in process. The ether about us has ever been full of the sweetest notes. The very winds that blow, the air we breathe, the blue sky, the shimmering light, all of these have been filled with the most beautiful speech and song and symphony but our hearts have been too dull to tune in and utilize and enjoy these glories of God. We have been out of tune with him and his world, and this is the true reason for all division and dissension. The dead dull sounds that grated on our sensibilities were nothing more than the infinite divine musical instrument out of tune, and every discord of human experience is the result of being out of tune with the infinite, and so making us out of harmony with each other.

The diameters of our horizons have been too short and the circle of our vision too small. We started with the idea that the earth was the center, the sun and the moon but lights to govern the day and the night, and the stars to beautify the earth and God's only plan and purpose had to do with man and his little garden plot. We were earthbound. But gradually David and all the Davids, meditating upon the sky at night, and upon the wonders of the day, have been widening our horizon and lifting our sky line until we have found that the sun is 93,000,000 miles away and that within its influence there are other worlds, some of which are larger than our own, and out beyond our solar system there are those whose farflung orbits are only measured in theoretical light years, wherein light traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles per second, requires three hundred years to reach our little earth, and then astronomers have gone on cataloguing suns, as we would catalogue merchandise, until they have charted orbs, blazing out in the infinite spaces of God, so far that it would take thirty thousand years for a ray of light to reach this earth and if it were possible to go on multiplying the distance of these suns by like distances until we seem to come to the rim of the universe, we would yet see flashes of light from the depths of the infinite spaces of the Almighty, speaking of glorious bodies of light, still undiscovered, till staggered and stupefied, we lift our heads for a moment to ask with the Shepherd of Bethlehem's Hills, "What is man that thou art mindful of him and the son of man that thou visitest him?" Amid all of these wonders we stop to brawl and bicker and buffet each other, and prance up and down on the stage like poor actors, each waving his wand, one a sceptre, one a golden mace, and another a torch of wisdom, and each crying for notice. Soon our little act is finished, the curtain is down, the day is done and we are the inheritors of six feet of sod and say to the grave, "Thou art my house, to corruption thou art my father and to the worm, thou art my mother and sister." Or shall we not once more lift our heads and say with the sweet Psalmist of Israel, "Thou hast made him but a little lower than God," tune in and catch once again the sense of the greatness of God and of our relation to him that shall exalt us above our petty bickerings, until we realize what it means to be sons of God, and look up to him and say, Our Father? We may then say, with Sidney Lanier, the South's sweetest singer:

"As the marsh hen secretly builds on the watery sod, Behold I will build me a nest on the greatness of God.
I will fly away in the greatness of God, as the marsh hen flies,
In the freedom that fills all the space 'twixt the marsh and the skies.

"By so many roots as the marsh grass sends in the sod,
I will heartily lay me a hold in the greatness of God.
Oh like to the greatness of God, is the greatness within The range of the marshes, the liberal marshes of Glynn."

Let us be done with petty jealousies and quarrels which partake of selfishness and bode no good for the Church of God. Big men can afford to lay aside personal pride and opinion for the common good and see things in the larger light of universal brotherhood, recognizing an orderly universe, the center of which is our Father God. If Christ should come, would we be willing to answer to him for a divided house, which he himself has said cannot stand? Christ is here and demands an answer! Divisions and disputes are passions of darkness and the night, but the morning dawneth and it is day-break everywhere. Let us then be children of the day. We live in a new age and we had as well get used to it. Incredible things are happening and the impossible is being accomplished until it is commonplace. We must either fall in or fall out. The spirit of union is everywhere. The great war made men see each other in a better light and the element of sorrow and suffering welded hearts together as nothing else could do. Paul speaks of the "Fellowship of Suffering, in order that we might attain the resurrection from the dead." The world has been dead to the interests of its fellows and this fellowship of suffering may help us attain the resurrection from such a death, that we may live with and for each other.

International affairs are in desperate straits. Danger lurks at the very foundations of our civilization both at home and abroad. Here, there has been a flattening out of moral consciousness, and graft runs rampant as in no other age of our country's history. Modesty, virtue's twin sister, has been sacrificed upon the funeral pyre of a nation's moral standards. Abroad there has been wreckage of faith and sometimes wild orgies of moral collapse. Governments have fallen and centers of authority have shifted, till the shambles of the nations remind us of the time of the Judges in Israel. It is the throes of a new world coming to birth. In such a time a League of Nations or a World Court would help, but finally nothing save the Christ Spirit in the hearts of men can bring peace and salvation. Jesus must walk the troubled waters as he walked the waves of Galilee. In such an hour the Church must gird itself for its high prophetic mission; that Christ may bring reconstruction, redemption and fraternity. In Florence, there are two precious vases. Their value lies not in their antiquity, nor yet in the intrinsic worth of the material. There were many vases scattered throughout Italy representing a long and noble history but they were broken. They were all brought to Florence, where a master potter ground them to dust and in the fiery crucible refashioned them into these two perfect vases. They incorporated all that had been enduring in the old and noble ones. There were many governments in the Old World and with many noble traditions and valuable assets of experience, but they were all broken, and in the crucible of war, they were coming forth again and the hand of a master potter was needed to fashion them into perfect governments adjusted to this new world and yet incorporating all that had been worth while in the old.

It is the duty of America to show the world the way and modestly to be the Master Potter of the world's reconstruction. Methodism has a very large share in the reconstruction of the world's ideals and moral standards and it must assume its part in the high privilege of that responsibility and it can succeed only as a united force.

The reason the German army in the last war could hold out so long against so many strong opponents was because it was within the circle and organized so that it could deliver its maximum strength at any given point within the minimum time. Day after day, month after month, and year after year, she pushed the Allies back and civilization tottered. One day a German high official reported to the General Staff that they were unable to gain a foot of ground, but on the other hand had been forced to yield territory. From that day they never did gain an inch and lost with an increasing ratio until the never-to-be forgotten eleventh of November came. The thing that had happened was Allied unity, by which the whole force of Germany's enemies moved under the orders of one man. United, the nations of the world stood, and had they remained divided they would have been driven into the seas.

Methodism has never had a reason for division. There are neither theological nor governmental differences and the excuse for separation passed away fifty years ago. Division has no place in the will and purpose of God. He is a Father, and Jesus, the Eternal Son, taught us to pray, "Our Father" and "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us." And he himself prayed that we might be one even as the Father and Son are one. If an earthly father suffers for the dissensions of his children, how much more our Father in Heaven. He suffers and we suffer. For eighty long years has this sorrow troubled our hearts. For eighty long years the shadow of misunderstanding has been upon us. For eighty long years, Methodism has bled from its ancient wounds. What have availed crimination and recrimination? What will it avail us now to rehearse the pleas and defenses of the tragic years?

We have done well apart, but how much better we might have done together. If one can chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, then the waste and loss of division has been little less than criminal. After the long record has been examined and all the fine points of constitutional procedure have been discussed, one turns to look upon a divided and thus weakened Methodism and knows it should not be. Fathers and Brethren, It is written in flaming letters across the very heavens by the finger of God that Methodism shall be one. My Church for years has tried to find a way. To that fact the journals of many General Conferences will bear eloquent witness. Four years ago, through a legally constituted Commission, a plan of union through reorganization was submitted. You did not find that plan acceptable but you did appoint another Commission to labor on at the difficult but inviting task, and thereby showed that there still remained a hope in Methodism that would not die, a faith that would not accept defeat. Brethren there is an electric thrill that is running to-day through the heart of Methodism and we are rapidly approaching an hour that will be historic in the long and illustrious annals of our Church. Our own Church has been approaching the question slowly but surely and each General Conference has brought us a step nearer. In 1914 we made a long stride which was advanced in 1918. No one who looked upon it can forget the expression of that hope and faith that was given by our last General Conference. In the midst of apparent rebuff and failure the Conference ordered its Commission back to the task, on the basis of principles previously accepted or on any other basis on which the Commission might agree and ordered that as soon as a plan would be accepted by the Commission and this General Conference, our Bishops were empowered and instructed to call a General Conference to deal with the consummation of union.

The vote for this was practically unanimous and the Conference standing on its feet gave forth such a protracted and thunderous demonstration as to attest the deathless hope and the unconquered faith in our hearts, that there is a way and that God will lead us on. The day is coming and who does not pray that it may come speedily? But some may warn us of breakers ahead, we answer, our Pilot is aboard. Others may speak of the shadows of the bitter yesterdays, we answer, we look to the To-morrows of God. To those who speak of the impossible, we lift the Cross of Christ and cry, "In this sign we conquer." Our faces are to the East and the day breaks. The shadows lie behind us and are driven back by the Sun of Righteousness who rises with healing in his wings. Deep shadows lie upon the nations beyond us and we must speak to a war-burdened world in behalf of which ten millions of our brothers have given their blood and in the midst of which men pallid with fear and pain are groping in darkness, and the word we speak must not be weakened by schism and the light we lift must not be dimmed by the shadows of any yesterday that is gone.

United, Methodism shall present to the world its most glorious spectacle. Starting with more than 7,000,000 members and a constituency equal to more than one fifth of the entire population of the United States we shall be able to create standards of righteousness that will command the respect of the whole world, and over the earth shall sweep a tide of evangelism as unprecedented as Pentecost, as host beautiful as the morning and terrible as an army with banners.

When Hunt painted the well-known picture, "Behold, I stand at the door and knock" he invited friends to attend the unveiling. As they studied the wonderful masterpiece, one said, "Mr. Hunt, when will you finish the picture?" "It is finished," said Hunt. But he insisted that it could not be finished since there appeared no latch. "Who ever heard of a door without a latch?" "Ah," said Hunt, "but this is the door of the human heart and it opens only from the inside." Fathers and Brethren, I come to you to-night in the name of two and one-half million members and a constituency of nearly eight million souls, and bring you greetings and in the name of Christ, say to you, The door opens only from the inside. The union of American Methodism is up to you. "Finally, brethren, pray for us that the word of the Lord may run and be glorified, even as also it is with you—and the Lord direct your hearts unto the love of God and into the patience of Christ.—The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen."

FAREWELL ADDRESS OF DR. SHELTON

SEE JOURNAL, PAGES 276, 322

WALLACE MACMULLEN: MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE CONFERENCE. A further matter of privilege; we have learned that Professor Shelton, the delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is compelled to go to other engagements. His gracious spirit, his winning message, have won for him a place in our affectionate regard. He desires to take leave of the Conference, and I present him to you for that purpose.

Professor Shelton: Brethren of the Conference, I might stand before you this morning and say to you those conventional things about how glad I have been to be here, and how well entertained I have been, but I have been so tremendously impressed during my stay with you here that those would seem to be but idle words.

If I should ever so lose my mind or my religion that I should join some other Church and thereby get to be the fraternal delegate to the Methodist Church of America, I should desire certain things, providing I had come into my right mind in the interim. I should certainly want Dr. MacMullen to be the Chairman of the Committee on Entertainment of Fraternal Delegates; and I would like to meet with you in Springfield in Old New England and have just the delegation that is here, and the Bishops and Secretaries who have been so kindly disposed toward me. I have been very much informed during this Conference. I think it is—without compliment—the finest body of workingmen that I have ever seen in my life. You are the most daring men! You even dare to deal frankly with the question of unification. Some of my brethren have been rather weary of that question. A country preacher, in charge of a country church down in Georgia, in my part of the country, who used to ride his mule barebacked all day in his work, and then ride to that country church at night to preach, found that his mule did not agree with him in his religious fervor, and one night the mule slipped his bridle where he was tied and came and stuck his head into the window of the church and brayed; and being a healthy mule, the bray was a long and lusty one. At the close of the mule's braying the preacher said to his congregation "Brethren, do any of you know anything that will make a mule stop braying?" One of the deacons arose and said, "Parson, if you will tie a stone to the mule's tail, he can never bray while he has a stone tied to his tail." The pastor folded his hands over his improvised pulpit and said, "Brethren, let him that is without sin tie the first stone."

I am sure, my brethren, that many have felt that way with reference to the question of union, but you face things frankly and squarely and bravely.

And I thank God that I have been here, for more reasons than one. I believe I have been privileged above my fellow men, particularly the fellows of my Church, by being permitted to be here on yesterday when human history was made. It is a great thing to have a part in the making of secular history; it is an infinitely greater thing to have a part in the making of history of the human soul. And I shall thank God to the last day of my life, and I think after life has passed away, that I was here yesterday morning in that Pentecostal hour when you voted according to the will and principles of Almighty God as exhibited in Jesus Christ.

And on such an occasion as that I am glad Bishop Hughes was in the Chair, for there are few men among you that have an easier entrance into our hearts and pulpits than Bishop Hughes, and I am glad that Bishop McDowell presented the matter, for we have considered him God's greatest workman in this field; and I am glad that he saw the consummation, thus far, of his hopes and labors. And I was delighted that Bishop Cranston was presented to you for the honors he received, for we have considered him to be the very father of this movement for unification. And I am delighted that when the shadows are falling upon his life, those shadows are driven away by the reflected glory of a well spent life and of the achievements in the realm of the human spirit. And I say to-day to him, "Watchman, hie thee to thy home, for the morning breaketh."

Four years ago I was the guest of an Arab sheik in central Babylonia. The old patriarch stood within the outer portal of his home and as each one entered he laid his hand reverently on his heart and said, "Ahlan wahsalan," which, being freely interpreted, means "My people are as your people, and your people are as my people." And I say to you "Ahlan wahsalan." "My people are as your people, and your people as my people," and I pray God that they may be one people.

Bishop Bristol: I am sure that this great General Conference would wish to express to Dr. Shelton its superlative pleasure in his presence among us. Not only have we been profoundly impressed by the message which he brings and has brought, but we are delighted in the experience that he himself has enjoyed in having been with us on that historic day which marks a new epoch in the history of American and World-wide Methodism and we believe a new epoch in the history of Protestant Christianity. We ourselves will tell to our children and our grandchildren that we were here that day; and we rejoice, sir, that you were here that day, and you will carry the news to your good, devoted, great people of the sunny Southland, and the next time we meet, may it be on the square of a union such as we have never known.

J. B. Hingeley: A question of privilege, Mr. Chairman.

Ever since 1874, when we took the beautiful action of sending an accredited delegate from the Methodist Episcopal Church to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and they of sending a fraternal delegate to us, the Church has prepared a beautiful certificate, setting forth his election, called his credentials. I desire to make the motion that I have made in previous General Conferences, that this General Conference, for the purpose of the record, authorize the Secretary to accept the copy of these beautiful credentials, and that the credentials themselves, with a proper indorsement, be returned to the esteemed brother, the delegate who represents that Church. I move the adoption of this resolution.

The motion was seconded and unanimously prevailed by rising vote.

BISHOP JAMES CANNON OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH

MR. CHAIRMAN AND BRETHREN: I was sitting in the Board of Missions of our Church about this time last week when a telegram was read to that Board announcing the vote which had been taken here concerning the question of the approval of a plan for unification. I turned to a friend who had been with me in the meetings of that commission for the past six years and said, "Through many dangers, toils and snares we have already come. 'Tis grace has brought us safe thus far, and grace will lead us home." He said to me in a semi-jocular way, "You had better not say that to some people or they will want to know what you mean by 'home'." I said, "Well, I have no disposition to elaborate on that matter. I have been in My Father's House all these years and my Methodist Episcopal brethren have also been in the Father's House all these years, but I hope that perhaps by the grace of God we will sit down at the same table in the same dining room."

I may illustrate how this matter appears to me by a reference to the political situation. I have always been a states' rights, free trade, Democrat. I do not know or see how I could be a Republican and yet the brand of Democrat and Republican is not so firmly fixed that there may not be circumstances when that brand fades away. For example, should the Democratic party of which I am a member nominate a man for President of the United States who is opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment or to the Volstead Act, or to something stronger than that for the effective enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, while I am a Democrat, I am not a law-breaker. And should the Republican party nominate a man who stood squarely on the question of the genuine better enforcement than we have had up to this time, I think I know my people in the South well enough to say that the issue with them then would not be Democracy or Republicanism; it would be law or lawlessness, and if there should be then a solid South, I am satisfied that it would be a solid South against lawlessness, and I have enough confidence in you, brethren, to believe that it would be exactly the same way if the position were reversed. And that is what I mean in a way, if I may use that political illustration. We do not agree in some things, we do not have the same angle of vision with reference to some things. Our training, our antecedents, have been different, and perhaps this plan goes as far as we can go now. It furnishes a point of contact and an opportunity for us to get together and to know each other and to find out how far we can work together. But when it comes to the great fundamental questions which pertain to the welfare of humanity and the glorious progress of the Church of God, we are to-day one in spirit, as is witnessed by the action which we take in our separate bodies on all the great issues which pertain to life and for the interest of humanity, the humanity in the midst of which God has placed us, that we may go out seeking to save that which is lost. And in that confidence I have voted myself as a member of the commission for this plan, and I shall use all proper means to endeavor to secure in my own General Conference—and you know Bishops do not have much power in the General Conference—but I shall use all proper means in my own General Conference and Church to join with you to secure a great vote that we may work together under that plan. I thank you.

3. THE METHODIST CHURCH OF JAPAN

SEE JOURNAL, PAGES 263, 264

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

We were all intensely interested this morning in the presentation of that fine paper, the work of Dr. Johnson, of the Pacific slope, who has worked there among the Japanese for seventeen years; a paper addressed to the President of the United States, notable for the restraint of its tone, for its patience, for its sense of justice, pleading that the President use the influence of his office to prevent the United States from treating with injustice or with discourtesy a friendly people. We have representatives from distant Japan to-night. Seventeen years ago the Methodist Church of Canada, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and our own Church, agreed that the work among our friends in Japan should be given over to the control of the native Church; and the Church of Japan was organized. I will read the credentials of the Rev. Dr. Ishizaka.

After the reading of the credentials Bishop Locke said: I assure our dear brother of a most affectionate welcome. We have rejoiced in the steady progress made by Japanese Methodism, and our hearts are going out in very tender sympathy when we think of your chastened and stricken country. Only a very few weeks ago I saw, with weeping eyes, what was once flourishing Yokohama, and drove for hours through the devastated section of what was once beautiful Tokyo. I saw the ghostly ruins of a fine church where I had preached one Sunday some years ago. And my heart has not yet come back to its wonted calm when I think of that woe and desolation.

Our hearts are tender as you pay us this visit. I also present Brother Robert Spencer from Japan, who will interpret the speaker.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF THE REV. K. ISHIZAKA, MINISTERIAL DELEGATE OF THE METHODIST CHURCH OF JAPAN

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN: A half century ago there came to us, from the mother church, five men who divided among themselves our Island Empire and began the work of Methodism. With the usual Methodist daring, Harris went to Hakodate, Davison to Nagasaki, and Soper remained in Tokyo. Maclay was the organizer of the Mission, Correll remained with us but a short time, and Soper, Davison and Harris did very much toward the Christian Movement in Japan. Soper and Davison have returned to the homeland and now live in sunny California, beloved and honored by very many of us. Harris, the white-hearted, sleeps in Japan where he was honored by our Emperor and deeply beloved by our people.

After but thirty-five years of service by the three Methodisms of America and Canada, a union was effected sixteen years ago, under the able leadership of Bishop Cranston and Dr. A. B. Leonard and the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and Methodist Church of Canada, which resulted in the Japan Methodist Church.

During these long years, God's blessings have been upon us in rich measure, but it is our joy to say to-day that the past four years, due to the Forward Movement in the Japan Methodist Church, have been the most important which our Church has known.

During the quadrennium there was an increase in baptized members of 6,664, that is, an advance from 15,852 to 22,516. The increase in Sunday School Scholars was from 38,108 to 41,023, an increase of 2,915.

In finance the self-supporting churches increased their giving from Yen 98,844 to Yen 239,222, an increase of Yen 140,378.

Expenditures for construction and reconstruction of churches was Yen 379,498.

Toward the Forward Movement pledge of Yen 615,379.50 the Church paid Yen 262,263.40.

These figures show unprecedented progress during the after-the-war quadrennium when we were affected economically even more deeply in Japan than you in America.

Our Forward Movement had its birth in your Centenary Movement and we drew much inspiration from your ideals and successes. Our objects were three: (1) Christian Stewardship; (2) The doubling of Church membership; (3) Personal Consecration. It was my privilege to lead this movement as the head of our Missionary Society.

Stewardship was the first thing stressed in the movement. The now famous Kamakura Conference gave a mighty impetus to this part of our program. This Conference was composed of representative leaders of the Central Committee, the Missionary Society, the District Superintendents, and leading laymen—a body of fifty-five. During the Conference the spirit of prayer worked mightily in all hearts, and a burning desire for a more fully consecrated service could be seen in every face. After three days of thorough discussion and prayer the Spirit of God descended upon us mightily. The hearts of all were deeply stirred, and tears of joy and thanksgiving were seen on many faces.

When it was suggested that the first step toward the financial objective be taken at this meeting, over Yen 13,000 ($6,500) were pledged in less than twenty minutes.

When Yen 600,000 was decided upon as the goal of our financial efforts many doubted success, but, when the financial campaign closed November 23, 1920, the pledges totalled the sum of Yen 615,379.50, that is Yen 15,379 over the objective set. When the campaign for Yen 600,000 began there was much doubt, but God's special blessing seemed to rest upon the movement, and many touching instances of self-sacrifice on the part of our people became known.

Having thus succeeded in the stewardship campaign, the movement pushed forward to its second important work of the Special Evangelistic Campaign, with the lively hope of doubling our membership and so helping to win Japan for Christ.

For the purpose of unifying our working forces and for a more effective praying and planning, the great Nara Conference was called with more than 700 present. It was the greatest gathering of its kind ever held in Japan. The three days of prayer and planning ended in a mighty passion and purpose. The Conference adopted for the Movements the following declaration:

1. Every member of the Church should make an earnest effort to win at least one soul for Christ.

2. Through fasting and prayer, we should do our best to double the membership.

3. By giving greater attention to Bible Study and personal consecration, our faith should issue in larger service to society.

4. Emphasize strongly the practice of family worship, and strive to fill every home with the spirit of godliness.

5. Seek to realize as soon as possible complete self-support; the extension of our evangelistic work; and the building up of the faith of our members.

6. Urge the practice of the tithe, in order to obtain the full realization of Christian Stewardship and the successful completion of the Financial Campaign.

As the result of the movement, there were churches that had doubled their membership, and even at present there are still many churches that are endeavoring to double the membership. At the present time the ratio of the progress is thirty-four per cent.

The third thing strongly stressed by the movement was personal consecration.

One outstanding result of this stressing of Personal Consecration is that our Tokyo Theological School more than doubled its enrollment—it now has between 80 and 100 students, and this is also true of our Theological school in Kobe.

Formally, the Forward Movement closed with our last General Conference in January of this year, but really the movement is going on in our whole Church life. Indeed, because of the spirit of the movement we witness a cooperation between our forces and those of the Missionary Cooperation hard to discover in any other denomination.

Our Master while on earth said, "The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his fields: which indeed is less than all seeds, but when it is grown it is greater than the herbs and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the heaven come and lodge in the branches thereof." Matt. 13. 31, 32.

This is very true of Japan. The seed which was sown by your brethren fifty years ago has grown up into a vast tree. We thank you and we thank God for this great achievement.

If I may be permitted a personal word, I should like to say I myself was brought to life eternal through this first seed sowing in Japan.

When I was but fifteen years of age I entered a mission school to learn English. The Principal at that time was Dr. Milton S. Vail, who is still teaching Japanese boys and girls in San Francisco. As I and a few other students thought Christianity a bad religion and its believers traitors to our country, I hated those who believed in Christianity and especially those who were theological students in the school at that time. Our hatred of the theologists became so great that one day we came to grips with them, and as a consequence we fell into the hands of the police and were expelled from school, except myself. I do not know why, but I was permitted to attend the school. A special Providence must have watched over us. My mind soon became at ease, for I began the study of the Bible and gradually apprehended its spirit.

I was baptized by Dr. Soper. A year after my baptism, at a big revival in Japan, I not only definitely entered the ranks of the "twice born" but also felt the call to preach the Gospel of Christ.

After four years of theological study I began my work for Christ and the church and have continued unto this day.

In thus relating my own story I am only stating the history of many young people who have been touched by the missionaries sent by and to Japan during these past fifty years. For this I thank God and you.

As you well know the Christian Movement in Japan is yet very young. Nevertheless, its power is felt increasingly.

In proof, a few years ago when the Korean disturbances occurred, I with others, among whom was Bishop Welch, called for justice and righteousness as touching the Koreans. We pressed for careful consideration and reflection on the part of the government. Undoubtedly the most powerful single force in the Korean cause was the Christian conviction of justice and right.

Again at the time of the most dreadful disaster which any nation has ever faced in the September earthquake and fire, the one outstanding dominant force of helpfulness was Christian and the government officials were not slow to recognize this.

May I not say in this connection that every Japanese heart is profoundly grateful for what America did for Japan in her hour of great suffering and sorrow? In all this the mother Church shared through her great love the devastation for her child in Japan.

Another outstanding evidence that Christianity is winning its way in Japan is that since the great earthquake our people seem to have parted with materialism, and now seem to look to Christianity as furnishing the only force which will steady and satisfy our people.

Hence there is a strong movement toward Christianity all over Japan.

But kindly bear in mind, brethren, that many conflicting forces have come to our nation. Many of these forces are very good, some are very bad. The good forces have not all been assimilated, and hence our people are confused. As to the evil forces, they are doing their deadly work.

Our government is undoubtedly anxious about the situation, as the recent religious conference called by the government would indicate. However, the remedy for our ills is not in the hands of the government, the remedy lies ready for the Christian Movement to give the people and the nation.

Undoubtedly now is the most opportune and important and critical time for the Christian Movement in Japan, including Korea.

We pray you, therefore, brethren, first of all, to return to us our friend and able leader, Bishop Welch. We greatly need him, his great wisdom and patience are vital to our work. In the second place, we pray you, send us more missionaries. They can greatly help us, if through the English language, very well; if through the Japanese language, much better, but above all language, the language of character speaks much more to our people.

Finally, brethren, remember that we are in the midst of a very great task of reconstruction. Our churches are in ashes, our people are homeless and without money. Aside from our schools, we shall need Yen 1,500,000 (or $750,000) to rebuild. We shall try to raise Yen 300,000 of this in Japan, but we cannot forget that yesterday 3,000 of our members were well-to-do, who to-day are refugees, many of them in great need.

Temporary barrack churches have been built, but we must build better if we are to draw our people to the church and to Christ. As it is we cannot house our children, and can do almost nothing for our young people. And, brethren, you already know, our great Aoyama Gakuin is complete ruin. "What fell in a day, we must rebuild," but we cannot do it in a day unless you help us out of your abundance.

Beloved brethren in Christ, our hearts cry out to you with gratitude for what you have done for us during a half century through money and men, through the open hand and the loving heart.

And now as we face the days of reconstruction we pray that you may have an important part in the rebuilding of temple and Christian Character in Japan.

WALLACE MACMULLEN: We have a lay representative of the Japan Methodist Church.

The credentials of Mr. Richichido Yoshida, lay representative of the Methodist Church in Japan, were then presented after which Bishop Locke said: It is a great pleasure, ladies and gentlemen, to present to you this good layman from Japan.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF MR. RICHICHIDO YOSHIDA, LAY REPRESENTATIVE OF THE JAPAN METHODIST CHURCH

FATHERS AND BRETHREN: It is my great pleasure and honor to stand before you as a fraternal lay delegate from the Japan Methodist Church to this General Conference and bring you a message from 28,000 members of the Japan Methodist Church.

We are heartily grateful for and appreciative of the fact that you have sent your beloved missionaries to bring the needy people to Jesus Christ and you have built many Christian institutions. We owe to you our many able native workers of our Church. Through their effort our Church is developing steadily day by day.

As you know we have conducted the forward movement following after our Centenary Campaign during the last quadrennium with successful results.

We have now 28,512 members, 165 churches, 242 native preachers, 115 missionaries, 90 lady missionaries, 1,829 Sunday school teachers, 45,092 Sunday school pupils, 15 schools and 3 colleges. We are thankful to the early missionaries and their home churches for this wonderful Grace of God.

We are now facing the very hard task of reconstruction of the lost churches and schools which were destroyed by the last terrible earthquake. We must rebuild first the destroyed buildings of Aoyama Gakuin and the many churches in that section by your hearty help. There are many sufferers who have been encouraged by your warm sympathy. Our church people are grateful to you for your kind plan for reconstructing the forces of our Church.

On this occasion, I should like to mention the many thanks of the Japanese people and government for the help of the Americans in our disaster though it is beyond our expression. When I visited Baron Matsui, the Minister of Foreign Affairs of Japan, who is one of my intimate friends, at his office he asked me to convey his hearty appreciation to the people of America for their loving-kindness in helping in our time of crisis. (And he has also sent by Bishop Welch the official letter thanking you for your help.) I am given many reports about the uses of your money and things for the relief work from my good friend Mr. K. Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador to Washington, and I am asked in his letter to express his thanks and friendship to you in this Conference. I pray that Japan and America may have better friendship through our Christian services.

Japan has been changed very much by the endeavor of your missionaries. In many ways she is now at the dawn, especially in her spiritual life, since the last earthquake. The people are seeking after the Unknown God for hope of new life. Japan is the gate of the Orient and the key of the peace of the Orient. She should be Christianized and the Japan Methodist Church is dreaming of evangelizing the nation, and we need your sincere prayer and hearty help to realize that vision. As you have begun the Christ's work for the people of Japan with the great sacrifice I wish you to keep her in your warm heart and let God see the glorious accomplishment of your missionary work in Japan in the near future. Again I wish to express my sincere thanks to you as I myself am one of your spiritual sons in the Gospel in Japan.

4. THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH

SEE JOURNAL, PAGES 264, 265

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

One hundred years ago, brethren—just exactly one hundred years—lay representation in the councils of the Church brought on a very long and excited debate, through pamphlet and periodical, which at last resulted in the organization of the Methodist Protestant Church. Its founders were men eminent in Christian character and in pulpit power. The principle for which they fought we long ago recognized and approved; some of the applications of that principle remain unsettled among us, but the principle itself is securely lodged in our ecclesiastical economy. The Methodist Protestant Church is then a daughter of American Episcopal Methodism. But if you ask which of the two great branches of Episcopal Methodism was the mother of the Methodist Protestant Church, what should be the answer?

It is a rather delicate question, and we ought not to expect that the Methodist Protestant Church should decide the question. It is a rather delicate question, and we ought not to expect that the Methodist Protestant Church should decide the question. It is very clear that the solution of the problem and the cure for the embarrassment of the Methodist Protestant Church is for North and South to get together so that there may be no discussion as to which is the mother of Methodist Protestantism, so that the way will be easy and open and inviting for this daughter of American Methodism to come back to the ecclesiastical home out of which she went long ago.

BISHOP LOCKE: I have been acquainted with the noble spirit and with the activity of the Methodist Protestant Church from my boyhood, for I can remember very well one of the strong churches of the city of Pittsburgh was a Methodist Protestant Church. This church has always been known for its sincerity and for its adherence to its convictions, and for its generous ministry of the Kingdom.

It is a great pleasure to present Dr. C. D. Sinkinson to you to-night.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF THE REV. CHARLES D. SINKINSON, D.D., PASTOR OF THE METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH, ATLANTIC CITY, NEW JERSEY

REVEREND BISHOPS, FATHERS AND BRETHREN: Commissioned by the Executive Committee of the Methodist Protestant Church, it is even at this late hour a great pleasure for me to bring to you the cordial and most sincere greetings of my denomination, and in a small measure at least reciprocate most heartily the eloquent and splendid utterances of fraternal regard expressed by the distinguished representatives you have sent to us from time to time.

For six quadrenniums it has been my privilege, as a member of the General Conference of my Church, to meet and to greet the brethren you have sent to us with messages big with the conviction that God has but one Kingdom on earth. Messages in which they urged more than a spirit of closer cooperation, more than greater fraternal sympathy. They urged the unity of organic union, responding in the fullest sense to every advance made by our most enthusiastic leaders.

It has also been my privilege for several years to serve my Church as a member of the committee on "Church Union," and in this capacity it has been my great pleasure to meet the distinguished men, both clerical and lay, you sent to represent you in this important work.

In Baltimore in 1910, in Chattanooga in 1911, and at various other places at different times, I have met your Bishops. The late and lamented Bishop Walden, Bishop Cranston, Bishop Wilson, Bishop Berry, and some of your representative ministers and elect laymen. When your Board of Bishops met in Atlantic City four years ago, Bishop Cranston very graciously preached in the church of which I have been the pastor for thirty years, and, brethren, I am frank to say he preached a very good sermon. I have also met in these Conferences the Nestor of our great sister Methodism of the South, the late eloquent, profound and godly Bishop Alpheus Wilson, Bishop Hoss, witty and so companionable, Bishop Candler, Bishop Denny, Mr. Patton and other laymen of equal influence and prominence.

In Baltimore in 1910 in your Church adjacent to Goucher College, it was my great honor to preside over a session of a conference on Methodist union in which these great men whom I have named and other distinguished men of the two great Methodisms and men of influence and prominence in my own Church participated. So that having met these men among your denominational leaders, learned to know their spirit and appreciate their Christian character, and having fellowshiped with many of their constituency, having studied and followed the progress of their denominational life, I justly feel this hour, Mr. Chairman, that I am not among strangers, and I am firm in the conviction that all our efforts and plans for closer relationship between all Christian bodies known as Methodists have had the approval of the great Head of the Church. and I am frank to confess that I am firm in the conviction that the discontinuance of these efforts will be not only foolish, but most criminal. Yet Christian people sometimes do very foolish things, "For the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light."

We have prayed and are still praying, "Thy Kingdom come." We have prayed and are still praying that the Church may be one. We have prayed and are still praying not only for the coming of that day when all the people called Methodists, divided into twenty different bodies, but for the coming of that brighter and more glorious day when all Protestant communions shall be bound together in the bond of vital unity, and thus bound shall bring to bear upon the evils we are trying to blot out, and upon the constructive spiritual programs we are trying to carry forward to a successful consummation, the impact of a united Protestantism, the effect of which would be the salvation of our people, and the salvation of our people would result in making of this our nation the greatest Christian nation in the world. This would result in our nation opening a door through which we could reach every nation, people, kindred and tongue the round world over. Instead of this encouraging outlook, the great Protestant force, according to Dr. Carroll, our religious census enumerator, is divided into more than one hundred and fifty denominations, bodies and sects, some duplicating the work of others, some in keen competition with others. Yes, some even antagonistic to others, and this, my brethren, in the face of the united forces of the powers of darkness. Surely if the Apostle Paul were here to-day that great leader who exhorts us to be of the mind which was also in Christ Jesus, if he were here to-day and were to write us as he wrote the Galatians, would he not write, "O foolish Protestants, who hath bewitched you?"

Instead of a new day for which we have so long prayed, a day of broader fellowships, a day of loftier ideals, a day of splendid achievements, what have we to-day! Evidences of a weakening of effort, of a wasting of strength, of a dissipation of vital resources. When we consider these things, surely we ought to pray and pray real earnestly the prayer prayed by the unfortunate laborer, who while falling from the roof of a nineteen-story building, cried out in his descent, "O Lord, have mercy, and please, good Lord, have it mighty quick."

We are living in a great age, in an age on ages telling, an age of consolidation, an age of organization, and an age of combination. The tendency toward centralization in this age is universal. We live in an age of world-wide movements. The world has become a great community. From all parts of the world we may hear every day. In this age the man living in the uttermost parts of the world has become in the truest sense our brother.

Hence there are problems awaiting our solution such as never confronted the Church before, and there are tasks waiting to be accomplished such as have never been performed by the Church before, and the solution of these great problems and the performance of these tremendous tasks will require mighty agencies.

If in the political, and the commercial, and the financial, and the educational worlds the watchwords are organization, consolidation, combination, centralization, why, why, I ask in all seriousness, why not in the spiritual world? The marshaling of all Protestant forces in one great host under one great banner with one great leadership and with one great purpose would be an object lesson in the recovery of Christianity toward the unity for which our Master alone has ever prayed, and a forerunner of great movements that would characterize the generations.

"Our little systems have their day,
They have their day and cease to be;
They are but broken lights of thee.
But thou, O Lord, art more than they."

The hearts of all throughout not only Methodism but throughout all Evangelical Protestantism will be gladdened by the report of your Board of Bishops, in which they expressed so generously their great pleasure over the organic union of the two branches of the Evangelical Church, so long and so unnecessarily divided. The coming together of three groups of Lutherans among the dozen or more in that great Church and the rapid progress being made in the merging of three influential denominations in Canada, the serious consideration being given to the union of several branches of the great Presbyterian Church, and last, but not least, their endorsement of the unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

At our General Conference held at Baltimore, the Committee on Church union in substance said until this was accomplished our Church would not feel inclined toward further negotiations for Methodist union. As Dr. MacMullen, in his very gracious introductory remarks, and in his most generous tribute to our Church and the principles for which she has so long contended, was in doubt as to which of the two great Methodisms was the mother of our Church, let me say, Mr. President, since one of these great Methodisms was born after our Church had experienced twenty years of a most remarkable history, I feel safe in saying that if the older of the two is so kind and generous, through her eloquent and distinguished Dr. MacMullen, in proudly intimating her motherhood, I am generous and kind enough to acknowledge our childhood. If this much prayed for and hoped for union between the two great Methodisms shall be consummated, I devoutly pray that it may reestablish the long divided household and that the door of these two thus united may ever remain open for the generous welcome of all the scattered children of Wesley.

Mr. President, you will be glad to learn that our denomination, the little tribe of Benjamin, among the tribes of Methodism, has enjoyed during the quadrennium in a most encouraging degree, the manifest favor of Almighty God, and during the past four years has made a sure and steady advance. You will also be pleased to learn that our property values, in churches, parsonages, hospitals, orphanages, homes, colleges and missions, show a very encouraging increase. Our Sunday schools and Young People's Societies under wise and efficient leadership are in a very prosperous condition, adding vigor and numerical strength to our Church by the young life drawn from these organizations into vital relations with the Christ and into recognized church fellowship. For these and many other things you will not fail to see that we have good and sufficient reasons to thank God and take courage.*

And now, Mr. President, in a way that may seem formal and in language that may seem familiar, and yet with great honesty of heart and with unusual sincerity of purpose, I pray God's richest blessing upon you in all your deliberations in this great Conference, comprising great representatives of a great Church. I sincerely hope and pray that your work here may be wonderfully blessed by God in the furtherance of Christ's Kingdom, to the interests of which we with you have been so long committed.

BISHOP LOCKE: We are very much obliged to these gentlemen for bringing to us these words of encouragement. And many of us expect to live to see the day when there shall be indeed a united Methodism.

5. THE WESLEYAN METHODIST CHURCH (ENGLAND)

SEE JOURNAL, PAGES 275, 276, 320, 322

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE CONFERENCE: By our schedule of events which we have adopted, the formal reception to the representatives of the Wesleyan Church in England, the Canadian Methodist Church, the Irish Methodist Church, will take place next Wednesday night, but I desire on behalf of the committee at this time to informally introduce the accredited representative of the mother of us all, the British Wesleyan Church, who is Dr. Samuel Chadwick, College Principal and Evangelist.

BISHOP BRISTOL: It gives me great pleasure in presenting one whose name is very familiar to American Methodism and world-wide Methodism, Dr. Samuel Chadwick, the Fraternal Delegate from the Mother Church of us all.

DR. SAMUEL CHADWICK: Mr. Chairman, force of habit almost compels me to call you "My lord," for all bishops are lords in the land from which I come. It gives me great pleasure to be in your midst, and I appreciate this honor that has come to me unsought and undeserved, like many others that have come, more highly perhaps than any other distinction that my Church has conferred upon me. I am glad at last to find the Methodists of America. I have been here seven times previously and have ever dwelt, in those seven times, among my own people, and I feel happy to be at home.

BISHOP NICHOLSON ON HIS VISIT TO THE BRITISH WESLEYAN CONFERENCE

At Bristol I was profoundly impressed with the British Wesleyan Conference. Four things about it particularly impressed me. First, the evangelistic spirit and the emphasis those preachers were laying upon their great forward evangelistic movement. Secondly, the prominence of laymen and the power of lay delegates in their Annual Conferences. Thirdly, I was greatly impressed with the way they did their business; the blue book in which the reports of their committees are printed in advance of the conference forms, and the thorough-going way of doing business.

I was under the deepest obligation to that eminent servant of the British Wesleyan Church who so lately ascended, Dr. John E. Wakerley, large and long in service, beautiful in spirit, splendid in all Christian qualities. He was at the Irish conference, he was at Bristol. He was courtesy itself, and I owe a lasting debt of gratitude to him and join with Dr. Chadwick and members of the British Wesleyan Conference in a lament at his seemingly untimely death. I can only say to you that I came back from those conferences, feeling more deeply than ever before that these two great English-speaking peoples must be bound together in a union of heart and spirit, one and inseparable. Our ideals are one, our interests are one, and we have the opportunity to give a leadership, moral and spiritual, to the nations of the earth, and particularly to the European nations, and I shall be to my dying day profoundly grateful to my colleagues for the opportunity that I had in the visit to those conferences and to the brethren across the water for their great kindness to me personally and for their manifold appreciation of what we are and what we stand for and of our combined stewardship for Christianity of the nations of the earth.

BISHOP OLDHAM: I think you will permit me in your name to say to the next and the last speaker that no matter what the hour, and no matter what the length at which he may choose to speak, the man that brings us a message from the heart of old England will have a respectful and warm hearing. Dr. MacMullen will introduce him.

WALLACE MACMULLEN: Dr. Youngson will read the credentials of Dr. Chadwick.

Dr. W. W. Youngson read the credentials of Samuel Chadwick, as follows:

WESLEYAN METHODIST CHURCH,
1 CENTRAL BUILDINGS,
WESTMINSTER, LONDON, S. W. 1,
12TH MARCH, 1924.

To the Bishops and Members of the General Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, Springfield, U. S. A.

DEAR FATHERS AND BRETHREN: The Annual Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in Great Britain, meeting in Bristol, last July, appointed the ex-President, the Rev. John E. Wakerley, as its fraternal delegate to your General Conference at Springfield, in 1924, but before the appointment was officially communicated to the Board of Bishops it pleased God to call our beloved and honored Brother to the Homeland. By his sudden and unexpected death, our Church, and the whole cause of evangelical religion of this country, have suffered an irreparable loss. Mr. Wakerley was one of the most effective and successful evangelists of modern Methodism—a man of quick human sympathy, a successful organizer, a virile preacher, and an impassioned soul-winner. During his presidential year he nobly led a campaign of evangelism, and his visit to your General Conference was anticipated as the crown of his life's ministry. While we deeply regret that this privilege was denied him, we give thanks to God for a life fraught with blessing to our churches.

In harmony with our usage in such circumstances, the President, in consultation with the ex-Presidents, has nominated the Rev. Samuel Chadwick as our messenger to bear to you the affectionate greetings of our Church on the occasion of the meeting of your General Conference. Mr. Chadwick is an ex-President of our Conference, and is one of the outstanding ministers of the Free Churches in Great Britain. He was the founder of our successful Leeds Mission, and fulfilled a wonderful ministry in that large industrial center for several years. He is the Principal of Cliff College, and the editor of "Joyful News." As preacher, author, and especially as a great evangelist, his fame is wide-spread, and his praise is in all the churches.

Mr. Chadwick's previous visits to the United States will have made him known to many of your churches. He now comes to you as the ambassador of the Mother Conference of Methodism, and we are devoutly thankful that in the present emergency he is able to fulfill this high and honorable service.

Our memory of the warmth of affection with which you have received our fraternal delegates in past years inspires the confidence that a most cordial welcome awaits Mr. Chadwick. Not only have we this assurance, but we believe that our brother will be the bearer of a message that will enrich and inspire your assembly, and be worthy of the Church which he represents.

With fervent prayer that the blessing of God may rest upon your Conference, and with cordial fraternal greetings, I am,

Yours faithfully,

THOMAS KIRKUP,
Secretary of the Wesleyan Conference.

WALLACE MACMULLEN: We are always glad to receive visitors from England—dear old home land; England that stood true to the sanctity of treaty obligations, at risk to her own national life; England that has faced bravely and patiently heavy financial obligations with no attempt to evade them, though they represent the debts that were contracted not for her, but for her allies, and though she is already burdened with heavy taxation. We are always glad to receive visitors from England. We have had quite a number recently. We had Lord Robert Cecil, persuasive defender of the League of Nations. We had Margot Asquith, picturesque, but not convincing, to whom the "Gentleman with the Duster" paid his attention in the "Glass of Fashion." We have had Gilbert Chesterton, the brilliant master of literary varieties. We have had Lloyd George, persuasive, magnetic, compelling. Sometimes they send us, either as gifts or as loans, their great preachers. They sent us Cadman as a gift; they have sent us Jowett and Kelman and Campbell Morgan, and Gipsy Smith as loans. And now they have sent us Samuel Chadwick, from the dear old Church that gave us most of our original pioneer preachers; the Church that gave us our first bishops, our liturgy, our articles, our ecclesiastical specialties, our habits of religious certainty, and missionary zeal. Samuel Chadwick has already been described to you as once pastor for sixteen years of their great central mission hall in Leeds, for they know better over there than we know here how to take care of the great down-town city problem. He is now the Principal of Cliff College, the training place for evangelists. He is an author, though he said to me the other day that the one thing that was an agony for him was to write, and yet they tell me that his writing is as persuasive as his speech. But, best of all, he is an evangelist of the Lord Jesus. Samuel Chadwick.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF REV. SAMUEL CHADWICK

MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE: My first business is to finish the speech of the Irish representative. He is here, not simply to tell the story of the revival, but he has been sent by his Conference, along with several others chosen with him to give an appeal to the Irish Methodists, particularly, to be found in this country, in the hope that you will send back with them sufficient money to carry out a large scheme of aggression that is necessary as a result of this revival. You have sent quite a lot of money to Ireland—not always for revival; and now you have a chance to render a great service to that great land, the sons of whom are to be found right away throughout the world, and especially throughout the United States. I promised these Irish representatives that I would take a fraternal interest in them, seeing that I represented both the British and the Irish Conferences, and I commend to your generous sympathy and consideration the story that has stirred our hearts, and filled our souls with praise and with thanksgiving. And I can assure you that the half has not been told, and it is for you to make the Irish Methodists glad by sending back a love gift into the land from which you or many of your fathers came. One word is enough, I am sure.

It is my distinguished privilege to come to you as the representative of Methodism of the mother country. No one regrets more than I the occasion that brings me here. It was the second time that John E. Wakerley had been appointed to represent the British Conference at this quadrennial assembly. Twelve years ago he was not able to come, and my distinguished friend, Dr. Wardle Stafford, came in his place. He himself looked forward to coming to this Conference, as he himself expressed it to me, as a gratifying crown to his ministry and the hope that he and Mrs. Wakerley would have a visit that would be both a memory that would be rich and precious and would leave behind some spiritual gift or evangelical contribution, at any rate, to the churches of this land.

I came here because I am sent. I have never refused to do anything that my Church asked me to do. It is not my first visit to America, but this is the first time that I have ever come to my own people, and I wish to thank you very heartily for the cordiality of your welcome, and the overflowing affection that you have shown to me since I came.

I ventured to open the credentials before I handed them over. They were addressed to me, so that it was not any breach of confidence; but I opened them with the hope that I would find some instructions, something in the nature of a brief. But you have heard what they say, and I have only to be thankful that I am not responsible for everything they say about me. But there were no instructions about the kind of representations I was to bring, and I am not sure that I can represent all the manifold interests represented by the people of the British Conference. I will try to misrepresent nobody.

But I cannot pretend to be impersonal. At one of the Conferences held since we came away in England a woman worker among girls told a story of a domestic servant who was dismissed from her first place. When this woman went to her, she said to her, "What are you dismissed for?" "My mistress said that I had broken a vase, and I had not." "What did you say to her?" "I told her she was a liar." "My dear girl, you should not talk like that to your mistress; you should say, 'Madam, you are mistaken.'" "Well," said the servant girl, "you are eddicated and I am not, and I have got to tell the truth." I do not pretend to be skilled in diplomatic art, but I am here to speak the truth as I know it, and to tell you as I know it something of the feeling of our people for your people and something of the life and work of our Conference at the present moment.

First of all, I bring to you a message of affection and hope from Great Britain itself, and especially from the Methodists of Great Britain. We are deeply grateful for the splendid and timely help that you brought to us in our time of need. We shall never forget how you came and rallied and shared our burdens, and the blood of your sons mingled with the blood of ours upon the field of battle; but we value that contribution more as the final proof of reconciliation and of good will than for any material help or fighting strength that it contributed. We have come through that time of suffering with a deeper and more intimate understanding of each other, and a fixed and resolute determination that whatever difficulties may come to us, nothing shall ever be permitted to come between us. We should not have given in if you had not come. We would have died to the last man, and our women would have eaten the boots of the last man rather than we would have surrendered to an ignoble defeat in a war that was a question of honor that we could not evade without loss of dignity and self-respect. All the same, we are profoundly thankful, more thankful than we can tell, that we had your help and still have your respect and affection.

The word of hope is that you will make haste and come and help us with the problem of peace as you helped us with the difficulties of war. We bring no reproach. We cast no reflection. But we cherish the hope. You were rather long in coming into the war. We believe you came as soon as you fittingly could. You are rather long in coming into the problem of peace; but we understand your difficulty and offer you no reproaches. But it is a more difficult thing to establish peace in the world than to win a war; and there is, of course, the difficulty you have in that politics offer some problems to you in a way peculiar to yourselves. But we would like to see this question lifted out of the region of politics, and settled on the basis of international good will and righteousness. From Georgia to Maine I hear people singing something about "Life down by the riverside, studying war no more." But you must study peace. Peace does not come by pelting war and railing against war. Peace is a great problem. Peace is not a question of political machinery. It is the fruit of righteousness; and until righteousness is established in the earth and righteous relationships are established between nations, there will always be war, so long as there is the spirit of war, and we believe the great problem of the world is to bring the relationships of the peoples of the earth into such distinctive nationality and yet into such international relationship that we shall no longer appeal to the arbitrament of war. And we need some such thing. If you do like the League of Nations, all right. If you will baptize the thing further, we will accept your name. If there are things about it that you do not like, all right; but we must have you in it. The League of Nations, or whatever international movement you set up, cannot function effectively so long as a great people like the American people remain outside of it. We are waiting and hoping and praying that you will, under the direction and influence of the Churches, if in no other way, come and stand side by side with us, and take the responsibility of the world's peace along with us on your shoulders. I say for my people that I believe I speak for the British nation in all sincerity when I say that we cherish no vindictiveness toward any people on earth. We are not out to crush Germany or any other people against whom we fought. One of the wonders of the war was that the British people went through it with a determination to win, but without any feeling of hatred toward those with whom we strove. And now we will take no part with any adversary that is out with a relentless vindictiveness that intends to crush a people that God never intended should be crushed in this day and generation. We will peace. We are resolved for peace. The world needs peace.

And to you there is the appeal made and the challenge, not from us specifically and definitely, but from the condition of the world, and God needs you as ambassadors of the Prince of Peace, to bring us out of the confusion and conflict and difficulty that prevails, especially in Europe, and throughout the world. I think that is enough for me to say concerning hope as well as concerning gratitude.

We congratulate you also upon the triumphant fact of prohibition. There are men in our country who are seeking to discredit it. All kinds of people tell us it is a failure. The press teems with representations that seek to convey the idea that it has been a mistake and people come over to this country and go back to England and tell us extraordinary things about how prohibition has increased drunkenness—a funny thing for prohibition to effect—but in all solemnity they tell us that there are more drunken people under prohibition than there were under the old saloon system. A man called Michael Miskobitch came over to this country—his name is not English and I don't know his nationality—they said he was the most famous actor of the day. I had never heard of him, but in all probability he had never heard of me, so we are quits. He came back from this country and told our people in a newspaper representation that he had seen more people reeling on the streets of New York under prohibition than he had ever seen under the open saloon system. Mind you, he didn't say they were drunk; he said they were reeling. So somebody was drunk. But England took our testimony against his. I have been in this country for months since prohibition came to be the law of the land, and I can count on one hand all the people reeling that I have seen. So I call you to witness that I have kept sober. Your prohibition is a great encouragement to us. The great problem of England is its drink problem. Dare I say that I will back an Englishman, especially after to-night's hymn, against any American you have, and twice over if he is Scotch, and three times over if he is Irish, but I must have him sober? And in the competition of commerce, and in the race for the trade of the world no Scotchman and no Englishman and no Irishman is going to be a match for anybody in these new conditions of society unless you can keep him sober.

And you are compelling us to face economically the question of prohibition for our own land, and I hope the time is not far distant when you will have a man as representative of Britain to stand upon this platform at a quadrennial conference and proclaim to you that we too have followed your example, and if you can proclaim some measure of success in as little time we shall not talk of prohibition being a failure. I would like to thank America for sending us one brilliant worker, who has worked unceasingly for the best interests of the national life, in Lady Astor. It is interesting that the first woman to sit in the British House of Parliament was American born. She has proven a stalwart and valiant fighter in the interests of righteousness and especially in the cause of temperance. Send us as many more of that sort as you can.

And now, Mr. Chairman, I come to speak to you of the phase of life with which I myself have been most particularly identified. In my credentials you will see that they tell you that I have been associated with the central missions of our great cities, and I have stood at the center of an industrial city for nearly twenty years as a preacher of the gospel, as a contender for the faith, as an earnest evangelist, and I come to say that after these years of experience I bring to you good tidings of hope and promise of a great and extraordinary revival that has begun in our land and extended over to Ireland, and we believe it is destined to go throughout the whole world. The extent of the revival was indicated by Mr. Northridge when he spoke of the changed condition that had come over the thinking world. You have to keep in mind the continuity of history, the activities of the press have to be relegated to the background of the past, and as I look back over the years of my ministry I have seen a tremendous revolution take place in the thinking of the world and the attitude of men toward the religion of our Lord Jesus Christ. Every speaker tells you we are passing through a time of crisis and serious difficulties. The statesmen tell us of the greatly confused condition of the world, and everywhere there is a sense of dismay lest we should find ourselves left without resources equal to the demands that shall be put upon us, and one section of the world after another has come to the conviction that if there is to be found any redemption in this world of ours it must be found in the things for which the churches of the Lord Jesus Christ stand.

An editor wrote in a provincial paper a series of articles under this title, "Chaos or Christ," and he gave a survey of the world similar to the one that we listened to the other day from a man who had been through twenty-two countries, and he gave us his deliberate conclusion that if civilization was to be saved it would be only through the application of the principles and the incarnation of the dynamic of the Lord Jesus Christ to solve our problems. And he gave it as his conclusion that never before had men's thinking been driven so irresistibly to the one conclusion that the only hope of the world in its present condition is in the religion and government of the Lord Jesus Christ. That is the great change that has come over the thinking of the country.

To go back to the last great crisis that came to us you will have to go back to the eighties and then you had a convergence of forces of a scientific and intellectual character that brought a challenge to the churches of the Lord Jesus Christ that was greater than the challenge that is with us to-day. There converged at that time three movements to a crisis: Darwin's Theory of Evolution, Spencer's Rationalistic Philosophy, and Huxley's application of both to religion and reform. And you find that the influences that were operative from 1860 to 1881 found their expression in the most blatant challenge that has ever been given to the Christian Church in the Belfast address of Professor Tyndall when he was president of the British Association. He declared that he had discovered a law of spontaneous generation and having found a law of spontaneous generation he dismissed God from his universe with a gesture, and proceeded to give an unscientific application of a scientific assumption, and declared that he was there to prophesy that within a definite and measurable period the form of Christianity would have disappeared from the land, that the aristocratic people would have got rid of the form of specific recognition of religion, that the middle classes would have turned their backs on all the claims of the Christian gospel, that the poor would have found salvation by their deliverance from superstition, and that the dissipated and profligate world would be eliminated in the upward movement of the race. And it seemed as though all the world came to the conclusion that that was the beginning of the end for organized religion. But it is interesting to see how God answered a tenet of that kind. I don't know whether it ever occurs to you that there must be some humor in the Almighty, but God has a strange way of meeting the arrogant and the proud, and you find that he answered Professor Tyndall's claim to having discovered the law of spontaneous generation, much to the chagrin of the great scientist, through the life of a Methodist teacher. Dr. Dalinger proved to the satisfaction, not of the Methodist Conference, but of the scientific world, that there was not anything in the world such as spontaneous generation. And you find that there was an answer to this Spencerian philosophy in a form of Christianity that cut clean across the assumption of the agnostic position. Huxley boasted that in 1869 he invented the word agnostic. I think he got it from Spencer. Neither of them seems to have known that it was in the New Testament. But agnostic culture came to be the boast of the intellectual unbeliever for thirty years, during which period we had to contend against an attitude of scientific unbelief. But God answered that with the epi-gnostic form of knowledge, that is divinely given, and of which assurance is sure. The New Testament speaks of knowledge that is epi-gnostic. And God answered every phase of Professor Tyndall's charge and prophecy. He answered the challenge of death with the quickening of revival. There came a revival of the experiences of Holiness that was rarely sure, and there was hardly a great leader in the religious life of the last two decades of the nineteenth century that did not date his ministry of power to a definite, pentecostal experience of grace.

Moody came, and there was a revival in which business people and all sorts of people went to prayer meetings at six o'clock in the morning. And then the chief sneer of the scientists was that we boasted we could cast out devils, and then came General Booth and in all towns of England, the most outstanding people were called as Christians and professed Jesus Christ. And so the challenge was met along the line of experience, in evangelism. And then you find we had developed into a great activity psychology and religion. Men sought to interpret religion in the realm of reason. They sought to bring better conditions to the people. And so there came a determination on the part of the scientist and philosopher and reformer alike, to save the world, so far as possible, through science and philosophy. And then there came a condition of sterility, in which it was not possible to keep up evangelism. And now there has come a change in which the marvelous work of the gospel is blessed in this spiritual outpouring.

Drummond wrote "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," but his successor takes no stock in trying to spiritualize the world. He emphasizes the nature of the spiritual world, and the axiom that has stood for two thousand years that all is matter, was exploded in a night. The same is accounted for in personality. In my country, with controversies with all kinds of believers, I have heard men stand up and say there is nothing in men but matter; and sometimes a man would say to me, "Believe me, Mr. Chadwick, there is nothing in me but matter." And I say, "That is the reason you don't matter."

Nobody now stands up and claims that the world is accounted for on the basis of matter. The whole position has been changed, and instead of rationalistic philosophy, we have the teaching of spiritual leaders; we have the insistence of the immanence of God and the reality of the things that are not seen. And all this has come as a new appeal, and wherever you go to-day you can stand up and preach a gospel if you have a verified experience; if you have a gospel of which you are sure, anywhere in our land you can find a ready and an attentive and respectful hearing.

And along the same line you will find there has come this revival. After being sixteen years in Leeds, I was sent to take charge of the great work in our Church, which was started by a man who took two young men into his house to train them for service. Cliff College is known as a training school for evangelists; that is all we do. We have no educational provisions, but we take men of all sorts if they have a passion to preach and save souls. Three years ago a Pentecost came upon the college. We had to suspend operation; we could not go on with our operations, because there was a revival that spread over the college, and men were seeking for the gift of the Holy Ghost, for power; and then there came this passion for evangelism. People went out and preached in the open; and hundreds of people were converted on the pavements who had hardly ever been inside of a place of worship. And the work extended until two years ago we were invited to go as a body and take possession of a town for the purpose of holding meetings. And there came a Pentecost on that town. Over two thousand people, over fifteen years of age, were converted inside of ten days. And many people found the salvation that sets men free, and turns bad men into good, and makes them kind and gracious fathers and loyal sons. And now we have a team of fifty evangelists who were former students with us, and where one goes the other goes, and these men have been at work since the first of September; and since I came here, I have received a report from the group that has been working for six months, and they report to me that they have over forty-five thousand names of people over fifteen years of age who have made open and public confession of their choice of the Lord Jesus Christ.

And the best news that I can bring to you is that with the world at the door, at the end of a long day that is full of disillusionment and almost of despair, we still have something to set before them. We have an enlarging work of God. We have a Saviour that is able to save unto the uttermost. We have a gospel of the kingdom that is applied to the conditions of life as well as to the natures of men. And we have a living witness that we ourselves have proved this gospel; and wherever this witness is preached and wherever this gospel is proclaimed, we find a new spirit on the part of men to respond and turn away from the vague promises with which they have been buoyed up during the war and since the war, and they are coming back to the Church of our Lord Jesus.

What we want, it seems to me, is a readjustment of values; a reconsideration of fundamental principles. Above all things, we want to remember that Jesus Christ, for every emergency, commanded his people to pray. And the fields are white unto the harvest. I rejoice above all things that after these years of striving with all forms of unbelief, unbelief has lost its appeal to the hearts of men, and men are open to the appeal of the gospel, and the fields in my land and in Ireland, as you have heard, are white unto the harvest.

When Douglass Brown was coming home from the Canary Islands, he found it rather lonely on shipboard, and then he found that the man in the Marconi room was a Methodist. And he went up and spent some time with the operator in that room. And one day while he was there the operator took down the receivers and clapped them on Douglass Brown's ears, and said, "I am glad this has come while you are here." And Douglass Brown said, "That is some ship sending out a signal somewhere." He said, "It is not a ship; it is rain." He said, "It is not raining." "Oh, yes," he said, "it is, but it is a hundred miles away." "And can I hear that like that?" "Oh, yes," he said, "that is a hundred miles away." And he put down the receiver and went out to see if he could see any sign of rain on the horizon. He came back and listened again. The operator said, "We shall get it. It is coming our way." When he came out he walked out to see the rain. When he got undressed, he looked out to discover if he could see it rain. Soon he heard the rain, and he went out and walked round to feel the rain that he had heard when it was a hundred miles away. And the people who are in the attitude of faith and expectation report to us that they have heard the sound of the coming of abundance of rain. May God find his Church ready in the day of their opportunity.

FAREWELL ADDRESS OF REV. SAMUEL CHADWICK

MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE CONFERENCE: I read this morning of the story of the coming of the Queen of Sheba to King Solomon, for I felt that that expressed better than anything else I knew of, what I felt, as I had to come to you and say good-by. I have come and seen your greatness, wondered at your consecration until there is no more spirit left in me. I want to say how greatly I appreciate your overflowing kindness, and cordiality, especially to the representative who came as a substitute and not as the original appointed.

I have been greatly impressed with the greatness of your Conference, greatly impressed with the magnitude of your operations, greatly impressed with the spaciousness of your program, and I shall go back to my country with a larger and better conception of your responsibilities and of the powers and opportunities that are entrusted to you, because of the days that I spent, not only in this Conference, but in your great country.

I came with a very distinct sense that if I had a mission and a message it was to interpret the Kingdom of God from its Godward side. The revival through which it has been my privilege to pass for the last two and a half years has filled me, not only with a deep sense of hope, but with a sense of humility, and has put upon me a purpose to speak to those who seek the Kingdom of God, that they seek it in the Lord's way, seeking to bring the Spirit by regeneration, and leaving the Spirit to direct as to social reconstruction.

We always appreciate the great men that you send to our land on missions similar to my own. It was my privilege to preside when Bishop Anderson took possession of the Conference, and possession of the platform and everything else and romped in a riotously buoyant way in a speech that swept the Conference off its feet.

I also was on the platform, and saw your beloved Bishop Mitchell when he made a perfectly wonderful address, and at the close of his address he took out of his coat-tail pocket the Stars and Stripes, and said that he always carried this flag with him. And then he took out of the other coat-tail pocket the Union Jack and said that he would always carry the two of them for the rest of his life. I had a mind to ask him last night for the loan of the Union Jack, but I was afraid he might have forgotten it.

I believe there are great days ahead for the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ. The day of the Lord is at hand. And I have been reminded since I have been in your sessions of a little incident that happened in my country, at the Conference; at the hotel where most of the representatives stayed, there was a little page boy that looked after the hats and coats of the people in the hotel, and he was very kind and attentive to the representatives of the Conference. I saw William Middlebrook, perhaps the most dignified and kindly of the attendants of the Conference, say to him one day, "My boy, you are very kind to us here at the Conference." He said, "O, yes, I am one of you."

I think it is my crowning joy that I am one of you, and I shall carry with me the rest of my days, memories of my stay here and of your courtesies and good will. And if you come to England, be sure to look up Cliff College.

6. THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

SEE JOURNAL, PAGE 293

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

MR. CHAIRMAN: Meeting as we are in the original territory of the Congregationalists in America, we cannot forget certain great Christian traditions which we in common with all the disciples of Christ have inherited from them. We remember Scrooby, the Maynard House, we remember the cabin of the Mayflower where the compact was drawn in which the name of God recurs like a refrain. We are grateful for the impulse to political liberty which came from the search of those Congregational fathers for religious liberty. We are grateful for the intellectual stir and the theological eagerness communicated to us by Horace Bushnell and Henry Ward Beecher, and George A. Gordon. We still are warmed by the missionary fires kindled by John Eliot with his Indians on the banks of the Susquehanna, and the haystack prayer meetings at Williams. We are proud to receive to-day the representative of the Church which has in its fellowship and in its membership the President of the United States of America. Mr. Chairman, I have great pleasure in introducing Dr. C. E. Burton, who is the Executive Secretary of the National Council of the Congregational Churches.

BISHOP SHEPARD: Dr. Burton, the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church has a very high respect and Christian love for your noble denomination, and we greet you and wish to hear you.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF DR. C. E. BURTON

MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE CONFERENCE: Let me bring to you the very heartiest greetings of the Congregational Churches of the United States of America. As the General Secretary of the National Council of these Churches, one of the functions specified in our Constitution and By-Laws, is that the Secretary shall, as occasion offers, express the goodwill of our Churches to sister denominations. It is a very great pleasure to me to be with you this morning, to receive this hearty expression of your sense of appreciation of the fellowship which I represent, and to assure you of it throughout the United States of America, and to the ends of the earth, and that we are deeply interested in what you are doing here.

I trust that the Churches of Springfield of our order are treating you well. If they do not, I wish you would report to me—not that I have any power to chastise them, but there is some advantage in publicity—and you will please report to me any inattentions or incivilities that may be practised upon you while you are in Springfield by the Congregational Churches of this city. I shall be pleased to know it, whether it will do you or them any good or not in the premises.

Now, I am a man of conscience and I have this feeling, that no man has the right to occupy the time of such a body as this unless he has something worth while to say to them. I made a little computation this morning, and figured out that your time is worth about $33 a minute not including visitors, and I think that I will take not more than $99 worth of your time to express to you the good will of the Congregational Churches of America and that it will be just as well as though I took fifteen minutes they said was allotted to me.

I wish to emphasize one of the most important situations in America—namely the fact—not the theory and not the hope—but the fact of unity; unity between the Evangelical Churches of the United States of America; unity not necessarily in form, but unity in spirit, unity in aim, unity in desire. I am quite willing to have hands, one right and one left. I am quite willing to have feet as well as hands, and a head as well as hands and feet. I am quite willing that you should have a General Conference and that we should have a National Council. I am concerned that, being members of the Church of Christ, we should all be united in that connection through the heart of Him who gave himself for us. And that fact of unity I would emphasize. I wish that it might come to the front in our feeling, in our thinking, and, where necessary, in our working. The story is told that when the Titanic was sinking the ship which heard the S. O. S. signal and came to help repeated the call for help which was received by another steamer which carried a competing wireless system, and because that ship carried a competing system of wireless telegraph, in answer to the call for help they received a tart “Shut up.”

On occasion such a reply has been made from one branch of Christ's Church, so called, to another. Such replies are not being made to-day. When the S. O. S. call of the world comes with its opportunity to do something to save men, or to infuse into the institutions of our country and into her national life and international relationships the spirit of Jesus Christ, we are one. In these things we are together, and I simply want to leave with you the thought that we extend to you our heartiest good will, and express to you our sense of unity of purpose. We belong to the same fellowship that you belong to, in the ultimate.

7. THE METHODIST CHURCH OF CANADA

SEE JOURNAL, PAGES 293, 320, 322

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

We are to hear the fraternal messengers from the Methodist Church of Canada and the Wesleyan Church of Ireland next Wednesday night. These representatives are here, and your committee asks the privilege of informally presenting them to the Conference.

Dr. J. W. Graham of the Methodist Church of Canada, and Dr. W. L. Northridge from the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Ireland, were presented to the Conference.

BISHOP SHEPARD: We are very glad indeed to welcome these brethren of sister communions.

BISHOP OLDHAM: Of all the splendid events that are characterizing this General Conference in its night sessions, none outranks the occasion upon which you have come together. Of course, it is a matter of some little regret that a great committee should be absent, but if you will remember how the hopes and fears of many of your number are concentrated in the thinkings and outcomes of that committee, I think you will make large allowance for the fact that they keep steadily at work. I am not forgetting that I think we are about two days behind in the corresponding movement of four years ago, and it behooves the committee, I suppose, to be exceedingly diligent to get in its report to be acted upon. I am hoping that the fraternal delegates who are here to-night representing their various Methodisms will take note of the fact that in spite of committee meetings, this is one of the greatest audiences they will have the opportunity of confronting in any land.

And, first of all, there will speak to us the delegate from that great sister nation between whom and us there is only an imaginary geographic line; only of love and mutual esteem bind the hearts of these two peoples together. I will call upon Doctor MacMullen to attend to the beautiful and gracious matter of introducing the representative of the Methodism of Canada.

WALLACE MACMULLEN: Mr. President and members of the Conference, I will ask Dr. W. W. Youngson, the Secretary of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates, to read the credentials of Dr. Graham, of Canada.

W. W. Youngson read the credentials of Dr. Graham as follows:

WESLEY BUILDING, TORONTO, ONTARIO, April 15th, 1924.

The Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States of America, in General Conference assembled at Springfield, Mass.

DEAR BRETHREN: This is to introduce to you the Rev. John W. Graham, B.A., D.D., LL.D., and to certify that he was elected by the General Conference of the Methodist Church (within Canada) and to represent it as a fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States at its present session in Springfield, Mass.

Doctor Graham is the highly esteemed and successful General Secretary of Education of our Church, having been previous to his election to that important office the greatly esteemed pastor of several of the most important charges in our Canadian work, including the great Saint James Church, Montreal.

Doctor Graham is very cordially recommended to your esteem and confidence as he fulfills his responsibility of conveying to you the warm and sincere greetings of Canadian Methodism, and expressing our heartfelt pride and high admiration for your ever-expanding world-service program.

Trusting the great Head of the Church may guide you in all your deliberations and conclusions, I am,

Ever heartily yours,

S. D. CHOWN,
General Superintendent.

WALLACE MACMULLEN: Those of you who were here on Monday night will remember that Rev. Dr. Ross Stephenson, who was our Presbyterian messenger, said that the Methodists of Canada had been brought up on the Shorter Catechism. He gave that as the reason for the eagerness with which Canadian Methodists are watching for union with Canadian Presbyterians. If the Shorter Catechism can make such Christians as Canadian Methodists are, it is abundantly certified to as a Grade A theological school. Some of us three years ago sailed from Montreal to London together with some Canadian Methodists. They proved royal company. Two years ago I had the privilege of attending for a week the session of the Montreal Conference. The ministers and laymen of the Montreal Conference—for they have preceded us in that recognition of laymen—proved to be an inspiration to me. The energy and the efficiency of their Annual Conference work were a great delight. They have sent to us the General Secretary of their Department of Education, Dr. J. W. Graham, whom we have very great pleasure in presenting.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF THE REV. JOHN W. GRAHAM

When I think of the Church to which I have the honor to belong, and for which I entertain feelings of the deepest reverence and affection, and then contemplate the great Church represented by this august body to which I have been sent as fraternal delegate by the vote of our General Conference, I am speaking the truth in soberness when I say that this occasion is a mountain peak experience in my life.

At the very outset of my address I desire, on behalf of Canadian Methodism, to express our deep appreciation of the fraternal delegate you sent to our General Conference in 1922 in the person of Dr. Lynn Harold Hough. It was my privilege to hear Dr. Hough in his deliverance on the evening of his official reception, and also in a sermon preached on the following Sunday morning; and they were mighty messages.

His evident knowledge of comparative religions and of the development of religious thought through the centuries, his reverence for great historical traditions, his love for all things true and beautiful and good wherever and whenever found, his mind saturated with a fine poesy that touched all his thought with a wondrous beauty of imagery, a dramatic quality in his personality not often found in the scholar that made his paragraphs glow with pale passion; it was this rare blend of the poet and the philosopher, of the littérateur and the preacher that served to exalt every utterance of Dr. Hough into a memorable occasion.

We recall too that he bore himself with the grace and courtesy of a Christian gentleman, and coming to us at a time when the country and the empire were still bleeding from a thousand sacrificial wounds he made us feel that he loveth our nation, that he understood the grave purpose and inherent righteousness of Britain and was proud that his own nation had deliberately espoused the same cause and fought side by side with the allies.

We convey this expression of our gratitude for the representative you sent us; Dr. Hough has won a warm place in our hearts, and has deepened our respect and affection for the great Church he represented.

We in Canada have the highest regard for the Methodist Episcopal Church, its traditions, its spirit, and its achievements.

When we attempt to visualize your Church we think of the Board of Bishops, notable men who have supplied both dignity and direction, vision and inspiration to the Church; we think of your Board Secretaries, the Headquarters Staff, men keenly alert and intelligently aggressive, who see the large issues and realize the great world needs and formulate the campaign plans on a scale worthy of the program of Jesus Christ; we think of the larger group of District Superintendents, men of wide practical experience and unwearied devotion, the key men of the organization, through whom the plans prepared by the Bishops, the Boards and their Secretaries are presented to the circuits of the district in such a clear and compelling way that the ideas get home and the campaign becomes a challenge to the consecration of every member of the local church; we think of the host of faithful ministers of the word, unselfish and true, and the myriads of members composing the Church, without whose sympathy and loyal cooperation the vision splendid fades into the baseless fabric of a dream and the plans are perforce pigeon-holed under the label fine, but futile.

We have read of the great Centenary Movement, that for splendid daring of conception, statesmanlike execution of plans and signal success in achievement surpassed any movement of the kind in Christian history up to that time.

We have looked over that cyclorama of the world-wide operations of your Church photographed on the pages of that volume that has been justly termed the Wonder Book of Methodism—I do not know any other book that so clearly and comprehensively outlines the world tasks and so impressively and inspiringly masses the achievements of the Church. Thank God there is no Monroe Doctrine in the program of the Methodist Episcopal Church!—you have caught a vision of the empire without frontiers and are doing more than any other Church to emblazon that vision splendid on the pages of history.

Out of Paul's dungeon and the catacombs of Rome issued the truth that has made America free, and American Methodism has reciprocated by planting a college on Monte Mario, the eighth hill-crest of the eternal city, assuring to the youth of Italy the fulfillment of the pledge of the Master Teacher, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." You have kindled a beacon light of truth on that hill-crest that, by the grace of God, will never be put out.

You have furnished the shock troops in large measure that were bidden to attempt the impossible, the troops that through long weary years knew, but refused to accept, defeat, were baffled to fight better, till at length they pressed the battle to the gates, stormed the frowning battlements of the legalized liquor traffic and then marched in triumphal procession to plant the banner of the Eighteenth Amendment on the dome of the Capitol at Washington.

In the name of one and a quarter million Canadian Methodists I greet you, and I am voicing their sentiments when I say that we esteem you highly in love for your works' sake, and that our prayers will rise like a fountain for you that the beauty of the Lord our God may be upon you and establish the work of your hands so that the bounds of Christian Empire may be extended wider yet until the glory of the Lord shall cover the earth as with a garment.

And now in making some references to my own land and Church I find it very difficult to fairly and faithfully paint such an inspiring picture and at the same time curb my youthful enthusiasm so that an exuberant rhetoric is clothed with a becoming modesty. Canada is a land of spacious beauty, but sparse population; we are a small family in a wide house. Numerically Canadian Methodism may be a pocket edition, but in quality it is an "edition de luxe."

Our Book and Publishing House is the largest and best equipped religious printing establishment in the Dominion; I doubt whether you have any single printing plant in the Methodist Episcopal Church quite as large.

Our Superannuation Fund has received large accretions to its endowment so that its security is undoubted; every minister is a beneficiary, and no church on the continent makes more generous provision for all its veterans.

We have adopted the most improved modern methods and principles in the field of religious education in the local Church, and are now planning to extend the work beyond the impressive numbers reached in our Sunday schools and young people's societies to touch and mould the life of the community through week-day religious schools.

Our missionary enterprises on the home and foreign fields have been prosecuted with intelligence and ever-deepening enthusiasm, and the advance in the contributions to the missionary fund in recent years has been unprecedented in our history. We are justly proud of the noble men and women of capacity and consecration whom we have sent to Japan and West China, and believe that they have an honored place among the Christian statesmen on the foreign mission field.

I believe we were the first Church in Canada to organize a department and appoint a Secretary of Social Service, and we have been well advised to combine evangelism with social service in one department. The Church that forgets the profound truth that Jesus enunciated to the wise and wealthy Nicodemus as to the fundamental need of a rebirth of spirit under divine influence if one is to discern and appreciate the things that are unseen and eternal; the Church that has no message of redeeming love and transforming power for him who, clothed in filthy rags, sits amid the cleaner swine in the far country and yet dreams of the old clean, sweet life, and yearns for a sight of the father's face; such a Church has forfeited the right to be called a Christian Church—it bears none of the stigmata of the Lord Jesus, who came to seek and save the lost and gave his life a ransom for many.

But the social inadequacy of a purely individualistic gospel is recognized by most Christian leaders in the modern world. The Church must not only preach the regeneration of the individual, but also must strive to change conditions, to reconstruct the social organism in which the individual lives, through which he functions, and which has such an overwhelming influence on his character and destiny.

The Church must not only pluck some brands from the burning, but also through consecrated, organized effort endeavor to put out the devastating fires of hell.

Your Bishop McConnell recently told us in Toronto that the social program adopted by our General Conference of 1918 was the most progressive and forward-looking document sent out with the imprimatur of any church.

We have been running true to type, and, like your Church, have had a foremost place in the fight against the saloon. The nation-wide prohibition given as a war measure by an Order in Council was supplanted by Provincial Acts, and there seems to be in certain Provinces a swinging of the pendulum toward a policy of so-called government control. It would be more accurate to term it government sale with the constant menace that the liquor trade will control the government. However, we are confident that this resurgence of anti-prohibition sentiment will prove but temporary—the public drinking house will never again have an abiding place in Canadian life.

We have had a great forward movement, corresponding to your Centenary, called the Methodist National Campaign, which developed into an inter-Church movement in which all the Protestant Churches cooperated, but each denomination was practically responsible for its own propaganda and financial drive.

The Methodist financial objective was $4,000,000, to be paid in fourteen months as a special offering for missions, colleges, and the endowment of the Superannuation Fund in addition to the current revenues of the several departments. The amount subscribed was $4,837,000. The amount paid to date is $4,156,375, of which about $3,000,000 was received in a year. If we add the amount raised for the current connexional funds to the special campaign fund, it means that we raised nearly $5,000,000 for general Church funds in one year, and I would remind you that you have about eleven times as many members as we have.

It was a wonderful movement, resulting not merely in the raising of unheard-of sums of money for world-wide Christian enterprises, but also in the impressive lifting up of the whole program and function of the Christian Church before the eyes of the nation, and in the rededication of the lives of thousands of our members in service and sacrifice for the Kingdom.

Believing that the paramount task of the nation is the proper education of its youth, and that education divorced from moral and spiritual ideals is fraught with great peril to the modern world, and realizing that the Church therefore should play a significant part in secondary and higher education, Canadian Methodism has planted at strategic centers all along her far-flung battle line from St. John's, Newfoundland, to British Columbia, eleven secondary residential schools, three Arts Colleges, and six theological seminaries, representing in buildings and endowments an educational asset of about eight million dollars.

I do not think that any other church on the continent has higher educational standards for their ministry than our Church. Matriculation into an approved Arts College is demanded as an entrance requirement to reception on probation; this is followed by at least six years on probation, of which four must be spent in college. I suppose seventy per cent of our young ministers spend six years at college, but the irreducible minimum demanded of every man is four years at college before he is given the status of an ordained minister.

This accounts in part for the fact that the recrudescence of premillenarian propaganda, inevitable as a phase of the aftermath of the war, has left our denomination well-nigh untouched, and that the controversy between fundamentalism and modernism has not and cannot reach the acute stage with us that it has in certain other communions.

Our ministers know the problem and are able to differentiate the essentials from the minor issues, and therefore are not easily disturbed or stampeded by the extreme statements made in the heat of a controversy. Some say that ignorance is bliss; it is—in a fool's paradise.

One of the most valuable functions in a modern minister is to mediate between generations, to turn the hearts of the fathers unto their children. We need preachers of such knowledge and insight, such illumination and pure desire, that they are enabled to reincarnate the truths of our holy Christianity, to reinterpret them in modern thought forms so these old truths become living, insistent, and compelling to the men who live and think to-day. As some one has said, Christianity in the vernacular is always Christianity triumphant.

I desire to speak at some length on the Church Union Movement in Canada, as it marks an epoch in our history and is of such significance that you are doubtless deeply interested in the present stage of the movement and in the probable outcome.

You are all aware that the Congregational, Methodist, and Presbyterian Churches have been negotiating union for over twenty years; that a basis both of doctrines and policy has been arranged by a joint committee and approved by the highest courts of the negotiating churches. The votes taken in the representative courts of the churches were overwhelmingly in favor of consummating the union as expeditiously as possible. In the Congregational and Methodist Churches it was well nigh unanimous, and while there was bitter and organized opposition in the Presbyterian Church, yet in the last vote taken, out of 56 Presbyteries that took action, 52 were in favor of union, and the General Assembly of 1923, by a vote of 427 to 129, approved of the bill of incorporation and ordered it to be submitted at the next session of the legislatures.

We are not asking Cæsar to constitute the Church of the living God; that has already been done by the deliberate action of these free Churches in harmony with their respective constitutional procedure; we are merely asking the State to give a legal status to the United Church and assure civil rights and privileges, including the right to hold and administer property to carry on the spiritual activities of the Church.

The winning of the world for Christ will be accomplished mainly by large organic bodies built upon the few great fundamental facts common to the race rather than by separated congregations with no organic cohesion and therefore parochial in vision and contracted in their range of activities.

If the great enterprises of the Church are to be prosecuted with intelligence and enthusiasm to the consummation of world redemption, it will be largely through the vital unity of large masses of believers in intercession, in coordination of plans, and in cooperation to achieve.

The essential unity of all believers in Christ is a great fact, but the thought of giving articulate expression to this fact in a corporate unity is a haunting ideal which in the minds of many is a consummation devoutly to be wished.

In this matter of Church union we in Canada are practical idealists. We see the one far off divine event to which the whole Christian Church moves, but we have chosen the statesmanlike policy of taking a step at a time, of adopting any measures that seem practicable to unify further the Christian forces, and yet never losing sight of the larger union on the horizon.

We practical idealists in Canada do not desire a rigid uniformity, or a rigid conformity to type, for we believe that uniformity may stifle the inner spirit and spell death. What we desire is diversity in unity which is genuine catholicity.

After all it is the small sect that stands for rigid uniformity, that makes many and heavy demands on the faith of the few who give it allegiance.

But a great Church numbering millions in its membership, while permitting a frank difference of opinion in many questions, must demand loyalty to the essentials of Christian faith. Thus there is given a unique significance and value to the few great fundamentals that hold together in a corporate unity myriads of people of variant types and temperaments, in many lands, by a living faith that has become the master light of all their seeing and the motive spring of all their living.

The Rev. Dr. Gunn, General Secretary of the Congregational Union of Canada, has made a careful study of the various unions that have taken place in Canada in the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian Churches, and has discovered that there have been in the Congregational Church two union movements, uniting three bodies; in the Methodist Church eight unions, uniting sixteen bodies; in the Presbyterian Church nine unions and seven absorptions, uniting twenty-one bodies; so that the three Churches now merging into the United Church of Canada represent forty different bodies. Perhaps nowhere else in the world are there Churches quite like these three, containing so many and so varied divisions of the Church of Jesus Christ. It has been a fine piece of constructive policy, the fashioning of this "made in Canada" Church by Canadians to meet the peculiar conditions and pressing needs in our own land.

We have acquired the union habit and are going on to consummate a union for the first time in history of three great communions for the glory of God and the more speedy conquest of the world for His Son.

You might say to the Puritans of Cromwell's time, "Where is your history?" and they would reply, "We are making it!"

The United Church of Canada is not an ancient body freighted with an opulent historicity, but we are making history, we are blazing a trail that will become a broad highway whereon the redeemed of the Lord may return to Zion with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads.

The Church Union Movement means more than an external merger of ecclesiastical corporations tied together by a nexus of legal and legislative enactments; it is a moving together of large masses of people swayed by a common purpose to dedicate their lives to their common Lord and profoundly convinced that the program of Jesus for the community, the nation, and the world can be more impressively presented and more swiftly carried through by a united rather than a divided Church.

In anticipation of organic union a plan of cooperation as between the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches has been developed to an amazing extent in recent years.

In New Ontario on 3,000 miles of railway lines there are 121 union charges embracing 364 preaching points and only 13 points where both churches are represented. In this section we have closed about 100 churches, saved 80 men and $50,000 a year to the Home Mission Boards. The work is better done, the congregations are larger, and a better spirit prevails.

In Saskatchewan there are only 29 places in that whole vast province where the two denominations are both at work, and 431 union charges. Take the two railway lines between Saskatoon and Regina, a distance of 160 miles—to-day on those 320 miles there is not a single place where both churches are working. There are only five places on 750 miles of railroad lines north of Saskatoon where both are represented.

In Manitoba there are 37 places where both are represented, and 148 union charges.

From the Great Lakes to the Pacific Coast there is no new field where both churches will enter in unseemly rivalry.

In the Presbytery of Halifax, perhaps the oldest in Canada, there are only nine purely Presbyterian Churches compared with 28 on some form of a united basis.

We have estimated that there are now in Canada 1,245 union charges representing over 3,000 preaching places, all of which will inevitably be incorporated in the United Church of Canada.

You ask me what has happened to our bill of incorporation?

Because of the early prorogation of the legislatures of British Columbia and Quebec the bill will not be considered until next year's session. The provincial legislatures of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Nova Scotia have passed the bill. It is now being discussed by the Private Bills Committee of the Dominion House.

The Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature passed an amendment instructing the law clerks to add clauses to the bill providing for the preservation of the Methodist Church, the Presbyterian Church and the Congregational Church, and for the setting up of a United Church constituted by any congregations that withdraw from the parent churches; and we gave instructions to our legal counsel to withdraw the bill because we felt the proposed amendments contravened its vital principle.

There has emerged a very grave issue which constitutes a menace to our cherished religious freedom.

Three great churches confer together, earnestly, thoughtfully, prayerfully, over a period of more than twenty years, and reach the deliberate conclusion that organic union is both practicable and desirable to better promote the spiritual work in which they are engaged. They then, by procedure in harmony with their respective constitutions, arrange and adopt a plan of incorporation which they submit to the legislature with the request that they be granted legal recognition and the right to hold and administer property. And the work of twenty-five years is swept aside in a few hours by a group of politicians, the majority of whom do not belong to the negotiating churches.

The sight of the deliberate acts of the Church of God being trampled under the heel of Cæsar has deeply moved many of our people who feel that the inalienable rights of free churches in a free land to guide their spiritual affairs and shape their own policy should be conceded and respected by the State. If, as the opponents of union claim, these churches have not the power to reshape their polity nor to restate their faith without losing their identity, and therefore cannot legally unite with any other Church, then truth is static and progress impossible, the heritage of the Church consists of sacred relics to be hermetically sealed in a sarcophagus rather than the living truth, fashioned by the ameliorating drifts of time, deriving fresh inspirations from the Divine Spirit to meet the changing needs of the age and kindling new enthusiasms to respond to the challenge to build up the fair commonwealth of Christ in the midst of the nation's life.

Moreover, this contention sounds the death knell of union, for if it be valid, then the only possible union is an absorption, the only possible merger a submerger to which self-respecting men will never consent; the body of Christ can never be united, and we are flung back into the old Babel of tongues in which we lose the spirit of Christ in our disputation as to which is His true Church. The apostles degenerate into controversialists and the Christian crusade drivels into a debate. However, our confident hope is that the Dominion Parliament will pass the Act of Incorporation, perhaps with some minor amendments, and this will give legal status to the United Church of Canada as an accomplished fact.

In entering into this United Church we are not narrowing but enlarging our Church life, and are loyal to the spirit and traditions of Methodism in our "desire to form a league offensive and defensive with every soldier of Jesus Christ," and therefore we hope our action will not be interpreted as a severance of those ties which, light as air yet stronger than death, bind us to our beloved world-wide Methodism.

The Pan-Presbyterian Council has signified its approval of the proposed union and its willingness to recognize the United Church in its gatherings.

We are confident that ecumenical Methodism in general and the Methodist Episcopal Church in particular will not coolly thrust us out into the wilderness as children of Hagar who are aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, but will continue to give us an unreserved and loving recognition as fellow citizens and of the household of faith and of the family of God.

We hope that you will send a representative to our General Council, and I assure you it would be a great grief to us if we are not invited to send a fraternal delegate to your General Conference to assure you of our continued loyalty and abiding affection.

It has sometimes been suggested that Canada has a great part to play in mediating between Great Britain and the United States; I have no means of knowing how much force there is in the suggestion. We have lived side by side with you, neighbors for 4,000 miles, with no forts or arsenals on land, and no cruisers and submarines on the Great Lakes, through one hundred years of unbroken peace, with a dawning and deepening appreciation of each other's fine qualities and limitations, until if to-day some man out of a diseased brain were to suggest the possibility of a war between the two nations he would be speedily consigned to the nethermost pits by an outraged public sentiment.

But we Canadians turn our wistful eyes across the sea to the dear motherland, dearer to us than ever, that foam-girt isle whose shores are rose-washed with a thousand dawns, that jewel set in the silver sea, the center of a world empire, broad-based upon the people's will and compassed by the inviolate sea.

The deepest desire of the Canadian nation is to see the British Empire and the United States of America establish an entente cordiale, based upon mutual confidence and good-will, which would ensure a coordination of effort in world affairs; for we can conceive of nothing that would do more to establish peace and righteousness in the world, to restore the statelier Eden to man and usher in the Christ that is to be.

The greatest of England's poet laureates wrote:

"O thou that sendest out the man
To rule by land and sea,
Strong mother of a Lion line
Be proud of those strong sons of thine
Who wrenched their rights from thee.

What wonder if, in noble heat,
These men thine arms withstood,
Retaught the lesson thou hast taught
And in thy spirit with thee fought
Who sprang from British blood."

There have not been wanting those in the last few years who have endeavored to discredit England by advancing the claim that certain other nationalities have contributed much more to your national life, but I have noted how your keen publicists have been swift to establish the undoubted fact that the richest, the most potent strain that courses through the arteries of your great republic is drawn from "the Land of hope and glory, Mother of the free." The same rich, red wine nourished the life of Cromwell and Washington, of Gladstone and Lincoln, of Florence Nightingale, Frances Willard and Edith Cavell.

The English common law broadening down from precedent to precedent is that which gives stability to our States and assures justice to our commonwealths.

I think of Milton the poet, who, because God's finger had touched his blind eyes, saw the solemn pageants of the skies unfurl before the throne of the Eternal; and the bard of Avon, whose subtle delineations of character and dramatic artistry hold the mirror to human nature in a manner unequalled by any other writer: and the Saint James version of Holy Scripture, the noblest piece of literature extant, pure, sweet, wholesome, the progressive revealing of God to man in language sometimes quaint, sometimes thrilling with lyric sweetness, and ever and anon deepening into the majesty of a great organ played by an inspired prophet soul like Isaiah, until it finds its loftiest expression when the Word became flesh and dwelt among us and we beheld His Glory.

This shining literature, the treasured transmittenda of our storied past, has so opened the golden sluices of the day that our homely English mother tongue has become a river to be reckoned with, a river that cannot be passed over, waters to swim in, a mighty gulf stream that pours its freshness through the Seven Seas and touches with its cleansing, inspiring influence the shores of every continent of the earth.

Tennyson and Browning; Longfellow, Lowell, and Whittier; Ruskin, Carlyle, and Emerson stooped to drink from those pure founts of thought and diction.

We speak the same language, we derive our inspiration from the same sources, we cherish the same democratic instincts and aspirations; we thrill with the same emotions when we sing together, "Faith of our fathers! holy faith! we will be true to thee till death," for Christ is the liege lord of these broad and smiling lands.

Brothers, let us entwine the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack about the Cross of Calvary and enter into a solemn league and covenant to place the Crucified on the throne of the world!

Remembering that the holiest place on earth at one time was not the temple at Jerusalem, but a carpenter's shop at Nazareth, may we so interpret Christ that the shop is transfigured into a temple, the forge becomes an altar, labor and capital are co-partners in industry, co-workers with God, and business is conceived not as an arena for selfish exploitation and cruel competition, but as a field of cooperative endeavor to give a richer, fuller meaning to life—not a den of thieves, but the cleansed temple of the Most High.

War is the abomination that worketh desolation; it is the loathsome opposite of all that Jesus stood for and hoped to accomplish. Unless the Church of Jesus can prevent war, this world will revert to the jungle with its ravin of tooth and claw, our boasted civilization will be flung to the scrap heaps of history, and Christianity will be discredited as an effete religion impotent to prevent the thwarting of the purposes of God.

But war is the result of an acute international situation; it is the government, and not the Church, that makes the momentous decision; therefore the Churches must bring all the influence at their command to bear on their governments to organize and join a concert of nations, and to set up a permanent court of arbitration that would function continuously as a clearing house for international disputes and remove the sources of irritation and causes of war.

Failing this I fear our Church resolutions will not avail much in the day when the rolling war drums summon our young manhood to the unfurled standards of the nation.

Personally I have high hope that in the not distant future the vision of the prophet will be realized, when all the accoutrements of the warrior and the garments rolled in blood shall be for burning and fuel of fire, and all the nations will gather about that great funeral pyre that signalizes the cremation of war.

For unto us is born a child—His name shall be called Wonderful, the Prince of Peace, and the government shall be upon His shoulders—and of the increase of His government and of His peace there shall be no end!

I do not pose as a prophet, not even a minor prophet, but I venture to predict that, when Armageddon has been fought and won and the reign of Christ is acknowledged from sea to sea in the Parliament of Man, the Federation of the World; when that illustrious day shall dawn and the troops of God come marching by, the eyes of Him who sitteth on the throne will see at the head of the column, marching side by side in the foremost files of time, Old England and New England, sundered by the sea but united in a love of truth and liberty, peoples who were not disobedient unto the heavenly vision, but followed the gleam until it broadened into the glory of a new day that means day-break every where.

BISHOP OLDHAM: We have always thought highly of Canada. There are ten or eleven millions of Canadians like this man.

FAREWELL ADDRESS OF DR. J. W. GRAHAM

BISHOP WELCH: Dr. Graham, the fraternal Delegate from the Church of Canada, is also leaving. May I present him to say good-by.

DR. J. W. GRAHAM: Mr. Chairman, and Members of the General Conference, I have been your guest for several days. I want to thank you on behalf of Canadian Methodism for your unstinted hospitality. I was very fortunate immediately upon my arrival at Springfield to fall into the hands of Bishop Berry, that prince of Israel, and that, combined with the fact that I was introduced by him to Dr. MacMullen, meant the "fair beginning of the time," as Lord Tennyson once phrased it. Someone has said, "Pierce a Methodist until he bleeds, and you will find a throbbing heart."

And I have been able to get beneath the surface of this most significant, most impressive, deliberative religious body, of which I know, and I find that you are all members of the Church of the warmed heart, and I feel my own heart strangely warmed as I have mingled with you.

Before I bow to you in farewell, I want to correct an omission. I was reported in the program last night without the word "Reverend." Now, I don't want you to feel I am grieved, but I am a minister, and I am proud of it and I feel that God has highly honored me in calling me into the ministry of the gospel of His Son. As I believe that the Church is the foundational institution of the community, I feel that the minister, who is the natural leader of the organized religious forces of the community, has the essential task, and that his is the essential message, and I am glad to be a minister, and I would rather drink water and eat dry bread and continue to be a preacher of the glorious gospel of Jesus Christ, than be a millionaire through floating mergers, and not have that privilege.

Ave atque vale! May the Spirit of God brood upon your meetings! The Lord lift upon you the light of his countenance, and grant you peace!

BISHOP WELCH: We thank each one of these brethren beloved for the contribution which he has made to our gathering. May the blessing of God Almighty be with each one of them in his own place.

8. THE WESLEYAN METHODIST CHURCH (IRELAND)

SEE JOURNAL, PAGES 293, 320, 384

BISHOP OLDHAM: And now God bless the Irish! Everybody loves the Irish—I will let Dr. MacMullen tell the rest.

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

When you take the Canadian Pacific steamer and sail for England, your first sight of land will be the cliffs on the north-west coast of Ireland. The first American Methodists were Irish; Philip Embury and Robert Strawbridge, whose claims to priority in service we are still debating and count the matter sufficiently important to create a commission in order that the search into these claims and the decisions upon them may be made in due and regular form. Embury and Strawbridge were both Irishmen. Jesse Lee, whose bronze medallion we are wearing as a badge, was the spiritual son of another Irishman, Robert Williams, one of the very earliest of our American itinerants. Ireland has sent us, for this evening's service, Rev. W. L. Northridge. He will tell us of the spiritual movement over there, which more than anything else will help to kill the slowly dying fires of political strife and economic warfare with which that unhappy land has so long been cursed. We are delighted to have him here.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF REV. W. L. NORTHRIDGE

It is an unusual privilege and honor to me to be permitted to address this great gathering of official Methodists, the greatest gathering of the kind in the world, and convey to you the greetings of our Irish Methodism. All the more do I recognize it as an honor to speak to you because I represent the Methodism of a small land. In Ireland there is a population of scarcely five millions, but since I came to America a couple of months ago I have discovered that there are far more Irishmen in the world than I had any conception of. We have sent you a large percentage of your policemen and it is said that thirteen out of every sixteen priests in this country are either Irish or of Irish descent. When in New York I heard of an Italian who asked the Mayor how long he would have to live in New York before he could become an Irish citizen. The fact is that America only seems to be the bigger Ireland.

And American Methodism is only the bigger Irish Methodism. We are proud that we had something to do in planting Methodism in this great land. About the year 1760 Barbara Heck and Philip Embury left our shores for this great country. They were Irish peasants. It took them three months to cross the ocean in a sailing vessel. They settled in New York. Philip Embury was a local preacher at home, but after his arrival in New York he got caught in the pleasure-loving spirit of the times and became what we call a backslider. Then, one day while engaged with other Irish immigrants in a game of cards, Barbara Heck delivered that well-known rebuke that aroused him to a sense of responsibility for the souls of his countrymen. The result was that he began once more to preach and his first congregation consisted of only four people. But from that simple beginning grew the old John Street Church in New York and this great Methodism of yours that has meant so much, not only to your own land, but to the world.

When I was in Pittsburgh I read of the origin of Methodism there. A humble Christian woman used to gather the members of her own family around her every Sunday afternoon. She invited some neighbors to join the company and she used to read to them from the pages of Wesley's Sermons. These were the first Methodist sermons delivered in Pittsburgh. The preacher was a humble peasant girl called Mary Wilson from Ireland.

In every city in the States that it has been my privilege to visit I have met scores of Methodists who either came from our country or are sons and daughters of those who came. You have no reason to be ashamed of the Irish element in your Church whether pastors or laymen. They are filling positions of leadership and responsibility among you. I need only refer in proof of this to such names as the Bradshaws of Minneapolis, or the Dixons of Chicago, or the Henrys of New York, and in the ministry to men of the type of Dr. George Elliott, Dr. Wallace MacMullen, and Dr. Downey. We feel that when working among the few in Ireland we are doing a greater work than we are aware of, and that American Methodism has ever been reaping the fruits of our labors.

It would be easy to entertain you to-night by an account of the lighter side of Irish life, but my time is limited and so I will speak of what may interest you most, the revival of religion, that within the last eighteen months has come to bless our land. That revival has been made possible by three factors.

First, we have passed in recent years from an age of materialism to one that is definitely spiritual. The conversion of Robert Blachford and the new interest in human life and personality as distinct from that interest in the problems of the material world that until a few years ago absorbed so much of our thinking, are indicative of the change in the mentality of our age. Not for many years have I met in our land an atheist. Everywhere there is a general belief in the value and truth of religion. This makes it easy to present the claims of Christ and gives men a readiness to accept Him. This accounts for the fact that in our universities regular prayer meetings are held and in our Methodist College in Belfast hundreds of boys, who are the pride and hope of our land, and who will fill the highest professional and business positions available, have pledged their allegiance to Jesus Christ.

We have been passing in Ireland through our Gethsemane. A wave of crime almost unparalleled in the history of any land has been passing over us for many months. No life was safe. Both in person and property the innocent suffered every day. Scores of our best people had to leave everything behind and depart to other lands. But all could not leave and those at home continued bravely to endure scorn and persecution. They prayed as men never did. They were thrown together—men of all denominations and the denominations themselves for mutual council and prayer. And God answered prayer by a great revival of religion.

Personally, I attribute the revival, so far as Methodism has shared in it, to a movement in the ministry known as the Fellowship of the Kingdom. It was a movement especially among the younger ministers. For years the conference in Great Britain and Ireland has been faced by a decrease in membership. During the war we had been foolish enough to imagine that the experiences of the battlefield would lead to a revival of religion, that men who had been face to face with death would return with a new seriousness and would bring new life to the Church. To our bitter disappointment the result for the Church was the opposite of what we prophesied. Many who went out from us as Church workers came back with no interest in their Church. One day a group of young ministers discussing the problems of their Churches came to the conclusion that insofar as the Church had failed it was not because the Church was lacking in organization, but that they themselves were lacking in spiritual power. They decided to meet fortnightly to seek in fellowship something of the New Testament experience of God and Christ. And one day Christ did come to them afresh and mightily. They formed themselves into fellowship groups and decided to meet regularly. That movement has spread and grown until now all the younger ministers at least are found in fellowship groups meeting fortnightly. The chief value of the movement is that it keeps us mindful of the essentials and keeps the heart warm. One of our great dangers was that the spiritual element in the preacher's experience and preaching was likely to be crushed out by the persistent demands of their multifarious duties. The Fellowship of the Kingdom delivered us from this danger and restored the almost lost spiritual element.

Certain things followed. There was the personal experimental note in preaching, there was a new sense of reality and conviction in the message, men were being blessed in the regular services of the Church, the preachers themselves became not only evangelical but evangelistic. In the revival there was no outstanding personality with whom we could connect the revival. Every preacher became his own evangelist. Men who denied that they had any evangelistic gifts became mighty soul seekers. It is noteworthy that it was the best trained, the most highly cultured, of our younger preachers who became the greatest evangelists.

Some of us have gone out into the streets of Belfast before the Sunday evening service. We have led a procession of witnesses, consisting of about two or three hundred members of our congregations. We have sung our hymns and have extended personal invitations to all sorts of characters aimlessly wandering about the streets to come with us and they came. Men, who up to that hour, had the feeling that no man cared for their souls. I wish I had time to tell you what some of these men were and what they are to-day—drunken, selfish, vicious, useless, but to-day tenderhearted, unselfish, determined to live the remainder of their life in the glad service of others. There are, it is estimated within a radius of forty miles from where I preach, about fifty thousand conversions in eighteen months among the adult criminal class to say nothing of the thousands of young people who have surrendered to Christ and of others to whom the revival has brought fresh quickening. Let me sum up briefly some of the results of the revival.

In the first place it has brought peace to our land. I know that there were other contributing factors, but the revival more than these guaranteed the peace of Ireland. Two years ago I was horrified one night to see about two thousand workingmen rush to attack property owned by those of another persuasion because one of their number had been brutally done to death that morning. It was a terrifying sight. But it was not so long afterwards when I saw about the same number of the same men from the same place rush in a new enthusiasm to attend the revival service. They did not wait to go home to wash or eat and in their eagerness to find a place in the Church they broke down the iron railing around the building and then during the service decided to erect new ones and by so doing solved a problem for that Church. In the places where once were heard the persistent cracks of revolver and rifle fire the sound of singing can be heard to-day. The women of the streets meet each morning in some home for a prayer meeting, while in many of the factories dinner-hour services are regularly held. The revival has brought a new spirit between class and class, between Protestant and Catholic—a spirit better than any we have known in our time.

The revival has also issued in a new concern for civic purity and righteousness. The government of North Ireland in response to the demand of the Churches within the last twelve months has closed every saloon on Sunday, abolished forever all spirit grocers' licenses, and made it impossible for any person under eighteen years of age to enter saloons for drink. Ulster to-day leads the British Empire in temperance reform and we are keeping our eyes on America. We shall never rest until there is not a saloon left in our land. Our government has also passed a splendid measure for the better education of the people in which provision is made to give all children whether children of the rich or poor, equal education advantages.

More interesting still the revival has resulted in crowded Churches. In many areas of the city we are being embarrassed by lack of Church accommodation. Our difficulty is our spiritual prosperity. In June our conference accepted the challenge of the open door of opportunity and, notwithstanding the general industrial depression that has thrown thousands of our people into unemployment, it decided to embark on a scheme of Church building involving an outlay of $500,000. One of these Churches is to be erected in the center of the city opposite the splendid new city hall. It is not only to be a Church, but is to be a center for North of Ireland Methodism. It will contain many Church offices and provide information and advice for all young Methodists coming into Belfast not only from Ireland, but from other lands. We are hoping that Irish-Americans, those who are of our kith and kin in this our day of need and yet of unparalleled opportunity, come over and help us. The hope of Ireland is a sweetened and genuine Protestantism. Protestantism saved Ireland and a saved Ireland can bless the world and no part of it more so than America.

BISHOP OLDHAM: God is blessing the Irish. We will now have a brief report on Bishop Nicholson's visit to British Wesleyan and Irish Conferences.

BISHOP NICHOLSON: Mr. Chairman, I shall trespass but a moment or two to say but two or three things. First, regarding the Irish Conference. It would be impossible to overstate the warmth of the welcome that I had in your name at both the Irish and the British Wesleyan Conference at Bristol. I saw this revival in action. I stood on the streets and heard those Irish preachers speak to the multitudes of the people, night after night for a week. I attended and sat on the platform with crowds as great as the crowds in this hall, listening attentively to the great messages of the members of those conferences, and I have only this to say about them. I think I found the spirit of the Irish revival, for I sat in the session of the Irish Conference in Belfast, and heard the preachers give their reports. They did not parade about it; they didn't seem to think they were saying anything extraordinary, but I heard a story of a man who had gone through a Gethsemane in their service, a sacrificial service to those hundreds of people in the trying days that were just behind them, and I have heard that it was the blessing of Almighty God and the sacrificial service and consecration of those Irish preachers, a service as heroic as anything in the annals of Christianity, that was the forerunner of the great revival, which Dr. Northridge has been telling you about.

BISHOP BURT: The brother who came to us from Ireland, and whose message we remember with great gratitude, is to leave us. Dr. MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on Courtesies, will now present him that he may say a word of good-by to us.

WALLACE MACMULLEN: Rev. W. L. Northridge represents the Irish Methodist Church. He is obliged to leave us to-day. He has won our hearts. By formal vote last week we registered our sympathy with him in his special mission in this country and our wish to help in the Barbara Heck and Philip Embury Memorial. With your permission, he will now speak to us his farewell.

FAREWELL ADDRESS OF REV. W. L. NORTHRIDGE

MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE CONFERENCE: At this time I will not detain you longer than a moment or two. I wish simply to say how much I appreciate the gracious way in which you have received me. I have been exceedingly happy during this few days in your midst. I don't think any member of the Conference has felt more at home here in the Conference than I have, and that is probably because I have met with so many friends from my own country. I don't think that I have been introduced to a dozen delegates who have not been able, somehow, to trace their ancestry back to Ireland. I have learned a great many things, and one of them is: that all the great leaders in the Methodist Church in America have come from Ireland and if there are any leaders who cannot say that they have Irish blood in their veins, they are leaders because they married Irish ladies.

Coming from a small Methodism like the Irish Methodism that I try to represent, it has been a great inspiration to me to look into the face of this great assembly, representing a Church that is so powerful and so world-wide in its influence, and I am going back carrying with me an inspiration from that fact that shall always live with me in the future. I do feel that whether in Ireland or here, we are all one Methodism the wide world over, and I felt this especially in the great service in this auditorium last night when that wonderful evangelistic note was struck that makes us feel, both here and in Ireland, that we are all one great brotherhood. And I feel that if that is the great spirit of Methodism there is no fear for our Church.

Let me say also that I shall go back and try to encourage our own people by telling them that in the scattered parts of our country they are doing a much bigger and better work than we have ever dreamed of.

And I want to say that I am in just a little bit of trouble and perhaps the Conference will help me out. When I was leaving Ireland I had many requests from friends there who asked me to give their love to relatives and friends on this side of the water, and among their requests I have a note to this effect, "Lizzie Green knows a woman in the United States of America. She thinks her name is Douglas. Please look her up and tell her that Lizzie was asking for her." I have been in many of the cities of America and I have not discovered her. Perhaps this great assembly may help me. Again I thank you most sincerely for your welcome and for all the blessing and inspiration that I have received while in the Conference.

9. THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

BISHOP KEENEY: To-night we are to have the choice and profitable experience of pushing back the horizon, and looking beyond the borders of our own Church and our own work that in such large measure occupy our thought. And we welcome to this place, this evening session of our Conference, representatives of other communions and of enlarged programs, who shall bring to us their messages and shall quicken our vision to the great tasks of Christ's great kingdom.

Wallace MacMullen, Chairman of the Committee on the Reception of Fraternal Delegates:

MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE CONFERENCE: We have the high honor to-night to be visited by a prominent and greatly loved representative of the great Presbyterian Church. We are in debt to Presbyterianism for its historical service in the origins of Protestantism; for its elaboration of Protestant theology, an elaboration which has more in it than the doctrine of decrees; for its mighty princes of the pulpit; for its constant and strong emphasis upon the necessity of a thoroughly trained ministry; for its leadership in all movements looking toward Christian unity; and for its brotherly cooperation in many fields of endeavor.

The Presbyterian Church has sent us as its representative Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, president of the Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church at Princeton. Dr. Stevenson has assured me that he will not attempt to convert us to Calvinism to-night. I have the high privilege, Mr. Chairman and members of the Conference, to present Dr. J. Ross Stevenson.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF DR. J. ROSS STEVENSON

MR. PRESIDENT, FATHERS AND BRETHREN: Having been associated for more than a quarter of a century in the Executive Committee of the Student Volunteer Movement with Dr. John R. Mott; being Chairman of the Commission on Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches, of which Commission Dr. Goodell is the Secretary; knowing so many members of this Conference, I certainly feel at home in this presence; at the same time, to be perfectly frank, coming as a representative of the Presbyterian Church to bring the greetings of our General Assembly, I feel something like an Englishman addressing an American crowd on the fourth of July, because he is bound to explain why it was that the American colonies rebelled against the oppressive reign of King George and to go on to say that the rebellion was a great benefit to England herself; that she became thereby more democratic, more considerate of her colonies than she would have been had the Declaration of Independence not been signed. And by the same token, a Presbyterian addressing a Methodist audience is bound to call attention to the fact that the revolt of John Wesley nearly two centuries ago against an arrogant ecclesiasticism brought about such a condition of benefit as is summed up in the Articles of Religion. And as we say that in the course of time the British monarchy has been so democratized as to be almost identical with the American republic, so our action and reaction on the American public has had such an effect as to be a challenge to almost anyone to tell the difference between us in methods, in polity, and in worship.

There was a time when we capitalized our differences, and now we make much of our similarities and call attention to our worship and polity and methods, being in the same line. In a western town I have heard of a situation that was rather interesting. Along with the regular run of denominations there were three replicas, we might call them, of Presbyterianism.

There was the Presbyterian proper—very proper; and the Reformed Presbyterian and the United Presbyterian Churches. The Reformed Presbyterian Church began to decline in membership, and the pastor was very solicitous because of the fact that the lambs of his flock were separating themselves to other folds; and he took occasion to preach a sermon on the subject. And among other things he said to his congregation, "I do not need to warn you young people against the Episcopal Church, because there is a wide difference between that Church and ours in its form of worship and in its polity. I do not need to warn you against the Baptist Church, because they hold views about immersion that would not be accepted by our people. But I do want to warn you against the United Presbyterians, because they are so near like us that you cannot tell the difference."

That there is a close resemblance between the Methodists and Presbyterians is evidenced by the fact, as you are doubtless aware, that steps are being taken in Canada to form a union between the Presbyterian Church, the Methodist Church, and the Wesleyan Church, projected on a plan that has met with the approval of the great body of those who belong to those three separate unions. And it is rather interesting to note the policy they have devised. There are to be a district Presbytery, a quarterly conference, and an annual general association. I dare say that if that body were to make its appeal to any Pan-Methodist body for admission, that body would say, "You sing our songs, and we gladly admit you." So a delegation from the Presbyterian section of this united church recently appeared before what is known as the Pan-Presbyterian Church, and they applied for admission, and it was decided that they were thoroughly Presbyterian in their polity and everything else.

Now, it is not surprising when we learn that the Wesleyan who took a leading part in working out the details of this doctrine and worship is of Scotch extraction, and was brought up on the Presbyterian shorter catechism. However, in the interior government, difficulties have already arisen that I need not discuss in this presence, except to say that if this union is to go through it would seem to require a good deal of the ecclesiasticism of the Presbyterians, of the evangelism of the Methodists. Matthew Arnold once said that the Presbyterians were as prone to division as the sparks are to fly upward; and in Scotland they say wherever you find a Macleod you find a Presbyterian Church; and where you find two Macleods you find two Presbyterian Churches.

However, when it comes to divisions or subdivisions, I do not think we Presbyterians need to boast or be exalted above you, although we have twelve different brands of Presbyterianism in this country; but if I am not mistaken, you have something like seventeen brands of Methodism.

It is rather pleasant to think that the rupture caused by the civil war is to be healed in your Church by a union of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and that the efforts of your Churches will not longer be devoted singly to your great purposes, but will be a united Methodism. We also ask your prayers that the Northern Presbyterian Church and the Southern Presbyterian Church may be provoked by you to love and good works, and profiting by your example may too come together. The divisions with which we have been dealing in our own communion have had to do with sixteen different boards and agencies, and we have succeeded at last in reducing them, temporarily at least, to four. This matter of organization and reorganization has become somewhat habitual with us. And now there is a demand in the Church that we have something like a closed season against any further attempt at organization, at least for the next five years. I believe it was Joseph Cook who once said that only one new organization is required in churches and that is an organization to prevent further organization.

But, so far as our own communion is concerned, if we were to enact anything of that kind, we would be placing a ban upon the amusement of a great many of our ecclesiastical brethren who find their greatest delight at every meeting of the Presbyterian Synod or General Assembly to devise some new measures to solve our problems so that we will secure all the funds we want and have no further trouble.

As regards amusement, we Presbyterians, being so sober minded, less hilarious than you, have not had to put a ban on amusements, but rather have tried to incite our people to being a little more jovial and good tempered. Something like forty years ago we had this question up in our General Assembly—I speak not for purposes of instruction—but under the leadership of a great man of our Church, Dr. Herrick Johnson, three great principles were laid down to govern our young people and they have been sufficient. The first principle, absolute devotion and loyalty to Jesus Christ under all circumstances; the principle of regard for a weak brother; and the principle of separation from the world. And on those three principles of the gospel, our Church has stood.

I am not unmindful of the fact that our Church, like some other communions, has been rather harassed in the past few months by theological discussions, and coming from a staid old theological seminary, I cannot forget the issue that has been joined. It seems to some of us that it affects the character of religion; as to whether Christianity is simply man's upward reach for God, or God's downward reach to man; whether we have in Jesus Christ the Son of God who was manifest in the flesh, or whether we have in him simply the son of human parents, who in the course of time acquired the attributes of divinity. But I may say what has held us steady and I trust will continue to do so, is concern for the larger interests of the Kingdom of God.

We have had a great deal of solicitude regarding one of our great boards, the Board of Foreign Missions. Following the war it had an accumulated indebtedness, a year ago, of more than $600,000. And judging by last year, our Church was falling steadily behind in its offering to this great cause, or, I should put it, at any rate it was not keeping up the standards set by our General Assembly. And six months ago, it looked as though we were to close the fiscal year with an indebtedness of more than a million dollars, and word was sent out to our mission stations, which filled them with consternation, because it meant putting them in a pitiful plight, meaning retrenchment in their work. And word was sent out to the Church, and a week was set apart for denying, sacrificial loyalty to the Church, and the money began to come in.

And it has been coming in steadily until with sincere gratitude to Almighty God we can now say that our Foreign Board, of which I have the honor to be a member, will come up to the General Assembly next week and report that not only have all the current obligations of the year been fully met, but this indebtedness amounting to more than half a million dollars, which threatened to be a great deal more than that, will be entirely wiped out. And the explanation of it is, so far as our own Church is concerned, missionary zeal along with prayer and the awakening of earnest spiritual life.

More than two centuries ago, when our denomination began its organized existence in this country, there were two errors which were being imported from Great Britain and the Continent and which, to the minds of our ecclesiastical fathers, threatened the power, the peace, and the prosperity of the Church. I hesitate even to mention them, but if you will bear with me I will make my explanation. These two errors were Socinianism and Arminianism. But the Arminianism of that kind was prior to the days of John Wesley. Concerning it one of your historians, Dean Tillett, in his statement of the faith of world-wide Methodism—possibly I ought to say that he took his theological course in Princeton Theological Seminary at the feet of Charles Hodge. And, to show what we are as Presbyterians, it would perhaps surprise you to learn that although Princeton Theological Seminary has the reputation of being rigidly Calvinistic and exclusive, among our 215 students of the last year not less than thirty denominations were represented, and among them were seven from the Methodist Episcopal Church, and five from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; but I can assure you that when they graduate they will still be good Methodists and useful to the interests of your Church at home and abroad. Dean Tillett said that the Arminianism in existence when our Church began to be in this country more than two centuries ago was rationalistic in its character, entirely negative in its spirit, arid in its influence, and was as repugnant to John Wesley as it could be to any Presbyterian. It was, as I understand it, through the influence of Wesley that the Methodist Theology became in time Arminianism baptized with the Holy Ghost and charged with spiritual power. Dr. Buckley, my good old friend, once said that Methodism—he was searching, I suppose, on an occasion like this for some tribute that he could pay to the Presbyterian Church, and to Calvinism—he said that Methodism got its analytic acumen and power for argumentation by the training in stalwart resistance to the teachings of Calvinism. We have received a greater benefit, and that is the impartation of abounding spiritual life in recognition of the power of the Holy Ghost in connection with the teaching of John Wesley and the great evangelical revival, that which imbued our Church and equipped it for the stupendous tasks of the last two centuries, and brought our Church in line with the triumphant advance of the kingdom of God.

A few summers ago it was my privilege to do some work in the library of the British Museum in London. Every morning I crossed the Thames, and I noted that the river was running very low. Huge craft heavily laden were stranded high and dry. Others were stuck fast in the mud, and in the shallow stream were a few boatmen almost contending for the right of way. In the afternoon, when I crossed the same bridge, the scene had completely changed. Craft of every description, bearing precious freight, were sailing out majestically, like a veritable argosy in search of the golden fleece. The tide had come in! What our Church still needs, and what I suspect other Churches need, is such an incoming tide of spiritual life and missionary zeal as will cover up the rocks of dissension, which raise an angry surf when the tide is low, and will set the Church loose from ease and self-content and send the Church of Jesus Christ, laden with the precious freight of gospel truth, and under the command of the Captain of our Salvation, forth to every land, that his dominion may spread from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth.

In this faith we stand with you. In this hope we pray, looking forward unto the coming of the kingdom of our Lord. Even so, come quickly, Lord Jesus.

10. THE FEDERAL COUNCIL OF THE CHURCHES OF CHRIST IN AMERICA

Dr. Charles S. Macfarland, General Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, spoke briefly, and called upon Dr. Frank Mason North to introduce the next speaker, Dr. Robert E. Speer, who spoke as representing the Federal Council.

FRANK MASON NORTH: MR. PRESIDENT, MEMBERS OF THE CONFERENCE: It is a singular pleasure to me to be here to introduce to you one whom I admire, whom I love, whom I follow whenever I can get near enough to him to follow him, and with whom I have had the joy of being a fellow in service in this cooperative work in these years past. I shall not stand between you and the pleasure of hearing Dr. Speer, save to say that it has been due on somebody's part to a desire to do a real kindness to me, that I am permitted to speak his name in your presence and introduce him to you as the President of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. I have great pleasure, Mr. Chairman, in presenting to you Dr. Robert E. Speer, known everywhere throughout the world; a missionary, a statesman, a Christian, a man of power, and a man of force; a great leader of the covenanted hosts in our American Churches.

FRATERNAL ADDRESS OF DR. ROBERT E. SPEER

MR. CHAIRMAN, DR. MACMULLEN, DR. NORTH, AND MEMBERS OF THIS CONFERENCE: Whatever feelings of strangeness or of timidity one may have brought with him to this place, he would have to lay aside as he looked around on so many familiar faces and saw himself in the midst of so many of life's oldest and dearest friends. It is a great privilege to be here in this Conference to-night in any capacity at all. I must confess to have felt just a little envy of Dr. Stevenson as he was presented, to stand here as the official representative of the communion to which he and I belong, and to which our fathers and our fathers' fathers have belonged, generation upon generation. I could not have brought the greetings of that communion with the felicity that has characterized his address to-night, but I could have spoken with special knowledge of the intimate and inspiring relationships that have bound our communions together across past generations in the great central business of the Church to make Jesus Christ Lord in the life of our own land and throughout all the world. My memory goes back clearly to the old days when Dr. Peck and Chaplain McCabe were the Secretaries of the Missionary Society. I can remember the thrill that went through us all, as many of you can, when Chaplain McCabe gave to his communion the war-cry of a million per year for missions—home and foreign, that was. And I think very often of how that brave soldier-heart must rejoice on high as he looks down, not on the achievement of a million dollars for home and foreign missions annually, but on the foreign missionary work of your Church and the foreign missionary Church for which Dr. Stevenson has spoken, contributing now more than ten million dollars a year and standing to-day, it is our faith, only on the threshold of the things that are to be done.

It would be very pleasant here this evening to recall many of the rich and blessed memories of this past generation that has brought our missionary societies so close together with only a narrow street intervening, and that binds them ever closer and closer in their common plans here at home and in their common work to the very ends of the earth. But great as Dr. Stevenson's privilege has been, I have a still greater one here this evening. It is to bring to you who are gathered here in this Conference in a real sense the greetings of all the great body of evangelical Christians in our land. I think it is not presumptuous to speak in these words.

And it is only a beginning, this association of our great Protestant bodies here in the United States, which enables us to speak in some measure at least, with one common voice and to move with one common step, and it is a great privilege here speaking in the name of that body to bring their affectionate greetings to this great body of their fellow-believers and their fellow-workers. And something more than greetings one wants to bring. There is a word of gratitude to be spoken here in this place to-night. It is to be spoken in the name of the organization of the Federal Council; it is to be spoken equally in the name of all the Christian Churches in this land to which this body has rendered priceless and inestimable service. It was given to many who are here in this room to-night to be among those who had the far vision to see that the time had at last come, and the wisdom to plan practically, for the realization of what the times demanded in the establishment, now twenty years ago, of this Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. In the generations that are to come their names will be remembered here in their own communion, but I envy them the place they are to fill in the broad annals of the Christian life of the whole Church of Christ in this nation of ours. Dr. North, and Bishop Wilson, and Bishop McDowell, and Dr. Haven, and Judge Rogers—and how many other names one could add—of those men who stood at the very inception of this work of the Federal Council, who saw what the time demanded, who planned nothing chimerical, who built far more wisely than they knew, who were guided by wisdom greater than the wisdom of man, and who made ready for us who are coming after them a great instrumentality of power in the Christian Church in America and throughout the world.

As one looks out on this gathering to-night his prayer must be, and my prayer has been since sitting here, that there may be raised up among the young men in the ministry of this great Church those who are going to follow in the footsteps of these fathers who have gone before, and who are drawing now so near to the end of their great service here on earth.

It is a great privilege to be here to-night in the name of all the Churches of this land, organized in this fellowship of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ, to speak this word of greeting and gratitude to the Methodist Episcopal Church, and yet, after all, your Church has only been true to its essential character. It has done no more than was its duty to do in discerning what the day called for and in bending itself to the achievement of the necessary task of the time. For there has ever been in this Church the growing reality of the spirit of the principle of the full Christian fellowship. I have deliberately chosen both words. The spirit of that fellowship; we have felt it instantly in coming into this place this evening. The kindness, the good-will, the full share of brotherhood, the sense of perfect unity. No one could have been here to-night without having that borne in as a real and living experience upon his heart, and not the spirit only, but the living and vital principle.

I don't know as much about Church history as Dr. Stevenson knows, but so far as I have read it was no purpose of John Wesley's plan to make a division in the Church of England. The division that came was not of his own planning and choosing. He ever lived, as the great Churches of history live to-day, in the interests of the great goal that lies ahead of us all, the great dream that shone before the eyes of our Lord, the great longing that he embodied in his prayer, that all these temporary organizations, that for the time being locate us in different camps of action, are only preparatory to a larger and richer comprehension greater than anything that we can as yet conceive. And for my part, I believe that the day has come when a larger measure of this realization is demanded than ever before. And we shall be remiss in our duty to-day, as those men were not remiss in their duty twenty years ago, if we do not show ourselves ready for those demands and equal to this new necessity. The times in which we are living now are calling for a far larger measure of feasible, practical and cooperative effort than our fathers felt the necessity for in the days that are past. It is required, surely in order that there may be the demonstration of Christian principles and truth inside of the Church, for purposes of witness and purposes of power.

There were two lines in the hymns we were singing a few moments ago that stood out from all the rest; that an unbelieving world might see how Christians loved, that an unbelieving world might be shown how Christians once lived. We are not, with the organizations we have to-day, affording an unbelieving world adequately that demonstration. It will not be discovered until we associate ourselves in the experience of a far larger measure of common Christianity and common conviction than as yet we have given a thought to.

I was reading a while ago what in its day was a great era-beginning book, Inquiries into the Human Faculty, and I found in my little handbook this which I will quote: "One sees clearly from the associated ideas due to one's own experience and, I may say, one can see it measurably how important it is in a general way, for two grown-up persons to lay their minds side by side together in perfect accord. The same sentence cannot produce precisely the same effect and both of the first quick impressions that any given word may convey, may differ widely in the two minds."

And I was reflecting on the miracle of any human agreement whatsoever. Surely, where even two minds come together in common understanding and accord, it is a witness to that social bond that exists in the reality of the full power of God. Every human friendship is an evidence of God. Every experience of human unity or binding together of men in common purposes and solidarity of will whatsoever, is a witness of God's purpose that there shall be one family on the earth, bound together in common sympathy and accord. If the measure in which we have realized that is sufficient we will more nearly accomplish God's desire of the spirit of Christian denomination. You are rejoicing here, as our brethren over in Canada are rejoicing, in the prospect of a larger incorporation of this unity, in richer aggregation and more solid denominations, and for my part I think the time has come when we must look for greater unities than our fathers ever prepared for. This Federal Council does not embody it. Dr. Macfarland could explain the wisdom with which, at the beginning, it was severed from any doctrinal organization and was not to be the rallying ground for many believers in Christian unity. It was given its own work and its own task, simply a cooperative instrumentality subservient to and dominated by the Churches that brought it into existence, and gave it all its charter and power. But one has a feeling always for something beyond, for something richer and fuller.

As I look out over our day, torn and harassed with its great mass of unsolved problems, many of them growing every year more entangled and complicated, one feels that surely the day has come when we have got to ask ourselves afresh whether we are adequately expressing in the instruments of cooperation that we have used, the common mind that ought to bind us together, and our great common convictions regarding salvation in our Lord for the world.

In the second place, one wonders whether our day is not demanding this larger measure of experience of fellowship in active service simply by the magnitude of the antagonisms and oppositions against which the Christian Church must array herself. In the little notebook, as I was reading it coming up on the train to-day, I found half a dozen quotations from Marshal Foch's book on the Principles of War: "Defeat is a purely moral result." "Strategy is only the result of character and common sense." "Whatever is done in an army should always aim at increasing and strengthening that moral strength." Nowhere can better models be found than in the actions of Napoleon who made use of that wondrous military power in order to triumph by taking advantages of human emotions, by maneuvering masses of men, administering the most crushing defeat ever known. Napoleon always marched straight to his goal without in any way bothering about the strategic plan of the enemy.

Can any man look out on the world to-day and not realize that we have not yet massed these forces against the foe? For my part, every time I stand in front of an issue, I try to ask myself just one question, namely, "What course of action just now would best please the adversary." As a rule it is not hard to discover what course of action would best please him.
